TWO SCORE WITNESSES HEARD CASE TIGHTENS AGAINST NELSON

Senior Prosecuting Counsel Believes May Go to the Jury To-night.

MAINTAINS INDIFFERENCE.

Expected Mrs. Nelson Will Go On Stand For Defense To-day.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—Five hours detailed examination of more than two score witnesses saw the welding yesterday of the main props of the Crown's case against Earle Nelson, charged with the garrotting of Mrs. Emily Patterson, of Winnipeg.

A procession of witnesses marched to the witness stand in an unbroken line throughout the afternoon, and according to R. B. Graham, senior prosecuting counsel, the case may go to the jury tonight if the same progress is experienced with the remaining witnesses.

About eighteen additional Crown witnesses will be examined today, followed by three or four which the defence has intimated it will bring in. Among the latter will be Mrs. Nelson, wife of the prisoner, who has not made her appearance in the court room since the trial started on Tuesday morning.

Yesterday, Nelson was confronted with an array of witnesses, who with two exceptions identified him as having been in or near Winnipeg on the day the crime was committed. At the time of his capture, Nelson maintained steadfastly that he had never been in the city.

Sat As Man in Trance

Nelson sat throughout the greater part of the day's proceeding as a man in a trance. Only once did he evince any marked interest in the deliberations. This developed in the morning when a screaming throng of women were veritably catapulted through the court room door by a stampeding crowd of several hundred that stormed the trial chamber. The disturbance momentarily aroused the prisoner from his dreamy state and he peered forward to obtain a good glimpse of the mad rush for the spectators' seats. He laughed heartily as one woman stumbled through the door spilling the contents of a bag of peanuts on the court room floor.

The hubbub was short-lived and Nelson again retreated behind his sphinx-like mask.

While Mr. Patterson, the husband of the murdered woman told of the anguish that gripped him as he knelt in prayer for the safe return of his wife, only to brush against her lifeless body as he was about to rise, Nelson assumed his statuesque pose. For more than fifteen minutes he kept his head propped against the back of the dock and through half-closed lids stared straight in the direction of the witness.

Air of Indifference

The prisoner maintained the same air of indifference as Crown counsel submitted exhibit after exhibit for identification in support of the evidence adduced; as medical practitioners gave an account of the mutilated condition of the victim's body; as witnesses swore that he had sold them clothing that had been stolen from the Patterson home.

Nelson's alleged movements were traced by the Crown from the time he is said to have accosted a motorist on his way from the United States to Winnipeg.

Accosted Witnesses

The Crown presented two witnesses who claimed that the accused was the man who accosted them while they were driving toward the city, and asked for a ride. A "jazz" sweater, light brown sandals, and grey cap formed the principal factors of identification.

No Excitement Today

The third day of the trial witnessed a noticeable lapse of interest on the part of the public. Only a handful of women were waiting at the entrance to the court room in contrast to the mad scramble yesterday and on Tuesday. The Crown proceeded with evidence of the remaining eighteen witnesses and there was a possibility the case would go to the jury tonight.

Mrs. Catherine Hill, a rooming-house keeper, testified that the accused had given the name "Woodcots" when he applied for a room.

Detective Alex Calder, of the Winnipeg Police, said that Nelson, though cautioned after arrest that anything he said would be used against him, said Nelson had written a note giving his name, age, and information relating to his relatives. A note produced by the Crown prosecuter showed that the name Virgil Wilson and the year 1898 had been scratched out and Earle Nelson and the date 1879 as the birth year substituted.

There was a dispute between counsel as to the admission of evidence as to what Nelson said after being committed to the cells. Chief Detective Georeg Smith denied that any coercion had been adopted by the police to obtain a confession or a statement from Nelson. The accused had volunteered the information pertaining to his identity. After some arguments the statement was admitted by the Court. Answering defence counsel, the detective stated that the police were in possession of documents showing that Nelson had been committed at one time to an insane asylum.

Thomas Barton, salesman at a local men's furnishing store, identified a light velour hat as one he had sold the prisoner on June 11, the day of the murder.

Japan Would Welcome Canadian Ambassador

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Japan would welcome a direct representative of the Canadian government for such a representative could do much to cement Canadian-Japanese trade and political relations, according to N. Matsunaga, retiring counsul general for Japan at Ottawa, who has been recalled to Tokio for another appointment.

Accompanied by Mrs. Matsumaga and their five children the former consul general will sail from here Thursday.

"Trade relations between Canada and Japan are bound to increase," said Mr. Matsunaga, "and in the last four years they have increased from less than $30,000,000 to more than $50,000,000."

FRIDAY NIGHT CLUB EXPANDS

Program For Winter Months To Be Entertaining and Educational.

RUGBY TEAM GUESTS.

Tomorrow evening the Friday Night Club will entertain the P.C.I. Rugby team at the Y.M.C.A. Last Friday the club had an attendance of 54. This is the second largest meeting which has ever been held. Still larger and more enthusiastic supper meetings are plannd deuring the fall and winter months. Entertaining and educational programs of a high order are forecast by the newly elected executive.

Whether it is this executive or a change in the attitude of the members is not known, probably it is half a dozen of one and six of the other, but at any rate the club has taken on a new lease of life and promises to be a "howling success" this season.

J. F. H. Wallace has again been elected chairman. Assisting him in piloting the club's destiny will be the following executive. They're all live-wires. Any of these or the 'Y' officials will be glad to impart information relative to the club, its activities and membership qualification. Each member of the executive is chairman of the committee named following his name.

Executive—Bert Garrick, vice chairman; Bruce Fraser, speaker's; George Nicholls, music; Jack Jennings, social; Ron Fleming, membership; Keith Copping, supper; Howard Macdonald, secretary-treasurer; Dick Ccwan, Clayton Ruth, general.

At the last meeting the club adopted a crest having the form of a triangle with a beaver and maple leaves in the centre and the words Peterborough Friday Night Supper Club.

PLOW IN RAIN.

Deseronto Man Wins Annual Contest in Frontenac County.

KINGSTON, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—Held in a driving rain, the annual contest of the Frontenac Plowmen's Association at Joyceville, near here, was won by William John, of Deseronto, with John McGlynn of Wolfe Island second. Thomas Craden of Bath was third and Bay Conklin of Prescott fourth.

387 Ground Hog Tails Turned In In Contest

BROCKVILLE, Ont., November 3 (Canadian Press). — So numerous had groundhogs become in the vicinity of Maynard, Grenville County, last summer that the Women's Institute offered cash prizes to the boys bringing in the largest number of tails. The contest has now closed, and no fewer than 387 tails have been returned by the contestants.

Change of Venue Is Granted Wagner

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—A change of venue for the trial of Wilmot Percy Wagner of Canead, accused of the murder of two State troopers, was granted by Supreme Court Justice Hinckley here yesterday. Trial was set for Buffalo on November 14.

Justice Hinckley based his decision on arguments of attorneys for the prosecution and defence, submitted to him at a hearing here Tuesday, and after he said he had carefully considered all of the points brought up by counsel.

The trial was originally set for Allegany Country, where the alleged murders were committed, but counsel for Wagner argue that a fair trial could not be given the youthful defendant there.

FINAL DETAILS ARE COMPLETED

Ceremony Which Will Take Place at Unveiling of Monument.

ARLINGTON CEMETERY.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—The details of the ceremony which will take place in Arlington cemetery, Va., on Armistice Day when a monument, the gift of the people of Canada to the United States, commemorates those citizens of the United States who served and lost their lives in the Canadian Expeditionary Force during the Great War, will be unveiled have now been completed, the final draft of the arrangements having been approved by the governments of both countries. Canada will be represented by the Minister of National Defence, Hon. J. L. Ralston; the Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, Hon. J. H. King; Canon J. L. Almond, former Chaplain-General of the Overseas Military Forces of Canada, and a number of army and civilian notables. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Minster at Washington, will unveil the memorial, which will be accepted on behalf of the United States by Hon. Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State. Addresses will be delivered by Colonel Ralston and by Dwight F. Davis, United States' Secretary of War.

Following the unveiling wreaths will be laid on the monument by Mr. Kellogg, Sir Esme Howard, British Ambasador, and by Mr. Massey.

Open With Fanfare.

The proceedings at Arlington will open with a fanfare sounded by trumpeters of the 3rd Regiment of United States' Cavalary, to be followed by prayer spoken by Canon Almond. A number of hymns will then be rendered by the choir of St. John's Church, Washintgon, after which the memorial will be unveiled and presented by Hon. Vincent Massey to the people of the United States. A brief address of acceptance will be made by Hon. Mr. Kellogg, followed by addresses delivered by the Canadian Minister of National Defence and the United States' Secretary of War.

The concluding prayers will be offered by the chief chaplain of the United States' forces, and will be followed by the Benediction.

Two Guards of Honour.

Two guards of honor will be drawn up during the ceremonies, one a representative detachment of the Canadian permanent force, comprising men of the Royal Canadian Regiment and the Royal 22nd Regiment. A full brass band and the pipers of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto will accompany the Canadian troops, together with three trumpeters from the Royal Canadian Dragoons and three from the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery. The other guard of honor will be detailed from the 3rd Battalion of the 12th United States Infantry.

During their sojourn at the American Federal Capital, the Canadian soldiers will be quartered at the Fort Myer and the Washington Barracks, while the officers will be the guests of the officers of the Fort Myer Garrison.

Following the ceremony, the troops will be entertained by the American Legion. In the evening Hon. Mr. Massey will give a dinner to the Canadian Ministers and a number of distinguished guests.

THEY ALL JOIN.

VOLVANO, Hawaii, Nov. 3.—Making the world's "grandest hole-in-one" by driving a golf ball into the steaming fire-pit of Kilauea volcano has become a poplar pastime here. Visitors to Hawaii go to the volcano in crowds to gain membership in the famous Kilauea "Hole-in-One-Club". The fire-pit is 1360 yards across and 1200 feet deep.

Sweden's industrial production in the past year was 50 times that off50 years ago.

POLICE GUARD PREMIERS' DOOR

Neither Press Nor Public Admitted to Provincial Conference.

BEGINS TO-DAY.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press.)— At ten thirty this morning the doors of the Railway Committee room closed and the conference of Provincial Premiers began its session while policemen at the door excluded the public and press. The Prime Minister of Canada stated on his way into the conference that the business of the session would commence with only brief preliminary speeches of welcome. Questions of procedure and agenda were the first business of the day. The agenda is subject to change, it is understood.

The tentative agenda which was before the conference to-day is divided into three sections, financial, constitutional and social, and embraces a great number of subjects of national and provincial interest.

The conference got down to business without any preliminaries except a brief address of welcome by Premier King. The first item taken up was the regulation of aircraft and flying operations and it was decided to refer the question of jurisdiction over these, as between the provinces and the Dominion, to the Supreme Court for decision. At the present time thte Dominion Government has general control over flying

In a warm welcome Premier King declared it to be a fortunate circumstance that this conference should be held when Canada was celebrating the Jubilee of Confederation. "This is a conference, not a cabinet nor a convention," he said "It is the being together of those charged with the responsibility of carrying on the affairs of government with a view to discussing matters of mutual interest."

The Premier expected the conference to conclude on Wednesday next. The first official act was a passage of a resolution giving respectful greeting to King George and Queen Mary and to their representatives in Canada.

No Deputations.

Certain outside parties had asked to be heard but it had been decided to follow the example of the Imperial Conference in England and outside deputations would not be given any hearing. It had also been thought to be in the best interests of the conference that no stenographic report should be made out, but that a statement should be presented each day for publication after approval by members of the conference. For this purpose it was decided that Premier King and Premier Rhodes, of Nova Scotia, should be a committee.

The entire Federal cabinet of eighteen members was present and sat on either side of Premier King. The Provincial Premiers sat at flanking side tables.

ASSIZE TERMS RUN TOGETHER

Quebec Attorney General Wants Two Extra Sittings in Montreal.

TOO MANY CASES.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—Some Montrealers may point at Toronto's crime wave, but evidence that this city still has enough criminals, is shown in a proposal made to the Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Attorney-General of Quebec, that sessions of the Assizes be increased from four to six terms per year. The Hon. M. Taschereau has the suggestion under study.

At present the Court of King's Bench, Crown side, sits here in February, May, September, and November. Some of the terms run almost into one another. For instance, the September term finished last Monday, and the November term opened yesterday. Ten cases from the September term went over to the November term, which has a total of 42 cases on the roll, and would have had more had not several of the September term prisoners pleaded guilty.

One thing which those connected with the criminal courts wish to eradicate as much as possible, however, is what is sometimes suspected to be "option juggling." As it stands, a man may elect to be tried by a jury, knowing that the King's Bench term is two months away. Two or three days before the jury is to try him, he secures option to be tried by a sessions judge. Thus his case goes back for several weeks more, and by the entire manipulation, he has postponed the trial for at least three months.

IN POLICE COURT.

Frederick Bayliss pleaded guilty to two charges this morning, one of not supporting his wife and family, and the other of assaulting his wife on September 17. He was remanded to jail until Saturday.

FILM OF FAIR IS EXHIBITED

LEASE RENEWED.

Fred Roy, during the six days of the Fair, took two reels of pictures which reveal all the grandeur, the largeness, and the splendor of Peterborough's big Exhibition.

The pictures show in detail the midway, the vaudeville, the buildings, the cattle, the jumping, and the big live stock parade, all of which went to make the show a success. These pictures will be used for advertising the Exhibition and also to show the government officials just what kind of a show there is in Peterborough.

The directors decided to renew the lease for the next ten years of the grounds at the same terms as formerly paid: $500 a year for the first five years, and $600 a year for the second five. Of this, Mr. Morrow gives back to the Board $100 every year to enable them to make the Fair bigger and better than ever. The secretary was instructed to write Mr. Morrow thanking him for his most favorable proposition to the Board.

This year's Fair will show a surplus of over $7,000, but the directors earlier in the year spent well over $8,000 in necessary permanent improvement. Secretary F. J. A. Hall was unable to give the final figures as all the accounts are not in. The actual receipts for the Fair amounted to $32,698.95.

Members of the Board suggested that President Denne be given $100 towards his expense account, but Mr. Denne would not hear of such a gift as his whole heart is in the Exhibition.

During the session W. S. Morgill, a member of the Board, who was recently married, was presented with a handsome silver tray.

Since the Exhibition, one of the Directors who gave much of his time in developing the Fair has died in the person of George H. Duncan, and with due respect for the deceased the members stood with bowed heads for one minute.

President Denne reported that F. J. O'Connor and Sir Clifford Sifton had promised to bring larger strings of horses next year.

J. B .Nelson, B.S.A., representative of the Department of Agriculture, was present. "As a new man in Eastern Ontario, I was greatly surprised with your Exhibition and I can say that it is ahead of London," he declared.

Mr. Nelson promised to have many more entrants next year in the judging competitions.

A vote of thanks was passed to Fred Roy for the way in which he had taken the pictures.

J. J. DUFFUS TO GO ON THE AIR

Will Broadcast a Safety Talk Over CFRB To-morrow Night.

J. J. Duffus is to go "on the air" to-mororw night.

As President of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce he has been requested by the Highways Department of the Provincial Government to participate in the safety campaign and accordingly will give a safety address on Friday evening between 7 and 8 o'clock over Station CFRB, Ryan's Art Gallery, Toronto.

HOME LEAGUE MAKES PLANS

Salvation Army Ladies To Be Addressed By Mrs. Col. Henry.

A meeting of the Salvation Army's ladies' organization, known as the Women's Home League, was held in the Temple last night, under the presidency of Mrs. James Pammett. Report of the sale of work recently held was made and also plans for the winter work of the League formulated. It was announced that a special meeting for women would be addressed by Mrs. Colonel Henry of Toronto on Monday, November the 28th. Short addresses were made by Commandant and Mrs Frank Ham, and Mrs. James Pammett. Refreshments were then served to the members.

Plane Overhauled For Fourth Attempt

NEW YORK, No. 3 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Frances Grayson's amphibian plane, the Dawn, was being overhauled yesterday, preparatory to treatment which it is hoped will put in it condition for a fourth and successful attempt to span the Atlantic, but the identity of the pilot and navigator remained a matter of some confusion.

Mrs. Grayson said that Bernt Balchen, who landed Commander Byrd's America in the surf of the French coast, was to be the pilot, but Balchen said there was nothing definite about it. Clarence Chamberlin, who flew Charles Levine to Germany, said he was still considering the post, but had made no decision.

It all simmered down to the triple possibility that either Belchen or Chamberlain might go, that both of them might go, or that neither of them might go.

16 ARE DROWNED AS FERRY SINKS

150 PEOPLE ON BOARD.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—The peaceful decks of a plodding ferry boat were thrown into an uproar of horror and death to-day when a boat carrying 150 persons, many of them school children, was crushed beneath the bow of the British liner Tahiti, outward bound for San Francisco, with a loss, it is believed, of sixteen lives.

There was a dreadful explosion and timber was hurled in every direction while the ferry boat settled rapidly and sank within three minutes. Ten bodies had been recovered this afternoon. Fifty persons were treated for injuries, while the number of those rescued could not be definitely determined since scores of small boats sped to the scene and picked up survivors, carrying them to scattered points along the harbor. The Tahiti, after picking up all those it could find in the water, continued on her voyage to the United States.

UNITED S. A. BANDS PLAY ON MONDAY

Cobourg and Lindsay Musicians Will Visit City on Holiday.

The Bands from the Cobourg and Lindsay branches of the Salvation Army are uniting with the Peterborough Band and Songster Brigade in a special Thanksgiving program on Monday next. Open house will be held in the Young People's Temple on Thanksgiving afternoon and a social program of interest will be carried out.

This venture was inaugurated last year by Commandant Ham and a large crowd of strangers as well as citizens joined in a happy social afternoon. The Home League will have charge of the Thanksgiving supper. Bandmaster Frank Robinson and Songster Leader Ben Smith, with the aid of their respective musical organizations, may be depended on to prepare a musical program of great interest to all.

MARRIED 50 YEARS.

Former Governor-General and Wife Celebrate Anniversary On Monday.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(United Press.)—The Marquis and Marchioness of Aberdeen, formerly Vice-Regal representatives at Ottawa, will celebrate their golden wedding on Monday, Nov. 7 by a luncheon party at which the most distinguished people in Great Britain will be present.

Two Die From Eating Poisoned Cream Puffs

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Two Pawtucket children are dead and six persons, members of two families, are ill as the result, health department officials say, of eating cream puffs, purchased in a small bakery in that city on Saturday night. Neither police nor health officials would make public the name of the baker, pending decision on what action will be taken in the case.

James Cook, 12, son of Robert Cook, died yesterday, and Oldo Girolinetti, 8, son of Giocoado Girolinetti, died Tuesday from the poisoning. Four others in the Girolinetti family, including two children, and two others in the Cook family, are ill, but physicians in attendance say their condition is not critical.

PREMIERS ARRIVE AT OTTAWA FOR PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE

Says Lenin Looked For Elimination of Stalin

MOSCOW, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press). — Lenin's last advice looked toward the elimination of Joseph Stalin, Leon Trotzky declared during a violent attack on Stalin at the special meeting of the central committee of the Communist part yon the eve of his expulsion recently, it is revealed in a stenographic report of Trotzky's speech made public yesterday.

The report shows that Trotzky spoke at great length, directing his shafts against Stalin and quoting Lenin as declaring before his death that Stalin should be eliminated lest he bring the Communist Party "to split and destruction."

Trotzky's address was delivered amid a storm of frenzied protests and epithets from his hearers in the central committee, who soon after voted to expel him and his fellow oppositionist, Gregory Zinoviev from the committee. Among the epithets hurled at the erstwhile power in Soviet Russia's council's were "Grave digger of the Revolution," "Rascal," "Reptile," "Renegrade," and "Menshevik."

PUPILS BARRED FROM SCHOOL

All Those Attending Classes Must Be Vaccinated Against Smallpox.

AT CAPITAL CITY.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Some 6,000 of the capital's total of 25,000 school attendants were barred from class yesterday by the edict of the Civic Board of Health that all must be vaccinated to guard against further spread of the smallpox outbreak here. Free vaccination clinics were still being utilized yesterday by a large number of persons seeking immunity from the disease. It was estimated that close to 70 per cent. of Private, Public, Separate and Business and High school pupils have already complied with the health board's compulsory vaccination order.

Meanwhile the number of smallpox cases being treated at the Isolation Hospital remained unchanged yesterday at 6. There are also a number of victims quarantined in their homes.

ANOTHER FLIGHT BY RUTH ELDER

Announces Plans For Trans-Atlantic Hop Next Spring.

PARIS, November 3 (United Press) —Undaunted by the catastrophe of the plane, American Girl, Ruth Elder announced yesterday she expected to be the first flier to take off on a trans-Atlantic trip next spring.

Resplendent in a brand new frock, and with a chic cloche hat clamped snugly over the crisp hair, the bewitching girl from Lakeland, Fla., admitted that she was very happy again to be attired in feminine raiment, but explained:

Naturally I am very happy to be visiting the dressmakers and shops—but flying is my game, and I'll never be satisfied until I have flown across the Atlantic."

WEATHER HELPS FARMERS' WORK

Root Crops Have Been Harvested in Dummer—Rain Needed.

WARSAW, November 3. — The splendid weather has been a great boon to farmers. Root crops have been rushed in, and there are some splendid fields of both turnips and mangolds.

The last of the silo filling near Warsaw was done on Monday of last week but threshers are still busy.

The drag is being used on the crushed stone road on the boundary.

Rain is needed; the soil has so packed with heavy rains that it is too hard to plough in some places, and the men have had to quit ploughing sod

POWER QUESTION.

Few Formal Announcements Made Public—West Interested in Senate Reform.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3. — The fifth provincial premier to arrive for the Dominion conference — Hon. John Bracken of Manitoba—put in an appearance to-day accompanied by Hon. R. A. Hoey and deputy attorney-general Premiers Taschereau, Baxter and Brownlee came last night and Premier Ferguson was expected this morning. Premiers Rhodes, Gardiner, McLean and Saunders arrived on Tuesday. The arrangements for the conference are complete.

Emphasis is laid on the fact that it is designed to be only a conference and not a gathering where many formal pronouncements are to be made. The agenda has not been made public because it is tentative, and likely to be revised and rearranged at the start.

Western Attitude.

Nevertheless, the general content of it is known. It is a combination of federal and provincial subjects most of which have been fully forecast. Some western premiers arriving here indicate a particular interest in the constitutional question and that of senate reform.

With regard to the former they take the position that if the status of Canada was altered by the declaration of the last imperial conference, this implies the right of constitutional amendments by the Canadian parliament, the same as other dominions now possess. The western view of the Senate is that something should be done to curtail its power or vary its method of selection. It is doubtful if very much, if anything, comes of these proposals, for the reason that it is held that parliament is not a free agent and that to change the B.N.A. act requires the consent of the provinces which were party to the original Confederation contract. The likelihood of getting unanimous sanction for any revolutionary reversal of policy is very remote.

Minorities.

If by any chance the conference favor Canada exercising the right of constitutional amendment, it is most probable that these would be circumscribed in such a way as to preserve intact any powers and privileges accorded by the B.N.A. Act to minorities.

Peace River.

The constitutional question and that of subsidies are of general interest, but many other subjects are more essentially local. While the Duncan report was thought to be nine-tenths fulfilled by the legislation of last session, the Nova Scotia and New Brunswick governments are not satisfied and want the recommendations carried out to the last degree.

A long discussion on this is looked for from Premier McLean of British Columbia, and Premier Brownlee of Alberta. Both wish to press for a Pacific outlet for the Peace River district, but the view is expressed that this subject may not come before the conference proper, but rather be negotiated between the provinces in interest and the Dominion. Proponents of this outlet claim that it is fully as much a national project as the Hudsons Bay Railway is and fully as much promising of developments.

The power question is another thing of sectional interest especially as between the Dominion, Ontario and Quebec. The alternatives are an agreement to pool all existing rights, real or asserted, or else let the highest tribunal pronounce upon the question at issue.

Another question of common interest which those here are preparing to discuss is relative to jurisdiction in respect to company laws and a clearer delimination of fields of federal, provincial and municipal taxation.

Apart from the provincial ministers a number of camp followers have hit the trail for Ottawa and are here to propagate their particular views and "put over" particulars. Of the nine premiers to take part, four are Liberals, like the Federal government, three Conservatives and two Farmer ministers. The angles are thus diversified.

Opening to-day the conference is expected to conclude next Wednesday after sitting on Thanksgiving Day.

ONTARIO RESOLUTIONS.

TORONTO, Ont., November 3. — Following are the items on the agenda to be submitted by representatives of the Province of Ontario at the interprovincial conference, which opens at Ottawa to-day:

1—Jurisdiction and incorporation of joint stock companies and taking out of extra territorial licenses.

2—Powers of trust and loan companies.

3—Powers of insurance companies and licensing of foreign insurance companies.

4—Succession duty agreement with Quebec and arrangements with other provinces.

WILL HOLD SPECIAL SESSION TO CONSIDER THE 1926 BUDGET

FEAR CRISIS.

Presence Regarded By Some as Foreshadowing Stormy Session.

PARIS, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—The Poincare Government, now more than a year old and one of the longest lived in recent French political history, goes back on the firing line today when the Chamber of Deputies will meet in special session, chiefly to consider the 1928 budget.

The feature of today's opening session is the reappearance of former President Alexandre Millerand in his seat as Senator from the Department of Orne and the presence in Parliament of this famous political fighter, after having been defeated for re-election from the Department of the Seine, is regarded by some political prophets as foreshadowing a stormy session.

The decision of the recent Radical convention to refuse to collaborate in the present Poincare Union Government makes Millerand, who was lected on a National Union program, the natural leader of the Union forces. Those who know him, expect that he will force the fighting and may oblige the Radicals to take a definite position in Parliament against the Union Cabinet or abandon the idea of fighting it before the electors next May.

The Poincare Government goes before Parliament apparently as firmly in the saddle as at any time since it began in August, 1926, to prop up the crumbling franc, but political prophets are not all sure that it will find the going good throughout the session.

Fear Ministerial Crisis

Its situation is briefly this: It is tolerated by a hostile majority because of the fear that a ministerial crisis now would again upset the franc. The Radicals, Republican Socialists and Socialists who are in a majority, hesitate to take any chances with the franc before the elections, but they would be glad to see Poincare give way to some of their own leaders. They will fight the idea of a union government in the elections. This conundrum has been going around the lobbies for many days: "How can we ask the people to vote against the Union government at the polls if we continue to vote for it in Parliament?"

Old observers of the Chamber say there probably will be no concerted action by parties or groups against the government, but that the state of mind of the majority is such that any incident during the discussion of the budget may bring about a surprise vote in which Poincare will find himself in the minority.

Discuss Budget

The session will be devoted mostly to discussion of the 1928 budget. In the appropriations and receipts as provided for in the budget as introduced by the government is involved, however, the whole question of fiscal policy.

Poincare has laid it down as a hard and fast rule on which the government will stake its existence: that no appropriation shall be increased and that no receipts shall be diminished. Already the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies has reduced the estimated surplus provided for by the budget from 600,000,000 to 350,000,000 francs.

The first grapple of the government with the majority will come on that report. Then will come the hundreds of amendments introduced by Deputies who, just before election, will want to put something through Parliament in the interest of their constituencies. There is a fight every year of this kind, but this year, with an exceptionally violent political campaign in prospect it is expected to be more bitter than ever.

CAMPBELLFORD HUNTERS AWAY

Many Men in Northern Woods —Legion Meets To-night.

BIG CABBAGE HEAD.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 3. — Most of the men who were not in town could be found at various places in the woods. No reports of the luck of the local hunters has filtered through the trees as yet, but there are still many sportsmen waiting their opportunity to take a shot at any stray deer that comes within range.

Members and returned men generally are asked to remember the Legion meeting in the Armouries on Thursday evening. There is a great deal of important business to be transacted with regard to the coming decoration day, charter presentation, sale of poppies, and so forth. The Legion cannot possibly function as it should if ex-service men do not give it their whole-hearted support.

Speaking of cabbage heads, James Alexander, Garry Street, seems to hold the local honors. He has shown any who care to see, a specimen of Danish Ballhead, which measures 44 inches in circumference, and weighs 24¼ pounds. This cabbage he grew from seed in his garden. Mr. Alexander has been well known for many years as a gardener, and in his time has produced many rare specimens of various fruits and vegetables, but this cabbage is the largest specimen he has ever seen.

More herrings are being caught off the Irish coast this season than in and year since 1913.

NO TRACE FOUND BANK ROBBERS

Posse Returns Empty-Handed After Scouring District of Aylmer, Que.

HULL, Que., Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—A provincial police posse returned empty handed last night after scouring the district of Aylmer, Que., west of here, yesterday afternoon, for traces of the bank robbers who secured $10,000 Saturday night after holding up the Banque Canadienne Nationale at Gatineau Point, Que. Information was received at noon yesterday that three men, answering the description of the hold-up men were disturbed from their hiding place in a deserted farm on a by-road near here and made off in the direction of Aylmer.

Detective Dalpe of Montreal, of the Quebec Provincial Police, who was in charge of the police posse, reported that while they were unable to find any trace of the men in Aylmer, he did not think, from the description, that they were the men who actually perpetrated the hold-up. He thought, however, that they might have been implicated in the robbery. "There might be later developments, as we have information which might lead to their whereabouts," Detective Dalpe added.

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvellous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings, but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver, 999-1946 E Third Street, Milwaukee, Wisc., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. He also needs men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money making offer.—Adv.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 3 (Canadian Press). — The wheat market was listless yesterday, moving within a range of ⅛c most of the time. Exporters and millers bought in a small way, but at no time was there evidence of selling pressure, which is rather surprising considering the heavy country movement. Final quotations were unchanged to ⅛c higher.

In the Canadian West the weather has again turned fine, although cool, but there is promise of higher temperatures within the next two days. Threshing should be almost completed this week-end if the weather continues dry.

WORK ON HALL IS PROGRESSING

Stirling Community Centre Well Advanced—Judging Contest Held.

STIRLING NEWS.

STIRLING, November 3. — The weather conditions lately have been very favorable to the progress of the work on the new town hall and the cement work on the outside walls is nearing the top course very fast.

Mr. R. Atkin, District Representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture held a competition at his office here last week in seed and live stock judging. There were twenty-one boys from different sections of the County of Hastings present. The first ten will be rewarded by a trip to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto. All expenses to be paid by the county. The following ten in order of merit; are the ones who get the trip: Elmer Woods Crookston; Orval Rollins, Latta Charles Heath, Campbellford; Carl Lancaster, Bancroft; Gordon Wood, Crookston; Stanley McGowan Stirling; C. Burke, Belleville; Ivan Garrison, Belleville; Herbert Wood, Crookston; Harry Morrow, Stirling.

A judging team to represent Hastings County at the Royal Winter Fair, composed of Perry Badgley, Belleville; Vernon Hamilton, Belleville, and Harry Walker, Belleville, will accompany these ten boys and compete for the valuable trophy that is given by the directors in an inter-county competition in seed and live-stock judging.

Cyclist Injured.

An accident which might have been more serious happened to Mr. Alfred Clare who resides about a mile out the Ridge Road. He was riding his bicycle on his way home from work, when he was struck by a car driven by James Moore.

Mr. Clare was rushed to Dr. Alger's office. It was found that no bones were broken but he was suffering from cuts and bruises on his hips, legs and head, and was very nervous from the shock he received. At last account Mr. Clare was still confined to his home.

SCHOOL BOARD TRIAL RESUMED

Frederick Schrader Attempts To Show How British Propaganda Was Spread.

TEACHER ON STAND.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—Frederick Schrader, editor of the Progressive Magazine, published in New York, and former editor of "The Fatherland," an alleged pro-German magazine banned by the United States Government during the World War, was the principal witness at the resumption yesterday of the School Board trial of William McAndrew, suspended superintendent of schools.

Mr. Schrader attempted to show how British propaganda was being spread throughout the country.

Mayor William Hale Thompson's campaign against books he regarded as pro-English or anti-American grew out of his campaign to have Mr. McAndrew banished from the Chicago school system as a "stool pigeon for King George of England."

An article written by McAndrew and published in the Educational Review of January, 1926, of which the suspended superintendent was editor, was read by Frank S. Righeimer, School Board attorney. In it McAndrew suggested that cannon and all other war instruments be melted instead of used for monuments in front of school buildings.

Teacher Testifies.

Miss Mary Lynch, assistant to the principal of the Raymond School, testified that in the spring of 1926 two pictures, "Boston Tea Party" and "The Spirit of '76," hung in her room at the school. John L. Lewis, principal, asked that they be removed and she refused. In a few days the pictures vanished, she declared.

Schrader identified himself as the editor of the Progressive Magazine, secretary for the Republican Congressional Committee during three campaigns, and once dramatic editor of a New York newspaper.

Asked if he had kept in touch with public affairs and had any occasion to examine British propaganda, the witness replied:

"Yes, frequently, as the editor of a paper devoted to questions of history and politics. Frequently my attention has been called to concrete evidence of British propaganda."

A determined propaganda to denationalize American histories reached down to pollute the books with which boys and girls were supplied in the public schools. He said:

"We find publishers who are confessedly English, who have their headquarters and connections in London and have financial relations with England" he said.

BODY RECOVERED.

Paul Lerogne, One of Victims of Loon Lake Tragedy.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—The body of Paul Lerogne, drowned in Loon Lake, near Chapleau, has been recovered by a search party. It is believed that he reached an island in the lake and then stripped off his clothing and tried to swim to the mainland. No sign has been found of his companion Legeault, or of the other victims of Loon Lake, Vizena and Hopper. Lerogne came from Ottawa and was 21 years old.

DETECTIVE AGENCY ISSUES STATEMENT

Concerning Operatives Regarding Fall-Sinclair Trial.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—W. Sherman Burns of the Burns Detective Agency, whose operative were mentioned in affidavits centering around charges of jury tampering in the Fall-Sinclair trial in Washington, yesterday issued the following statement:

"In reference to the present publicity as to the alleged activities of employees of this agency in Washington, the cause of this matter being at present before the grand jury, the officials of the Burns Agency hesitate to make any statement for publication. We cannot, however, permi further misrepresentation of the activities of our men to be published without challenging same. The reports of our men are in the hands of the government. They know the extent of their activities and there is nothing that has been done by an employee of the Burns Agency in this matter at all improper and most certainly not a violation of the law."

WEDDING BELLS.

BIGWIN—SIMPSON.

A very pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simpson, Alderville, on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, when their second daughter, Elizabeth Mae, became the bride of Mr. James Bigwin, Jr., eldest son of Mr. James Bigwin, Alderville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harold Wilding, B.A., pastor of Alderville United Church.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, played by Mrs. Ernest Crowe, the bride descended the stairs leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away. She was beautifully attired in white satin and silk crepe, white silk stockings, and white kid slippers, and wore a rope of Gilda pearls. Her tulle veil was arranged in coronet style, with wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a large bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Wallace Marsden, as matron of honor, who wore her wedding dress of white satin, white silk stockings and silver brocaded slippers. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and fern. Mr. Fred Simpson, brother of the bride, ably supported the groom.

After the usual congratulations a buffet luncheon was served to about thirty-five guests.

On the Monday afternoon previous to the marriage the bride received many beautiful gifts, when Mrs. H. Wilding entertained at a linen shower in her honor.

LANGDON—LAIDLEY.

OMEMEE, Nov. 3.—A very quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Laidley, when their eldest daughter, Miss Grace, was united in marriage to Mr. George Langdon of Lindsay. Rev. E. W. Rowland performed the ceremony. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present.

After the wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Langdon left on a motor trip to Huntsville and on their return will reside in Lindsay.

OBITUARY

ELIAS BAKER.

HAVELOCK, November 2. — The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon of Elias Baker, of Belmont, who passed away on Friday, October 28, at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, after an operation. The service, which was held at the residence of his brother-in-law, Ezra King, Lot 13, Concession 6, Belmont, was conducted by Rev. Mr. Wilson, of the Belmont Circuit. Interment was made in Maple Grove Cemetery.

The late Mr. Baker was 45 years of age and had been in ill-health for over two years. He leaves to mourn his loss, beside his wife, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Baker, three sisters, Mrs. Charles Toms of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Reid of Lakefield, and Mrs. A. Derrett of town, and two brothers, James of Toronto and Charles of Deloro.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE JOHN WILLIAM SHERWOOD

The funeral took place on Friday of the late John William Sherwood, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital on Sunday afternoon after a somewhat lingering illness, to the Little Lake cemetery. Mr. Sherwood was buried from Comstock's Funeral Home on Water street, the service being conducted by Adjt. Ham of the Salvation Army.

There are left to mourn the deceased loss a sorrowing wife and two daughters by first marriage, Mrs. Rebecca King and Mrs. Frank Clarke, both of this city.

MABEL GERTRUDE TYLER.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 3.—The death occurred Saturday, October 29 about one-thirty p.m. of Mabel Gertrude, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tyler, after a lingering illness of many months, at the age of 20 years. Deceased bore her weakness and being confined to bed for such a length of time, with great fortitude, her family doing their utmost to make the way easier for her. Besides her parents, two brothers survive, Percy and Albert, to mourn the loss of an affectionate sister. The funeral was held Monday afternoon, service at the house at 2 p.m. conducted by Rev. Mr. Archer. Burial was under the Orange Order of L.O.B.A. No. 179, and interment at Trent Valley cemetery, Hastings.

MRS. CUTHBERTSON.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 3.—The news reached here on Friday of the death of Mrs. Cuthbertson, Toronto, after about ten days' illness, from a stroke of paralysis. Her husband predeceased her several years ago. One daughter, Isabel, and two sons, George and Stewart, survive. The late Mrs. Cuthbertson spent her vacation with her family annually at "Sans Souci", and left this past season seemingly enjoying the best of health. Her many friends here regret her early demise.

MISS M. G. TYLER.

TRENT RIVER, November 3. — The funeral of the late Miss Mabel Gertrude Tyler, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tyler, took place on Monday afternoon. Service at the house at two o'clock was conducted by Rev. W. R. Archer, pastor of the United Church. The hymns, "Jesus, Lover of my Soul" and "Rock of Ages," were sung. Mrs. Tom Brown, Seymour West, sang in sweet voice, "Does Jesus Care?"

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Rufus Redden, Norman Wight, Melville Wight, Willie McLaughlin, Harold Vanvolkenburg, and Donald Ellis. Members of the Havelock and Hastings L.O.B.A. Lodges assisted the members of L.O.B.A. No. 179, of which order deceased was a member. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes, among them being one from the L.O.B.A. Lodge, King's Daughters' Class, and one from friends and neighbours. The L.O.B.A. Order had charge of the burial service. Interment was made at Trent Valley Cemetery, near Hastings. There was a large gathering of friends, relatives and neighbours at the funeral, and upwards of eighty cars followed the remains to their last resting-place.

Relatives and friends from outside points were: Mr. and Mrs. George Dickey and son, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dickey, Cobourg Road; Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn, Brignton; Mrs. David Dickey and Mrs. Fred Phillips, of Campbellford.

Praised by all who have used it

Quaker Cake Flour has earned enthusiastic applause from the most experienced cooks. Many have written letters of praise after using it.

To less experienced cooks it gives cakes of such feathery lightness, fine texture and delicate flavour they never thought they could attain.

Use this new Cake Flour if you would like to have new delights in cake baking.

"My cakes turned out better and I found they remained fresh for a surprisingly long time."

Two home bakers sent these words of praise:
"Nearly all my friends came over and asked me for the recipe of my wonderful cake."
"My cakes are lighter and more delicate than I have ever made before."

MINERS DEFY STATE EDICT

Resume Picketting in Face of Colorado Governor's Decree.

DENVER November 3. Canadian Press. — Industrial workers of the world to-day challenged Governor Adams to carry out his threat of state interference in the Colorado coal strike by voting to resume picketing after conforming for a day to his decree that such activities must stop. Led by strikers shouting "To H—— with martial law," four hundred miners in a riotous meeting at Walsenburg, the I. W. W. headquarters, last night voted to picket the mines again.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and others forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHILDREN STUDY IN NEWSPAPERS

Lexington Dailies Print Lessons as Schools Are Closed.

TO PREVENT EPIDEMIC.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 3.—For the first time in Lexington's history school children are learning their daily lessons from the newspapers. All children 16 years old and under yesterday were barred from schools, theatres, churches, Sunday schools or other gatherings because of the presence here of infantile paralysis. City schools are closed indefinitely. Classes in some county schools likewise have been suspended and others probably will be.

The two Lexington daily newspapers, when requested, offered all the space required and columns are used to tell every student, from kindergarten on up to the ban limit, what his or her lessons were to be for the remainder of the week.

Although Latin and French phrases might have bothered an occasional printer to some extent, the proofreaders attend to the errors. The pages where the lessons were to be found were given in the published courses.

The students had only to sit back at home and study. Since the pupils are virtually quarantined teachers will not visit them at their homes. Each pupil will keep a record of study periods, and when the ban is lifted he or she will submit lessons and papers for such credits as may have been earned.

School authorities asked parents to see that their children study the allotted time and to hear the lessons just as pioneers did when there were no schools. Every parent and pupil entered enthusiastically into the new arrangement. The pupils are also put on a sort of "honor system" to study with the same care and assiduity as they work in the school rooms.

Practically 10,000 pupils were affected by the plan. Although only three cases of infantile paralysis existed in the city when the order went into effect, the health and school authorities decided upon the drastic move to prevent any possible spread of the disease, which has caused several deaths in various parts of the State.

Fifty-four cases were reported yesterday in Owensboro, Ky.

The streets and parks are closed to children by the police. Not even the whirr of a roller skate has been heard on the streets for days.

M. P. ALLOWED TIME EXTENSION

T. M. Calyey, South Oxford, Must File Expense Report By Nov. 12.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 2— An order allowing T. M. Cayley, M.P. for South Oxford, an extension of time for the filing of the return of his expenses in the last Federal election campaign was filed yesterday morning by Deputy Judge McMullen. The last date on which the election expense return can now be made is Nov. 12, by order of the Judge.

The order is endorsed by W. F. O'Connor, for the Hon. Donald Sutherland, and Frederick David Canfield, as "consented to subject to the right to deny jurisdiction,' 'and "consented to by Frank Denton, for the applicant." Dr. Canfield is the plaintiff in an action for $25,000 against Mr. Cayley for failure to make his return of expenses within the time prescribed in the Elections Act.

BAILIEBORO Y.P.L. HOLDS FINE PARTY

Hallowe'en is Observed in Proper Style at Regular Meeting.

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 3.—The Young People's League held their regular weekly meeting on Monday evening in the form of a Hallowe'en party, in the League Hall. There were about twenty-five members present and a most enjoyable time was spent in games and Hallowe'en contests.

Miss Edna Wallace, vice-president of the Social and Literary Department, was in charge of the meeting and handled the party in a most efficient manner.

At the conclusion of the games a bountiful luncheon was served by the ladies, everyone doing full justice to the dainty refreshments.

The members voted unanimously that this hallowe'en party had been one of the most successful events ever staged in the history of the Bailieboro Y.P.S.

The Quarterly Official Board meeting of the United church was held in the church on Monday evening when the business for the next quarter year was discussed.

Among those present were: Rev. H. W. Foley, Messrs. J. Porter, T. E. Dawson, W. H. Barnard, W. Dawson, F. Clarke and F. Lewers.

The usual groups of small boys were on the job on Monday evening, removing the village gates and committing their usual pranks.

TIMING ANIMALS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—Sportsmen along the Pacific coast have been using their stop-watches on fish and wild beasts. A grizzly bear, pursued through a narrow canyon by an automobile, ran 45 miles an hour. The savage baraculda can swim as fast as 70 miles an hour. The seal, usually considered very speedy in the water, requires 4 minutes to swim a mile.

THURSDAY, NOV. 3, 1927.

IT'S 110TH BIRTHDAY.

In this, Canada's year of Jubilee, it should be most interesting to Canadians to know that today a Canadian financial institution is celebrating the completion of the 110th year of its existence.

The Bank of Montreal opened its first branch in Montreal half a century before the Confederation of Canada came into being and its history since 1817, when by the way, the site of Peterborough was still forest has been one of steady growth and progress until today finds it with over 600 branches scattered through the Dominion and Newfoundland and with its offices in the financial centres of Great Britain, the United States, France and Mexico.

The institution, which began its operations in a small office in rented premises in Montreal 110 years ago with a paid-up capital of $350,000, has in 1927 paid-up capital amounting to $28,916,700, with a reserve account of a like amount, and branches in every city and important town.

Incidentally the Bank's 110th birthday coincides with the establishment of a new record, its total assets to the end of September, 1927, being in excess of $219,000,000 which is not only the highest figure in the annals of the Bank but establishes a total never before attained by any bank in the history of this country.

THE PARKING BY-LAW.

Until the City Council sees fit to validate the by-law by erecting the necessary signs the measure, limiting the time of parking on local streets, according to the police department, cannot be enforced.

The by-law, points out Chief Newhall, does not take effect until the signs have been placed in position and in the meanwhile the police say they are powerless to do anything more than warn those who leave their cars too long in one spot.

During recent months the police department has, in fact, brought the matter to the attention of hundreds of motorists and by this means has done much to prevent congestion in the business section, but if the situation is such that offenders cannot be prosecuted the by-law is without teeth and of little service.

The Examiner believes that the time limit in the business section should be strictly and consistently enforced.

It is in the general interest to keep the down town streets from being dangerously congested with parked cars and anything that stands in the way of an effective enforcing of a measure designed to prevent such a condition should be removed.

The City Council cannot afford to delay looking into this most important matter.

POPPY DAY.

The meaning of "Poppy Day" is surely so well known by this time that it is unnecessary to do more than call attention to the fact that it is being held on Saturday and that the annual sale of artificial poppies will take place on that day.

The poppy is the flower of remembrance and in grateful memory of the Canadian soldiers who lost their lives in the Great War, the people of this country are urged each year at this time to wear a replica of the flower which grows over their graves over there.

The sale of these artificial poppies, which are made by disabled war veterans, will be in the hands of the Canadian Legion and the receipts assist the cause of ex-service men in two ways.

A portion goes toward the cost of the flowers and thus employment is given men who suffered much for this country; the balance is devoted solely to relief work among veterans and their families.

In buying and wearing a poppy on Saturday three most desirable objects are thus served.

Tribute is paid to the memory of the men who did not come back, work is provided for badly disabled soldiers who were spared return, and assistance is given to families of ex-soldiers who need help.

THE PENNY BANK.

The Peterborough Board of Education has at long last decided to instal the penny bank system in the city's public schools.

For many years, while other municipalities were adopting this method of encouraging thrift among children, proposals to have Peterborough fall in line met with little favour.

Coming in now the city finds itself associated with seventy-seven other municipalities in Ontario, in some of which penny banks have been in operation over a long period.

The importance of thrift education for public school children surely suggests itself to most people.

As the Minister of Education, Premier G. H. Ferguson points out in a circular on the subject: "Thrift is a national as well as a personal virtue which needs to receive attention from all educators at the presents time. Thrift is, however, a habit and can be acquired only by practicing it. In order that the school may fulfill its responsibilities in the national service of preparing boys and girls for the duties of good citizenship it should provide facilities for the practical side of thrift education as well as providing the lessons and demonstrations."

This is the mission of the Penny Bank, which began operations in Ontario in 1905 and at the end of one year had the custody of $40,000 belonging to the children of Ontario.

Today it is operating in 340 schools in 77 different municipalities and has charge of $955,000 saved by school children.

A much greater value, however, must be placed upon the habit formed than upon the balance built up.

Balances may be spent; habits remain for life.

To acquire the habit of thrift regular saving is required and "not how much but how often" is the test of the efficiency of the school savings bank.

The Penny Bank, in short, is a educational thrift institution operated for the sole purpose of inculcating habits of thrift in school children and in no wise a commercial enterprise.

Its introduction into Peterborough's school should be an excellent thing all round at this time when money is being freely and recklessly spent by children on every hand, for which but little can be seen in tangible results and when such men as Principal Grant are calling upon parents to give their children less pocket money.

INVESTMENT IN GRAIN.

The grain trade of Canada is demonstrating its faith in the future of Canadian wheat by investing between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 in new elevators during 1927 and 1928. At least 600 country elevators are being built on the prairies at an average cost of between $10,000 and $12,000. Probably as much money additionally will be spent on new terminal storage elevators. The wheat pool is spending some of the money, but the bulk of it is being put up by private interests.

Apart from indicating that the private grain interests of Canada do not fear extinction from wheat pool activities, the investment indicates the faith of the men immediately in the business in the future of wheat growing in Canada.

The growth in Western Canada's wheat-growing is not readily apparent when figures of production from year to year are compared. This is because the yields per acre vary widely under different growing conditions. But a comparison of our wheat position to-day with our status in wheat 27 years ago gives some indication of the possibilities for expansion in production in the future.

In 1900, there were 500 country grain elevators in Western Canada. Today there are 4,500 and there will be over 5,000 by the end of next year. Canada had 2,000,000 acres under cultivation in 1900. This year there were 22,500,000 acres sown to wheat. The wheat crop was 40,000,000 bushels. This year's crop is 425,000,000 bushels.

The saturation point in production is yet afar off. There are 170,000,000 acres of good arable land in the three prairie provinces and of this, 40,000,000 acres has been sown to wheat and other field crops. A production of two billion bushels of wheat in one particularly good year is a possibility in Western Canada although not a probability in the life of any adult now living. But who will deny that the next generation will not be shipping a billion bushels of wheat a year?

The grain trade knows what it is doing when it invests money in more grain-marketing machinery.—Financial Post.

FLYING CLUBS PLANNED.

In at least four cities of Canada, according to officials of the Canadian Air Board, flying clubs are now being organized. From fifteen cities inquiries concerning the conditions under which such clubs may receive assistance from the Dominion Government have been sent to the Air Board. The clubs are required to provide themselves with suitable flying fields, to furnish facilities for housing, maintaining and repairing aircraft, and to employ each a qualified instructor and a licensed air engineer. To each club that fulfils these requirements the Government is to give two "Moth" airplanes, ten of which it is purchasing in England.

The organizing of civilian light airplane clubs was started in Great Britain, with the assistance of the British Government, two years ago. Since that time six of these clubs have been formed and have been receiving subsidies from the Government. The number, Sir Samuel Hoare announced recently, will shortly be increased. The British Secretary of State for Air stated that the Government of which he is a member was going to pay subsidies to four additional organizations: to the Bristol and Wessex Club in the west of England, to a club at Norwich in the east of England, to another at Nottingham in the Midlands, and to the Scottish Flying Club. The number of clubs, thus, is to be increased to ten, and, the Minister intimated, might be raised to eleven or twelve. The British Government will pay to the associations £50 for every member who takes his "A" or "B" flying certificate and £1 10s for every flying hour up to a maximum of twenty flown by a member-pilot holding an A or B certificate. In addition, it will grant £10 during the year in respect of every member who held an A or B flying certificate at the beginning of the year. The Government will be prepared to make these grants up to a total of £2,000 a year to each club for a period of three years, after which it will expect the clubs to be self-supporting. In other words, the administration is willing to contribute approximately $10,000 a year for three years to each of ten or a dozen organizations through which civilians can learn to operate a light airplane and indulge in aviation as a sport. In addition, it has already expended, as a preliminary to its efforts to popularize flying, sums of money to aid and encourage designers and builders of aircraft to produce light airplanes suitable for the use of private owners and of the civilian flying clubs.

The British Government in endeavoring to foster the light airplane clubs has had in mind the future welfare of British commercial aviation and of the aerial arm of the British naval and military forces. The results that the British Government has attained in two years by the subsidizing of flying clubs is of interest in view of the Canadian Government's scheme for assisting similar organizations in this country. The six clubs now receiving Government aid in Great Britain have approximately 1,500 members. Of this total 750 are flying members and 157 members have already earned their A or B flying certificates. At the same time, it may be noted that some people in Great Britain have complained that the six clubs could not furnish instruction to all the persons that wished to learn to fly. Thus the formation of four or six additional clubs will enlarge the facilities for adding to the number of certificated civilian airplane pilots in the United Kingdom.—Mail and Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Yesterday's rain will at least help to save the woods from being burned by careless hunters.

The trouble with the one-day pheasant shooting in the Niagara district is that some sportsmen evidently thought that peasant shooting was the order of the day.

It is to be hoped that the fellow who is now predicting a bitter winter is the same individual who prophesied that there would be no summer this year.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., November 3 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in Canadian grain continued quiet here yesterday, there being no improvement in the demand from foreign buyers. The demand for grain in the local market was also slow and little business of importance was accomplished. Prices were unchanged.

The market for spring wheat grades of flour was moderately active and prices were firm. There was no change in winter wheat flour, prices being steady under a moderate demand.

A moderate amount of business was worked in all lines of millfeed, and values ruled firm. A more active trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats and the undertone was steady.

The foreign demand for Canadian baled hay was dull, but the local trade was fair and prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of butter were well maintained under an improved demand. The receipts were 96 packages.

The foreign demand for cheese was again of a limited character, but there was some inquiry between houses on spot. Sales of current receipts on Western No. 1 white and colored were made at 18¾c per pound, and Eastern grades at 18¾c per pound, which prices show a decline of ¼c to ½c per pound, and Western September made No. 1 white and colored were nominally quoted at 20½c per pound. The receipts were 3,435 boxes.

There was a fairly good demand for eggs ,and the market was moderately active, with a steady undertone. The receipts were 662 cases.

The potato market was again weaker yesterday, and prices scored a further decline of 5 to 10 cents per bag. The demand was limited. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island white potatoes were made at $1.30 per bag of ninety pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.50 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.25 per bag in bulk ;and Quebec white varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

There was an improved demand for imported beans ,and a moderate amount of business was done. The tone was steady, with sales of car lots on spot at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel with broken lots on spot at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 3 (Canadian Press). — Commission house demand tightened the wheat market at the last yesterday after prices had given way grudgingly in the earlier dealings. Spreading operations between Chicago and North-Western centres appeared to be largely responsible for the day's swings in prices. A notice from the grain future administration of the Department of Agriculture, ordering a resumption of daily reports of individual open accounts of 500,000 bushels or more in wheat, corn, and oats, and of 200,000 bushels

Keep Your Hens
Everlastingly on their Job

Put them on the Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash ration. Do it today. Make them steady producers—eager to lay. Get more eggs, bigger eggs, more profits.

Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash contains Cod Liver Meal, which forces the other ingredients to work directly and more efficiently on the egg-producing organs. Nothing like the Cod Liver Meal to get the most out of feeds. Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash has the correct amount of mineral, and laying hens need lots of mineral for egg shells as well as their own nutriment. The base of all Ful-O-Pep feeds is high quality oatmeal—not just ground oats.

Keep Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash before your birds all the time. Cold weather and short daylight won't cut down production, because Cod Liver Meal supplies the element of sunshine. Old hens and new layers both become steady, vigorous profit-makers. Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash gets you lots of strong-shelled eggs, all through the season when prices are highest. Keeps birds everlastingly on their jobs.

OMEMEE U.F.O. OYSTER SUPPER

FORMED IN 1911.

OMEMEE, Nov. 3. — An event of more than ordinary importance to the U.F.O. of Omemee, was carried to a successful conclusion on Friday evening, Oct. 28, when the Farmers' Club held an oyster supper and concert in their club rooms to celebrate the 16th anniversary of the founding of the club.

The hall was tastefuly decorated, the predominating colors being orange and black. Yellow pumpkins containing marigolds and tinted maple leaves adorned the tables, while a profusion of black cats and witches were perched about the walls looking on in amazement. The electric lights were also shaded with the soft colors.

About 7.30 o'clock club members and their wives, to the number of about one hundred, began to gather laden with good things to eat. Community singing was indulged in with Mrs. F. G. Sandy, presiding at the piano. At about eight o'clock, when all had arrived, the company seated themselves at the tables and partook of a sumptuous menu, composed of oysters, cold ham, delicious salads, pickles, bread and butter, cakes, etc. After doing justice to the good things provided, the president, Mr. Percy McGahey, took the chair and acted as toastmaster. After a few brief remarks he called for the following toasts:

"To the ladies," proposed by Mr. Harry Jackson and responded to by Mrs. W. Brown.

Mr. W. C. Veals, one of the original members, gave a humorous history of the club since its organization up to the present.

About the year 1911 a few of the farmers in this district met in the shop at the rear of O. G. Williamson's sore and organized themselves into a farmers' club, Mr. Joseph Bradley being the first president. The objects of the club were for the most part social, each member being expected to take his turn in providing a talk on some particular crop or feature of farming in which he was especially interested. They later met in the old Salvation Army barracks, a room at the rear of the Presbyterian church, the sample room of the hotel, and in the council chamber of Coronation Hall. By this time, in the year 1913, the United Farmers of Ontario, were organized in Toronto and the local club became a branch of the U.F.O. and has been affiliated with it ever since. They soon began buying certain supplies through the head office and in 1916 rented their present premises.

On September 13, 1917, the first shipment of live stock was made to the Union Stock Yards, Toronto, and shipments continued until at the present time the club practically controls the live stock shipping from Omemee. Among those who shipped live stock in the first shipment was Mr. Joseph Bradley (and, said Mr. Veals, "There are those who say that Mr. Bradley has shipped in every car since that time"), Messrs. John Smith, F. G. Sandy, W. Veals, R. H. Johnston, W. J. Kennedy, Wes. Wilson, and W. R. Robinson. The sheep brought 17c, steers 8¾c, and hogs 18c. The shipments during the ten years since have totalled nearly one and a half millions of dollars. About 38,000 hogs have been shipped, which is an average of about 72 per week.

In January, 1921, the present building and lot was purchased at a cost of $2,500, and since then a piano and chairs have been purchased, electric lights installed, living rooms erected at the rear, and it is now a source of great gratification to the members that no longer are they moved from pillar to post, but rather have a comfortable hall to meet in whenever they feel so disposed. In 1925 the club erected a stock scale and office at the railway siding. The speaker thought an institution which had sold one and a half million of dollars worth of live stock was justified in erecting their own scale to weigh it on.

Mr. Bruce McNevin, vice president of the U.F.O., favored the company with a report of the work of the head office. He also remarked with pleasure on the presence of Mr. Vincent Jones, who had put Omemee on the map by reason of the prizes he had taken at the C.N.E., Toronto, for grain.

Mrs. Percy Magahey gave a reading which was followed by a short address by F. G. Sandy, M.P.P.

A resolution moved by Hubert Gardiner and Harry Jackson, approving the principle of a hog pool, was carried by the meeting.

The Pogue Brothers' Orchestra enlivened the gathering from time to time with selections interspersed with community singing.

The President brought the meeting to a close about 11 o'clock by inviting all present to the annual meeting on November 15, when a full report of the past year's business will be given.

The committee in charge, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Magahey, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Rutherford, were untiring in their efforts, and were greatly congratulated on the success of the evening.

A COSY STUCCO BUNGALOW

By G. H. MacDonald and H. A. Magoon, Architects.

Every dollar spent by the owner on this comfortable bungalow, would be a hundred cents spent on comfort and utility. The house having a total width of 22 feet, it could be built on a 35 foot or slightly narrower lot, and still leave ample space for a side drive.

A study of the plans shows that one side of the house is occupied by the kitchen and living room, and the other by the bathroom and two bedrooms, both of which have good clothes closets. Access to these latter rooms may be had only through an inner hall, having a door into the living room. This arrangement gives us much privacy to the bedrooms as is possible in a bungalow.

Meals before an open fire are luxurious moments for most of us, opportunities for which too seldom arise, but to those who choose this delightful little home for their own the opportunity will always be present, for here the dining room has been banished, and the living room made to perform two functions.

The kitchen is bright and conveniently compact, with the cupboard, sink, table, refrigerator, and range so arranged as to reduce the housewife's "mileage per meal" to its absolute minimum. Having windows at two opposite corners, cross breezes may be relied upon to keep this room cool and well ventilated.

A roomy basement extends under the entire house and is amply lighted by four good-sized windows, none of which will ever fall into the unsightly state that so many do, for here a coal chute into the bin has been provided.

The basement walls are concrete to the grade line and brick from there to the floor level. Above this the walls are stucco on a frame base.

As the rural cottages of the old world appear so delightful through their simple good proportions and absolute lack of artifice, here is a typical small Canadian home which for exactly the same reasons, would always appear at ease, and tend to make its occupants the same.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architects direct. Address Messrs. G. H. MacDonald & H. A. Magoon, Tegler Building, Edmonton, Alberta.

A MATTER OF CHOICE

Question: Does it pay to use plaster board to save the cost of lathing and plastering? Which one shall I use?

* * *

This is purely a matter of market conditions. We are informed by manufacturers producing both wallboard and plaster that prices vary as between localities due to variations in the factors that affect all markets. The difference in cost will not be great. Do not be afraid of a wood lath job if it is put on by and properly reinforced with metal lath. But if you cannot get a good job, use the wallboard.

Wed Twenty Years; 'Necking' Charge Laid

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 3.—Twenty years married and parents of an 18-year-old son, a Montrealer, and his wife are before the city magistrate court on a disorderly conduct charge based on the allegation that they were "necking" in their automobile.

"Your Honor, they ought to get a medal for wanting to kiss one another after 20 years," defence counsel told the court, as the pair were remanded for a week for trial and given bail. The arraignment was in private, and the names of the accused withheld.

FARMER ACCUSED OF KILLING WIFE

MIDLAND, Mich., Nov. 3.—Charged with beating his 85-year-old invalid wife to death, Joseph Dettloff, 70-year old farmer, is under arrest here. Arraigned in Justice Court, he waived examination and was bound over to Circuit Court and will appear November 15.

Dettloff is charged with killing his wife during a quarrel at their home Monday. He came to Midland yesterday to make arrangements for her funeral, and when an undertaker found Mrs. Dettloff had suffered 12 fractured ribs and her body was bruised and arms cut, he notified the sheriff. One of the broken ribs had punctured the heart.

Dettloff denied the slaying charge, but is said by officers to have admitted striking his wife. He said she died in a fall from a window after their quarrel.

PILES

Go Quickly Without Cutting or Using Messy Salves

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in hundreds of cases with a marvelous record of success, such a wonderful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside application. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McDermid & Jury and McDermid Drug Company today. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and must do the same for you or money back.

LABOR PLEASED WITH RESULTS OF ELECTIONS

Has Gained 266 Seats in the Last Two Municipal Votes.

VOTERS APATHETIC.

Liberal Paper Says Supporters of Other Parties Did Not Turn Out To Vote.

LONDON, Nov. 3 (United Press).—Labor is genuinely optimistic over the recent municipal elections in which it gained 127 seats in 156 cities. Party leaders now point with pride to a gain of 266 seats in the last two municipal elections.

The opposition declared the country would go to the dogs if Labor attacks on the municipalities were not repelled, Ramsay MacDonald, former Labor Premier, said on Wednesday.

It is too early to predict whether the Laborite Daily Herald's declaration that Tuesday's victories provide the stepping stones to even greater victory in the coming general elections is well founded.

Nevertheless, Labor has reason to be elated at the party's splendid showing, while certain Conservatives are measurably concerned because the gains were made mostly at their expense.

William Henderson, spokesman for the Labor party, told the United Press he was not disposed to indulge in over-optimistic prophecies.

"It might be remembered," he said, "that the vote in the municipal elections was barely half of that in the general election.

"The chief point is that the vote shows a steady improvement in the position of the Labor party in the last two years. Our efforts toward consolation are bearing fruit."

The Liberal Star says: "Labor successes are due to the apathy of Liberal and Conservative voters." The paper adds, however, that "it is good, not bad, that Labor should have an apprenticeship in the task of government. Labor in office and Labor as an untried proposition are two entirely different things."

It is generally anticipated that the vote will have a stimulating effect on the activities of all parties in 1928.

TALL BUILDINGS AS BILLBOARDS

Message Projected To Sheer Walls of High Structures.

IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (United Press).—New Yorkers gazed and wondered last night while a giant advertising scheme with Manhattan's tallest buildings serving as billboards proclaimed something new in advertising. A message in letters 150 feet high was projected from a four-billion candle-power magic lantern from the top of the Capitol Theatre as an anniversary "ad."

With the sheer 450 foot walls of the Paramount Theatre building as the screen, the message was flashed in letters of light that could be read for miles and was alternately transferred to other tall structures in Times Square.

Last week, similar messages were projected on clouds and officials stated that they plan to drop smoke screens from airplanes and tall buildings which will also serve as aerial billboards.

Harry E. Atkins, President of the Star Projector Company which controls the searchlight with lantern slides, says that motion picture reels may later be substituted for the slides.

He scouted the idea that courts would prevent him from using buildings for the "ads" and said that if objections were made, the matter would be taken to the courts for a test case.

Gave Arsenic to Dying Mother In Attempt to End Sufferings

LONDON, November 2. — Mrs. Margaret Delavigne, a nurse who won a decoration for her services on the field during the war, tried to kill her mother with an ounce of liquid arsenic last week but not even British justice will try to punish her.

This was clear at the Tonbridge Police Court yesterday when the story of the attempted murder was told. The mother, Mrs. Selicia Waite, was operated upon for cancer, and the daughter was told by the doctors that the case was hopeless, surgeons helpless, and the end only a matter of weeks

Mrs. Delavigne, whose lifelong devotion to her mother was described in Court, went to the surgery of Dr. Isaac Newton, one of her mother's physicians. She took a bottle of liquid arsenic and gave her mother about an ounce of it. She confessed it to Dr. Newton afterwards, saying she hoped to spare Mrs. Waite the remaining weeks of agony. She also confessed to another doctor, saying she was sure she had done the right thing. Emetics saved the mother's life.

All the physicians at yesterday's hearing testified that Mrs. Delavigne is of unsound mind. She was formally held for trial, but it was evident the intention is to certify her as insane and later release her.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grayhair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

SUNDAY SHOW BAN IS AGAIN DISCUSSED

Montreal Aldermen May Ask For Legislation By Province.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3. — Abolition of Sunday theatres and moving picture shows in Montreal is being proposed again, this time by a group of city aldermen. What action they will take has not yet been decided but they are mulling over in their minds the best way to go before the Taschereau Cabinet and win their point.

The moment is opportune the aldermen in question find, because the government of the province is faced with having to fix legislation on the matter at the coming session of the Legislature due to open January 10. After the Laurier Palace disaster, with its toll of 78 children, Mr. Justice Boyer of the Superior Court, was named a royal comissioner to probe the whole matter of Sunday shows. His report, now before the government for action, did not ban Sunday theatres and moving shows although he was against allowing children under 16 to go to the representations at any time.

Another factor which will enter into final discussion of the matter is a petition, circulated among Roman Catholics of all Montreal parishes, praying the government to prohibit Sunday shows; for the church has taken a strong stand against what it terms the commercialization of the Day. Two hundred thousand signatures for the petition are sought.

All this will favor the aldermen, who are moving at the present moment. In approaching the government they will emphasize the fact that they are not against athletics or health giving exercises, on Sundays.

Hush!—Hamilton Plans Silence Law

HAMILTON, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press.)— The use of radio, phonograph and other musical devices after 10 p.m. would be prohibited in Hamilton if the regulations drawn up by the local Board of Health are approved by the Minister of Health. Street noises are also included in the list of offences against quietness.

SHORT STORY

BIRDS OF A FEATHER
(By Jane Osborn.)

There was always something cheerful about the atmosphere of O'Grady's store that stood on one of the corners where the state highway crossed the old Main Street of the village called North Hill. Even in the dead of winter, with snow falling outside, there was something springlike there.

There were always plenty of people at O'Grady's, people waiting for the bus, young men who bought cigarettes as an excuse to hang around an hour or more, older men occasionally talking politics, girls sitting at the tables giggling over their ice cream. If you had been a resident of North Hill and had a son you would have taken it for granted probably that he would occasionally join the loiterers at O'Grady's. But if you had had a daughter you would have passed on to her the unwritten law that girls didn't hang about O'Grady's. They went there for ice cream, or to buy a paper or candy or a quart of milk. But having made their purchase or eaten their ice cream they left. Even boys who spent too much time at O'Grady's were looked upon as idlers and loafers.

It was at O'Grady's that Lois Granger first saw Malcolm Kent. She had gone to buy bird seed and Malcolm was with the loafers leaning against the tobacco counter. Lois cast a glance in that direction just to see who was there and naturally enough noticed Kent. He was a stranger and looked so differently from the usual O'Grady frequenter. She assumed that he was waiting for a bus.

But when a day or so later she went to O'Grady's with her little sister to get an ice cream cone and noticed again the tall, rather well-dressed young man loitering there beside the cigarette counter apparently feeling very much at home, she concluded that he had got the O'Grady habit.

"Who is the good-looking stranger that's been hanging around O'Grady's lately?" Lois's uncle asked that evening at supper.

Lois tried to look indifferent, while her older brother informed the family that the loafer was named Malcolm Kent and that he was a cousin or something of the Robinsons who had a big farm out beyond the creek. Tom further announced that he had met the young man, liked him and, if there was no family objection, would bring him around to supper.

"Still just because he goes there isn't any sign he's like the other O'Grady loafers," Lois said.

"You're right," said the uncle. "Every time I've been in there he was having the time of his life."

Still it was agreed to permit Tom to bring the young man to supper. And that was where Lois met him.

Malcolm called again two nights later and when he was told that Tom was not at home he asked whether he might see Miss Lois. Yes, he had actually come to see her. He had an idea that Tom wouldn't be home. Then one day they went walking, and one Saturday when Lois had no school work they went by bus to the nearest town to the movies.

Almost every night at supper when Malcolm wasn't present Louis's family spent some time in discussing Mr. Kent. He had said something about having had some sort of a job on a newspaper. But certainly he couldn't be doing any news gathering out here at North Hill. And always Lois's mother would observe that birds of a feather flocked together. It was a matter of common talk that he spent more than half his waking hours at O'Grady's.

Then one Saturday afternoon Malcolm and Lois went walking down country lanes in the mellow autumn sunshine, and Malcolm asked Lois to be his wife.

"I think I'd like to," said Lois. "But I don't know how my family will feel about it. They know you aren't working, and you spend so much time at O'Grady's."

"Just because I hang around O'Grady's doesn't mean that I am like the other O'Grady habitues, does it?" asked Malcolm with a mystifying smile.

"Only mother says that birds of a feather flock together."

"Well, it happens that the reason why this bird flocks around O'Grady's is because he is of an entirely different feather."

Lois told him in a rather hurt tone, that she hadn't the least idea what he was talking about. "It seems to me that if you really care enough about m to want to marry me, you wouldn't hang out there all the time—that you'd be making plans to do something some time."

So Malcolm explained, but he made Lois promise not to tell the others until he left. He had written a novel — a darned good novel, too, Malcolm frankly admitted. "But, you see, I've always been something of a book worm, never spent enough time talking with the kind of birds that stick around O'Grady's. And there are chapters in that book of mine that need the kind of talk you get at O'Grady's. Came out to see the Robinsons one day and happened in at O'Grady's—found it was just the sort of thing I needed—the publishers have accepted the book—that is, when I put in a bit more first-hand work on those chapters. And now I've got it—thanks to O'Grady's. But, of course, I've got my regular job on my paper. Book reviewing, you know—I've been carrying on as usual while I've been away."

And Lois was satisfied.

MUSIC EXHIBITION HELD.

Geneva's international exhibition of music, held recently in the large Palace of Exposition, proved a success. One of the features was an extensive display of modern instruments, including even those of mechanical and electrical variety. The history of the development of music included displays of instruments, sheet music, manuscripts and original documents written by great masters. In the auditorium were given a German opera festival, symphony concerts by orchestras from Amsterdam and Rome, performances by the Paris Opera Comique and an exhibition of rhythmic gymnastics.

Police Sergeant Testifies How Some Were Put Out of Business.

RECORDS DISAPPEAR.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 3.— Disappearance of important police records from headquarters for the second time baffled investigators into charges made against Daniel Thompson, suspended chief of the Windsor police, at yesterday's hearing in the city hall before the Police Commission.

The records in question were asked for in the case of Robert Sagar, arrested in 1922 for carrying dangerous weapons and for the possession of narcotics. Sagar boasted that "there was no use locking him up; he would be gone before 6 o'clock in the morning." He was gone by that time, and police records fail to show by whom he was released. Sagar at that time was on parole from Kingston Penitentiary.

Bert McCauley, former constable, who was on duty at police headquarters at the time of the arrest, remembered having searched Sagar, he testified, because of the remark Sagar had made, and because Sagar had a revolver with him.

Inspector M. S. Wigle, called to testify, said he knew nothing about the case, and was unable to tell who effected the man's release. He was sent to headquarters for the record of the sergeant on duty at the time, but returned without the data required.

The greater part of the early testimony yesterday was devoted to the examination of police records and the questioning of police sergeants responsible for raids on gambling houses and blind pigs in the past two years.

Wilfred D. Roach, counsel for Ald. Clyde Curry, who has charged Thompson with incompetency and corruption, attempted to show that the police department under Chief Thompson did not make an honest effort to put these resorts out of business. One of the most important witnesses in this connection was Sergeant John Burns, one-time champion raider of the Windsor constabulary. Burns was recently taken off the raiding squad.

Burns said that by persistent raiding he had been able to put out of business a blind pig operated by "Jake" McGee in the Meretsy Building. He admitted on cross-examination that this procedure was not satisfactory in other cases. He recounted raids on other blind pigs, and said he had raided the Cosmopolitan Club at 215 West Sandwich street, 20 times. He said that other blind pigs had been raided at the following places:

Jack Fitzgibons, 121 West Sandwhich street; Ross Fleury, 14 East Pitt street; Max Bates, 121 East Pitt street; Thomas Minto, 210 East Pitt street; "Brother" Wilson, 32 West Sandwich street, a place immediately over the Government liquor dispensary; the Edgewater Club, 141 East Sandwich street; the Peninsular Club, operated by John Fisher at 62 Pitt street; the Pleasure Hour Club, operated by Fred Pentland at 349 Ouelette avenue.

Had Well Equipped Bars.

All these places, Burns said, were operating with well-equipped bars which were left in place after the raids. Records were exhibited to show that Robert Murphy was fined $100 twice in less than two months for having liquor at 133 East Sandwich street.

Other places mentioned by Burns were "Marty's" at 20 West Pitt street, and the Polo Club, 51 West Sandwich street. Burns said that they had been unable to put the Windsor Athletic Club, 60 East Pitt street, out of business. It was known, he said, as "Al's Place." "Al," according to Burns, always had someone to "take the rap," a procedure which is against the new liquor law. Burns said it was impossible for blind pigs and gambling houses to start right in again after a raid. Two well known gambling places were cited in his testimony.

James Lynch, 126 Bridge avenue, testified that he had made several complaints to the police about a blind pig which was in operation next door to his home. Nothing had been done, Lynch said, until he notified the Provincial Police. The owner was later convicted, but the place was running again less than an hour after the fine was paid.

The witness on the stand when the hearing adjourned for the day was Ald. Garnet Edwards, chairman of the Board of Works, who charged that Thompson had threatened to get him if Edwards did not "lay off him." Edwards testified that he had gone to see Thompson in his office, seeking co-operation in public affairs, when the threat was made. The hearing was continued to-day.

Ald. Curry yesterday afternoon declined to discuss a report that he had received a threatening letter from an unidentified individual who ended his epistle with the gregarious declaration that "somebody is going to blow you to h——." The letter came to Curry through the mails, it was reported.

High Priced Stocks Lead Mine Market

TORONTO, Ont., November 3 (Canadian Press). — Substantial gains were made by the higher priced stocks on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning when transactions again totalled more than a million shares. McIntyre advanced 25 cents to 28.25 after a strong opening at 28.10, while gains of 15 points were made by Dome at 11.25, Nipissing at 7.30, and Teck Hughes at 10.70. Mining Corporation was up 13 cents at 3.80 and Kirkland Lake 12 at 2.09.

Toronto Trading Wide; B. A. Oil Again Leader

TORONTO, Ont., November 3 (Canadian Press). — Few declines were recorded in this morning's trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange, practically all the stocks traded in registering advances in transactions which covered a wide range. Imperial Tobacco gave way to British-American Oil to-day as the market leader. More than 4,000 shares of the oil stock changed hands, the price advancing ¾ to 34½. Imperial Tobacco, slightly less active, ran into some liquidation, the price sagging ⅝ to ten. Canada Cement was up two at 33. Royal Bank featured the investment issues, dropping six points to 3.04 on sales of nineteen shares.

Upward Move Resumed On New York Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—Resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market was attended with some irregularity as bear traders continued to ferret out weak spots and test the character of recent buying in some of the pool specialties. The continuation of easy money rates, the optimistic character of monthly bank reviews, and expectations of another sharp decrease in brokers' loans all had a favorable effect on speculative sentiment. The stiffening of the export copper price and a reduction in the stocks of the red metal attracted fresh buying into copper shares, with Calumet and Arizona leaders in that group. The advance in oils was checked by reports of weakening of the fuel oil market at Gulf coast points, where there has been a heavy accumulation of the West Texas product. Speculative interest in rails was divided between Norfolk and Southern, which was run up five points, and Canadian Pacific, which advanced four.

Selling Causes Drop In Wheat At Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—Selling on the part of houses with connections northwest led to early downturns today in wheat prices here. Opening unchanged to ¼c lower, Chicago wheat soon underwent a general sag. Corn was also easier, starting unchanged to ⅜c off and subsequently showing a slight general set-back. Oats were firm. Provisions tended to advance.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 125, March 128¾. Corn, December 82⅝, March 86½. Oats, December 48; March 49⅝.

TALKING TIME IN HOUSE CUT

NO ALL NIGHT SESSIONS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—The House of Commons will function under new Parliamentary rules at the coming session, the changes representing a marked difference from the old order of procedure. Limitation of speeches by members to forty minutes is one of the leading features of the new rules just officially published. This does not include the leaders or motions of extraordinary importance. No more all night sittings are to be allowed.

CHAPTER DECIDES TO CONTINUE GIVING

Otonabee I.O.D.E. Ladies Will Still Support Armenian Boy.

The regular meeting of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. was held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., the regent, Miss S. A. Tomkins, presiding.

The sum of $51.65 was contributed during the afternoon by members in a special collection to be devoted towards the National War Memorial. A donation of $15 was voted towards the Navy League work.

The young lad who has been supported jointly by the Otonabee and Regimental Chapters at the Armenian Home in Georgetown, is now working on a farm and does not need the assistance hitherto given by the Chapters towards his maintenance. On a suggestion from the Home authorities, however, it was decided to continue the giving of funds for the period yet remaining to which the Chapter had pledged itself, the sum of $175 still to be paid to be placed in a special trust fund to be used later by the boy.

The Otonabee Chapter will sell tickets for the picture entitled "Laddie" from Gene Stratton Porter's work, to be produced at the Regent Theatre on November 14, 15 and 16, the funds to be used for the work of the Well Babies' Clinic. Tickets may be purchased at Kent's Drug Store or at Mr. J. A. MacNabb's store.

Arrangements were made to hold a tea and sale of work at the home of Mrs. R. R. Hall on Friday, November 18th.

It was decided to place a wreath on the cenotaph at the Armistice Day services.

During the afternoon a program arranged by Mrs. J. D. Fletcher was much enjoyed, including splendid musical numbers and readings. Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland recited "Bargain Day" and "Friday Afternoon," in her own inimitable style. Miss Daisy Davidson's sweet voice was heard to much advantage in "Golden Dancing Days," and "The Piper of Love," with accompaniments played by Miss F. Gladman, who also played for the very enjoyable violin selections by Donald Greene, who gave an "Andante" in pleasing style. Miss Tomkins expressed the appreciation of the members to the various musicians taking part in the programme.

I Can But I Won't Is Thompson's Reply

CHICAGO, November 3 (Canadian Press). — "I can burn the books, but I won't," is Mayor Thompson's reply to a suit by a citizen for an injunction restraining him from destroying alleged "pro-British books" of the Chicago library. The Mayor's reply, filed to-day, sets forth that the citizens have not the right to unrestricted use of the library books, and that the directors of the library have the right to decide what books shall be circulated. Meanwhile the trustees of the library who don't agree with Thompson, have refused to accept his invitation to resign.

GOOD PROGRAM.

Margaret Brown, of Toronto, To Play For Music Club.

The exceptionally fine program to be presented to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 by Margaret Brown of the Faculty of the Toronto Conservatory of Music is as follows:

d'Albert—"Allemande, Gavotte and Musette."

Bach-Busoni—"Choral in G Major."

Gluck-Friedman—"Ballet."

Mendelssohn—"Prelude and Fugue in E Minor."

Songs: Durante—"Danza Banza"; Gretchaninoff—"Over the Steppe"; Cadman—"The Song of the Robin Woman"—Mrs. W. H. Hohner.

Schumann—"Romance," "Prophet Bird."

Serge Prokofieff—Marche Op. 12.

Ernest Von Dohnanyi—"Rhapsody in C Major."

Brahms—"Intermezzo, A Major."

Strauss-Schulz-Goler — "By the Beautiful Blue Danube."

Afternoon tea will be served at the conclusion of the recital, so that the members and friends may meet Miss Brown.

TITLE BOUT TO-NIGHT.

Hudkins and Dundee Meet at Los Angeles For Welter Crown.

LOS ANGELES, November 3 (Canadian Press). — Ace Hudkins, a blonde thatched youth, long ranked among the top notchers, to-night has his first fling at a world's boxing championship when he takes on Joe Dundee, welterweight king. The bout is scheduled to go ten rounds, Dundee is the favourite, but Hudkins is equally confident. Both are masters at in-fighting, while Hudkins has somewhat of a reputation as a wildcat. Both are in first-class shape.

CARD PARTIES WELL ATTENDED

Holy Name Society and A. Y. P. A. Hold Successful Socials.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 3. — The third card party given by the ladies of St. Paul's Church, in the rooms of the Holy Name Society, over Leonard's store, on Friday evening last, was, despite many counter attractions, a great success. Fifteen tables were played. The ladies' first prize, a pair of blankets, was won by Mrs. Leo Spencer, while Mr. C. R. Armstrong won the men's prize of an umbrella. The consolations were won by Miss Helen Coughlin (a box of notepaper) and Mr. Robert Allen (a belt).

The first card party of the series given under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. was held on Thursday evening last, and was very successful. Thirteen tables were played, and a number did not play but assisted in the entertainment. Prizes were won by Mrs. George Pearson and Victor McManus, while Mrs. A. Wannamaker and Mr. Vincent won the consolation trophies.

Mrs. E. S. Kelsey entertained the W. A. of St. John's Church at her home on Colborne Street on Tuesday afternoon, October 25th.

LAKEFIELD GIRL IS GIVEN SHOWER

Friends of Miss Etta Bolton Bring Gifts in Honor of Marriage.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 3.—On Friday evening a jolly party to the number of about twenty, gathered at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Bolton on Nelson Street, and presented Miss Etta Bolton with an address, accompanied by a shower of miscellaneous gifts.

Miss Bolton, whose marriage to Mr. Earl D. Edwards will take place at high noon on Thanksgiving Day, is a popular young lady of the village and a faithful member of the choir of the Lakefield Baptist Church.

Mr. Edwards replied on behalf of the bride-elect, thanking their friends for the kindly thought which prompted the surprise party and accompanying gifts.

The following is the address:

Lakefield, Ont., Oct. 28, 1927.

Miss Etta Bolton.

"Dear Etta.—As the day of your marriage approaches we, your many friends have gathered here to wish you the best of luck and happiness in the years that are to come.

"We have always found you carefree, jolly and ready to offer a hand to the one that needs you, and it seems to us that we cannot let the occasion of your marriage pass without in some way trying to show you how much we have appreciated the good times that we have spent together. We ask you to accept these gifts tonight as a remembrance of your friends.

"Now you are starting out on a new path of life, we hope that you will find your duties, no matter how numerous they are, pleasant and light.

"We feel that we are not entirely losing you from a happy throng when you are making your home so near us, and we hope as the years go by that you will have spare moments to think of your friends.

"We add, in closing, that we wish you many years of happiness.

"Signed on behalf of your friends."

A.Y.P.A. HEARS DEVOTIONAL TALK

Rector Gives Address at Meeting of Omemee Branch.

OMEMEE, Nov. 3. — There was a splendid attendance at the A.Y.P.A. meeting held in the basement of Christ church on Monday evening. The new contest seems to be enjoying popularity. The president, Miss M. Dickson, gave a brief report on the Dominion conference held in Peterborough. The feature of the evening was the address given by the rector, Rev. A. T. Weir. The program was devotional and Mr. Weir spoke on "The Background of Christianity." Although the subject is an extensive one, the speaker treated it in a most comprehensive manner which resulted in an interesting evening.

MARMORA PERSONALS.

MARMORA, November 2. — Mr. C. L. Quinn returned to Deloro last week after a period spent in hospital.

Mrs. M. E. Grant is visiting with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Simmons, of Campbellford, visited relatives here on Sunday.

Hallowe'en Frolic At Marmora Village

MARMORA, Nov. 3.—Hallowe'en frolic was greatly in evidence with the rising generation again this year. Few were the children who were not disguised in some manner or other, most of them showing a preference for the coon make-up. Members of the C.G.I.T. and of Mrs. (Dr.) Curtis's class in connection with the United church Sunday school celebrated Hallowe'en with a social at the school room of that church. A Hallowe'en party was also held at the home of Miss Nellie Davidson who entertained school friends.

MEDIUM ASKED TO HELP POLICE

Middlesex Authorities Ask Woman Where Escaped Men Are.

REFUSE INFORMATION.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 3.—The latest move in the search for Harlton, alleged murderer, and Martron, still at large following their escape from the Middlesex County Jail, has been a meeting between police officers and Miss Margaret Pollock of Blyth, who is known throughout the countryside as a medium.

High Constable A. J. Wharton, returning to London late last night from an investigation in West Middlesex, stated that conferences had been held with the medium at Blyth. He refused to tell any part of the story related by the woman.

Wharton was accompanied on his inquiry by A. M. Judd, County Crown Attorney, and Lloyd Mennie, local Provincial officer. The trio did not go to Blyth for the purpose of visiting the woman, but happened to be in the vicinity investigating a number of criminal cases.

According to unofficial reports of the meeting between the police and Miss Pollock, the woman is said to have told the officers that she had valuable information as to the movements of the wanted pair. She is said to have declared that the escaped men were moving about rapidly, though their exact whereabouts could not be determined.

CROWD AIRWAYS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The first survey of the nation's civil airplane routes show that 395,546 passengers were carried during the first six months of 1927. During that time 12,377,933 miles were covered. Only 2,642,364 miles of that distance lay along regular air lanes, however.

Too Many Banquets Says Foreign Minister

DRESDEN, Nov. 2.—(United Press).—There are too many banquets in Germany, Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann declared Monday in a plea for simplier life.

These banquets, he said, give the impression that Germany is sound, permitting foreign observers to judge only those deceptive appearances. "The nation cannot lose the greatest war in history and bear the burden of the present unwisedly expensive apparatus," he said, asking Germany to scale its life down to actualities.

BRATIANO PLANS REPUBLIC BASED ON FASCIST SYSTEM

Intends To Get Rid Of Present Rumanian Dynasty, Say Reports.

WOULD RETAIN POWER.

Premier To Stir Up Agitation Until Time Ripe For Patrician Republic.

PARIS, Nov. 3. — Premier Jon Bratiano is through with the present dynasty in Rumania and is preparing to get rid of it.

In its place, according to information received by the correspondent, directly from Bucharest and from a reliable source, he plans a sort of Fascist Republic—a Roman republic in the hands of his financially all-powerful Liberal party.

The Liberal party under Bratiano's father placed the Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen dynasty upon the Rumanian throne. The son intends to force it down again. All the obscure events which make it difficult to understand what is going on in Rumania are said to be traceable to this purpose.

Bratiano does not believe it is possible to maintain King Michael's regency for the 14 years until he becomes of age. The political unrest former Crown Prince Carol has been able to cause has convinced the Premier it is time to prepare the skids for the dynasty.

To set up another dynasty he considers impossible so he means to take advantage of republican sentiments to set up a plutocratic republic which will control Rumania even more completely than the Bratiano's do to-day.

Outdictates Mussolini.

As it is Jon Bratiano, through his financial control of Rumania, has become a more effective dictator than even Mussolini in Italy. Carol, in the present agitation, is declared to be his unwitting puppet, manipulated into making a claim to the throne at the moment his enemy wanted. The story of how Bratiano pulled the trick follows:

As has previously been pointed out, there was always the suspicion that Carol's mistress, Mme. Magda Lupescu, is Bratiano's agent, that she induced Carol to meet her in Milan last year and that she is responsible for his renunciation of his throne.

She has stayed with Carol continuously and kept him quiet until, according to the correspondent's information, Bratiano was ready for the Prince to make his play for the throne. Then Carol was informed of the duplicity, or to put Mme. Lupescu in a more favorable light, Carol was led to believe she had been playing a double role and was really there to keep him from being active politically.

In any case the two separated. It has since been explained as a mere diplomatic breach to make possible a surface reconciliation between Carol and his wife, Princess Helen, mother of King Michael.

Break Was Real.

But it was a real break, according to the information. Bratiano now considers that Carol has shot his bolt but is still useful in that he has many followers in Rumania who will keep up agitation which could go on until Rumania is sick of the uncertainty until republican sentiment begins to affect the whole population.

Bratiano wants action forced on him so he will be made president as the only logical man. Then the Liberal party which has always been in control of finance and business will become a body of patricians, super-Fascists, at the head of a Roman-Rumanian Republic.

To this end the army is being remade. Carol's friends are mostly out already and important commands in the hands of relatives or henchmen of the old plutocratic families of Bucharest whose fathers and grandfathers helped the elder Bratiano put old King Carol on the throne.

Bratiano has no intention of destroying the constitution, dissolving Parliament and showing the outward signs of dictatorship as Mussolini has done. But he will allow himself to be forced by events to concentrate all power in himself as president. To this end he has pulled the strings and Carol has kicked just about as Bratiano intended.

MILLBROOK HAS QUIET HALLOWE'EN

Usual Parties of Young People Ask For Candy—Few Pranks Played.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 3. — Hallowe'en passed off with comparative quiet locally on Monday night. There were the usual parties of young folks of both sexes, wierdly attired, going about the streets after dark, ringing door bells, and asking (politely in most instances) for candy and apples, which were readily passed around. Householders are prepared for such visits on this night "when witches ride on broomsticks, and imps and goblins hold high carnival."

Apparently most of the wooden walks leading to private residences or spanning ditches and culverts, were taken up and carried some distance from their proper resting place. Perhaps the most annoying trick was the "painting" of the store windows with a generous supply of wax. This meant that outside practically every place of business the next morning there was a general window washing going on. Some tried safety razors for scraping off the "decoration," others use coal oil as a remover, and evidently there was a general demand for Dutch Cleanser, Bon-ami, and soap, with plenty of warm water and elbow grease, before the glass was shining once more and the show windows could display their goods.

Parties in private homes, at the I.O.O.F. Hall, and at least one public gathering provided entertainment engaging the attention of a number from the community and more than one car load went to Peterborough for the evening's amusement provided there.

CIVILIZATION KILLS ESKIMOS

Northern Explorer Says They Can't Live in White Man's Way.

NEED GAME RESERVES.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—The white man's food, the white man's clothing, and the white man's customs are rapidly decimating the Eskimo population of the Far North, asserts Capt. Henry T. Munn, one of the greatest authorities on Esquimaux, in an interview here, commenting on the transference of Eskimo affairs to the Department of North-West Territories. The food imported by the traders is not suitable for the special requirements of the Eskimo, he says, and they fall easy victims to every epidemic that comes along. He urged the necessity for preserving the wild life of the North as the only method of preventing the utter extermination of the Eskimos. To this end an order was made last year setting aside certain areas as game reserves.

Mrs. Harold Beavis and Miss Bertina Beavis spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fairman.

Mr. Alex. Shearer and Mr. Wilfred Hicks were the first to leave here for the woods. They left on Friday for Algonquin Park in quest of their quota of deer. A large number are leaving this week.

Mr. Walter Warrington, of Toronto, spent the week-end in town renewing acquaintances.

LITERARY SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

Cecil Stephens is President of Campbellford High School Organization.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 3. — The staff and pupils of the Campbellford High School met in the school assembly room yesterday for the purpose of forming their Literary Society for the present school year. Since the society is one of the regular school organizations, the main business of the meeting was the election of officers. The following officials and representatives were appointed: Honorary President, E. H. Greig, B.A., principal of the school; President, Cecil Stephens; Vice-President, Irene Stephens; Fifth Form Representatives, Dorothy West and Roy Johnston; Fourth Form, Enid Richardson and Ralph Sperry; Third Farm, Isobel Bygott and Stewart Anderson; Second Form, Angela O'Shea and George Slogget; First Form, Gladys Stephens and Robert Armour. The press representatives are Muriel Kingston and Russel Learmouth. Dickson Dawson is cheer leader. Cherry Turner is the pianist, and will be assisted by Irene Stephens.

The general opinion is that the list of officers and representatives contains the names of the most capable persons and the activities of the society are expected to be of particular interest this year.

WOOLER NEWS

WOOLER, November 3. — Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, of Pittsburg, are spending a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Wessels. Mr. Anderson and Mr. Wessels will spend their time in the north camp during the hunting season.

A number of men spent Friday repairing the driveway to the church shed.

Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Neal entertained the Mt. Zion Ladies' Aid on Thursday afternoon at the parsonage.

Extensive preparations are being made for the big fowl dinner on Thanksgiving night. The "Bon Ton" Orchestra of Belleville will furnish music for the entire evening. Every home in the community is being canvassed for fowl and other provisions.

During this wonderful weather it has been possible to do all kinds of work on the farm. The gathering in of roots, fruit, vegetables, plowing, repairing of driveways, of buildings have gone on apace.

Read the advertising columns of this paper to-day. They will save your time, save your money, lessen your work, show you ways of living a better, more comfortable and happier life.

HAVELOCK BRIDES RECEIVE PRESENTS

Showers Are Held for Three Ladies to be Married This Month.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 3.—On Thursday evening a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Howe to honor their daughter, Miss Ida Howe, whose marriage takes place early in November to Mr. Dudley Guiston of Detroit with a miscellaneous shower. Miss M. Breckenridge and Miss Lucy Wing attired as bride and groom brought the gifts which were numerous and beautiful in a baby carriage. A very enjoyable social evening was spent, Mrs. H. Elliott of Oshawa winning the prize in a word contest.

In honor of Miss Genevieve Aboud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Aboud, whose marriage takes place on November 7th to Mr. Leo Kouri of Montreal, Mrs. John Moore entertained on Friday evening at euchre and a miscellaneous shower. The home was attractively arranged with yellow chrysanthemums. Miss Geraldine Moore and Master Billy Moore brought in a large basket, prettily decorated with yellow and white which contained the gifts. Miss M. Lehane opened each parcel and read the name of the giver, and Miss Margaret Brennan presented the gifts. The prizes for the euchre were won by Mrs. George Pacey and Mrs. William Watson, the consolation awards going to the bride-to-be and Mrs. A. Aboud.

A large number of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Frank Parcells, Concession street on Saturday evening to honor her niece, Miss Mae Whitney, whose marriage takes place early in November to Mr. Harold Bannon of Peterborough, with a miscellaneous shower arranged by Mrs. Cecil Bannon and Mrs. Parcells. Miss Whitney though much surprised thanked the friends for their kind remembrances and good wishes. After the presentation a social time was spent in cards and dancing. Mr. Roy Campney favored the gathering with two vocal selections and two recitations by Mr. Joseph Faulkner were also much enjoyed.

ORDERS OUT FANGS.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Frances Edwards, 80, had only one friend and companion, a dog 17 years old. The pet became ill-tempered in his old age and police, claiming he was vicious, ordered him shot. Mrs. Edwards pleaded for her pet, so the judge ordered that all his teeth be pulled before he was restored to his owner.

W.M.S. LADIES HEAR OF WORK

Field Secretary Addresses the Members of St. Andrew's Church, Campbellford.

INTERESTING TALK.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3. — Practically every member of St. Andrew's Church W.M.S. was present yesterday afternoon to hear the message which Miss Lamont had to bring to them. Miss Lamont is the Field Secretary of the society and her duties bring her into direct personal contact with each of the 2,437 branches of the society in Canada. To the local society, Miss Lamont brought the greetings of the many hundred sister societies in the Dominion, explaining that their membership was upwards of forty-two thousand persons.

Beginning with the reason for all mission work, which is the divine command to spread the Gospel, Miss Lamont explained that the work of the society had to do first with the people of all races which were becoming citizens of the country. In order to meet the needs of these people, the society had definitely established avenues of effort through the schools, homes, hospitals, welcome and welfare societies and direct evangelistic work. They reached all races in Canada. The Chinese Mission in Victoria and Vancouver has two Chinese ministers and several women workers. There are, she claimed, over seven hundred Chinese women in the Dominion, and the society was endeavoring to reach these.

The Persians of North Battleford, the Ukranians, Russians and other nationalities were also finding their needs well attended. Three Ukranians were in courses in the schools leading to degrees in Divinity which would enable them to be missionaries to their own people. Nor was the efforts of the society confined to any particular class. They reached every class.

In connection with the overseas work of the W.M.S., Miss Lamont mentioned the two foreign fields, one in India, the other in British Guiana. This portion of her address was of exceptional interest to the ladies.

The devotional exercises were under the direction of Mrs. C. S. Gillespie and Mrs. Robert McCulloch. Mrs. Ernest Berford sang a solo and a very dainty tea was served after the business of the meeting had been concluded. The social activities were under the direction of Mrs. Henry Hay, Mrs. A. C. Connor, Mrs. Ann Adams, Mrs. John Locke. The ladies' parlor was suitably decorated for the occasion with late Autumn and other flowers.

When You Sit Down!

DO you ever sit down in front of your pier glass? Short skirts, particularly tight ones, require that special thought be put on the consequences of sitting down. Moreover, your pier glass is likely to give back a more decorous reflection in private than it would when you are engaged in animated conversation.

While the suggestion of underwear is no longer embarrassing, that suggestion must carry the impression of daintiness and adequacy. LAVENDER LINE pure silk hose and LAVENDER LINE knickers solve this problem. The stockings are neat fitting and pure thread silk to a lisle reinforced hem three inches deep. The silk goes high enough to fit under the shortest LAVENDER LINE knicker. No one could fear a glimpse of these smart knickers. Their lustre, attractive shadings, and plain smart lines are delightful. Both hosiery and knickers wash to fresh loveliness such innumerable times that they are economical.

You will find LAVENDER LINE hosiery and underwear only in smart shops. Finding the LAVENDER LINE shop in your vicinity will be worth your while.

A delightful Hallowe'en tea was held in the church parlors of St. Andrews' United Church yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society. Decorations were effectively carried out in the orange and black of the season, with a quantity of maple leaves over the fireplace, and orange calendula in brass bowls. The table was centred by a flat streamer of orange and black, with a black tripod holding a pumpkin kettle. Orange calendula were in slender black satin vases. The guests were received by Mrs. J. Forbes Allan and Mrs. J. W. Gordon, with Miss F. Dixon assisting at the door. Mrs. J. John had charge of the tea room arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Wm. Stevens. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. H. Allen and Mrs. A. Porteous, assisted by Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, Mrs. P. L. Allison, Miss Elizabeth Ferguson and Miss Helen Brown. A sale of home-made candy was in charge of Mrs. W. Zeihr and Mrs. H. Tremain, and Mrs. M. Breckenridge and Mrs. L. Nelson had charge of the sale of home-made cooking. During the afternoon, a pleasing musical programme was given, with vocal solos by Mrs. H. F. Doig and Miss Helen Lytle, accompaniments being played by Miss Alma Blanchard and Miss Gwen Donley.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

During the first part of the film "Chang," Faith tucked her hand into Bob's and he held it firmly at first, pressing it affectionately. But after a bit his clasp grew absent-minded, and when he suddenly released his hand to applaud an exciting episode in the story, as enthusiastic and boyish as the youngsters whistling and stamping in the first rows, he did not reach for her hand again. Hurt, she watched or tried to watch the rest of the film through a blur of tears. Why couldn't he act loverlike for once, show that she still thrilled him as she had done in their courtship days—if indeed she did?

"Great stuff, wasn't it?" he demanded, as they pushed a slow way through the departing crowd.

"Yes," she answered, squeezing his arm. "You were as excited as a boy. I love to see you like that—young, all your business worries forgotten, all your great burden of thirty whole years slipping from your shoulders for an hour. We ought to go to the movies and to plays and concerts oftener, darling."

"Yes, I guess so," Bob answered rather dispiritedly, as if he were again shouldering the pack which she had reminded him of. "How would a Welsh rarebit strike you, honey?"

"Probably right in the pit of the stomach—with a punch I wouldn't forget before morning," she laughed, too gayly. "But I'm game if you are. I really think you'd better sleep, though, if you had something lighter—"

"Oh, all right!" he interrupted brusquely. "I'll take milk toast if you think that will set better. But I had felt rather like whooping it up tonight."

"So do I!" she cried hastily. "I think a Welsh rarebit would be fun. And I'm aching for a good dance with you. Cherry says Pickwick Inn has a gorgeous orchestra, though the cover charge is pretty steep—"

"Oh, we'll go home!" Bob cut in wearily. "I'm tired, anyway. Not much sleep last night, and I had to do Cherry's work today."

"Bob," she began, desperate pleading in her voice and eyes. "Please drive on to the Pickwick Inn. I do want to dance and eat a Welsh rarebit and I don't care what the cover charge is. Let's forget we're married and have a real sweetheart time. I—I'm sorry I made any objections. I didn't mean to dampen your spirits. I was so glad you were enjoying yourself—"

"Yeah?" Bob grinned a crooked grin at her as he started the car with a jerking of levers. The engine stalled, and he swore under his breath, then abruptly switched off the ignition. "Listen, honey. Do me a favor, won't you? Don't think so damned much about me! About us—the married us, I mean. You're always watching me, trying to hear me tick, wondering what I'm thinking about and feeling and doing. God knows I don't do anything you don't know about, but I wish to heaven you'd be content to leave me the privacy of my thoughts and feelings—just occasionally! Now, don't flinch and tremble and cry! Please! I'm just trying to get us two on a more comfortable basis. Willing Faith, not as Bob's wife—if you get what I mean?"

She Gained Weight With McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets

You remember, of course—not so long ago she was a regular scarecrow—skinny is a mild word for the way she looked.

Just look at her now—if ever a woman had a perfect figure she has it—she is the envy of half the girls in town.

It's nothing to get excited about—all she did was to take on weight—filled out the hollows in face, neck, and chest—any skinny, weak, run-down woman can do the same and gain a clean, clear complexion at the same time.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets or 2 one dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Contending planetary influences mark today according to astrology, which finds the early hours much more fortunate than the evening.

All who seek employment should make good use of the morning hours when there will be chance of careful consideration of personal representations.

It is a fairly lucky day for all who are engaged in work that is productive or constructive.

Journeys are supposed to be fortunate today, if begun in the morning, and the prognostication is that travel will be extensive all through the winter.

The evening should be an auspicious time for association with persons of power and influence.

After sundown the sway favors conferences and discussions. Lucky for politicians and promoters.

Prices of food and clothing will advance sharply until the end of December, it is forecast.

Italy and her colonies now will come much to the front in newspaper accounts, it is foretold.

Egypt, also, will furnish material for sensational headlines, if the stars are rightly read.

Editors and magazine contributors may expect much unfair criticism in the coming months.

Unusual strain on the postal service is indicated for the next few months.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of profit in the coming year, which should be generally prosperous.

Children born on this day probably will be faithful and loyal. The subjects of this sign are usually most fortunate as employees.

It is not generally known that the first observance of Memorial Day, or Decoration Day as it was first called, was due to Mrs. John A. Logan, wife of the famous Union commander. After observing the women of Richmond and Petersburg, Va., decorating the graves of Confederate dead with flowers and small flags, Mrs. Logan suggested to her husband that the custom should be followed by the Northern States. Thereupon, General Logan as head of the G. A. R., issued a request for such observance and subsequently introduced a resolution in Congress to the same effect.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

To keep your feet warm and comfortable when playing a golf or tennis or indulging in winter sports—wear these short wool socks with cuffs that hide the ankles.

Certainly the effect is not graceful, but it is undoubtedly smart—and more than that it is sportsmanly, or perhaps I should say sportswomanly—the effect procuded by wearing short woolen socks over the usual long stockings for tennis, golf and winter sports. Just at present these cuffed short socks are displayed rather prominently at most of the stocking counters, and if you go in for outdoor sports at all one pair at least should be included in your late autumn purchases.

One wonders what will be the effect on stocking fashions of the slight lengthening of skirts that is now apparent. Will women go back to the trick of rolling their stockings below the knee? This fashion practically disappeared—if indeed it ever was a real fashion—with the extreme abbreviation of skirts. Longer stockings were required and the majority of women went back to the wearing of some sort of hose supporters to keep the desirable smooth line of the stocking well above the knee.

Some girls, of course, managed to keep high stockings in place above the knees by means of tightly fitting garters, but this was as uncomfortable as it was injurious. Probably the high, smooth stocking line will continue. The apparently longer evening gowns frequently have uneven or slashed hem lines that still give a glimpse of the knee and many of them are made with a fairly transparent long overskirt or drapery with a rather short foundation.

The little dressmaker who came by the day to help make the simpler sort of frocks and to remodel frocks from last season or the season before is a rare bird indeed nowadays. Many women who have confidence enough in their own amateur dressmaking abilities to make an occasional dress at home, lack the courage to make anything over. They wear old frocks as long as they are wearable in the original guise and then pack them off to the next rummage sale.

Really it is worth while to learn how to make over your own clothes. To be able to do this frequently means four evening frocks instead of two, or six possible afternoon frocks instead of three.

But often there is not enough good material in the old frock to make something new. Then new material must be used to eke out. Usually, of course, it is impossible to match the original fabric exactly, and rather than use a near match it is wiser to get material of an entirely different color or shade and then frankly make a bi-colored or composite frock.

Short of Breath Dizzy, Sinking Spells COULDN'T WALK FAR

Mrs. L. A. Oliver, Granville Ferry, N.S., writes:—"A few years ago I had dizzy, sinking spells so bad I could hardly stand up without taking hold of something to support me, and I could not walk any distance on account of being so short of breath.

"I had taken a lot of doctor's medicine, but it did me no good, only for the time being, so reading in the B.B.B. almanac about MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS I decided to try them and found them to be just what they are recommended to be, and I feel that I owe my life to them."

JEWISH M. P. IS GIVEN POST

Arthur M. Samuel Becomes Financial Secretary of British Treasury.

IN LINE FOR CABINET.

LONDON, Nov. 2 (United Press).—The promotion of Arthur Michael Samuel to the financial secretaryship of the Treasury, thus putting him directly in the running for Cabinet rank when a vacancy occurs, has caused great surprise.

Mr. Samuel was formerly Parliamentary Secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade and is a keen Protectionist. He is proud of being Jewish and comes from a very old Jewish family whose residence in England dates back before the time when Cromwell re-admitted the Jews into the country.

With regard to his appointment, the Manchester Guardian says "he is not a financial and commercial expert. In those subjects he is a charming innocent and naturally a Protectionist as all charming innocents are."

WON'T SUPPORT HIM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Before Magistrate Daly came an elderly man of Russian accent. "I want a summons for my wife", he said, "she won't support me any longer." The court explained that the man must support the woman in this country and refused to issue the summons

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES.

OMEMEE UNITED Y.P.U.

OMEMEE, Nov. 3.—The Y. P. U. of Trinity United Church made merry in a Hallowe'en frolic held in the Sunday school room on Monday evening. Those attending were greeted inside the basement by a groaning ghost, who passed them along to a winsome bride, who tatooed each guest with a black cat seal. After the admission fee had been paid, the guests, attired in weird, as well as fancy, costumes, quietly found chairs in various parts of the room, where they gazed at the wall decorations of black cats, bats, witches and overhead decorations of black and yelow. Suddenly all lights went out and a ghastly ghost appeared telling in hollow tones a real ghost story and passing around the circle, parts of the supposed witches body, thereby causing many a squeal. Costume judging was next in order. Miss Mamie Hickson carried off the girls' prize and Mr. Ross Rutherford the boys', while little Miss Lillian Williamson won the junior prize.

Apple bobbing, power of concentration, ring on the string, and fortune telling in a witches cavern created much merriment, followed by the following conundrum menu: Sandwich, "Cackleberry, King Neptune and Son of Noah"; cake, "Marine Fancy, "Granite," "Satanic Dainty." Beverages, Adams' ale and "Spinster's Solace." The merry gathering dispersed with the singing of the National Anthem.

WARSAW SCHOOL.

WARSAW, Nov. 3.—The little old stone school in Warsaw was crowded on Friday evening, when the teachers and pupils gave a Hallowe'en party. The school rooms were decorated prettily with jack o'lanterns, black cats and witches. The admission was ten cents and the door keeper's table was lighted by an enormous lantern. Some of the costumes were very clever, old stocking legs made efficient masks and head dresses. A number of old fashioned garments appeared.

Dr. Munro was master of ceremonies. Among the numbers on the program were two selections by the juniors, one "Where are you little thumb?" was very pretty, the little ones were so prompt in holding up their thumbs and fingers. The other was 'Had a peanut," also well done and very amusing. Four boys had a pie song and each demolished a piece of pumpkin pie. Cora Crowe read "The Warsaw School Gazette." Jean Munro gave a reading. Fortunes were told by Cora Crowe. There was a peanut contest and a fish pond and a few spooky games.

Refreshments, principally pumpkin pie and sandwiches, were served.

MYERSBURG LADIES' AID.

NORHAM, Nov. 2.—The Ladies' Aid of the Myersburg church held a very successful Hallowe'en social, in the church hall, on Friday night.

Jack O' Lanterns lighted the entrance and the stairway and ghosts hovered around. The hall was most tastily decorated with festoons of black and orange, black cats and jack o' lanterns. Down the centre of the hall was a white covered table with centre pieces of black and criss-cross bands of orange, and a lantern on each centre piece.

The costume parade took place around the table. In one corner of the room was a candy booth, which did a flourishing business all evening.

The judges of the costumes were: Mrs. D. R. Clare of Norham, Mr. Whitehouse of Brighton, and Mr. Clark of Myersburgh.

Best fancy dressed lady over 12—Misses Brown and Longmuir.

Best fancy dressed man—Eric Craighead.

Best comic (lady)—Ada Miller.

Fancy dressed girl (8-12)—Norma Finlay.

Fancy dressed boy (8-12)—Oscar Blakely.

Comic girl, 8 and under—Gladys Beatty.

Comic boy, 8 and under—Earl Clare and Charlie Ivey (ties).

A bountiful lunch was served after which the audience joined in community singing.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 2.—The members of the Woman's Institute were hostesses at a jolly old time Hallowe'en party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Blakeley, which was kindly loaned for the occasion, on Friday evening, October 28th. There were about one hundred and twenty-five present, the married ladies of the Institute and their husbands and the members of the Junior Institute and their young men friends joining together for an evening of mirth and merriment and meeting with great success. This is the first social event of the Institute and the result fully justified the effort.

The ladies arrived in fancy costumes and staged a parade which was one of the features of the evening. There was "grandma" in her old fashioned shawl and bonnet and gown of the days when Confederation was an experiment, there were two ladies dressed in the saucy style of Sally in Our Alley, another was Santa Claus, another was an old fashioned lady with a skirt of the age when the width was measured in yards not inches and when the ankle was less obvious than the modern girls knee. Costumes decorated with the mysteries of Hallowe'en, gypsies and prierrots and pierrettes in plenty. The large drawing room was given over to the games which were interspersed with round and square dances, card tables were set out in the sitting and dining rooms and one could enjoy the diversion of one's choice. There were several of the old fashioned games played, the kind which were popular when the older folks were young and they were found to provide as much fun for the young people as with those who were older.

The house was decorated in orange and black in real Hallowe'en style and the ladies wore house dresses. Mr. Aubrey Mitchell contributed a solo which was much enjoyed and Mr. Roy Dunsford also sang.

Refreshments were served shortly after eleven and about one o'clock the party broke up after a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Blakeley for the use of their home and to Mr. and Mrs. James Irvin, Mrs. John Northey, and Messrs. E. Blewett and B. Simpson, who furnished music for the game and dancing.

Before leaving the entire company old and young formed a big circle and sung "Auld Lang Syne" that classic of farewells and "For they are jolly good fellows."

MILLBROOK I.O.O.F.

MILLBROOK, November 3.—Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F., No. 308, held its annual Hallowe'en masquerade and social evening at the Lodge Rooms on Monday at 8 p.m., quite a large number of the members and their friends, as well as those connected with the Rebekah Order, being present.

The decorations were elaborate both in the rooms upstairs and in the dining hall, orange and black being the colors used, the traditional black cats, hats, witches, etc., being everywhere in evidence.

The parade of the masked and the costumed figures, while the judges, Mrs McCormick and Mr. H. A. Fallis, made decisions as to the prize-winners, was a most entertaining feature of the gathering.

The first prizes for best costumes went to Mrs. C. C. Garside, who was garbed as a witch ,and to Mr. V. R. Hunter, who represnted a returned soldier Winners of the prizes for best comic costumes were Misses Lila White and Thelma Ball, who were attired in a very realistic representation of two black and white pussy cats.

The contests which followed the judging were along lines appropriate to the occasion, the wianers being: Miss Alice Armstrong and Mr. S. Braithwaite for the first; Miss Eileen Hunter and Mr. S. Seney in the second instance ;and Miss L. Syer and Mr. R. I. Fallis for the third. Miss Mamie Fisher came nearest the actual number of beans in the jar in the guessing contest, and was awarded the prize.

There was a happy hum of conversation as the guests were seated about the gaily decorated tables in the dining hall at the supper hour, the menu, topped off with delicious pumpkin pie, being of a most satisfying character.

Cards and dancing for those who preferred this form of entertainment, filled out the evening acceptably, and it was some time after midnight when the enjoyable event was brought to a close.

The committee in charge was Brothers V. R. Hunter, P.G., P. I. Bentley, P.G., and C. C. Garside.

MILLBROOK C.G.I.T.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 3.—The Hallowe'en social evening, under the auspices of the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group, held in the basement of the United Church on Monday at 8 p.m., proved a most successful and enjoyable event.

The platform was centred with a tripod on which was hung a witch's cauldron over a "red, red fire"; the lights were covered with orange shades, each having a black cat in bold relief; there were Jack O'Lanterns in convenient places, "ghosts" at the stage corners, bats, owls, and pixies on the runners which formed the background.

The vice-president, Miss Elinor Fallis, took the chair, the secretary, Miss Wilma Fallis, being associated with her upon the platform. As this was the only group meeting to be held this week, the reading of the minutes and the roll-call followed the opening hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," and the recitation in unison of the Twenty-Third Psalm and the Lord's Prayer.

The remaining numbers on the program were:

Recitation—"When Mother was a Girl," by Marjorie McDowell.

Chorus—"Follow the Gleam," by the C.G.I.T. Group.

Recitation—"On Hallowe'en," by Lenore Lambert (in costume).

Recitation—"The Mumps," by Bernice Smith.

Witches' Drill (in costume), around the Cauldron, by Misses Jean Burnham, Elinor Fallis, Elsie Spence, Flossie McMahon, Jean Stinson, and Margaret Fallis. Miss Annie McMahon presided at the piano.

Reading—"The Two Homecomings," by Miss Pearl Burnham.

Apples were strung at a convenient height and the little folk particularly enjoyed trying to bite the swinging fruit, or to have their fortunes told from the three bowls, one empty, one with blackened water, and one with clear water, which found a place on a table in a dark corner. Contests, one on "Cats," and the other on "Nuts," kept the older folk employed happily, the winners being Miss Hetherington and Miss Wagenest for the first; Mrs. Sayles and Miss Dorothy Crossley for the second. Limericks were passed around and there was plentuy of fun as the answers were read aloud.

The service of home-made candy and baskets of ruddy apples was the concluding item in the evening's enjoyment.

The C.G.I.T. group plans to have a number of public meetings during the winter months, taking a silver collection each time, and adding to its funds in this manner rather than by having one big entertainment as has been its custom in other years.

Mrs. Annie Besant, the Theosophical leader, who has just celebrated her 80th birthday, she axpressed a wish to fly back to India from England, as the slowness of trains appals her after air travel.

Hagen and Armour Leading in Pro Golf Tourney

PLAYERS WIN EASY MATCHES IN DAY'S PLAY

Will Face Each Other To-day For Third Round Match.

COOPER ELIMINATED.

Stars Who Gained the Quarter Finals Found Rough Going.

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—Two reigning golf champions of the United States, Walter Hagen and Tommy Armour, stroked their way past further obstacles yesterday for a third round match in which they will battle each other today on the pathway leading to the championship of the professional golfers' association.

The two stars had little difficulty in yesterday's matches. Hagen made a walkaway of his match with Anthony Manero of New York to win 11 and 10, while Armour defeated Tom Harmon of Yonkers, N.Y., 7 and 6.

Other stars who gained the quarter finals yesterday found rough going, and one outstanding favorite, Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, was eliminated by Al Espinosa of Chicago. Cooper, a former Dallas boy, fell 5 and 5.

Mort Dutra of Tacoma, Wash; Gene Sarazen of New York; Joe Turnesa of New York; Francis Gallet of Wauwatosa, Wis., and John Golden of Patterson, N.J., entered the charmed circle with Hagen, Armour and Espinosa.

Dutra was carried to the last green to down Charles Guest, of Hollywood two up, and Joe Turness trailed all day to win one up on the 36th hole from Willie Klein of East Williston, N.Y. Gallett beat Ralph Beach, Bethseda, Md., 2 up on the last green and Golden was carried to the 37th green to down Harold Long of Raleigh, N.C. Sarazen led most of the way to eliminate E. Dudley, Van Nuys, Calif., 4 and 3.

Either Hagen or Harman will be eliminated tomorrow and there are other favorites who must fall by the wayside. Dutra must stroke his way through the wily Espinoso if he is to reach the semi-finals and Sarazen and Turnesa will fight it out in another match. Golden and Gallet are matched in the final bracket.

TY COBB NOT WITH ATHLETICS

Mack Says Club Not Able To Afford High Salary.

$60,000 CONTRACT.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—Ty Cobb will not be with the Philadelphia Athletics next year. As soon as waivers are received on him from all American League clubs, he will be free to negotiate with any baseball club whose offer for his services next year looks tempting.

Fresh from a hunting trip in the west, Cobb called on Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, and conferred for an hour yesterday on Ty's status with the team.

When it was over, Mack announced that baseball's colorful outfielder would not be with the Philadelphia Americans any longer.

"Cobb came to us last season under a very heavy contract," said Mack, "and we feel that we are unable to continue the high salary next year. I am very sorry that we will lose him. He is a great player. We liked him on the club; we liked his playing, and would like to keep him."

Mack said that Philadelphia was one of the few cities where Sunday baseball is not lawfully permitted and that the revenue received would not permit the paying of a salary such as the famous player was paid. It was said that Cobb's contract last season called for $60,000 and a bonus.

Mack further said that the Athletics would ask all the other clubs for waivers, and when they are received Cobb would be given his unconditional release. After he is a free agent Cobb will be in a position to dicker with any club he chooses without hindrance from any other club. There was no question, Mack said, that the waivers would be forthcoming.

Cobb, after the conference, would make no definite statement about retiring from baseball. He remarked, as he has said before, that he has been in the game 23 years and is thinking of the time when he will retire.

It is expected that Cobb will defer any announcement of his plans for next year so long as there is any opportunity for him to play under conditions satisfactory to himself.

SCOTT STARTS CLIMB TO TOP

ELIMINATION SERIES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A British menace to Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown, Phil Scott of London, will follow the "trial horse" path in Madison Square Garden Nov. 4 that led Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish invader, to the front ranks of the heavyweight contenders.

Scott's first opponent in America will be Knute Hansen, Minnesota Dane, who lost a ten round decision to the woodchopper of the Pyrenees when the Basque first answered Tex Rickard's summon to the "big money" center of fistiana.

Now Rickard has called Scott to the list of heavyweights who will battle through the winter for the big open air "shots" of the spring and summer and finally a chance to dislodge Gene Tunney's crown next fall. Originally Uzcudun was slated for the 10 round testing role, but an injury suffered to the Spaniard's left arm in battle with Tom Heeney in September forced him from the match.

Scott, a seaman on H. M. S. Trafalgar at the age of 15 during the World War, sports the championship of the British Isles and claims victories abroad over both Heeney and Uzcudun. Since the war, Scott served two years as a Scotland Yard detective and a year or two as a London fireman. He has been in the ring six years.

The British titleholder scales about 195 pounds in ring togs. Although his handlers admit he knows "nothing at all about infighting," Scott has shown a fast left hand, a fairly heavy right, and speed afoot in preliminary training.

E. S. BARNARD ELECTED NEW LEAGUE HEAD

Owner of Cleveland Indians Named Successor To Johnson.

THREE YEAR TERM.

Believed Will Receive Same Yearly Salary as Ban Johnson.

CHICAGO, November 3. — Ernest S. Barnard of Cleveland, yesterday was elected president of the American League, filling the office that Ban Johnson vacated when the former "czar" of organized baseball resigned after serving the league he organized for 27 years.

The American League Club owners unanimously chose Barnard, former president of the Cleveland Indians for a term of three years. Although the salary figure was not made public it was believed to be approximately $40,000 a year, the same as Johnson was receiving when he decided to retire. Barnard also was made treasurer of the league.

Will Harridge, who for 15 years acted as private secretary to Johnson was elected secretary of the league, a newly created position. Harridge's term also is for three years. Previously Johnson held all three positions.

The new American League head, who started his career in sports as a 16 year old football coach, promised to continue the high ideals of baseball management created by Johnson. He said that he had always been in thorough accord with Mr. Johnson's principles, and as long as he remains president of the American League there will be no change in this general policy.

The headquarters of the league will be maintained in Chicago, with President Barnard taking up the duties immediately.

Up to the time the club owners went into session yesterday, Barnard was the president of the Cleveland Club a position he has held since 1922, upon the death of James C. Dunn, at that time chief stockholder.

Barnard resigned this office to become president of the league. He had been connected with the Cleveland Club for 24 years, when he left the job of sports editor of the Columbus, Ohio, Dispatch, in 1903, to become secretary of the club in 1910 and was made business manager in 1916.

Meeting Harmonious.

Yesterday's meeting of the American League Club owners was harmonious, except when it came to the adoption of a resolution expressing recognition and appreciation of the long and valuable services rendered by Mr. Johnson as president of the league. All the club owners with the exception of Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, signed the resolution.

Thus Comiskey, who with Johnson founded the American League and then broke with him over the "black sox" scandal in 1919, continued his fight on Johnson to the last. Comiskey in feeble health, did not attend yesterday's meeting, but was represented by Harry Grabiner secretary of the club and his son, J. Louis Comiskey.

Negotiations for the sale of the Cleveland club to a syndicate of Cleveland millionaires, headed by Alva Bradley, is progressing smoothly, but may not be concluded for two or three days. It developed that one of the holders of 16 shares of the stock was in London on a European tour, and W. J. Garvey of Chicago, had not granted an option on his holdings.

RICKARD DENIES DEMPSEY SIGNED

Promoter Says He Has Tunney Tied Up Until October 10th.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Although Jack Dempsey has denied signing a contract with Tex Rickard for another fight with Gene Tunney early next summer, reports continued here today that Rickard has endeavored to get the former champion's agreement for such a contest, chiefly to prevent attempts at staging a heavyweight championship by other promoters.

Rickard said he had Tunney signed to an agreement for his exclusive services up until Oct. 10, 1928, and added that the champion would not fight for anyone else.

"The only stipulation in my contract with Tunney," Rickard declared, "is that the fight be held during the summer season. This agreement contains a financial arrangement similar to that signed by Tunney for me last January in St. Louis."

Boxing Makes Million.

Rickard produced a statement revealing that from Sept. 1, 1925 to Aug. 31 of this year, the profits of Madison Square Garden were $1,393,194.28 from boxing exclusively. Profit on indoor shows amounted to $632,902.31, and the net from outdoor shows was $760,291.97. Boxing's indoor gross receipts were $2,797,708, and the gross for outdoor shows $3,550,308.81, making a total gross of $6,348,016.81. These figures, Rickard said, are exclusive of the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago.

Rickard produced figures in denying rumors that there was a disagreement between him and his associates, and that he had been asked to withdraw from his duties.

Philadelphia Won't Re-engage Ty Cobb

PHILADELPHIA, November 2 (Canadian Press). — Ty Cobb will not be with the Athletics next year, it was announced today after a conference between the famous ball player and Connie Mack, manager of the local American League club. Mack said the Athletics could not re-engage Cobb next year because of financial differences, Cobb having received about $30,000 last season. Cobb intimated he might quit the game.

NEW ALLIANCES CAN BE FORMED

McDiarmid May Follow Barney Dreyfuss' Lead and Be Independent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Baseball men are discussing among themselves the possibility that the retirement of Garry Herrman as president of the Cincinnati baseball club will change the color of National League politics. Ostensibly there are no politics in the National League. Actually, there are and always have been.

For several years a group of owners in the league took charge of things in little confidential talks before the annual meetings and usually they had their way before the annual meeting took place. This was because the changes under advisement were well discussed in advance and the individuals knew how they were to vote.

Herrman was allied with the New York team from the time the Giants became the property of the present owners. Prior to that time, the Cincinnati leader was not always with New York as much as with some other teams, although there were good reasons why he should have been. In a general way, his policies were commercial rather than for the sport of baseball. Once he made a very radical reference to the view he entertained of baseball as "big business" and some of his associates never forgave him for it. They did not agree with him and they were opposed to his frank utterances about the business end.

Widrig Is the Boss.

C. J. McDiarmid, the new president of the Cincinnati club, has had experience in baseball. The largest stockholder in the club is Louis Widrig, who lives across the river from Cincinnati. But Widrig is averse to being recognized as chief executive, preferring to sit in the background and let someone else do the talking. It is also considered probable that he deferred to Herrmann's longer experience as the head of the club and to his judgment of ball players.

The president of the Cincinnati club always has had a hand in disposing of players or taking them on, a policy which prevails in some clubs and not in others. There are clubs where the manager is the sole authority as to the advisability of making player changes. Those clubs usually do better than the ones in which the non-playing president makes all decisions.

Not as much basic legislation has been necessary in the National League in recent years as in the years prior to 1913. Ban Johnson with his American League forced the National to surrender its dual role as manager of baseball affairs because the government of baseball is strictly a one man affair now—in the hands of Judge Landis. However, the league was willing to make sacrifices in order to curb Johnson. It is quite likely there will be a change, now that Johnson is out of the way.

All Are Allied.

In general, Herrmann and the New York club worked together, inviting Chicago in when some legislation was necessary. Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh club always has been independent of all alliances. The Brooklyn club, under the late Charles Ebbets, usually sided with Dreyfuss. Boston is New York's by an alliance that is so strong that it has been severely criticized. Philadelphia is a strong ally of Brooklyn.

Old-Time Boxer Takes Final Count

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Nov. 3.—The death of "Spider" Kelly in Rochester, Minn., yesterday, removed one of the most famous old-famous figures of the ring and severed a boxing partnership that endured forty years.

"Tim" McGrath, who "shook hands in partnership" with Kelly four decades ago, narrated the story of two immigrant Irish lads, one from County Limarick, the other from County Kerry, who met in San Francisco at the age of 15. The pair became one of the greatest team of seconds boxing has known.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

IS SHE ENGAGED?

Is she the champion's sweetheart? Everybody but Gene Tunney himself denies his engagement to Miss Parmelia Pryor of Greenwich, Conn. Her father and his sister say "No." He says nothing. She is a sister of his war-time pal, Sam Pryor.

THE MARKETS.

or more in rye, attracted considerable attention, but seemingly had little if any immediate influence on values.

Closing quotations on wheat were steady at a shade net lower to ¼c advance, with corn ⅜c to ¾c down; oats unchanged to ⅛c up, and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 22c.

There was plenty of bearish news yesterday as to wheat, especially from Canada and Argentina, but on the whole the trade appeared to be inclined to disregard such items as increased estimates of the Canadian yield as well as optimistic reports of the crop outlook in Argentina. At the start, however, advices of cheaper and freer offerings to Europe both by Canada and Argentina were of some effect taken with word that no damage had been done by frost in Argentina.

Indications of a lull in export demand for wheat from North America counted at times as a further bearish influence, the total business yesterday being estimated at only 150,000 to 200,000 bushels. Notable steadiness of the Winnipeg market, however, helped to rally prices here as the day drew to an end. Need of rain in western portions of Kansas and Oklahoma was also a subject of comment.

Although firm early swing to somewhat unsettled weather, corn later showed a heavy undertone, one reason being that the movement of new corn is expected to increase steadily. Oats prices held firm despite the weakness of corn. Primary receipts of oats yesterday were a good deal less than half the amount of a year ago.

For the most part, provisions were responsive to an upturn in hog values.

DIAGNOSING "HEART TROUBLE"

Many cases of both functional and organic heart troubles are well developed before the patients experience any warning symptoms. A pain in the left chest is not necessarily an indication of heart trouble, but may be due to intercostal neuralgia, pleurisy, faulty position of ribs, gas pressure, or because of the stomach being overloaded with food.

The diagnostician must make a careful study of the patient's symptoms to determine if they are true "heart trouble" indications or merely due to some of the above causes. In addition to this, the physician needs to listen to the heart sounds as transmitted through the stethoscope, take the blood pressure reading, count the pulse during rest and after exercise, and use the fluoroscopic X-ray to observe the heart's action. Electrical cardiographic tracings and the recording sphygmomanometer are also helpful in making a visable record of the action of the heart valves.

In health we should be totally unconscious of the action of the heart, but when cardian disturbances manifest themselves the patient's report of symptoms is an aid to the physician's diagnosis, but cannot be completely depended upon, as the patient is prone to use his imagination in magnifying pains and disturbances which he believes to be of cardian origin.

One of the simplest safeguards in preventing the development of either functional or organic heart trouble is to have periodical examinations made, and not wait until there is a consciousness of the disease. If this safeguard has not been used, the one who has gradually developed some heart disorder may notice some of the following symptoms: Fullness of the chest, particularly on the left side; intermittent heartbeat, hot and cold flushes, pain in the region of the heart, sharper "angina pectoris" pains through the whole pectoral region and down the left arm, aching between the shoulders, shortness of breath, severe exhaustion, giddiness, blue hands and feet, palpitation, spells of profuse sweating and extreme nervousness.

These are a few of the symptoms which may indicate the onset of some kind of heart trouble, but it is unwise for even the physician to try to correctly diagnose his own case, as many valuable tests can be made which cannot accurately be used by the patient himself even though he is a highly trained physician.

The treatment of each kind of heart disorder must necessarily vary according to the individual case, but there are some general rules which are applicable to all types of heart derangements. If you suspect heart trouble, and have not been examined for some time, go at once to a good diagnostician who can assure you you are well, or warn you by naming your particular ailment.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. J. O. T. writes: "I am very fond of fresh pineapple. May it be used as a dessert—does it combine well with an ordinary meal?"

Answer: The best way to use pineapple is to make an entire meal of it, or use it in combination with sweet milk. However, it may be used with a proteid meal, when no starches are taken. The acids interfere with the starch digestion, but the leafy succulent greens may be used freely with this meal. By proteid meal—take, for instance, any of the evening meals suggested in my Saturday menus. You may safely substitute the pineapple for the dessert suggested if you so desire.

Question: Mrs. J. B. writes: "I have to clear my throat real often, although I don't bring up any phlegm. It doesn't seem to be a habit. Could you tell me what causes this?"

Answer: Such symptoms are often forerunners of tuberculosis or bronchitis. Any irritation in the lungs may create the desire to cough, even when there is nothing to cough up. If the cause of the irritation is not removed, there may finally develop enough degeneration so that phlegm and pus will gather in quantities large enough to be coughed up. Every tickling cough without phlegm should be carefully considered and the cause removed.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE DANCING LEAVES

The rabbit gentleman opened the door of his hollow stump bungalow one day to look out and see what the weather was doing before he went adventuring, but right away something happened. The wind blew the door shut pulling the knob out of Uncle Wiggily's paw. And his pink, twinkling nose was so nearly caught in the slamming door that Mr. Longears cried:

"Ouch! Wowch!"

"Did you get pinched?" squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who had just finished giving the breakfast dishes their morning bath.

"Almost," Uncle Wiggily answered. "I got frightened, anyhow! My goodness! What would I do if the door had nipped off my nose?"

"You wouldn't feel like going adventuring for a long time, I guess," said the muskrat lady housekeeper. "The wind is blowing very hard."

"We shall soon have the winter," sighed Uncle Wiggily. "Though I suppose I may have as good a time then as I have in the summer. My fur coat is growing thicker so I shall be warm. But if the wind is blowing hard it may blow me an adventure. I'll go out and see."

"I will," said the rabbit gentleman, keeping a firm hold of the knob as he opened it once more. And though the playful wind tried to pull it away from him, Uncle Wiggily kept hold and finally got safely out on the front steps.

"It's a jolly day for an adventure," said Mr. Longears to himself, as he hopped over the fields toward the woods. "I wonder what sort of one I shall have?"

Mr. Longears had not hopped far before he saw, running ahead of him, Jingle and Jangle, his mischievous little rabbit girls. Also there was Custer and Duster, two boys, and Timble and Tumble, as well as Wimble and Wamble. They were all skipping along as lively as crickets.

"We are going to dance with the leaves," answered Jingle.

"Come and watch us!" invited Jangle.

He danced with the wind blown leaves.

"Oh, you should see them!" cried Custer, giving a bounce up in the air like a rubber ball. "Come and watch us dance with the leaves!"

At first Uncle Wiggily did not know what the bunny children meant. But as he followed them he saw them run down in a little dingly dell that was green in summer, but which, now that fall had come, was brown with many leaves that had dropped off the trees.

And, as Uncle Wiggily watched he saw the wind catch up a cloud of the leaves and send them fluttering up and down in the air, leaping here and there, now high now low, swirling around darting off this way and that way, turning somersaults and peppersaults and doing all manner of tricks. Thus the wind blew the leaves—the same wind which had so playfully almost slammed the door on Uncle Wiggily's nose.

"Watch us dance with the leaves!" cried the little rabbits. And as the wind swirled the brown, golden, red and crimson leaves up and down, Jingle, Jangle and the others kept time with them, leaping high and low, springing here and there. Of course the little bunnies could not dance as high as the wind blew some of the leaves, but they did very well.

"What jolly fun!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I am going to dance with the leaves myself. I am not too old!"

So he danced with the wind blown leaves until at last he grew tired and sat down on a log to rest. Off through the woods danced the little rabbit children, and Uncle Wiggily was left alone. He had fallen asleep.

As he slept there came lumbering through the woods: the Bushy Bear who was hungry for rabbit ears. At once the Bear saw Uncle Wiggily on the log.

But, all of a sudden the playful wind and the dancing leaves took pity on Mr. Longears. Such a cloud of leaves was blown up by the wind, and they danced so thickly and so hard all around the Bear, that his eyes could not see through them to get the rabbit.

"This is queer!" growled the shaggy creature. "A moment ago I thought I saw Uncle Wiggily asleep on a log. But now all I see are dancing leaves—dancing leaves—dancing leaves! My eyes must be failing me!" And the Bear turned aside and went another way before the leaves had stopped dancing to hide Uncle Wiggily from him.

So the Bear did not get the rabbit, and when he was far enough off in the woods the leaves stopped dancing and the bunny awakened and went safely home.

BEDOUINS FIGHT OVER 200 KILLED

Two Sections of Syrian Tribe Quarrel Over Question of Loyalty.

LONDON, November 3. — United Press. — The Daily Express' Jerusalem's correspondent, reports that despatches from Damascus state 200 have been killed or wounded in clashes between two sections of the Rualla tribe, the most powerful of the Bedouins.

The fighting occurred in the neighborhood of Deran, close to the Palestine frontier, according to the report. It is feared that the feud may spread among other tribes, many of which already are on the warpath.

The conflict is reported to have started over the question of loyalty to heads of the well known Sciana tribe, after French intervention failed. Grave consequences are feared.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

"ONE MINUTE TO PLAY."

With a dramatic and brilliant story of college life, vivified by the striking personality and unparalleled football genius of Red Grange, Greater F.B.O.'s production of "One Minute to Play" sets a record for other campus pictures to shoot at in vain. The film, which opens its local showing at the Regent Theatre to-day, is not only as clever and delightful a romance as has been seen here in some time, but contains some marvelously vivid gridiron scenes which are sure to thrill every lover of the pigskin game.

Byron Morgan, who turned out most of the late Wallace Reids' famous racing stories, has written a well-balanced theme for the picture, with a strong dramatic climax. Grange, as a freshman with a great high-school football reputation, comes to college under paternal orders not to participate in the game. Induced to don moleskins through feelings of college loyalty he is surprised by his father on the eve of the "big game," and learns that if he plays, the older man will withdraw his offer of a badly-needed endowment to the institution. The ensuing decision forms the basis of as cleverly handled and thrilling a climax as has ever been shown on the screen.

Grange makes an outstanding success of the leading role, showing a surprising facility as an actor and possessing a fine "screen face" that photographs exceedingly well. Mary McAllister is a delightful heroine, and Ben Hendricks, Jr., Lincoln Steadman, Charles Ogle, Lee Shumway, Edythe Chapman and Jay Hunt play the supporting roles splendidly. George Wilson, former University of Washington star, leads the opposing team in the gridiron scenes, and adds much to the reality and convincingness of these sequences. The picture was directed by Sam Wood, who achieves new laurels in his superb handling of the story interest and the characterizations.

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 6

Are you getting the most out of your cards or are you making costly mistakes in bidding or play? That is a question that every auction bridge player should ask himself, and one to which he should try to give a conscientious answer. There are undoubtedly some players who either hold good cards or bad cards consistently, but the great majority of players hold average cards. For that reason, if you lose consistently, the chances are that your game needs improving. The cards break even in the long run, therefore your losses must be due to bad handling of good material. This point is well illustrated by the following hands:

Hand No. 1

Hearts — Q, J
Clubs — 9, 7, 3
Diamonds — A, Q, 8, 7, 4
Spades — 8, 4, 2

Y / A B / Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed, A and Y passed and B bid one heart. If Z passed, what should A bid?

A should undoubtedly bid two diamonds. The fact that his partner has made a fourth hand bid shows a very strong hand, but as A has only two hearts, there may not be a game in hearts. On the other hand, diamonds may be the only suit that B lacks, and a bid of that suit by A may enable B to bid two no-trump and go game. As a matter of fact, A-B can make either three hearts or three no-trump, so a diamond bid by A would be a big winner. Be on the lookout for such hands and don't pass your partner's bid of a suit if you have two or less, and a fairly good suit of your own. Bid your own suit and tell him what kind of hand you have. It is then up to him to decide what to do.

Hearts — 10, 7, 2
Clubs — 10, 8, 7, 5
Diamonds — J, 8, 4, 3
Spades — A, 6

Y / A B / Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one heart. A bid two clubs and Y bid two hearts. Should B bid three clubs or pass? B should pass. His hand is not strong enough to help his partner unless the latter is strong enough to rebid. If B should bid three clubs, he would give his partner a wrong picture of his hand and thus lead to trouble later on. Be careful not to make unsound raises.

Hand No. 3

Hearts — J, 8, 7, 4
Clubs — A, 10, 7
Diamonds — 7, 5
Spades — 8, 6, 5, 2

Y / A B / Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed. A bid one spade, Y doubled, and B passed. Z correctly bid two hearts. A bid two spades and Y and B passed. What should Z now do, bid three hearts or pass? Z should pass by all means. His hand is far too weak for a rebid, even if his partner should help the heart bid; but when the latter passes, Z certainly should pass. Don't let yourself be tempted to overbid unless you have some chance for your contract. You can't perform miracles with poor cards, and the sooner you realize this fact the sooner you will enter the list of winning players. When you get good cards, try to win as much as possible with them; but when you get poor cards, try to lose as little as possible. That is the secret of the successful player.

Problem No. 6

Hearts — A, K, Q, J
Clubs — A, 4
Diamonds — 9, 2
Spades — 10, 9, 8, 7, 6

Y / A B / Z

Hearts — 4
Clubs — J, 7, 6, 2
Diamonds — Q, J, 5, 4, 3
Spades — A, Q,

No score, first game. Z dealt and passed. A passed, Y bid one heart and B passed. Z now bid one no-trump, all passed and A opened the trey of hearts. How should Z play the hand so that he can score game against any defense? Solution in the next article.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary "Elaine" Sullivan, an orphan, is loved by Wally Mason, a young reporter. But she disbelieves in love. Her elder brother, David, is sent to prison for an auto fatality. The Charity Department takes Bobby, the younger. Mary, judged to have criminal influences, is sentenced to a reform school. She runs away to visit Bobby, who is ill. Arthur Graham, rich young man involved in David's conviction, takes her and Bobby to live with him; and proposes to her. She accepts him, and David's freedom is promised to her for an engagement gift.

CHAPTER XV

David was coming home! The tune welled in Mary's heart as the tears had welled in her eyes the night before. David was coming home! The utter felicity of it! The joy! David coming home to the little green house, with the Tomlinsons next door. David coming home to Mary and young Robert!

"And Patch, Mary," said young Robert earnestly. "I've missed Patch, Mary?"

"Have you, darlin'? And I've missed—various things."

"It'll be nice being home again, in our own house, Mary. You and me and David and Patch."

Oh, Robert! You will be home again, and David, and so will Patch, all but Mary, who has chosen to walk the high places with the silver tipped shoes that Arthur will buy! It will be lonesome atop the crags, Mary.

"Yes," whispered Mary, "it will be lonesome atop the crags—"

It was then that Robert spied Wally in the little green car that slid to a throbbing stop before the meticulously clipped hedge that bordered the long slope of lawn.

He swung her easily off her feet and made his way to the car.

"Well," said Robert, "well, if it isn't my friend Wally Mason!" and prepared to race to greet him.

"'Isn't,' Robert," corrected Mary, mechanically. But Robert was gone, a small speeding figure that catapulted itself upon a tall thin young man with nondescript hair. Even at this distance Mary could see that his hair was nondescript. None but hair careless of pride in itself would permit locks to hang dankly over a forehead until swept away with an impatience of gesture that spoke of repetition, and a knowledge of futility in repetition.

Robert was lifted high in the air, then settled behind the wheel, where he was completely lost but for the glare of his red head, and Wally was coming toward her, waving his hat in the air and running the last few steps.

He bent to kiss her, but was warded off by her hand on his chest.

"No?" he grinned. "Very well, then, no!" Then, crookedly, "Elaine, you gorgeous red-head you, you light of my life, where in blazes have you been hiding? Do you know—and knowing, do you care that I have scoured the highways and byways of New York, looking for the trail of flame that your hair left? Migonette, Migonette! Ah, for a trace of Migonette! But no brutal she-fiend of a landlady sent me off the trail with tock-and-bull stories—— Sweetheart, what is it?"

There was no mist in the eyes of Elaine, those green eyes that swam and eddied. They were filled with sudden realization that left them staring blankly ahead. She hadn't heard Wally's greeting, had felt nothing but a sudden reaching out of herself to include him, his voice, the merry eyes that sobered in quick sympathy with Elaine's. Quite suddenly this lack which she had felt, this absence of what she could not name, this feeling that though she was complete in the entity of her being there was yet a barrenness which had not flowered, all this had been wiped away by the mere feel of his voice and the knowledge that he was standing before her. She longed to touch him, to have him hold her tightly against him until her heart ceased its beat with the pressure.

She wanted Wally! The ache, the pain of incompleteness was swallowed up into the gaze of his eyes.

She knew then that she loved him.

What was love. What did it matter what it was! Service? For Wally it would be life's fulfillment. Passion? Oh yes, yes!

Walking on earth instead of the high places, having the drag of his love and the clutching hands of his children on her skirts, encumbered until the end of her days—what did it matter!

She wanted Wally!

Encumberances — think, Mary! Hands that will drag at your blitheness of spirit and throttle your independence—think, Mary!

What did it matter, what did it matter!

Was this love? This sudden pain that swelled in her being and ran out like fluid to the outposts of her body?

But the pain that clutched at her heart with the knowledge that she was engaged to Arthur was even more intense. She couldn't bear it—quite suddenly life had again become a drag, a chaos in which bright spurts of agony splintered one's spirit.

She struck her hands sharply together and would have run from him, had he not caught at her wrists.

"What's the matter with you, Mary?" he demanded. "Turn 'round here and look at me! Mary! Do you hear?"

"I hear, I hear, Wally, but my spirit is numb with the misery which I have arranged to fill my life."

Cocky Mary with the flirt of her hair where it swung against the swell of her cheeks, who long ago had declared to David that she would arrange her life as she would see fit? The irony of that!

Mary threw her head back and laughed. A weak little laugh that came from the curve of her lips, though her eyes were seas of misery. She had arranged her life as she saw fit, and what a mockery she had made of it! Being offered the magic gifts of the genii here, in the summer languor of Garden City, she had left for New York and her search of them. Mary making hash of her life. Who was it who shook his sides with laughter?

"Mary!" Wally suddenly grim. He shook her. "Will you tell me what's wrong or shall I pick you up and carry you off somewhere where I can talk to you without being gaped at by fool females?"

Mollie Sumner Graham had come upon them, her heavy bulk moving easily over the soft grass.

"Take me, Wally! Oh, Wally! Take me away with you! I love you, Wally. Do you hear? Do you hear your Elaine? I love you!"

"Take you?" Wally laughed. Grimly, as though daring to be asked again. He swung her easily off her feet and made his way to the car, where young Robert sat tooting the horn and talking to imaginary passengers in a still more nebulous back seat.

"Hop out, Robert." He seated Mary in the deep cushioned brown of the little green car, seated her with infinite gentleness, and to the satisfaction of Mollie Sumner Graham, wiped the tears from Mary's face with the tenderness of his lips.

"What's the matter with my sister Mary?" he demanded.

"There's nothing the matter with her, young Bob," exulted Wally, "there's nothing in the world the matter with her!" and Robert was left standing on the pavement watching the dust settle in the trail of the little green car.

Aeons afterward, when the heaviness of the midday sun had sunk beneath the horizon, leaving a smear of yellow and purple and the glory of gold rimming the masses of clouds, Mary spoke.

She would seek Arthur Graham out later, and explain. Arthur would understand why she had to follow her heart. Arthur was a brick.

Mary removed her lips from the wonder of Wally's, and listened dreamily to his whispered promises for the future. There would be gold for Mary to match the beauty of her hair and her silver-tipped slippers if she wished them—

"No," whispered Mary against his cheek. Somehow the peace of the twilight permitted of nothing but whispers from the fullness of hearts. "No, dear. I don't want the gold that will enatch the glory of my hair, nor the silver-tipped slippers. I want nothing but the glory of walking the earth with you. I want all of your love. That," said Mary softly, "that is what every girl should know."

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

SENIOR GAMES ON RUGBY CARD

Argos and Beachers Are Both at Home on Saturday.

VARSITY-McGILL CLASH.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—There are two senior football games carded for this town next Saturday afternoon, and both are deserving of plenty of support. Balmy Beach, the team that Toronto depends on, will be the host to Clarence Fickley and his bunch of Tiger Cubs at the Oakwood stadium. In the other set-to Argonauts and Montreal will meet at the Maple Leaf Stadium in a "Big Four" game that should cause plenty of excitement.

Both games should attract fair crowds, there are no other senior sporting events in the city, and the fans could do worse than take in either of the above tilts. The Beachers are called to win the Hamilton game with ease, and they are going out determined to tuck the victory away in the first fifteen minutes. However, the Tigers will have something to say about it. They have been working better since the Beachers downed them in Hamilton and they think that they can give them a better argument than either Camp Borden or Varsity.

Argonauts are anxious to atone for their defeat in Montreal and this week they are working hard getting in shape for the Winged Wheelers. Frank Knight will use a lot of his so-called subs in the battle, and chances are they will be in there battling from beginning to end.

Varsity Still Trying.

Last night Varsity went through their paces with a will, and they are going down to McGill with the idea of handing "Shag's" pets the severest setback that McGill has had in a long time. There is not a great deal of difference between the three intercollegiate clubs, and if the Blue and White step out and make the breaks for themselves they are liable to be heralded by the human "Boo-Hoo" and a brass band when they go through Kingston Junction on the way back to this fair burg.

All the Blue and White students came out of the Queen's game in real shape with the exception of Traynor, and he will be all right in a short while. Harrison, the lad who jumped into the star role, should go better than ever in Montreal. He is but a youngster, and he has a real future in football. His work in the McGill game will be watched with more than a passing interest.

McGill cannot fool with U. of T, and they had better plug up all their holes for Saturday. The game doesn't mean a thing to Varsity, but it means plenty to the Red and White. A defeat in Montreal and another in Kingston would cast a gloom over the Montreal seat of learning that would take a lot to disperse.

BOGARDIS SIGNS WITH STRATFORD

Player Here Last Year Enters Pro Ranks—To Play Centre.

STRATFORD, Nov. 3. — Babe Bogardis Peterboro senior and Ronnenburg of the Mitchell intermediates, will play for the Nationals this season. Roy Brothers signed both players on Tuesday and they will arrive in the city in time for the first work out.

Bogardis and Ronnenburg should prove acquisitions to the local pro. ranks. Bogardis played senior hockey for Peterboro the last two years, but had returned to Port Colborne, where he played for several seasons. He is a Barrie boy, 26 years old, weighs 150 pounds, has plenty of speed and experience and knows how to handle himself. He is equally at home at centre or right wing, but will likely start off at centre for the Nationals this year as Bill Touhey is going to be kept by the Montreal Maroons until the month suspension on Hooley Smith is lifted.

Ronnenburg was sought several times by the Canadiens of Montreal, but refused to sign. He is young and fast, being only 21 years of age, and weighs 165 pounds. He played two years in Junior O.H.A. series, and last year was in the intermediate O. H. A. series and a star in that class. He should make the grade in the pro ranks.

The signing of Bogardis and Ronnenburg increased the National roster to 13 players. For goal there are Norfolk and Dolson; defence, Hicks, Holway and Cain, and for the forforward line Horne, Hamel, Kelterborn, Bogardis, Reid, Quesnel, Griffin and Ronnenburg.

Roy Brothers has decided to stand pat on this bunch and pick his team from the list. If they fail to keep the colors of Stratford up in the race then he will receive more players from the Maroons.

CARE OF EMPLOYEES IS GOOD BUSINESS

Practice of Montreal Firm Commended By Head of Tariff Board.

(Special to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—While it does not come within the province of the Advisory Board on Tariff and Taxation to deal with working conditions in the manufacturing plants throughout the country, which members of the board have occasion to visit in connection with tariff investigations, the board takes notice of those conditions. At the hearing this week of the application for a reduction in the excise duty on cigarettes made by the Imperial Tobacco Company, the chairman of the board, W. H. Moore, took occasion to pay to that company a high tribute for the highly satisfactory working conditions in their plant at Montreal. Addressing Mr. D. C. Patterson, president of the company, who attended the meeting, Mr. Moore said:

"If I may do so, Mr. Patterson, I wish through you to pay your firm a compliment. After an inspection of your factory by the board, I think I can say, on behalf of my colleagues, that, in all the factories which we have gone through, we have never found better working conditions for the employees than we found in yours. The healthy appearance of your people was commendable; I think I am justified in making that statement. And particularly were we impressed with the provision you had made for free milk for them. I think it is our duty to pay you a compliment of this kind, and I only hope that we shall be able similarly to commend every other manufacturer who may appear before the board.

"I should like to have Mr. Jack tell us, if he will, something about the arrangements made in regard to the food supplied the employees. Am I right, Mr. Jack, in saying that you give to your girls, free, all the milk they can drink?"

At the lunch hour we provide a bowl of soup and a roll for 5 cents, which of course, does not by any means cover the cost and in addition we give them without charge all the milk, tea and sugar they want.

We also have a two-bed hospital with two qualified nurses all the time, as well as a doctor who may be consulted during certain hours in the morning and afternoon. He visits their homes when they are sick to find out whether they are getting proper attention. We have also a fine dining room and a dancing hall. The floor for the girls is 187 feet long by 60 feet wide, and we have a piano and a gramaphone, so that between twelve and one they spend a very good time. Of course, we look after the sanitary part of the arrangements. As a matter of fact, we have been visited by the convention of inspectors of industrial establishments of the province of Quebec, under the leadership of Mr. Gouin, whom we invited to see the conditions obtaining in our factories. We are not patting ourselves on the back, Mr. Chairman. We think it is good business to look after our employees. In this way we get satisfactory work from them and they are cheerful and happy. In proof of this I may cite the fact that, of the employees we had in our service in 1923, we still have 51 per cent; in 1924, 61 per cent; of the employees of 1525, we have now 71 per cent., and of 1926, 84 per cent, so that the labor turnover is very small, and we are trying to keep it down. I may add that we have with us at the present time employees who have been in the company as long as thirty-five years."

Toronto Carpenters and Contractors Hold Conference With Mayor. OUT FIVE WEEKS.

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—Peace overtures were again being made today by Mayor Thomas Foster, and prospects for settlement of the strike of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters appeared brighter tha nat any time time since the workmen laid down their tools five weeks ago. Following a lengthy conference last night between the Building Trades Council and representatives of the Contractors' Association, Mayor Foster today called the parties together again for a conference, pending which little was said by agents of the union involved and the contractors.

Rutland Becomes Isolated By Worst Flood Conditions on Record.

ROADS IMPASSABLE.

RUTLAND, Vermont, November 4.—(Canadian Press).—This city was isolated last night by the worst flood conditions on record here following a night and day of steady rainfall. Despite earlier reports that one of the reservoir dams had been carried out by the flood early last night, both the Patch dam, one mile north of Rutland, and the Chittenden dam, six miles above the city, still were holding. The southern section of the city was under water, however; rail and road communications were cut off; and light and power had been suspended.

The rain ,which began at 7.30 o'clock Wednesday night, continued last night unabated. It was feared that a continuance of the storm would cause one or both of the reservoir dams to burst, causing loss of life and widespread damage.

Dam Main Menace.

The Chittenden dam situated in the mountain six miles above Rutland, constituted the main menace last night. The dam holds the waters of a large artificial lake, one of the reservoirs of the Vermont Hydro-Electric Company, supplying one of the plants in the hydo-electric chain. Last night families living along the valley between Chittenden and this city were moving to higher ground.

The dam hich was reported collapsed yesterday was the Patch dam, a mile north of Rutland, supplying the power plant of the Rutland railway light and power company. While a great volume of water was pouring over the spillways, forcing the shut down of the power plant, the dam still held last night.

The force of the flood first became apparent in Water street in the southern part of the city, when the swollen waters of East Creek invaded the streets and houses. Firemen and police were mobilized to aid in the work of rescue and at six o'clock 15 families had been assisted to safety. Boats were used to navigate the watery streets.

Sewers Backed Up.

In other parts of the city sewers were backed up, causing further floods. In the Moon Brock section a number of residents floated away from their homes on hastily constructed rafts of furniture.

The closing down of the Rutland Railway Light and Power Company plant left the city last night in darkness and without electric power. The plant, officials said, would be unable to resume until the flood subsided.

Rail service on the Rutland and Delaware and Hudson lines, the two railroads serving the city, were suspended because of washouts at North Adams and Roxbury, south and east of here. The flooded condition of the roads made access to the city by automobile impossible in several directions.

Downpour Continues.

With water still pouring down from the mountains and inundating new portions of the city as rain showed no signs of ceasing last night, the local National Guard company was called out to aid the police, firemen and city officials in handling the flood situation. The state armory was placed at the disposal of the scores of refugees who had been triven from their homes.

Mayor Arthur W. Perkins took charge of the task of securing food and dry clothing for the homeless.

The inundated area is in the poorer residential section. The business district and streets where the larger houses are found not being affected.

Power company officials said last night that there would be no resumption of electricity for lights or power purposes until to-day at least, the main distributing station being under ten feet of water.

Two Drowned.

BARRE, Vt., Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—Two men were believed to be dead here last night as a result of flood waters from numerous streams swollen to unprecedented proportions from 24 hours of steady rain.

Ralph Winters and Gerald Brock were last known to have been at work in the basement of a downtown shoe store removing merchandise above the flood waters, when a wall of the building caved in from seepage. Rising water hampered the efforts to locate them in the wreckage.

Residents Marooned.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—Inhabitants of more than a score of homes in the lower part of this city were marooned by the flood which swept through here last night. The water at some homes

Township Loses Suit Against County

TORONTO, Ont., November 4 (Canadian Press). — Mr. Justice Logie to-day dismissed the action brought by East Whitby Township against the City of Oshawa and the County of Ontario for recovery of $2,390, the portion of the county's levy on this township for 1924.

The action arose from Oshawa's elevation to the city status in 1924. Costs are awarded the county, but not the City of Oshawa. The judgment had been halted by the death of Mr. Justice Lennox.

FLOODS CAUSE MANY DEATHS ALONG BORDER

Eighteen Lives Lost and Property Worth Millions Destroyed.

VILLAGE SWEPT AWAY.

Bursting of Reservoir Results in Ruin of 400 Houses—Traffic Tied Up.

BOSTON, Nov. 4. — Canadian Press.)—Rivers swollen by storms of unusual fury, burst their bounds in Northern and Western New England, Eastern Quebec, and parts of New York State to-day. A probable toll of at least twenty-one lives was exacted and property damage which will run into millions of dollars was caused. Hundreds were forced to flee from the courses of the turbulent streams, or the paths of destruction leading from the burst dams.

More than a million dollars damage and the loss of three lives was caused in one town alone, White River Junction, Vermont, due to the breaking of a dam on the White River.

Many Homeless.

Hundreds are already homeless, while new perils loom hourly. National Guards are keeping order, but martial law has not yet been proclaimed. Conditions at Ludlow, Newport, Bennington, Springfield, and Barre were scarcely better than at Rutland, and of the larger places in Vermont only Burlington seemed likely to escape serious damage.

Houses Swept Away.

A score of houses were swept aawy at North Adams when both branches of the Hoosac River ran riot. Dams, bridges, power plants, and other properties were hit in numerous places, and many towns and cities were under varying depths of water.

TRAINMAN KILLED.

QUEBEC, November 4 (Canadian Press). — P. Campden, a section foreman, is dead and several other railroad workers are more or less seriously injured as a result of the derailment of a Canadian National work train near Drummondville today following the wash-out of a bridge.

TRAFFIC HELD UP.

SHERBROOKE, Que., November 4 (Canadian Press). — Traffic throughout the Eastern townships both by road and rail was disrupted to-day through the same floods that are causing havoc in New England. Railway roadbeds and highways are washed out in many places and bridges swept away by roaring torrents, while manufacturing plants in several sections have been forced to shut down owing to flooding as a consequence of the continual heavy rainfall.

400 HOUSES GONE.

ALBANY, N.Y., November 4 (Canadian Press). — The destruction of the village of Becket, Mass., by the bursting of a reservoir is reported today. Four hundred houses were swept away, but only one woman was drowned, the villagers having been warned of the danger before the reservoir burst. They took to the hills. Hardly a house in the village was left standing.

KIWANIANS AND KIWANIQUEENS TAKE IN LINDSAY CLUB PLAY

Thirty Peterborough Members and Ladies Make Trip on "Hog Special."

"KEEP 'EM SMILING"

Special Feature is Singing Led by McCannan and Huffman.

'Keep 'em Smiling" was the title of the play presented by the Kiwanis of Lindsay last night, and it was the motto of the twenty-seven Peterborough Kiwanians and ladies who made the trip in a special coach on the C.N.R. to help out the Lindsay club. The party went up on the regular 5.15 and its coach was attached on the return trip at midnight to the rear of a freight train.

The play was the best amateur presentation the local Kiwanians had seen, and the leading role was excellently taken by a former soloist in St. Andrew's church, now Mrs. Peter Spratt. Next in the minds of the audience will probably linger the memory of Kathleen Baker as the loud-voiced, gum-chewing stenographer; the kind of stenographer in whose company no Kiwaniqueen would fear to have her husband spend his office hours.

The Peterborough party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. John A. McKone, Mr. and Mrs. T. Mark, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. W. Merrell, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Mc-

20 FAMILIES LOSE HOMES

APARTMENTS BURNED.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press.)— Twenty families were made homeless and damage amounting to $120,000 was caused when the McClive block, in the heart of the downtown district, was destroyed by fire early to-day. Most of the occupants of the flats escaped in night attire. The fire, starting in a pool room and barber shop in the basement, spread rapidly and only the outer walls are standing. Firemen from Niagara Falls, New York, assisted the local department in preventing the spread of the blaze. Many gallant rescues were made by firemen and policemen, many of the occupants having to be aroused and carried out of the buildings.

Of the 3,797 officers in the German army, 785 are of noble birth and most of them hold the highest commissions.

Lindbergh's Plane Too Small For Boy

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(United Press.) — There's one boy who high-hatted Colonel Charles Lindbergh. He is Charles A. Pennington, 7, of Belleville, N.J., and an especial comrade of Major William Brooks, who is conductor of the Gates' Flying Circus at Teterboro, N.J.

Brooks introduced young Pennington to Lindbergh, who asked him if he would like to go for a ride,

"Naw, your plane's too small," was the answer.

DEFENSE MAKES INSANITY PLEA IN NELSON TRIAL

Deliver Exemplication Showing Accused Had Been Confined in Institute.

WIFE ON STAND.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—The defence late yesterday played its trump card in a determined battle to save from the gallows Earle Nelson, alias Virgil Wilson, of Palo Alto, Calif., who stands charged with strangling to death Mrs. Emily Patterson, 27-year-old choir singer of Winnipeg. The crime was committed on June 10 last.

The case may reach the jury this evening, with the possibility of a verdict being delivered Saturday morning.

Shortly after the Crown had completed examination of the last of its forty-nine witnesses, James H. Stitt, senior defence counsel, delivered his double barrelled broadside—an exemplification from the superior court of San Francisco, showing that Nelson had at one time been confined to a mental institution in that State—and, the wife of the accused, who was summoned to the stand under the name of "Mrs. Mary Fuller."

The court room, crowded to overflowing, was tense with expectancy as the first move of the defence was awaited.

When Mr. Stitt called for Mrs Fuller, the spectators at first did not grasp the significance of the name. It was not until she revealed herself as the wife of the accused that a deadly hush fell upon the court. All eyes were rivetted upon the witness and thence to the prisoner in the dock.

Appeared Restless

For a fraction of minute, Nelson appeared restless; his hand reached for the back of his head, but he quickly regained his composure and settled back into the "hypnotic" pose which has been an outstanding characteristic of the man since his arraignment. He betrayed no outward sign of recognition and not once did he flinch as his wife re-

W. ASLING TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL

NOT YET RECOVERED.

While repairing a fence in his back yard yesterday morning at about 9.30 o'clock, Wellington Asling, shoe repair merchant at 379 George Street, fell unconscious to the ground. His unhappy plight was noticed by little Billy Lemon next door. Looking out of one of the rear windows and seeing that something was wrong with Mr. Asling, he directed the attention of his grandmother, Mrs. W. A. Nesbitt, to it.

Mrs. Nesbitt was fearful of breaking the news to Mrs. Asling, as she was not very well, so telephoned for assistance. D. S. Glass, with Fred Ward, his clerk, hurried no from the corner grocery, and, picking up the stricken man, carried him into the house. Medical aid was summoned at once For some time following, Mr. Asling was subject to frequent vomiting spells, and as he failed to regain consciousness, was transferred to Nicholls Hospital. Mr. Asling was still unconscious this afternoon, and no improvement is noted in his condition.

No apparent reason has been found for this sudden weakness on the part of Mr. Asling. He has been seemingly enjoying good health of late. About a year ago he was visited with a stroke, and since then has complained of a little pain in his right arm, but not sufficient to affect his work in any way. It is thought possible that this is a recurrence of the stroke.

LABOR OPPOSES SALE OF SHIPS

Will Move Resolution of Non-Confidence in Australian Government.

CANBERRA, Australia, November 4 (Canadian Press). — The Labor Party will move a resolution of nonconfidence in the Australian Government led by Premier Bruce, as a result of the Goverument's decision to sell the Commonwealth line of steamships.

RIGHT TO AMEND B.N.A. TAKEN UP AT CONFERENCE

Divergence of Opinion in Matter Seen at Provincial Gathering.

LAPOINTE'S PLAN.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 4 (Canadian Press). — The Interprovincial conference ran fifty minutes overtime at the first session to-day, not rising until 1.20 p.m. The British North America Act was under discussion throughout the sitting, but no definite decision in the matter was reached.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe submitted a scheme under which Canada would have the right to amend her own constitution, legislative authority being secured from Westminster giving Canada the right within certain limitations to amend the constitution. This was in line with the Canada status, said Lapointe. A divergent and clear-cut division of opinion developed, some of the representatives having no complaint with the present methods of obtaining mendments while others felt minority rights would be assisted under the proposed scheme. No definite decision was reached, and the conference took up "blue sky" and companies act legislation.

The suggested limitations are:

1—On ordinary questions, the constitutional amendment would have to be passed by a definite majority of both Houses of the Dominion Parliament and of the Provincial Legislatures.

2—In matters affecting racial minorities and similarly important questions, unanimity for constitutional amendment would have to be secured.

BENNETT GUEST AT BIG BANQUET

Five Hundred Citizens Of All Parties Meet at Calgary.

LEADER SPEAKS.

EDMONTON, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—Five hundred citizens of every political faith and creed gathered last night at a banquet tendered to the Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Conservative party of Canada. Mr. Bennett pointed out that the destiny of Canada was determined by every person over twenty-one years of age. He emphasized the responsibility of every citizen in the government of the country.

LINCOLN YOUTH IS PRIZE-WINNER

Champion Essay Writer of Ontario—Gets Silver Cup.

St. Catharines, November 4. — In the recent essay contest on the uses of nitrate soda in agriculture, Martin Taylor, R. R. No. 1, Smithville, was selected Provincial champion, and awarded a prize of $10. He was also proclaimed champion of Western Ontario, and awarded a $50 silver cup, and $5 as first prize winner for Lincoln county.

The local awards were as follows: Boys—1, Martin Taylor, R. R. No. 1, Smithville; 2 Claude Irwin, Niagara-on-the-Lake; 3, Louis Harrod, Queenston; 4, George Marlow, Vineland; 5, Ronald Lampman, Smithville. Girls—1, Madeline Coliver, Welland port; 2, Mary Brown, Niagara-on-the-Lake; 3, Ethel I. Moot, St. Ann's; 4, Della Senn, R. R. No. 2, Calstor Centre; 5, Mildred Swayze, Wellandport.

35 BODIES FOUND.

Feared Death Toll of Sydney Harbor Disaster Will Be 45.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—The number of bodies recovered from the wreckage of the ferry boat Greycliffe, crushed in a collision with the liner Tahiti yesterday reached thirty-five late this afternoon, and it was feared the death toll would be forty-five. Divers this afternoon, working at sixty feet, recovered the bodies of sixteen from the ferry boat, and said other bodies they had seen could not be recovered till to-morrow.

Obesity Is Illness Doctors Are Told

CHICAGO, November 4.—United Pres. — Mr. Pickwick was a sick man, and Santa Claus ought to be in bed, according to a theory of obesity advanced by the American College of Physical Theoraphy here.

"Obesity is just a condition of illness as other diseases," Dr. Maximillen Kern told the physicians of the College of Theoraphy.

"The sooner it is recognized as such by the profession the better it will be for humanity."

Dr. Kern warned against attempts to reduce by dieting or exercise.

Corpulence is caused by constitutional disturbance—not overeating he explained.

CITY TO CARRY OWN LIABILITY

Will Endeavor by Use of More Sand to Cut Down Number of Accidents.

BANQUET FOR TEAMS

The City of Peterborough will carry its own risk in future, at least the Legal and Reception Committee of the City Council will recommend that course to the Council at Tuesday's meeting.

Since October 2, when the Zurich Insurance Company, which carried the risk, cancelled the policy as being too costly, the city has had no protection. The underwriters quoted a new premium several times that paid the Zurich people and several companies would not touch it at that figure. Last night the committee decided that, with more money spent on sanding and a claims committee to investigate as soon as the accidents are reported, with authority to settle such as appeared justifiable, the city might be able to carry its own risk for much less than the amount quoted.

One insurance company offered to carry the risk for some thirty-three hundred dollars (the underwriters' figure is $5,200) if the city would pay the first hundred dollars on each claim, but this policy was not deemed acceptable.

City Solicitor Joseph Wearing explained the law on the matter to the aldermen present, pointing out the value of having some person from the City Engineer's department check up as soon as an accident is reported, so that data could be secured about the state of the sidewalk and how long before sand had been applied. The difficulty he foresaw was that there would be no check or inspection on the work and some spot missed would prove costly.

Ald. Ackerman mentioned as effective the system used in Belleville, where a box of sand is kept in each block and the citizens are required to keep the sidewalks cleared of snow and icy spots sanded in front of their own houses or places of business.

Ald. Denne complained that when icy spots are reported nothing is done Last year the Board of Works did not have enough money for sanding as it was a very slippery season and the work had to be left undone, but there were other complaints made, such as about holes in the sidewalks, which had not been attended to. He favored the citizens report slippery spots so that they could be corrected immediately.

The Mayor expressed his support of a policy of carrying the risk for one year, provided three times as much is spent on sanding the streets and the co-operation of the people is asked. He remarked that the money paid out comes out of the taxes and that those who get it have to help pay it.

Ald. Fife also favored adopting the system for 1928, stating that last winter had been a particularly bad one and that similar conditions might not occur again for years, and Ald. Ackerman recalled that some years ago he had inquired and found that for the past three years the claims paid had totalled less than $600.

The chairman, Ald. Macdonald, with City Clerk S. R. Armstrong and City Treasurer F. Adams, will comprise the claims committee for the balance of the year.

The chairman reported on the cost of the banquet to be tendered to the baseball teams which went a long way into the Ontario series, as he had been instructed, and Nov. 13 was set as the tentative date, arrangements being left in his hands.

There were present Ald. G. A. Macdonald (chairman), His Worship Mayor Holloway, and Aldermen N. E. Phelan, R. Denne, J. O. Fife, and C. H. Ackerman.

Only a rifle, sidearms and other necessary equipment will be carried by infantrymen in the Italian army in future wars. The pack is to be discarded.

TORONTO MAN CONFESSES TO PART IN CRIME

HEARING TO-DAY.

MARMORA, November 4. — Ewart Warren, a married man of Toronto, with local connections, was placed under arrest at 10 p.m., on Wednesday evening by Constable H. Gillen and N. Lavender, acting under instructions from the Belleville police headquarters.

Warren went to Salvation Army authorities on Monday, and confessed to being implicated in the molesting of the grave of Mrs. B. C. Hubbell, in Marmora Protestant Cemetery on October 25th. He was referred to Major J. A. McElhiney, of the Salvation Army in Toronto, who after testing the sincerity of his repeated confession, brought him to Marmora on Thursday evening, with a fellow officer, D. P. McGray.

Warren comes up for a hearing today at Marmora, after which he will go to Belleville.

Warren's confession was that he was paid ten dollars by two other men from Toronto to show them where the grave was. He claims that he was the go-between of the parties.

The Provincial Police have secured valuable information respecting the other two men mentioned, and they no doubt will be arrested in the near future.

The motive for the desecration of this grave is finally working itself out. It is alleged that Mrs. Hubbell's family wished to move the body after her death to Toronto, in which Mr. Hubbell would not concur. It is also believed that Mr. Hubbell placed his wife in the steel casket so that it would be almost impossible to move her.

BIG BILL WON'T GIVE ADDRESS

Declines Invitation To Visit Brantford—Refers To George Washington.

ATTACKS LIBRARY BOARD.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—Mayor Thompson of Chicago has declined an invitation tendered by the Young Men's Board of Trade to visit Brantford, saying also he regrets Canadian youth objects to his stopping the teaching that George Washington "is a rebel and a traitor," and hoping they will agree that when it comes to internal affairs it would be well for outsiders to attend to their own business.

President J. H. Johnston said today that the invitation had been extended in courtesy, and George Washington had not been mentioned in it.

Asks for Resignation

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—A pointed request to the Chicago library trustees to resign was made by Mayor Thompson today, pouring thirteen pages of type-witten rebuke on the heads of the trustees. He again charged them with sponsoring "pro-British propaganda" through reading courses.

"It is not to the texts of the library books that I take objection," he told the board members, "but to the teaching of certain texts." The reading courses constituted teaching, he contended. The Mayor characterized the board's reply to his first letter as "evasive and misleading and in several particulars in contradiction of the facts.

WARRANT OUT FOR SINCLAIR

NEW TRIAL JAN. 16.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil magnate, on a charge of conspiracy to influence the verdict of the jurors hearing the oil conspiracy charge against him, and Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior. Sinclair and Fall are awaiting a new trial on the latter charge. The date was fixed for January 16 today as a result of the finding of a mis-trial recently.

NEW REGIME IS PUSHING AHEAD

Seek Suppression of Piracy Along South Coast of China.

BIAS BAY LAIR.

SHANGHAI, November 4 (Canadian Press). — Suppression of piracy at Bias Bay, notorious lair of Chinese pirates, who long have defied every authority, is the first job that the new Cantonese Government has set for itself.

Foreign despatches from Canton yesterday stated that the Canton group of Nationalists which started a few days ago to establish a new Cantonese Government independent of all other Nationalist regimes is pushing its plans rapidly and is taking an active hand in Canton's administration.

As an indication of the group's intention of operating independently of its erstwhile colleagues at Nanking, it was announced that the 30,000 Cantonese soldiers now proceeding toward Hankow to aid the Nanking regime in throwing out General Tang Seng-Chi, will be called back to Canton.

The first job that the major portion of Canton's army will be called upon to undertake will be the suppression of piracy along the south China coasts centering on Bias Bay, the notorious and picturesque pirate centre against which the British authorities at Hong Kong have more than once sent punitive expeditions.

The latest Bias Bay incident was the capture of the Chinese steamer Irene on October 19 by a group of pirates, who were driven off by a British submarine. The Irene subsequently sank as a result of the submarine's fire.

Retarded Development.

The new Cantonese leaders feel that these piracies have long retarded the commercial development of the Canton territory and that therefore they must be stopped. Plans to garrison the shores of Bias Bay, which is just outside the British sphere at Hong Kong, have been announced.

Developments in the Yangtse Valley in the fighting between the Hankow and Nanking Governments are virtually unknown here, reports from the scene being most conflicting. The Nanking forces, however, are declared to be moving steadily on Hankow, where heavy concentrations of Hankow troops are in progress.

The Hankow forces are stated to be virtually leaderless and foreigners are in fear of a renewal of outbreaks and general lawlessness in the area.

DISPUTE OVER RUM AGREEMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4. — Efforts of the Federal prohibition officials to break up what they consider the chief source of smuggled liquor into the United States, threaten to collapse because of the deadlock in the negotiations between the United States and the French governments over a rum agreement affecting the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the Newfoundland coast.

These islands, prohibition authorities believe furnish the base for rum running operations that account for 80 per cent. of the foreign liquor that reaches this country. Smuggling activities from the islands they claim have increased greatly since the Washington authorities obtained an agreement with the British authorities in the Bahamas to furnish information on the departure of rum-laden ships for the United States ports. Through this agreement officials say operations in southern waters have been curtailed and it has shifted the principal smuggling activities to northern waters.

Seek Similar Agreement.

A similar agreement is sought with the French authorities, but conversations which have been in progress since July have made little headway, and now are reported to be on the verge of collapse. United States officials are clinging to the remaining slender thread in the hope of saving the negotiations from a complete crash but they have only small hopes of successful culmination.

Some residents of the islands who a short time ago eked out a meagre living in the north country, now are said to have reached a stage of affluence and prosperity which is attributed by officials to rum operations.

The French government is reported to have demurred on the United States request for reports on all ships putting out of the islands' ports for United States' waters laden with liquor, on the grounds that it would infringe on the rights of French nationals.

The United States government argues that both nations would be benefitted by the agreement by orderly navigation that would result from such reports as numerous fraudulent shipping papers have been found on board captured rum craft operating out of the French possessions.

Ruth Elder and Her Co-Pilot Honored By Members of American Club At Paris

PARIS, November 4 (Canadian Press). — Men of all ages, some young, some middle-aged, but most of them old enough to be grandfathers, lavished respectful and affectionate tribute upon Ruth Elder in her busiest day since she reached Paris.

Perhaps on the basis that men should stick together, George Haldeman, her co-pilot on their attempted trans-Atlantic flight, got the lion's share of applause when they lunched with the American Club and attended receptions in their honor at the Senate and City Hall, even though Miss Elder was more favored in the verbal bouquets.

The "Happy Midinette," who has taken the attitude that Paris is an Eden for shopping, was unable to continue her sartorial excursions yesterday, but she and Haldeman profited by springlike sunshine to take an hour's flight from LeBourget Flying Field. They sweeped low over the luxurious palaces at Versailles and Fontainbleau on their aerial sightseeing tour.

The girl flyer's programme carried her through such extremes as being uproariously elected a jolly good fellow by members and guests of the American Club and being saluted with extreme dignity by grey-bearded Senators as a harginger of world peace. In both places the aviatrix was overcome with mingled delight and embarrassment.

Among the Americans, in a room filled with tobacco smoke and tables laden with wines which she not only saw but tasted, Miss Elder was treated to old-fashioned "Hip, Hip, Hoorahs!" in addition to a flowing tribute from the club's president, Percy Peixette, whose prose was almost as flowery as the poetry he quoted.

SALVATION ARMY LAUNCH OFFENSIVE

LONDON, November 4 (Associated Press). — The greatest religious offensive ever launched by the Salvation Army—a salvation siege—was under way yesterday after a night of prayer by 100,000 Salvationists at 1,000 meetings through the country.

The campaign is to continue until November 24. Bold and spectacular methods will be used for "a concentrated and determined attack on the indifference of the great mass of the people to religion."

Opened by General Bramwell Booth on Wednesday night in the City Hall, Glasgow, the campaign is to be taken into public-houses and other gathering places in an effort to convert the whole of Britain within a month. The 71-year-old head of the Salvation Army spent 5½ hours on the platform on Wednesday night, praying and leading the singing of Salvation Army hymns. Mrs. Booth similarly conducted the largest of five meetings held here.

The offensive against religious indifference is being waged by an army of "red-hot gospellers," as they are described by the Salvationists themselves. It is announced that there will be days of mourning when Salvation Army battalions will parade in mourning and sackcloth for the sins of some particular city or town.

Bible Days.

There will be "Bible Days," when every Salvation soldier will be armed with Bibles and read them at street corners and in the gutters. There will be processions in which "gospel tanks and gospel armored cars" from which the Salvationists will "blast their messages." Five million letters have been sent out through the country telling of the siege, and Salvation Army leaders say that not a single letter asked for money.

"Sinners of all descriptions are in for a hot time the next few weeks," said Commissioner Hurrin, of the Salvation Army, who is generalissimo of the great war on sin. "The Salvation Army is very little troubled by controversies and dissensions regarding evolution and other such subjects. The Army still believes in hell, in the Divine inspiration of the Scriptures, the fall of man, the redeeming and the restoring work of Jesus Christ, the coming judgment, eternal damnation of the wicked and everlasting happiness of the righteous.

"Insisting as it does upon certain fundamentals upon which it does not permit argument either among officials or in its ranks, the Salvation Army stands clear of all controversies of a kind witnessed both within the church and without."

Quiet Day Is Spent In Chicago Book War

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press)—Two of the central figures in the assault upon King George of England and pro-British propaganda were out of Chicago yesterday and the day was one of rest in the verbal cannoneering of the America-First Legion.

Mayor William Hale Thompson and U. J. (Sport) Herrmann, library director, were elsewhere, and a projected battle between the British red coats and the defenders of proper recounting of the occurrences of the Revolutionary era was put over until November 17, when a court hearing of an injunction suit to restrain the Mayor and Commissioner from burning books was postponed.

The School Board trial of William McAndrew, suspended superintendent of schools, out of which grew Mayor Thompson's attack upon pro-British and anti-American propaganda was in its usual weekly eclipse after a one-day a week session Wednesday.

DATE NOT SET.

Not Definitely Known When Trial of Mrs. Callpo Will Commence.

QUEBEC, Quebec, November 4.—Canadian Press. — Exactly when the fourth trial of Mrs. Abraham Gallop charged with the murder of her husband at Ile Maligne, two years ago, will commence, has not yet been definitely settled, though December 12, is given as the probable date.

Season's Biggest Lunge Caught at Trent River

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 4.—James Cook caught the biggest fish of the season yesterday while trolling in Mud Lake in company with E. Parsons of Toronto. The fish weighed twenty-six pounds, was forty-four and a half inches long and twenty-one inches in girth. Live minnow bait was used and the two men caught two other nice lunge during the day.

had risen to the second storey and cut off all communications.

The city was without lights, the power system having failed late in the afternoon. Trolley cars were unable to move, and the street car bridge between Bennington and North Bennington was washed away.

The water was three feet deep in Main Street, and nearly as deep in most other streets. All highways to the north were impassable.

Hypnosis Used As Anaesthetic Agent

CHICAGO, Ills., November 4. Canadian Press. — Hypnosis employed in an operation upon a young woman at a Chicago hospital, has been used as an anaesthetic since 1843, the Journal of the American Medical Association said yesterday.

Thousands of instances of its usage since have been reported.

Not since 1899 has the use of hypnotism been reported in Chicago the Association fyles indicated.

Dr. Alfred P. Solomon, neurologist of St. Luke's Hospital, and Dr. Harold O. Jones, a member of the surgical staff, conducted the operation two days ago. It was for the removal of adhesions in the abdomen. The patient is recovering.

DEFENCE MAKES

counted a detailed story of his conduct and of the six months she lived with him.

Mrs. Fuller, dressed in a black street suit trimmed with white, a black hat and white gloves, appeared to be a woman well over 50 years of age. (The prisoner's age has been stated as about 30).

She related her strange narrative in a clear voice, racing along so fast, however, at times, that the court was frequently called upon to admonish her to "take her time."

Mrs. Fuller was led to the witness box by Mr. Stittt, who requested that the woman be allowed to remain seated while she gave her evidence. She took the stand shortly before 4 o'clock in the afternoon and was being subjected to cross examination by R. B. Graham, chief Crown counsel, when the Court adjourned at 5 o'clock.

There was a brief interruption when Nelson's counsel filed an order of commitment of the Superior Court of California, dated June 13, 1921. Mr. Stitt then proceeded with his examination.

The witness told of being married to the accused in San Francisco on August 3 or 4, 1918. She had married him, she said, under a deception, believing his name was Evan Fuller. Questioned by Mr. Stitt in regard to a court hearing in which her husband was connected, Mrs. Fuller said she gave evidence at the time and she recognized the man in the box as the one who was before the tribunal on that occasion as Earle Farrel. She thought the court appearance was in 1921 and it was in San Francisco Superior Court.

Asked what happened to her husband in that case, witness said he was accused of assaulting a girl—at this point Mr. Graham objected.

Committed to Hospital.

Mr. Stitt asked witness what happened to accused, and she replied that he was admitted to the state hospital for the insane, on June 13, 1921, she thought.

Asked if she had come to the court in San Francisco and obtained an exemplification regarding her husband as Eagle Farrell, she produced the document.

"This, my Lord," said Mr. Stitt "is identical with the copy which I put in; it is also under the seal of the court. (To witness) I show you the exhibit for identification." Counsel then proceeded to read to the jury the document, which began "Affidavit of insanity."

Prosecution counsel objected to admission of this document as evidence and asked leave to argue its admissability in the absence of the jury.

Mr. Justice Dysart set to-day as the date for hearing this argument.

Put in Straight Jacket.

Proceeding with his examination, Mr. Stitt drew from the witness the statement that before Nelson was taken to the state hospital he was in the city prison and jail, and it was necessary to strap him down and put him in a strait jacket. He was always seeing faces on the wall and looking into space. Nelson, she said, never laid hands on her but he was insanely jealous and acted queer, getting up in the middle of the night and going to look for work.

Sometime after their marriage she became very ill and went to the hospital. Nelson gave his blood in a transfusion operation and saved her life, she said.

Her husband had visited her regularly while she was in the hospital, and ofter he would sit for hours by her side when the regulations of the institution called for him to leave earlier.

He became angry when asked to leave and his jealousy of the attending physician was manifest on numerous occasions.

Forced to Work.

Eventually, Mrs. Fuller said, she was forced to find employment, as her husband was unable to provide for her. She had become attached to a denominational school at Palo Alto. She went there in charge of a kindergarten class and her husband had accompanied her to take a position as waiter. His jealousy had got the best of him on more than one occasion while at the school.

While bringing in the clothes one day she spoke to the watchman of the building.

"Evan rushed at me eyes black and fiery, and I was afraid of trouble. He said to the watchman "I do not want you to say anything to my wife."

She returned to her room, Mrs. Fuller told the court, and he (her husband) followed telling her she was not to speak to the man again.

A few months later, witness continued, Nelson fell from a tree and injured his head. Two or three days after, he had come to her with his head bandaged. She learned he had escaped from hospital.

Years ago, Mrs. Fuller said her husband had developed a mania for sudden change of his clothes. Sometimes he would appear in a sailor's suit, sometimes attired as a golfer, and again turn up in clothes more becoming a tramp.

OLD MASTERS

The chamois is the best to hunt:
He's fleeter than the wind,
And when the chamois is in front
The hunter is behind.
The Tyrolese make famous cheese
And hunt the chamois o'er the chazzums;
I'd choose the former, if you please,
For precipices give me spazzums.

The polar bear will make a rug
Almost as white as snow;
But if he gets you in his hug,
He rarely lets you go.
And polar ice looks very nice,
With all the colors of a prissum;
But, if you'll follow my advice,
Stay home and learn your catechissum

The visitors were entertained at dinner at the Benson Hotel, where Dr. White, president of the Lindsay Club, presided, and mutual felicitations were extended. Peterborough Club sponsored the Lindsay Club, and the association between the two has always been of the closest.

At the theatre, the Peterborough crowd lived up to its reputation for liveliness, with Herb. McCannan and Harry Huffman leading in singing popular songs as extras on the programme between acts. On the return journey there was a splendid hour of community singing, and Joe John added to the general enjoyment by contributing several recitations. One, that seemed to the ladies to knock married life, caused trouble when it was applauded by the bachelor President of the club, and he was compelled to tender a very humble apology to the ladies. Charles Saunders also recited, but played safe by omitting the last verse, which he feared might get him into similar difficulties.

The Lindsay Kiwanians and their ladies will visit Peterborough on the occasion of the Charter Anniversary on November 25.

Three Are Sentenced On Defraud Charges

QUEBEC, Quebec, Nov. 4. — Canadian Press. — Penitentiary terms were meted out by Mr. Justice Gissone, in the Court of King's Bench yesterday, to Napoleon Turner, Gustave Fleury and Rene de Rulle, all of Montreal, who were found guilty a fortnight ago on charges of conspiracy to defraud in connection with certain stock transactions in which a number of farmers living in this district were victimized. Turner and Fleury were each sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, while De Rulle was given a three year term

SHORT PEOPLE WIN IN DEBATE

Gain Decision at League Meeting at Petherick's Corners.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 4.—The regular League service on Thursday evening was in charge of the social convener, Miss Gladys Simpson, with Mrs. Minnie Petherick as leader. About forty-five were in attendance, with the Khaki and White groups tied on points for the night.

After the usual business and the devotional section, including Scripture read by the leader, the devotional talk by Rev. C. Daniel and prayer by Messrs. W. Petherick, and Mr. Forde, a talk on Current Events was given by L. Anderson, and the topic, "Sir Wilfrid Laurier" from a series on Canadian politicians, was given by Gladys Simpson. The final number on the programme was an impromptu debate, "Resolved that it is preferable to be short rather than tall." The affirmative was upheld by Earl Fairman and Gladys Petherick while Granville Meiklejohn and Evelyn Totton argued from the negative standpoint. The judges, Mrs. Fred Barnum and Mr. Thomas Fry, gave the decision in favour of the affirmative after a close and highly entertaining debate. Some of the points presented were highly original and provided much mirth for the listeners as well as showing thinking ability on the part of the debates.

The next League meeting is withdrawn owing to the fact that the choir need that night to practice in preparation for anniversary services at Zion on November 6th. The speaker for the day will be the Rev. J. S. J. Wilson, of Brighton.

Rev. Mr. Daniel announced the Bay of Quinte Young People's annual conference at Smith's Falls on Nov. 2 and 3. It is hoped that a delegation will attend from the local League.

The Seymour road gang have been at work in the vicinity and are assisted by a number of local farmers. The roads have been much improved and evidence of this is seen in the increased motor traffic. Motorists always find the good roads and then travel them often.

Marshall Millar, a young farmer, residing near here, suffered a painful accident last week, when in jumping from a load of corn he lost his balance and fell to the barn floor, spraining both ankles. He will be confined to the house for some time.

Several from this locality turned out to be of whatever assistance they could, when fire destroyed the barns of Mr. H. Gibson, near Allan's Mills on Friday night. Two horses, as well as the complete farm crop, were consumed in the flames. Mr. Gibson's house was burned a year ago.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Burnbrae Congregation.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 4.—With the spacious auditorium of St. Andrew's church packed to the doors at both 11 a.m. and 7.30 in the evening, the anniversary services of the Burnbrae congregation were most successful.

The Rev. Mr. Marshall, of Madoc, was the speaker for the day and delivered two excellent sermons. His morning address was on the topic "Thanksgiving from 2 Corinthians, 4:15—"For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the Thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God." Returning thanks for benefits received, was not a mark of selfishness, said Mr. Marshall. He compared the world's attitude to Napoleon and Wilberforce, the former taking all he could from life and returning nothing, yet monuments were built in his honour; the latter giving his all unselfishly to the glory of God and betterment of his fellow men and he was practically forgotten. As Napoleon, many people take all the advantages of life, returning no thanks to those who suffered that they might have these privileges.

If the world would adopt the Psalmist's view of thanksgiving there would be no need of a League of Nations. The speaker enumerated many of the things we should be thankful for, but most of all for the Master and His love to mankind.

The evening topic was "The Unharmed Cross" from Galatians 6:14, "God forbid that I should glory save in the Cross."

The Cross was the centre of the Christian religion, and every life should radiate from it, every life should draw its power from that Cross.

Mr. Marshall cited instances during the Great War where the emblems of the Cross were left untouched by shot or shell. So, through the troubles of all time down to the present, the Cross of Christ stands imperishable, no matter what else disappears.

The great treat of the anniversary occasion was the singing provided by The Radio Four, a male quartette from Belleville. They are Messrs. Moorman, Thompson, Stillman and Dr. Haffner. Professor Riggs acted as accompanist and took charge of the piano for both services. Three numbers were provided at each service; two quartettes and a solo by Dr. Haffner in the morning and two quartettes and a duet, Mr. Moorman and Dr. Haffner in the evening.

After the close of the evening service the Radio Four put on a short recital consisting of solos by Dr. Haffner and Mr. Stillman, a trio, Messrs. Moorman, Stillman and Dr. Haffner and four quartette selections. This was greatly enjoyed by the audience, all of whom stayed to the finish.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie, minister of St. Andrew's, who took charge of the Madoc services for the day arrived home in time for the recital and expressed in a few words his appreciation of the assistance rendered by the musicians.

From a financial standpoint the results were most gratifying, over $965.00 being placed on the plates.

NORWOOD UNITED CHURCH

NORWOOD, Nov. 3.—On Sunday, special services were held in the United church to mark the eighty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the local church, which was the former Methodist.

Rev. Dr. Haddow, of Toronto, editor of the Church Record and Missionary Review, was the preacher for the occasion. In the morning Dr. Haddow took as subject "Christian Duty," using for his text St. John 17:17-18. His subject in the evening was "Christian Privilege" based on the text 1 Corinthians 3:22-23.

The special music under the leadership of Prof. J. Edwards, added much to both services, which were attended by large congregations. The church was beautifully decorated about the altar with harvest fruits and flowers.

On Monday evening the ladies of the church held a very successful fowl supper, which was followed by a program. The receipts of the evening amounted to $275.

ST ANDREW'S, OMEMEE.

OMEMEE, Nov. 4.—Anniversary services were observed in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on Sunday last. The Rev. Mr. Riddell of Millbrook had charge of the services and was listened to with pleasure in his splendid delivery. In the morning Mr. Riddell took his text from Psalm 72-8: "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from river to river unto the ends of the earth." The choir rendered two special selections, "Onward Christian", with parts taken by Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. E. H. Mitchell of Lindsay and Mr. S. J. Mackey, and "Praise the Lord of Life, Ye People", by the entire choir.

A full house greeted the speaker on Sunday evening, who spoke on the subject of "Sacrifice", taking his text from Hebrews 9:26, and all were delighted with his discourse. Special number by the choir included "Awakening Chorus" and "Shine Forth."

UNITED LADIES' AID CANVASS SUCCEEDS

Ladies' Get Large Sums by Collection in Lieu of Fowl Supper.

HASTINGS, Nov. 3.—The Regular monthly meeting of the United Church Ladies' Aid was held in the church parlor on Thursday afternoon, October 27th. The meeting opened with a hymn, followed by prayer offered by Mrs. B. F. Doxsee. The roll was then called to which twenty-four members responded. There were four visitors present.

The Minutes of their September meeting were read and adopted. The treasurer, Mrs. M. Baker then gave her report which showed a previous balance of $172.42. The collectors, who had been appointed to canvass for funds instead of having a fowl supper then gave their report. Their report showed collections amounting to $247.00 The proceeds from the play recently put on amounted to $50.90, which made a total of $297.90.

The Corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. Johnston gave her report. She read a letter of appreciation from Mrs. Edwards for kindness shown during sickness and death of Mrs. Carter. Sent letters of sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. F. Runnels and family and Mrs. E. Sherwin. A letter was read from Mrs. Beauvis, asking that her resignation as president be accepted.

Moved by Mrs. William Warner, seconded by Mrs. J. Johnston that Mrs. Beavis's resignation be accepted. Moved by Mrs. J. Johnston, seconded by Mrs. H. Oliver that Mrs. H. Orr be president for the ensuing year. Carried.

The following bills were presented, and on motion of Mrs. Wm. Warner, seconded by Mrs. B. F. Doxsee, ordered to be paid.

Mr. L. E. Keeley 74c; Mr. M. Baker, $6.00.

Moved by Mrs. D. E. Scriver, seconded by Mrs. N. McDonald, that the Ladies' Aid pay the insurance on parsonage, $7.65, the insurance on pipe organ, $14.00; and the taxes, $48.00

Mrs. J. M. Baker presented the Ladies' Aid with a large tea-pot. Mrs. W. Wave asked for a hearty vote of thanks to be accorded Mrs. Baker.

Moved by Mrs. John Oliver, seconded by Mrs. John Fairman that they cease holding bazaars and have social evenings in preference. Moved by Mrs. H. Orr, seconded by Mrs. N. Mcdonald, that the Aid buy a new stove for the parsonage.

A committee was nominated to purchase the stove; those in the committee were: Rev. Mrs. Hie, Mrs. H. Orr, Mrs. J. H. Hess, Mrs. E. Wilcox and Mrs. W. J. Warner.

The following program was then given:

A Reading—"The Knocker," Mrs. William Walker.

Duett—Mrs. L. E. Kelley and Mrs. D. E. Scriver.

The collection was then taken up. A hymn was then sung, after which the program was brought to a close with the benediction by Mrs. D. E. Scriver. Lunch was then served.

BOX SOCIAL.

Held Under the Auspices of Harmony L.O.B.A.

MARMORA, Nov. 3.—Though not favoured with a good attendance through several counter-attractions, the Box Social held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hart on Friday evening, under auspices of Harmony L.O.B.A. was one of the most enjoyable of its kind ever held locally. In addition to square and round dancing for which Mr. J. Casselman played, the Highland fling and sword dance was performed by Miss Sarah Hart, who was joined by her sister, Nan, in Dutch dancing.

PETERBOROUGH'S EXHIBITION.

The financial success of this year's Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which registered record receipts of close to $33,000 and had an operating surplus of some $7,000, should be gratifying not only to the directors but to the people of the city and district generally.

The Exhibition, with the grounds leased for another ten years on most generous terms, thanks to the public-spiritedness of Mr. Harold Morrow, finds itself in splendid shape to expand and prosper.

Substantial improvements to the plant were completed this year, and it is safe to say that other changes will have been effected by next September, so that when the gates are thrown open for the 1928 Peterborough Industrial the thousands of patrons of the big fair will be once more impressed with the fact that the local Exhibition does not believe in standing still.

This year's success was probably the most outstanding in the history of Peterborough's Exhibition, and the satisfaction of the Directors will be shared by the whole district.

THE SALE OF POPPIES.

When it is realized that the proceeds from the sale of poppies by the Canadian Legion here tomorrow are to be devoted entirely to relief work among needy veterans and their families aside from what the Legion itself has to pay for the artificial flowers made by disabled soldiers, the available stock of poppies should be quickly exhausted.

The poppy is to be worn in memory of the unreturning brave.

It should not only be worn by the individual citizen, but business firms, churches and other organizations should honour the memory of Canada's heroic dead by displaying wreaths of poppies.

The base of the cenotaph should on Sunday be covered with similar tokens of remembrance, from friends who recall the dear ones who gave their all, that the cause for which Canada fought should be triumphant.

Peterborough's demand for poppies tomorrow should leave no doubt that this city still gratefully remembers her sons who died for Canada.

WARFARE ON THE SPEEDERS.

Chief of Police Newhall, in declaring warfare upon motorists who drive too fast over street intersections, can rest assured that the bulk of public opinion will be behind him in his effort to effect safer driving conditions here.

The through street plan has been a valuable contribution to safer streets, eliminating one very fruitful cause of accidents, but the very fact that cars entering such streets are compelled to stop has created a tendency on the part of motorists on through streets to drive too fast, particularly at intersections.

The legal speed at such points is but ten miles an hour, a regulation that seems to be completely overlooked by many drivers.

The fact that this week several motorists have been fined in the local Police Court for speeding at intersections should serve to remind the driving public that there is such a law, and that the local Police Department is determined, in the interest of the public, to enforce it.

The stop signs are being well obeyed; sane driving on through streets will combine with this condition to make motoring on Peterborough's streets a pleasure instead of a continual worry as it is to many motorists at present.

THE TOURIST TRAFFIC.

Ontario secured the lion's share of the United States tourist traffic this year, according to a Federal report, which shows that out of the 16,000,000 American tourists who entered Canada up to the end of September no fewer than 8,500,000 came to Ontario.

That works out to an average of nearly three tourists for every resident of Ontario, and is an increase of 30 per cent. over the figures of last year.

In 1926 the amount spent by tourists in Ontario was estimated at $45,000,000.

Opinions may differ as to whether or not the introduction of the Government sale of liquor was responsible for the increase in the number of tourists coming to this Province, but there is not the slightest doubt that the amount spent here will be greatly swollen because of the Government liquor stores.

Visitors from over the border may not have been attracted here by the opportunity to purchase liquor and beer, but it is a matter of common observation that they took advantage of that opportunity in a manner that will make the total spent by tourists here this year attain unprecedented proportions.

A CHICAGO VIEW.

In a letter to the Board of Trustees of the Chicago Public Library Mayor Thompson offered as evidence of pro-British, un-American propaganda in that institution a brochure circulated by the American Library Association. Its title is "Reading with a Purpose." It was prepared by a professor of history in Princeton University.

Among the books the reading of which this circular recommends are Dean Inge's "England" and some new histories. The so-called Gloomy Dean of St. Paul's neither loves nor admires the United States, but neither does he love France or Germany. He even criticizes the policies of Canada, Great Britain's premier Dominion. He also bitterly assails British statesmanship of the present day and the leaders of the British trade union movement.

Dean Inge is a scholar and a philosopher, and more than once men like H. G. Wells and George Bernard Shaw have taken up his challenges and defended modern ideas against his rigorous individualism. Americans of intelligence cannot afford to ignore Dean Inge, but in reading his strictures against themselves they are not in the least likely to develop pro-British sentiments or to lose their affection for what is best in American civilization. The ignorant or the gullible would not be attracted by his style or the substance of his writings.

Mayor Thompson complains also in his letter of the alleged un-Americanism of a Princeton University professor who ventures to ask Americans of intelligence and broad interests to consider what the attitude of the United States should be toward the League of Nations, the World Court, the problem of war debts and other notable developments of their own time. What objection, however, is there to such a suggestion? Is it unpatriotic and un-American to discuss the questions mentioned? Is it treason to advocate adherence to the World Court or the League of Nations? If so, since when, and why? Was President Wilson a traitor? Are the American statesmen and thinkers who favored and still favor full or partial co-operation with the league disloyal? Those questions answer themselves.

The Chicago Public Library and the American Library Association are to be commended, not assailed, for urging reading with a purpose, reading critical and stimulating works written by well-informed and influential men, whether or not they, incidentally make unjust and unfounded charges against American policies, past or present. Either Mr. Thompson has been receiving bad and reactionary advice from persons with prejudiced, poisoned minds who see red and suspect plots and treachery everywhere or—and this is more likely—he is a deluded tool of anti-American propagandists who wish to make patriotism appear ridiculous for concealed purposes of their own.

The United States is mature enough and robust enough to stand a good deal of criticism, sound or unsound. Patriotism is not synonymous with ignorance or willful blindness.—Chicago Daily News.

FIVE MONTHS OF THE NEW LIQUOR LAW.

The Ontario Liquor Control law has now been in operation for five months, time enough to afford a fairly adequate test of its efficiency and of the public's reaction to it. As far as can be judged, it has been a reasonable success. It may not have justified all the pre-election rhetoric and sanguine hopes of some who sponsored it; no law ever does. But while bootleggers are still with us (though surely in diminished numbers) and while law infractions and a measure of insobriety continue, the verdict of the average impartial observer appears to be that Government sale and control is working as well as could be sensibly expected.

Here in Ottawa, certainly, no one can truthfully assert that the Act has not been a success. The predictions that the opening of liquor shops would increase drunkenness and other misdemeanors, that they would make this city, and others, a sort of open bar for American tourists, and so forth, have all been falsified. During the past summer Ottawa had more tourists from across the line than ever before in its history, but we don't think there was noticeable insobriety, and we doubt whether there was any great drinking. As a matter of fact—and this would seem to be fairly conclusive—the Police Department's record of arrests for drunkenness show a steady decline.

The same story comes from other points in the Province. True, there have been more convictions of persons for driving motor cars while drunk, but for this, we think, there is a satisfactory explanation. It is that under the O.T.A. there was a notorious laxity in enforcing the law, while today, under a most rigid system of enforcement, practically every arrest is followed by conviction and punishment. In no part of the Province now is there much of mercy for the man caught driving a car while intoxicated.

At all events, the public appears to have concluded that the new law is a fair success. And that this embraces a great number who were and are still strong prohibitionists would appear to be borne out by events in the county of Prince Edward. The elevation of Mr. W. H. Raney to the Supreme Court made it necessary to have a by-election in that riding. The Conservative candidate has been chosen; he is Mr. Horace S. Colliver, who was defeated by Mr. Raney in the last election. The constituency is normally Liberal and prohibitionist in sentiment. Despite this, the remarkable situation in Prince Edward is that neither the Liberals nor the prohibitionists have been able, either separately or together, to secure a candidate to oppose Mr. Colliver. The Liberals met and decided to leave the field to the prohibitionists, pledging them the support of the Liberal party. A few days later, however, the prohibitionists, after due deliberation, resolved not to nominate a candidate—not, they explained, because their faith in prohibition had waned, but because they could not see that anything could be gained by making a fight at this time. The result is that a Government supporter, who is, of course, a supporter of the Liquor Control Act also, has received an acclamation in the riding that last year elected prohibition's chief champion.

This, of course, is not proof that the Liquor Control law is now acceptable to everybody. But it is fairly strong evidence that the new law must be working fairly successfully, and that, as a consequence, there is no strong public reaction against it.—Ottawa Journal.

CATTLE GRAIN, AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—With a holiday on Monday there was a general desire to clean up the market at the Union Stock Yards this week, and Wednesday's weigh up of cattle was 1,573 head. Yesterday's receipts were 12 cattle, 2 calves, 163 hogs, and 129 sheep and lambs. Half a dozen good medium butchers sold this morning at $7.50 a cwt., and the balance of the sales, comprising cows and one bull, about closed out the offerings. Two good cows brought $6.35 a cwt. Medium cows were $4.50 to $4.75, and canners, $2.75 a cwt.

Half a dozen sheep sold from 4 to 6 cents a lb. The lambs for sale will be taken at the week's average of 11 cents a lb.

The packers all reduced their hog bids yesterday to $8.50 a cwt. selects f.o.b. and yesterday's loadings will only be taken at that price.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., November 4 (Canadian Press). — The foreign trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was of a very disappointing character. This to some extent was attributed to the fact that the pool, according to cable advices, were offering all grades of Manitoba wheat two to four cents per bushel under cost, and that business was done from Vancouver at 9d to 1s per quarter below Montreal.

The only business of importance accomplished in the local grain market was the sale of a few cars of Canadian Western No. 1 feed oats, ex-track, Fort William for December shipment. There was no change in spot prices.

Owing to the advance in prices for contract grades of wheat at Winnipeg, a firmer feeling prevailed in the local market for spring wheat grades of flour, but there was no change in prices. The local and foreign demand was fair. The trade in winter wheat flour was steady and prices were unchanged.

The millfeed market was fairly active and prices for all lines were well maintained. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fair and values ruled steady.

The export trade in baled hay was a little more active and sales were made to Southampton, London, Leith and Avonmouth.

The local inquiry was moderate and the undertone was firm.

The undertone to the egg market was firm with a moderate amount of business passing. The receipts were 686 cases.

The demand for potatoes was only moderate, and the feeling was again easy. Car lots of Prince Edward Island white potatoes were sold at $1.30 per bag of ninety pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.30 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.25 per bag in bulk, and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

The market for imported beans was without any new feature to note, prices being steady under a fair demand. Sales of car lots of choice white hand-picked were made at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, ex-track, while the smaller quantities sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

The butter market was moderately active and the undertone was firm. The receipts were 218 packages.

The local and export trade in cheese, but values were unchanged, cheese was again of a limited char- The receipts were $3,949 boxes.

STIRLING STUDENTS HAVE JOLLY PARTY

Celebrate Hallowe'en in Proper Style—Stirling News.

STIRLING, Nov. 4.—The students of the high school held their annual Hallowe'en dance last Friday night. The assembly room was prettily decorated and the young people had a very enjoyable time.

The extensive sale by Mr. Morden Bird of his household effects, brought a record crowd to town on Saturday last. Mr. Wallace was the auctioneer. The afternoon proved too short for the sale to be completed, so it will go on again next Saturday. Some rare and valuable walnut furniture still remains to be disposed of.

Mr. Duncan, who has charge of the Foxboro, Roslin and Melrose Presbyterian churches, had charge of the services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church here last Sunday morning, and St. Andrew's, West Huntingdon, in the afternoon. The services in these churches were withheld in the evening on account of anniversary services at Burnbrae Presbyterian church and St. Paul's United church here.

Hallowe'en Concert.

The Women's Institute held their annual Hallowe'en concert on Monday night in the old town hall. The building was packed to the doors and a great many were turned away. Mr. Thomas Montgomery, reeve of the village, had charge of the program. In his opening remarks the chairman lauded the Institute for what they had done in the past, having given $100 to the newly organized band, and promised to raise $200 yearly for five years towards the new hall, and they were ever ready to boost anything for the good of the community.

The first item was a chorus by a a number of children, followed by a reading by Mrs. Elmer Sandercock, selection by the band, club swinging by eight girls of the high school, duet by two little tots, Madeline and Betty Marshall, humorous oration by Arthur Duncan, "Kinky Kids" parade by ten children, band selection, chorus, "Side by Side", by fourteen high school pupils, folk dance by eight girls, community singing led by Mr. Gerald Clute.

A play entitled "The Departed One" caused no end of amusement. Those taking part were: Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Burkitt, Miss Thelma Green, Messrs. Harper Rollins, F. Jeffrey and E. Sandercock. Mrs. Halpenny was pianist for the evening. Those in the drills were trained by Miss Moyer and Miss Mulligan of the High school teaching staff.

Lunches were sold by the ladies at the conclusion of the program and a goodly number remained to enjoy the dance. The receipts were a little over $122.

Three representatives of the Provincial Board of Health were making a house to house survey of the village last week, examining wells, garbage, sewerage, and outhouse conditions. This was brought about by the local M.O.H., Dr. J. M. C. Potts.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

Annual Masquerade Held in Parish Hall, Apsley Great Winners.

APSLEY, Nov. 3.—The capacity of the Parish Hall was taxed to its utmost on Friday night, on the occasion of the annual Hallowe'en Masquerade, which was the most successful ever held here, the costumes being above the average. The judges had a hard task in deciding the prize-winners. Miss Violet Bolton of Douro, as a gipsy was awarded the prize for the best ladies' costume, and her brother, Ernest, as a cowboy, took the gent's prize. Both costumes were designed and made by Mrs. E. T. Shewen. The judges were Mrs. Clarence Campbell, Mrs. Montgomery and Mr. M. Duffus, of Peterborough. The music for the dance was supplied by Messrs. J. Coones and M. Duffus and Mrs. W. Lean and Miss P. Spence. The hall was elaborately decorated with appropriate Hallowe'en symbols and settings, the work of Mrs. Spence; while a number of ladies supplied refreshments. The following took part in the Grand March: Miss Down, Lakefield, witch; Mrs. D. Coones, Lakefield, pierette; Miss Bolton, gipsy; Mrs. E. T. Shewen, folly; Miss Ruth Johnston, clown; Miss Gladys Tanner, Red Riding Hood; Miss Rooks, juvenile; Miss Gillespie, Red Riding Hood; Miss K. Martyn, Peterborough, country girl; Miss Spence, Italian lady; Miss Phyllis Spence, Spanish lady; Miss Helen Lean, Irish colleen; Miss Maggie Whitmore, Miss Hazel Wilson, Miss Vera Nesbitt, old-fashioned ladies; Miss Lulu Knox and Miss Barry, Gold Dust Twins; Miss Gorman, witch; Mr. Webster, Peterborough, French habitant; Mr. Gregor, Douro, devil; Mr. E. Bolton, cowboy; Mr. W. Reynolds, Spanish toreador. The proceeds amounted to $33.

Mrs. Kilborn is spending a month with Mrs. J. Kilborn at Colebrook and Brockville.

Mrs. Stanley Windsor has returned from a week's visiting with friends at Lindsay.

Mrs. Dean is spending a week with Mrs. Strain at Peterborough.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

Program By Young People's Union of St. Paul's Church, Warkworth.

WARKWORTH, Nov. 3. — The Young People's Union of St. Paul's Church held a Hallowe'en program in the church basement on Monday evening. The program was in charge of Mrs. Morley Smith.

The meeting opened by singing hymn No. 6, followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. The Scripture lesson from Mark 4th chapter was read by Mrs. M. E. Smith.

Hymn No. 427, after which the president, Mrs. Elgin Edgar conducted the business. Mr. Orval Kelly, who was a delegate to the Young People's Union, held at Camborne, explained fully how the Cobourg Presbytery was divided into four districts.

Mrs. W. W. Jones, Miss Ruby O'Neil, Mrs. M. E. Smith and Miss Verna Thompson were appointed as a committee to secure song book and song sheets for the Union.

Mrs. A. M. Smale had charge of the next number, which was an interesting ghost story.

Instrumental solo—Witches Flight, played by Miss Ina Bowen was thoroughly enjoyed.

A contest conducted by Mrs. W. Anderson and one by Miss Ina Bowen were very interesting.

Masters Owen and Ronald Hawkey in a humorous way sang two darkie songs which created much applause from the audience. Lunch was then served, consisting of cider, hot dogs and pumpkin pie.

DINNERS BY AIRPLANE.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 4.—When W. H. Moffatt, millionaire cattleman of Nevada, celebrated the opening of his hunting lodge near Reno, he served 60 guests with a dinner that had been prepared a few hours before in San Francisco. Marius la Faille, chef of the Hotel St. Francis, prepared the courses, which were taken to Reno by airplane in special, electrically heated containers.

LEGION PLANS SHORT SERVICE

Lakefield Veterans and School Children to Observe Armistice Day.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 4.—The local branch of the Canadian Legion and the Ladies' Auxiliary are planning a celebration of Armistice Day on November 11th with a short service, parade of veterans, women of the silver cross and the school children and culminating in the two-minute silence in honor of those who served and gave their lives "For God, for king and country."

Last year the lack of celebration of any kind seemed like a retrograde movement of the village. Let it never be said that Canada forgets to honor those who served and as years that are to come sees the little company of veterans diminishing (for it is one organization which does not grow) the duty of arranging the celebration will devolve more and more on the civilian population. Therefore it is more than fitting that the school children should be included in the celebration and given their object lesson of what national service means, for even where the last post has sounded for the last veteran even then the sacrifice should be remembered.

Dies While Daughter Held For Poisoning

TONBRIDGE, Kent, November 3. — Canadian Press. — Two days after her daughter had been accused of administering poison to her with the intention of ending her sufferings, from an incurable disease, Mrs. Margaret Watts died to-day. Her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Delvigne, is awaiting trial. The case has aroused intense interest because of the recent acquittal of a father who killed his child to end his sufferings.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 4 (Canadian Press). — With reports at hand telling of ocean charters for 36,000,000 bushels of wheat from Vancouver, November-January shipment wheat values were hardened yesterday. Early declines were more than overcome. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ¼c to ⅝c net higher; corn ¼c to ⅝c up; oats showing ¼c to ⅝c advance; and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15 cents.

At first the wheat market here was bearishly affected in connection with talk current that before the close of lake navigation a large amount of domestic spring wheat is likely to come to Chicago and that liberal stocks accumulated here will remain all winter. These predictions were based on chances that Canada will supply foreign buyers with low-priced wheat, and that the Argentine crop will begin to move about January 1.

Announcement that two cargoes of Duluth spring wheat had been sold yesterday for shipment to Chicago tended further to handicap friends of higher prices here, and so likewise did selling of 250,000 bushels of wheat to be put into store in Chicago. An additional bearish factor was an estimate that domestic winter wheat acreage is 11 per cent. larger than last year.

Nevertheless, resistance to selling pressure developed, and with Winnipeg prices showing upturns the market here finished at about the day's top level.

Corn moved up with wheat. Country offerings of old corn were quite small. Oats displayed independent strength as a result of excellent cash demand, with receipts light.

Provisions were responsive to an upward trend in the hog market.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Que., November 4 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as:

Demand—$4.86¼.
Cables—$4.86⅝.

AIR AMBULANCE.

FRIEDRICHSHAVEN, Germany, Nov. 4.—The German air service has just completed the first commercial air ambulance. It is a seven-passenger high-speed plane, the interior of which is enameled to facilitate disinfection.

Gas, billiousness, heartburn, dyspepsia, and similar ills will not trouble you if you take Seigel's Syrup. At any drug store.

GRINDS CAMERA AS BIG BEAR CHARGES.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 4.—Vacationing in the mountains of Alberta, Canada, Senator Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor member of Congress, was out with his movie camera one day when he came upon two grizzly bear cubs. He was taking their picture when the mother came along and charged him from a distance of 100 yards. The senator was cornered without a gun, so there was nothing to do but keep on grinding. The old bear must have been camera-shy, for she stopped 30 yards away and fled. So did the senator.

M'ARTHUR LIBEL SUIT IS SETTLED

Trouble Arising From Election Campaign Not Taken To Court.

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—It is stated here today that the $25,000 libel suit which was started by Fred J. McArthur against W. S. Robertson, of Colborne, arising out of the circulation of certain election literature to the voters of Northumberland, had been settled out of court. The terms of the settlement have not been made public.

FORMER CROWN OFFICER CALLED

C. A. Urquhart, at One Time Crown Attorney, Summoned to Windsor.

FOR THOMPSON HEARING.

WINDSOR, Ont., November 4.—Canadian Press. — George A. Urquhart, former crown attorney of Essex County, will be brought from Toronto to give evidence before the Windsor Police Commision enquiry now investigating the charges against Dan Thompson, the suspended chief of police. Urquhart will be subpoenaed by the prosecution to tell what he knows of the circumstances surrounding the release from custody in 1924 of William Hope, alias Frank Tarbeaux, alias "The Count."

Joseph Bower, a former detective of the Windsor police force stated on the witness stand yesterday morning; under cross-examination by J. H. Robb, K.C., counsel for Chief Thompson, his belief "that money changed hands" to secure "The Count's" release.

Bower arrested the Count twice in 1924 he stated on charges of conspiracy to swindle Attila di Pompei a Cleveland merchant out of $61,000 on a fake racing game. Following the first arrest, Bower stated "The Count" was arraigned in the police court on a charge of being in possession of a gambling equipment, fined $25 and released. When he complained to Chief Thompson, Bower said, that he had a "clear case against the Count," on the $61,000 swindle, the chief replied:

"I am handling this case, and I am running this police department. You and the Crown Attorney are not going over my head."

Mr. Urquhart was Crown Attorney at that time. His resignation followed a short time later.

Among the 900 pupils in one school in Dundee, Scotland, are fourteen pairs of twins, eighteen boys and ten girls.

JURY INVESTIGATION SPREADING RAPIDLY

Grand Jury Has Not Yet Heard Members of Discharged Jury.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—The ramifications of the grand jury investigations into charges of tampering with the jury in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial spread today with increasing rapidity. Court officials deferred until tomorrow, sending the dismissed members of the jury before the grand jurors, but the prosecution conferred with eleven of the jurors for more than an hour.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

BONARLAW, November 3. — The Hallowe'en party held at the school house on the 12th Line was a great success. The school was very prettily decorated for the occasion with jack o' lanterns in every window. The costumes were, as usual, very funny. It was quite a task for the judges to decide as to the placing of the honor, and finally Helen McInroy was the lucky one receiving first prize for the best costume.

The apple eating contest was very interesting, and it was between Billy Burkitt and James Redcliffe. However, Billy finished his apple first in the contest guessing noses. Mabel Burkitt won first prize on the girls' side and Billy Burkitt first prize on the boys' side.

Diving for apples was also exciting. Reggie Burkitt came first in that contest. The fortune-teller was quite busy. Then came the side show, where you could enjoy seeing yourself in a mirror for the nominal fee of one cent. Mr. Orrie Andrews sang a few songs, which were heartily enjoyed by all. Candy was served by the children. The guests departed about eleven o'clock, having enjoyed a real old-fashioned Hallowe'en party.

A.Y.P.A. SUNDAY HELD AT OMEMEE

Young People Hold Services at Christ Church On Sunday.

INSTRUCTIVE SERMON.

OMEMEE, Nov. 4.—Sunday, October 30, was A.Y.P.A. Sunday at Christ church, Omemee. The members of the Association sat in a body in the church, the seats they occupied being decorated with white and blue flowers, which colors are those of the Association. The lessons were read by one of the members and the Rev. A. T. Weir preached a sermon especially for the young people. He spoke on taking the opportunity to be of service to God before it is too late, and speaking of the concern that is often given to minor matters while those of a more serious nature suffer neglect.

Hallowe'en Eve.

Hallowed Eve was duly observed at the meeting of the A.Y.P.A. on Monday evening. It was a literary evening and readings of a ghostly nature featured among the program. During the evening two doors were thrown open, and there appeared a Hallowe'en witch with her broom, fire, and kettle. In conjunction with the program was a showed given to Mr. and Mrs. Heasman which added to the interest of the evening.

Another item of interest was the appearance of the Branch magazine which was started at the beginning of the season. It is a collection of A.Y.P.A. news and jokes and will be published monthly.

6-POUND BEAN.

CHAPMAN, Kans., Nov. 4.—A butter bean so large that a third of it made a full meal for two people was raised on the garden of Mrs. Mitchell Davis here. Mrs. Davis and her mother dined on the bean, which was 24 inches long and weighed six pounds.

GIRLS' AUXILIARY IS RE-ORGANIZED

Mrs. Creighton Superintendent of St. John's Branch, Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD NEWS.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 1.—The W.A. of St. John's Church entertained the 'teen age girls of the church on Friday evening in the Sunday school, and as a result the Girl's Branch of the Auxiliary was re-organized with Mrs. W. J. Creighton as honorary president and superintendent.

The other officers are:

President—Miss Alice Dench.
Secretary—Miss May Dever.
Treasurer—Miss Lilian Stuart.
Dorcas Secretary—Miss Ione Sanderson.

The girls enjoyed the evening very much, entering into the games with enthusiasm. Refreshments were served by the W.A.

Badminton Club.

The meeting held by the Badminton Club on Wednesday evening last in the Memorial Hall was largely attended and very encouraging to those who interested in the popular pastime. The club is for any or all the young people in the vicinity and the membership list is not closed; it is essentially a game for young people and should be as popular in Lakefield as it is elsewhere. It is expected that it will be a great asset to the life of the community as a promoter of good times. It was stressed at the meeting that it was inclusive in membership and not exclusive.

These officers were elected:

President—Mrs. L. H. Grahame.
Vice-President—Mr. J. A. Creasor.
Secretary-treasurer—Mr. V. C. Hamilton.

Executive committee—Mrs. Elmsley and Messrs. H. Kidd, R. W. Little and E. M. Grier.

Ladies' committee—Miss Curtis, Mrs. K. A. MacKenzie, Mrs. Leonard and Mrs. E. M. Grier.

Correction.

In the accounts given of the arrest and trial of Roydon Rowe and George Kinghorn, they were repeatedly referred to as Lakefield youths. That is not the case, Rowe lived in the village for a few years only and left the village four or five years ago when a youngster, and as far as known, Kinghorn, who is English, made his first visit on the quest which ended in the police court.

Elected to Office.

Miss Helen Burgess was elected Convenor of the Christian Fellowship committee of the Young People's Society of Peterborough Presbytery which convened last week in Havelock. Miss Burgess is a member of the Y.P.S. of Knox United Church, Lakefield.

The Grove Rugby team spent the week end in Toronto, playing U.C.C. on Saturday. This is an annual excursion which is very much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Yale entertained the members of Knox Church choir at their home on Chippewa Ave., on Thursday evening last, when a delightful time was spent.

Hunting Parties Away.

This week sees the hunters off to their favorite camps and as usual wives, mothers and sisters have been mending, packing and baking for days in anticipation of the outing. To many men "the hunt" means the only holiday of the year and the most careful preparations are made. Messrs. John Blewett and Braden Blewett of Lakefield and William Blewett of Peterborough are hunting at Burleigh Falls.

Dr. Gibson and Messrs. H. and C. Wannamaker are hunting at Pakesley with a Toronto party consisting of Messrs. G. Ridpath, H. Newberry, V. Parker, D. W. Edwards and H. Kidd. Mr. S. W. Sutton of Colbourne is also in the party.

The Payne party are off to their hunting grounds at Pakesley, the party consists of Messrs. N. Payne, P. Spence, J. H. Payne, H. G. FitzGerald, R. H. Little and A. Darling, of Lakefield; Ralph and C. Payne, of Point Anne and E. R. Hamblin and Rufus Payne of Dummer; Martin Thurston of Lindsay, and Walter Nugent of Peterborough.

LEAGUE RE-ORGANIZED.

Officers Elected For Young People's League at Dunsford.

DUNSFORD, Nov. 4.—The People's League was re-organized here on Tuesday evening. The prospects are bright for a successful term. The league will meet every Monday evening at 8.00 p.m. The four vice-presidents will act as captains of the groups White, Gold, Blue and Red.

Following are the officers elected:

Honorary President—Rev. J. F. Everson.
President—Miss Georgie Richardson.
First Vice—Mrs. J. F. Everson.
Second Vive—Miss Norma Humphrey.
Third Vice—Delmer Thurston.
Fourth Vice — Mrs. Millbourn Thurston.
Secretary—Miss Evelyn Thurston.
Missionary Treasurer — Carmen Thurston.
Local Treasurer—Neil Thurston.

BOY FOUND DEAD.

Discovered Lying On Bank of River While Horsemen Scoured Moors.

IVY BRIDGE, Eng., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press).—While two hundred horsemen were scouring the desolate forbidding wastes of Dartmoor for him today, eight-year-old Willie Thompson, who has been lost since Tuesday, lay dead on the river bank near a lake close to his home. The body was found yesterday afternoon after a two-day search.

The boy is supposed to have been drowned attempting to cross the river in an effort to escape from the terrors of the great moorlands which are among the most fearsome spots in Europe.

MRS. GRAYSON HAS NEW PLAN

May Soon Go To Europe To Perfect Scheme, She Says.

STILL SEEKING PILOT.

NEW YORK, November 4 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Frances Grayson, who is casting about for a pilot to guide the amphibian monoplane Dawn in its fourth start for Copenhagen, promised yesterday to reveal soon an international "air scheme", which she said, may take her to Europe by ship soon to pefect. It is believed scheme is four-continet flight similar to that carried out by Commander De Pinedo, Italian aviator. She holds tenaciously to her determination to cross the Atlantic in the Dawn.

FOREIGN ELEMENT BACKBONE OF WEST

Western Ontario Member Opposes Quota Law For Canada.

GALT, Ont., Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Suggestion of the application of the quota system to immigration into Canada was opposed by Charles H. Bowman, former member of the Ontario Legislature for North Bruce, speaking here last night. He asserted that in trips through the west he had found the foreign element were the backbone of that country and no finer type of Canadian was being raised at present than the children of these foreigners.

The speediest bacteria can travel only about four inches in 15 minutes.

MAGICIAN VISITS CAMPBELLFORD

Marjah Heads Bill at the Regent For End of Week.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 4.—The Regent Theatre is again giving the public more than the value of its money. In the line of movies, a two-reel comedy and the Warner Bros. reproduction, "Footloose Widows," starring Jacqueline Logan and Louise Fazenda, are the main attractions, but the head-liner of the bill is Marjah, the crystal gazer, mind reader, and mystery man in general. To him the past appears to be as clear and distinct as an open book with large print, while the future is as clear as the crystal which he employs.

It is claimed for the great magician that he is able to walk away from his own shadow. Having witnessed some of his supernatural powers at work, it is believed possible that he can really do it. At any rate he has promised to demonstrate before closing his run here. Naturally there is a certain element of doubt, but past performances lend authenticity to the magician's claims. In December, 1920, a coal barge and crew was lost on Lake Ontario. Asked about the mystery, Marjah said that the barge had been sunk near "The Ducks," but that the crew was safe. Willing and anxious to follow any clue, the authorities found that the magician had spoken the truth, and the crew were saved. Referring to a copy of The Evening Examiner of December 13, 1920, will show where Marjah was engaged for a second week at the Grand Theatre in that city when he had located the missing steamer-barge. Belleville, Kingston, and many cities in the United States report similar engagements.

Nor are his activities confined to the stage only. Marjah has written several books on the art of magic. Advanced Magic, The Magician's New Field, Trickery Tricks, and several others are the work of the master mind and his pen. Practical Telepathy is just off the press and The New Era of Magic is still in the hands of the publishers, well on the way to completion. It will be a book of some two hundred and seventy pages and will be sold to professional magicians only.

And yet Marjah, off stage, is not an impossible person. He has a very charming personality and is quite human. He has toured Canada for many years, and has taken a strong liking to the Dominion. So much so, in fact, that he has purchased a home on the St. Lawrence in the town of Cornwall. Asked for some of his past experiences on the stage, he said he was the first man to bring a jazz band to this country. He claims as a present attraction that only two other actors on the stage to-day are able to do the shadow trick. It is the very latest, he says, and has not yet been really introduced.

Generally, the theatre-goers of the town consider themselves extremely fortunate in being given the opportunity of seeing the Marjah. Those who do not avail themselves of it will undoubtedly regret their negligence. Campbellford is not frequently the stopping place of such well-known stage folk.

MONKEY BUSINESS.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Travellers who called at the booking office of the Southern Railway's high level station at the Crystal Palace here on a recent day could get a ticket to anywhere for any old price they wished to pay. It wasn't bargain day, but "Babs", a two-year-old monkey, escaping its cage on the depot platform, took full charge of the ticket booth.

Gas Lamps and Lanterns

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—Wheat opened easy yesterday and there was little activity until the last hour when prices advanced fractionally above the previous close. Final quotations were from 1¼c to ⅝c higher, Nov. at $1.29⅞, Dec. $1.26⅝, and May $1.31¼.

Offerings continue very light, with export sales disappointing. Canadian weather is all clear again and temperatures higher over the Prairies Threshing continues apace. Grading of grain coming forward is quite satisfactory, contract grades steadily outnumbering the toughs.

Demand in cash wheat was mostly for grades difficult to procure. Cash coarse grains were inactive.

LEGION PLANS FOR POPPY DAY

Campbellford Branch To Ask Girl Giudes To Help in Work.

SMOKER ARMISTICE DAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 4.—The regular meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Legion was held in their club rooms in the Armouries last night. There was a good attendance and the meeting was one of the most successful in the history of the branch. The Visiting Committee has apparently been active, and reports that Comrade Davis is making good progress towards complete recovery.

The sale of poppies was discussed, and it was decided to ask the girl guides to assist the Legion. It is the intention to hold a tag day on Saturday, November 5. Arrangements were also completed for a smoker to be held on the night of November 11 (Armistice Day). All ex-service men will be invited. Further announcement will appear later. Arrangements for a sacred concert are also under way, and this will also be advertised at a later date.

The next meeting will be Thursday, November 10. As this is the eleventh hour before the decoration day, all ex-service men are asked to keep the date open. The Legion seems to be going strong now. Any ex-soldier who is not listed as a member is most certainly not in the saim.

WOULD WELCOME ANY COMMUNICANT

Bishop of Manchester Makes Important Utterance To Synod.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(Canadian Press Cable)—An important utterance on the subject of the sacrament was delivered by the Bishop of Manchester, Rt. Rev. William Temple, before the Diocesan Conference yesterday. He said: "Just becauhe we do claim to represent the true order of church government, we should be ready to welcome to the communion as a normal practice any communicants of recognized christian bodies, provided that if it become normal practice with them they should become members of the church and subject to discipline.

"If we really think about it we must conclude that not only a free church minister but any layman who should devoutly decided that it was right for him to celebrate holy communion would effect a real consecration and through it realy gift would be given.

Bishop Temple added that the former Bishop of Oxford, Charles Gore, believed in the effectiveness of nonconformist celebrations.

GIRLS HOLD SALE OF HOME COOKING

T. O. G. Club Successful in First Effort—Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, November 4. — The T.O.G. Club of the Lakefield Baptist Church held a successful sale of home cooking and fancy articles in the Little White Shop on Saturday afternoon. Afternoon tea was served daintily by the young ladies, who were pleased at the gratifying result of their initial effort in raising money. Mrs. (Rev.) Spencer was in charge, and among those assisting were Mrs. W. Johnson, Miss Shields, Misses Ruby Nicholls, Grace Yonge, Edith Nicholls, and Gladys Bolton.

The anniversary services of the Regent Street United Church will be held on Sunday next, with Rev. F. H. Howard, of Millbrook, as the special preacher. On Thanksgiving Day there will be the usual dinner served in the basement from 5 to 8, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid, of which Mrs. A. Darling is the president. There will be a concert in the auditorium of the church in the evening with several talented artists from Peterborough, assisted by local talent, providing the entertainment.

Messrs. W. W. Leonard and W. Murduff left this week for the Parry Sound district, where they will hunt. Mr. J. C. Ridpath of Toronto and Mr. W Burgoyne of St. Catharines will join them, and it is expected that Messrs. E. H. Northey and E. J Millage will go for the last week.

The past week has seen nearly all the leaves off the trees, and the raking and burning thereof give the householder plenty of work for the od dspare moment. This fall, owing to the fine dry weather, the leaves burned quickly and were easily disposed of.

Miss Mina Young enertained the pupils of the Pinegrove School at her home on Saturday night, and a delightful time was spent in Hallowe'en games and contests.

CONVENTION REPORT READ AT MEETING

WARKWORTH, November 4. — About fifty members of the Percy Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs Lorne Hutchinson on Wednesday afternoon, November 2. The president, Mrs. Harry Kelly, presided. The business took up a large share of the time. After some discussion it was decided to have the vault completed as soon as possible. A committee, Mrs. J. H. Black, Mrs. James McCracken, Mrs. Charles Osborne, and Mrs. William Barringer, was appointed to investigate a case of sickness in the village and to offer assistance. It was arranged to have a little cheer in the way of fruit and flowers sent to Mrs. Wesley Morgan and to Mrs. Alfred Ingalls at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.

The most interesting feature of the afternoon was the report of the Belleville Convention, given by Mrs. William Herriott and Mrs. David Massey. The reports were given in a pleasing manner and covered everything fully.

The programme was in charge of Mrs. Martin Peterson, which consisted of a contest — guessing the number of kernels on a cob of popcorn. Mrs. Leigh Isaac was awarded the prize, the number being 310.

Music by three young girls, Amy Meneilly, Lucille Palmateer, and Edith Brenton, was thoroughly enjoyed. Following the National Anthem, a dainty lunch was served.

FOUR CASES HEARD IN DIVISION COURT

HAVELOCK November 4. — His Honor Judge Huycke presided at the November sittings of the Fifth Division Court of the County of Peterboro, held in the town hall on Thursday afternoon when the following cases came up for hearing:

J. A. C. Allen vs. Joseph Dunn, claim for an account of $18.40 for traps which the defendant purchased last spring. Defendant was ordered by the court to pay two dollars a month for four months, beginning December 1st and the balance of the claim to be paid by April 1st. His Honor adjourned the case until the April court with a warning to Mr. Dunn of the judgment he would pronounce should the claim not be settled by then

R. M. Clapper vs. Douglas Wright, claim for $75 for damages to buggy and equipment caused by alleged negligence of the defendant. Case adjourned to the next court.

Mrs. S. Wright garnisheed the money received from chattels sold at Herbert Hoard's sale on October 20, which had been previously seized under lease and the sale allowed to go on. Mrs. Wright's claim was for $85.50 for a note signed by H. Hoard and William McQuigge covering the purchase of two cows by Hoard.

According to evidence after the seizure for rent and taxes, other claims against the stock and property sold were a chattel mortgage held by Mrs. S. T. Wilson two cows owned by F. J. Squire and Mrs. Wright's note. The question for the court to decide was who had a right to the money, and the case was adjourned to allow W. F. Huycke, counsel for the mortgagee, and F. D. Kerr, K. C., counsel for Mrs. Wright, to jointly write the auctioneer who conducted the sale in order to prove certain evidence and also to lock up the registration of the chattel mortgage held by Mrs. Wilson.

I.O.D.E. CHAPTER ELECTS OFFICERS

Bemersyde Chapter of Campbellford Holds Annual Meeting.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 4. — The Bemersyde Chapter, I.O.D.E. met in the council rooms, public library building, last night for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. For the various offices there was considerable competition and the election required an unusually long session. The honorary offices were given to Miss Helen Campbell and Mrs. William Ashton. These are the offices of honorary regent and vice regent respectively. Eleanor Ferris will be regent for the coming year, with Evelyn Irwin and Elsie Smith as first and second vice regents; Freda Nelson will be the secretary for the chapter, with Irene Davidson as treasurer. Lulu Gay was elected standard bearer.

The activities of the Bemersyde chapter have been of the greatest interest to the townsfolk generally. In past year, they have been responsible for a large percentage of the more important social activities of the town as well as their very efficient work along the lines of their special duties as members of the I.O.D.E.

MOST RAIL ACCIDENTS.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—British railroads, usually showing the smallest accident report of any large country, suffered the worst period in their history last year. There were 291 persons killed and 3893 persons injured during the year, according to the report of the Minister of Transport

LADIES' GUIDE HOLD SUPPER

Social Gathering Held at Madoc on Saturday Great Success.

MADOC NEWS

MADOC, Nov. 4.—The Ladies' Guild of the Church of St. John the Baptist, Madoc, gave a very successful New England supper in their rooms on Saturday evening, Oct. 29th.

The tables and rooms were prettily decorated with the Hallowe'en colors, yellow and black, and the black dresses and yellow caps and aprons worn by the young girl waiters were very effective.

The menu included New England baked beans, scalloped potatoes, pickles, jellies, pumpkin pie and doughnuts, and the supper was much appreciated by all who were privileged to share it.

The proceeds of the supper amounted to about fifty-two dollars.

Halloween.

Hallowe'en was fittingly celebrated by our small boys, with lots of noise, much fun and laughter, but very little real mischief was attempted. Several 'gangs' dressed up and were treated to candies, apples and nuts by the citizens and a few of the merchants.

The Hallowe'en dance given by the bowling club at the Armouries was the chief centre of interest. A good crowd was in attendance and the music was excellent.

Hallowe'en Party.

The Young People's Society of Trinity United Church held a very pleasant Hallowe'en party on Tuesday evening in the church parlors. The social vice-president, Miss Norma Fair had charge. The rooms were decorated with streamers, flowers and bitter-sweet. Games, contests and fun was the order of the evening. The "eats" were sandwiches, pumpkin pie and coffee and all enjoyed the good time.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. James Magee and children of Omemee were guests of Mrs. Magee's parents in the village on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fee and children were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Handley on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubell Gardiner and children motored to Baily Duff on Sunday and spent the day with friends there.

Mrs. Wesley Casey and two children of Orange Corners spent a few days with her parents in the village.

Rev. John Riddell of Millbrook was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lowe, Sunday at noon.

Mr. Robert Henderson spent the week-end with friends in Bobcaygeon.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Handley and children motored from Oshawa on Sunday, and spent the day with Mr. Handley's parents, Mrs. and Mrs. William Handley.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lowe, Misses Helen McLean and Dorothy Morden, Messrs Stanley, George, Roy and Harry Tully, Eric McLean Aubrey Bland, Donald and Douglas Hayes, Norman Faulkner were among those from here, who attended anniversary services in the Presbyterian Church in Omemee on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shield of Peterborough were guests at the home of their daughter, Mrs. James Fee, on Saturday.

Mr. Wilbert Murney, Cavan, was in the village on business on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ruth spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. John Handley.

Rev. John Riddell of Millbrook spent Sunday evening the guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Morden in the village.

LADY INJURED

Mrs. N. Ruttan Knocked Down By Car on Norwood Street.

NORWOOD, Nov. 4.—On Saturday evening Mrs. N. Ruttan of this village was struck by an automobile. The driver of the car did not notice Mrs. Ruttan cross in front of him in time to avoid the accident. Dr. N. F. Sutton was immediately called to attend the injured lady, who was suffering from several broken ribs, a dislocated knee-cap, and a bad shaking up.

By Francis W. Rowse.

At the corner of Rideau and Dalhousie streets, in the capital city of Ottawa, stands a modest three-storey building whose windows look out to the minarets of the Chateau Laurier and Victory Tower on Parliament Hill, beyond.

It is not an imposing structure, as Ottawa buildings go, and its main purpose is evident from the array of shirts and other wearing apparel in the ground-floor display windows.

But the two upper floors of that building house the nerve centre of one of the world's most famous organizations—the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Just over half a century ago a handful of men was organized to cope with Indian tribal warfare on the international border in the western prairies. Today the name of that handful—and a real handful they proved—is known wherever the English language is spoken, and beyond.

In the kindergarten it is a magic word; in the sents of the mighty it is synonymous with honor and faithful devotion to duty; and to the enemies of society it has become a by-word which spells fear and holy respect. Not only Canadians, but people of many lands, now in the prime of life, heard that name at their mother's knee. The "Mounted" have been raised in legend and story to the same pedestal as that occupied by Britain's "Scotland Yard," and the French "Foreign Legion."

Probably it is no exaggeration to state that more has been written about Canada's famous force than about any body of men in modern times—not even excepting the British Navy. It matters not that the title of the force has been changed from Northwest Mounted Police to Royal Northwest Mounted Police, and, more recently, to Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

It is still the same assembly of "mounties"—no matter how much its members may object to that term. Variously referred to as "Riders of the Plains," "The Sentinels of the North," "Mounted Law," etc., the Mounted Police have become glittering knights on fiery steeds, riding, in the hearts and minds of an otherwise blase people, to the eternal duel with the grim spectre of reality.

So much for the popular conception of the R.C.M.P., although, in a way, it is no misplaced idealism. But what about the true composition, work and responsibility of the force? It has never been revealed in its true proportions.

If a cross-section of the R.C.M.P. as it really is, with its multitudinous branches and operations, its tremendous field of labor, and its record of things accomplished, was held up for public examination, Canada, with other nations, would stand amazed!

Mount the stairs at the Rideau Street entrance to Headquarters, and peep behind the scenes: look over the rows on rows of files in Central Registry and talk with the men who do things—and wonder whether there is anything else left to do in this Dominion; whether any task, however humble and obscure, has been overlooked.

The force is more than a police department. A veteran recognizes on first contact, the truly military aspect of its organization. Indeed a perusal of its regulations and orders convinces one that it is more strict in its discipline, more precise in its internal operations, than even an Imperial regiment.

From Commissioner to first-year constable, the Mounted are soldiers in every sense of the word. More than that, they are cavalrymen, with all that that implies. And yet, that is not all. Strict adherence to duty may make a soldier, but a Mounted policeman is soldier, ambassador, detective and man-of-the-world, all blended into one.

King's Rules and Orders, manual of His Majesty's Forces, was never as comprehensive a volume as Rules and Regulations of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Force, and, yet, early in the book is this comment:—

"It is impossible to give instructions for the execution of every duty which the police may be required to perform, or to anticipate every difficulty that they may have to encounter. From the nature of the service their duties must vary from time to time, with circumstances, and the members of the Force should therefore endeavour by individual zeal, discretion and intelligence, to supply the unavoidable deficiency of particular instructions."

Let us look at this great company of great spirits that has set the world a-talking.

In the first place the mounted police are the special agents of the Federal government, and, as such, are responsible for the enforcement of Federal statutes, but their particular fitness for such work, and their close organization, has brought them into a much wider field, until today no Canadian province would do without them in the management of its private and internal affairs, and they take the place of special staffs which government departments would have to maintain, if they were not available, to keep the wheels of the machinery of administration in motion.

Today the force is scattered from coast to coast, and, from the far north—only 11 degrees from the pole—to the United States border. Besides headquarters at Ottawa, there are thirteen branches, including nine actual mounted divisions, the training depot at Regina, Saskatchewan, and three special districts.

"A" division is centered in Ottawa, and is composed largely of former members of the old Dominion Police, amalgamated with the force in February 1920. Its duties consist largely of maintaining protection over government property in the Capital. "B" Division is stationed in the Yukon, with headquarters in Dawson. There is no longer a "C" Division, but "D" upholds the traditions of the force in Manitoba and Western Ontario, with headquarters at Winnipeg. In British Columbia, with headquarters at Vancouver, "E" Division is situated. "F" is at Prince Albert, and has charge of the Northern Saskatchewan area. "G" division makes its headquarters in Edmonton, and, besides Northern Alberta, stretches its authority to the western half of the Arctic Island kingdom belonging to Canada. "K," the next division, is stationed at Lethbridge, in Southern Alberta, old-time stamping ground of the "originals."

In Ottawa, again, is located "N" Division, a force of well-trained officers who undertake special work in any locality, and are used also for escort duty, etc. Toronto has "O" Division, whose territory includes Central and Northern Ontario.

The three special districts are centered in Regina, where, apart from the big depot, work is extended over Southern Saskatchewan; Montreal, the centre of a busy district, which includes Quebec province, and Halifax, where the Maritime division has its headquarters.

That is the disposition of the force, not overlooking headquarters, the centre of it all—but more of that later. All told there were, at the end of 1926, 53 officers, 910 non-commissioned officers and constables, a total of 963, in the entire R.C.M.P. establishment. At the same period the force had 262 saddle horses, 52 teams, and 281 dogs at its command.

Not a large force, a mere skeleton battalion of infantry, but whole armies have achieved less. Indeed the strength, or lack of strength, numerically, of the R.C.M.P., has been the cause for serious comment on the part of its officers. Much publicity was given, when it was submitted to the Minister, of statements by Commissioner Starnes. Commissioner Starnes reported to the Government, following a series of reductions in the strength of the R.C.M.P. from year to year, that "In my opinion the reduction of strength has proceeded as far as is consonant with efficient administration, and with the satisfactory performance of the multifarious and widely extended duties of the force." He also quoted statistics to show that, while the strength had steadily decreased during the past five or six years, the number of cases in which action had to be taken, had increased enormously, and, in fact, had more than doubled in the same period.

This meant, of course, that not only were the officers seriously handicapped in their work, through lack of adequate detachments, but the cycle of promotions through the ranks was absolutely blocked, with the subsequent effect upon the spirit of the force. At the time of writing the Government had apparently taken this serious state of affairs into consideration, and there are indications that the force will be gradually increased as required, from time to time.

The R.C.M.P. attained its greatest strength during 1919-1921, when, as a result of the termination of the Great War, with its changes in conditions all over the world, and certainly in Canada, and, as a result also of the situation exposed by the Winnipeg strike, the need of a large and more powerful organization was recognized. At that time an enrollment of 2,000 was aimed at, but circumstances conspired to keep the peak of strength to 1,800. Even that, however, was nearly double the present size of the force.

Probably every young Canadian, at some time in his life, has made up his mind to be a Mounted Policeman. Those lucky enough to have seen the renowned horsemen in actual life, certainly harbored this ambition. But the force is most particular about its members. Not everyone, however willing, can be a "Mountie."

The force will pick its recruits from among those who have the following qualifications only. They must be British subjects, intelligent, active, able-bodied men of thoroughly sound constitution, sober and steady, and must produce certificates of exemplary character from reliable persons. They must be able to read and write either the English or the French language, and must be between the ages of eighteen and forty (except for "A" division, Ottawa.) Also, they should have some knowledge of the care and management of horses and be able to ride.

But there are still other restrictions that would rule many out. Mountie recruits must be of a minimum height of 5 feet eight inches, have a minimum chest measurement of 35 inches, and a maximum weight of 175 pounds. To be acceptable to "A" Division, Ottawa, which, as has been explained, is an exceptional corps, they must be 5 feet 10 inches tall.

And even after that, there comes the weeding out process. Figures, the only platitude says, do not lie. Anyway, of 2,196 who applied for enlistment during 1926, only 98 were taken on strength.

In applying for R.C.M.P. appointments, candidates are asked many pertinent questions, among which are: "What has been your occupation or employment during the last five years?" "Have you served in any Military or Police Force?" "If so, why were you discharged, and can you produce discharge certificate?" "Do you understand the care and management of horses?" etc.

Perhaps that is why the R.C.M.P., those who have satisfied the rigid requirements of the force, are such splendid types of men. It used to be a tradition that the R.C.M.P. was made up largely of titled gentlemen, and cadet sons of great British families. Officers at headquarters smile when this is mentioned.

"Well, we've had a title or two," they say, "But not so many lately." The truth is that the majority of the new members of the force, are Canadian born. There are few from abroad, although many applications reach the staff, from Great Britain, even yet.

It is noticeable that the great bulk of the present members of the force are young men. They range in ages from 18 to 35, with by far the larger number in the twenties.

When the force was originally formed, its military character was stressed, and the result was that soldiers, seasoned veterans of campaigns joined its ranks. This leaven of experienced men undoubtedly served the R.C.M.P. in good stead. Perusal of old "day books" and records still in the possession of the force, show that, even in the early years of its existence, there were many mere boys in the ranks.

Commissioned officers are, in many cases, appointed to the force, and go up the scale from the lowest commissioned rank, but there are many cases on record where men who enlisted as constables have risen to the higher ranks.

Non-commissioned ranks are enlisted for three years, and, in the case of men who have completed a term, and are anxious to re-engage, the term may be either one year or three additional years. Married men are not accepted, except in "A" Division.

Members of the force are supplied with free quarters, rations, uniform and medical attention, except in "A" Division, where different rules apply in many cases. Pensions are given to non-commissioned officers and men on discharge, if they have completed twenty years' service.

Pay in the R.C.M.P. is not large, but is sufficient for the average needs of men whose whole necessaries of life are supplied for them. Constables received $2.00 per day during their first year's service, $2.05 the second year, $2.10 the third year, and $2.25 the fourth or any consecutive year. Corporals are paid $2.50 per day, sergeants, $3.00 and staff-sergeants $3.25.

When a recruit is accepted for any of the regular divisions, he is at once sent to the training depot at Regina. There he is given a thorough grounding in the many subjects which go to make a real "mountie." Strange matters are taught him. Besides riding and a general knowledge of horseflesh, the young constable is lectured on the common principles of British justice, the methods of law and prosecution, the manner in which reports are made, etc. He is also given a good physical training course and learns about the esprit de corps of the force.

Officials of the R.C.M.P. claim that a recruit should have at least six months theoretical training before he can be used at all for the work which is to be his daily lot when he qualifies. Perhaps, towards the end of this training period, he is placed with other recruits and a few seasoned men on the more simple and less involved work which falls to the lot of the Mounted. He will probably first exercise his new-given authority in work conducting harvesters' trains from east to west, or he will be placed on police duty of a straight-forward sort.

When he has thoroughly absorbed his theory, the young constable is paired off with an experienced constable, and assigned to some remote post under the charge of the force. There he will learn to turn his knowledge to good account, and get the finest of practical training and a taste of real work. From that he goes on to command of outposts himself, and, if he shows an aptitude for it, to more special work.

The strictest rules regarding personal behaviour are observed in the R.C.M.P. Officers have authority, as in the army, to administer punishment, from close to open arrest, and to conduct courts of inquiry in cases of misconduct. There is the same discipline regarding deportment. Constables stand to attention to non-commissioned officers and all ranks salute their superior officers as in the regular forces. There are rules governing the wearing of the different uniforms, how to wear them and when to wear them, etc. It is even prescribed that members of the force shall observe the Sabbath, and all ranks are advised to attend Divine Service on Sundays if possible.

Into the mind of the constable, too, is drilled a great mass of detail regarding reports and camp and travelling routine. He must know that a horse is not to be ridden at more than seven miles per hour, and for not more than forty miles per day, except in cases of emergency; he must know how to bury a body, and report the matter to his superiors; he must understand the use of firearms, and cavalry weapons of all kinds; he must know the manner of handling and caring for prisoners, and a hundred and one things which fall to the lot of the commissioned officer much more than to the private soldier or even the non-commissioned officer in the ordinary army life.

The R.C.M.P. is commanded by a Commissioner, with headquarters in Ottawa, and under him there are two Assistant Commissioners, one in Ottawa, with special work at headquarters and jurisdiction over the East of the Dominion, and the other in charge of Western Canada, with special duties in connection with the depot at Regina.

Divisions are mainly commanded by Superintendents, of whom there are eleven in the whole force, and under them come the 37 Inspectors, and surgeons, assistant veterinary surgeons, etc., of the other Commissioned ranks.

Headquarters in itself is a study, and reflects, better than a cursory glance over the whole force, the scope of the work of the R.C.M.P., and the important role it is filling in the life of Canada. In Ottawa there are numerous administrative branches. The main branches are housed in the Laroque Building, on Rideau street, but certain special sections have been obliged to obtain accommodation in other Ottawa premises.

Sections of headquarters are: secretary's branch, where the bulk of the general administration is carried on; Adjutant's office, which handles matters pertaining to the personnel of the force, under the direct supervision of the Assistant Commissioner; Financial Controller's office, the name of which is self-explanatory; purchasing branch, which has to do with the buying and negotiating of purchases for the force; Liason and Intelligence branch, with duties somewhat similar to those of a military liason section, but of a more special nature; supply officer's branch, which fills the role of a military quartermaster's department; Criminal Investigation branch, which is a detective bureau in all verity; ticket-of-leave branch, which has a great mass of work to do in connection with Canadian penitentiaries, etc.; Finger-printing branch, where voluminous and most valuable specimens are kept of all recorded fingerprints in Canada; and finally, Central Registry, the great clearing house of the information of the force.

All these branches and departments are highly organized and require real specialists to handle them. The liason and intelligence branch, for instance is in charge of a capable military officer whose genial manner and apparently fathomless fund of information and knowledge is a buffer between the force, the public and the country's administrators. The Criminal Investigation Bureau is only the central office for a number of detachments all over Canada. There is a special C.I.B. with each Division headquarters, in varying size. In Montreal, where much work is undertaken in the underworld, a great part of the division is engaged in C.I.B. work, while in Ottawa a handful of clever members of the force are engaged in equally important work.

Detectives in the R.C.M.P. are promoted from the rank and file as they show aptitude for their work. Their grading carries with it increased remuneration, but does not by any means decrease the personal danger to those engaged in this work.

The finger-printing and ticket-of-leave branches are also of much interest. Their work is exceedingly widespread and, but for the efficiency of these departments much valuable material would be lost to the force and much cost to the federal, provincial and various municipal authorities would be entailed.

But perhaps most noteworthy of the departments at headquarters is the Central Registry, where the files of the force are kept. In row after row of cabinets and filing card cases on one floor of the building, records numbering over 250,000 but covering only about five years of work by the R.C.M.P. are kept. These are most expertly indexed, counter-indexed and cross-indexed under a clever system thought out by the official in charge.

The success and efficiency of R.C.M.P. registry was well demonstrated at the sessions in the Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, of the Parliamentary Committee to investigate conditions in the Department of Customs and Excise, recently. While the examination of witnesses was proceeding, the Department concerned was asked for records which should have been quite readily available. With only an ordinary filing system to go through, Customs officials were unable to produce required papers until several months had elasped and the committee's investigation was completed.

In contrast was the work of the R.C.M.P. One of the chief officials of the force was a witness before a morning session of the committee. Asked to produce some little-referred-to documents from his headquarters' files, he was able to have them before the committee at the afternoon session on the same day, due to the system in vogue in headquarters.

One section of Central Registry is given up to a mailing department. Mail secured by special R.C.M.P. messengers from the Ottawa Post Office are handled there, to the number of over 2,000 a day, on an average. Letters are sorted for their various branches and sections, stamped, and numbered, and records kept of the times received and their numbers for reference purposes. Only senior men are employed in the mail room.

In another section of the room is a large assortment of card index cabinets, filled with keys to records of the work of the force since 1921. As these files refer only to actual investigations made, they are an excellent indication of the volume of work done by the force. Special cases are also recorded, in carefully indexed cabinets, in another section of headquarters. Among these are minute details of detective work done by members of the force, records of penitentiary prisoners on ticket-of-leave, etc., and other information for the assistance of future investigators and checking up purposes.

Among one of the most common tasks of the Mounted police is the enforcement of the Explosives Act; and in this work inspections are made of all supplies of explosives in hardware stores and dealer's stores from coast to coast.

So carefully is this Act enforced that the barest details of a case reaching headquarters from any authentic source, are followed up immediately, and reports made on them. Merchants are advised how to store dynamite and other explosives, explosive material in transit is watched, and everything is done to protect the public and property.

If some curious child is maimed for life by picking up a stray stick of dynamite on a city street, the R.C.M.P.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Don't Go About With A Cold!

DON'T leave it to a friend to remind you of that bad cold! Don't go about spreading infection among your business friends and maybe in your own family circle. To banish colds and chills in the direct and most effective way, you must take PEPS.

As they dissolve in the mouth Peps give off powerful healing and germicidal fumes. These you breathe into instant direct contact with the innermost recesses of the chest and lungs.

Peps soothe, strengthen and invigorate the entire breathing system. They clear the throat and air-passages of mischievous germs, remove soreness and inflammation, and end the danger to chest and lungs. Make no mistake! You must have Peps, the breatheable medicine in tablet form.

Peps

Now obtainable of all druggists and stores in the boxes, containing 35 silver-foiled tablets. Name PEPS stamped on every tablet.

IF you can't Sleep

try a "night-cap" of delicious Ovaltine

SLEEPLESSNESS is nearly always due to one of two causes—overtired, undernourished nerves—nerves that persist in staying up after you have gone to bed, or to digestive disturbances.

Your nerves need natural nourishment. Something which will soothe, strengthen and rebuild them. This is exactly what Ovaltine does.

In addition, Ovaltine is easily digested, placing no strain on the digestive system. In fact Ovaltine has the power to digest four times its own weight of other foods.

When you take Ovaltine at night you drop off promptly into natural, restful sleep that restores brain, nerves and body. You waken refreshed and vigorous. Ovaltine contains no drugs or sedatives. Ask your doctor.

Drink Ovaltine for health—the year 'round. 60c, 90c, $1.50 and special $5.25 family size. The larger tins are more economical to buy.

are on the job, as soon as they learn of the occurrence, to discover how the dynamite happened to be on the street, who owned it and was responsible for its safe-keeping, and so on.

It is estimated that literally millions of documents are under lock and key and properly filed at R.C.M.P. headquarters, and nearly one whole floor of the main building is filled with filing cabinets. The loss of much of the material concerning the early work in the force in Eastern Canada, in a fire which destroyed records, did not daunt the headquarters staff, accustomed to much worse trouble. From old books in the possession of the depot at Regina, facts concerning the early eastern work were obtained, and re-filed in safety. This task entailed a great deal of detail work, and it had to be done in the west and brought back to the capital.

Much of the work which now forms part of the regular routine of R.C.M.P. responsibilities, was done only spasmodically prior to 1920, when the Dominion Police became part of the great force, and its work was expanded. Now the most remotely interesting features of police work are given due attention by the force, and so thoroughly is the work assigned and carried out, that the force has largely supplimented municipal and provincial authorities in the every-day protection of life and property.

In the field of purely detective work, alone, much success has been achieved. One member of the force has developed a technique in connection with finger-print work, that he is employed almost exclusively on bank and post office robberies, and similar work in which his knowledge can be put to best advantage.

The Criminal Identification Bureau of the force has also done marvellous work. In the year ending September 1926, this branch of headquarters received 21,683 fingerprints, made 2,631 identifications, located 34 parole violators, located 13 escaped persons, and made negatives, photo-prints, etc., totalling tens of thousands.

Probably no organization in the world has such a wide range of work or responsibility as the R.C.M.P., and yet its work has been carried out with a minimum of friction and trouble, and so quietly that only those whose own work and inclinations have brought them into touch with this great branch of Canada's adminis ration, have known that they were actually "on the job."

In this regard the matter of publicity is not as welcome to the R.C.M.P. as the number of novels and moving pictures based on it, might lead one to suppose. Indeed in the rules and regulations of the force there is a chapter, strict as other rules, that no news of any kind relating to the force shall be given to the public press, except with the permission of the Commissioner. But such an organization as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police cannot hide its light under a bushel for very long. The internal workings of the force must, of course, in the interest of public welfare and proper administration of the country's affairs, be kept strictly "departmental," but there are instances when the exploits of Mounted men cannot be ignored by press and public.

Scenario sub-titles ascribe to the force the blunt motto, "Get Your Man." History of the force has shown that there are only rare occasions on which the Mounted did not "get their men," and when they failed to do so there was always something more than excuse—there was a reason. Read the reports in the files at headquarters and see there, in the blunt statements of facts that the police have cultivated, the stories of deeds almost superhuman in the pursuit of duty. If ever a Mounted Policeman fails to obtain his objective, it is only because that objective has been unattainable—not because of lack of endeavour or pluck or resourcefulness.

This record notwithstanding, the motto of the R.C.M.P., the real motto assigned it by the Canadian Government, and inscribed on its badge, is "Maintain the Right." If any doubt that the police do maintain the right, they have never looked into the performances of this great man-made instrument of Justice.

And through it all there is a spirit of comradeship, a true morale, and a fine esprit de corps in the R.C.M.P., which has gone no little way towards aiding it along the paths of success. There is no domineering tone in the voice of an N.C.O. giving a subordinate an order, and there is a gentlemanly respect and understanding between officers and constables.

The force has long since overstepped the borders of its country, in fact as well as in reputation, and by soldierly and "mountie-like" bearing, brought honor on the force abroad. There was, for instance, the detachment which was ordered to England to protect the Canadian exhibits in Canada Buildings at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley. Such attention was paid to the real "mounties" thus exhibited to Britishers for the first time, in many cases, that Canada's little side-show in the homeland profited much thereby. And while in Great Britain the members of the detachments made many friends for the force and for the Dominion.

More recently, with the opening of a Canadian legation in Washington, D.C., another little bit of Canada has been moved beyond the borders. Fittingly and surely enough, an R.C.M.P. officer must go where Canada goes. What type of citizen more fitting to represent his country? So an N.C.O. of the R.C.M.P. has been assigned to permanent duty at the Canadian Embassy in Washington, and stands at the main entrance, another great advertisement for the country.

In the Great War thousands of Canadians fought on the bloody fields of France in order that Canada might be a better place for the other thousands who could not go.

In these times of restless peace, another force stands between the Dominion and trouble. Its expeditions are many, and its deeds as valorous, in their way, as those of their brothers in arms on the western front. Some of them, laying aside the role of mere soldier after the Armistice, have taken up the many-sided portfolio of Mounted Policemen.

So the R.C.M.P. stands, a vital, living memorial to Canadian achievement, and a constant, never-failing source of inspiration to the nation.

THIS SCOURGE WAS DRAGGING HIM DOWN

ALL-BRAN gave him new lease on life when it checked constipation

No matter how chronic constipation has become—no one need give up hope of relief. Read Mr. Williams' cheery message:

"I am on the down-grade in life. Never had any sickness, but of late years have been troubled with constipation. Began to make up my mind that I was about done up. Have taken tablets, eaten fruits, etc., but did not get much help. Began to use your ALL-BRAN twice a day. Have gained 6 pounds. Feel like a fighting cock. Bowels are regular. You have certainly done a lot for humanity."

L. C. WILLIAMS

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend Kellogg's because it is 100% bran—100% effective.

Delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Ready to eat. Fine in cooking. Sold and served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Recipes on package.

FOWL SUPPER

Held Under Auspices of the Anglican Parish of Marmora.

MARMORA, Nov. 4.—With superabundance of good things before them and a delicacy for almost every taste attracting the eye, well over four hundred persons took their seats on Wednesday evening in patronage of the chicken supper for which the Anglican parish of Marmora was responsible. Ladies of the congregations of St. Paul's, Holy Trinity and Deloro combined in giving excellent service and rarely has the council chamber presented such a busy scene as it did on Wednesday evening. The receipts of the evening approached the two hundred mark.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

AMOS PLEADS FOR JUSTICE

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for November 6. Amos Pleads for Justice. Amos 5:1-15.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

In the last lesson we considered Amos, the herdsman prophet, in his denunciation of sin. It is a satisfaction to go further in the consideration of Amos as a pleader for justice.

The denunciation of sin is not always accompanied by the highest sense of justice. Men who have been great sinners themselves have not always been above denouncing the sins of others. Not only has there been repeatedly in life elemental hypocrisy in the way in which men, particularly in their public utterances, have condoned their own sins while they have denounced the sins of others—that is, sins of essentially the same sort—but there has also been a constant tendency on the part of men to condemn some sins in others while they themselves have been as deeply dyed in other sorts of sins. One recalls the reproach against the Puritan as: Compounding sins he was inclined to, By damning those he had no mind to.

But Amos was not of that sort. He saw with a clear eye not only the sins and corruptions of his own day, but he perceived with equal clearness the foundations of righteousness and social welfare. He is essentially a constructive prophet. True life for society as for the individual, is a quest. Life comes only through seeking the highest things. "Seek the Lord, and ye shall live." Life, moreover, is established in righteous judgment. It is in following good and not evil that true national prosperity can be established. "Hate the evil and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate." Can there be any improvement upon this for modern times? The mere show of prosperity has in it nothing of permanence.

The Inner Beauty.

What are houses of hewn stone, suggests Amos, if the life within them be rotten? What are hewed cities with their grandeur of building, their great churches, their pretentious places of amusement, and their enormous palaces not true to the plumb-line of justice and righteousness? How long would the great buildings last if they had not been built upon secure foundations and with regard for the level and plumb-line? How long, suggests Amos, can the structure of society itself last if there be not the same regard for uprightness?

These things seem self-evident, and yet it is amazing how the world goes on neglecting the deeper and truer foundations of life and disregarding the requirements for the highest welfare, appreciating truth in its material and scientific forms but neglecting the rigid demand of true standards in the matter of those relationships of man with man which determine the character of society both in the present and in the future.

Every Age Needs Amos.

Every prosperous age needs its men like Amos, exploring around the roots of things, and likewise bringing to men the sense of sky. Here was no mere muckraking prophet, but a preacher of the highest way of true upbuilding and attainment.

The golden text might well be carved in deep and splendid letters over every structure of our modern business and social life, both national and international. "Let judgment run down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream."

"A mighty stream'—refreshing, life-giving, purging, cleansing—true wealth, health and welfare are ultimately, for individual and society, concerns of justice and righteousness.

Text: Amos 5:1-15

Hear ye this word which I take up against you, even a lamentation, O house of Israel.

The virgin of Israel is fallen; she shall no more rise: she is forsaken upon her land; there is none to raise her up.

For thus saith the Lord God: The city that went out by a thousand shall leave a hundred, and that which went forth by a hundred shall leave ten, to the house of Israel.

For thus saith the Lord unto the house of Israel, Seek ye me, and ye shall live:

But seek not Bethel, nor enter into Gilgal, and pass not to Beersheba: for Gilgal shall surely go into captivity, and Bethel shall come to nought.

Seek the Lord, and ye shall live; lest he break out like fire in the house of Joseph, and devour it, and there be none to quench it in Bethel.

Ye who turn judgment to wormwood, and leave off righteousness in the earth, seek him that maketh the seven stars and Orion, and turneth the shadow of death into the morning, and maketh the day dark with night: that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: The Lord is his name:

That strengtheneth the spoiled against the strong, so that the spoiled shall come against the fortress.

They hate him that rebuketh in the gate, and they abhor him that speaketh uprightly.

For as much therefore as your treading is upon the poor, and ye take from him burdens of wheat: ye have built houses of hewn stone, but ye shall not dwell in them; ye have planted pleasant vineyards, but ye shall not drink wine of them. For I know your manifold transgressions and your mighty sins: they afflict the just, they take a bribe, and they turn aside the poor in the gate from their right.

Therefore the prudent shall keep silence in that time; for it is an evil time.

Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken.

Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate: it may be that the Lord, God of host, will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph.

SALE OF WORK AT ST PAUL'S

Ladies' Aid of Church Is In Charge of Successful Effort.

TEA BEING SERVED.

The annual sale of work by the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church commenced yesterday in the Sunday School rooms, and concludes this evening. The ladies have a quantity of very pretty and useful things for sale, and serve afternoon tea at little flower-centred tables, with palms, ferns and roses giving a decorative touch to the tea-room.

Mrs. J. W. F. Hall, president of the society, is general convenor, assisted by the first vice-president, Mrs. C. E. Blewett and Mrs. Wm. Allan. Mrs. D. Jordan has charge of the tea-room.

The Faithful Workers' Mission Band of the church, with the president, Miss Daisy Davidson, in charge, assisted by members of the society, has the first booth at the door, where miscellaneous articles and novelties are sold. Next to it is the pretty display of candy in decorative paper boxes of orchid and pink. This sale is in charge of Mrs. J. H. Gilgour, Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. D. Wright, and Mrs. C. Bennett.

The four booths next in order have on view a quantity of fancy work, pretty and useful small articles and quilts, with aprons and lingerie. They are in charge of Mesdames A. McLeish, C. A. White, James Skinner and J. Marsh, assisted by Mesdames Ada Craig, W. J. Stacey, E. F. Atkinson, W. G. McKee, R. W. Davidson, E. F. Mason, James McCaw, and Miss Eva Montgomery.

A post office is in charge of Mrs. O. M. Steer and Mrs. J. P. Pulkinghorn, and a sale of home-made cooking is supervised by Mesdames S. Taylor, M. McNabb, J. Garbutt, R. H. Hunter, and Norman Henry.

Convenors of tables in the tea-room are Mesdames F. J. A. Hall, L. J. Squair, and W. A. Burrell. Assistants at the various tables include: Mesdames W. B. Bletcher, W. E. Curry, H. Taylor, J. Gillespie, H. C. Sherwood, W. Taylor, A. Jones, and Miss B. Brophey. In charge of refreshments are: Mesdames A. E. Gilgour, W. J. Hancock, E. Deyell, Henry, and W. J. Stinson.

TWO BIRTHDAYS.

COLUMBUS, Neb., Nov. 4.—Twins, a boy and a girl, will celebrate their birthdays on different days. A few minutes before midnight, a girl was born to Mrs. Albert E. Russell; just after midnight, a boy was born. They're twins, yet they were born on different days.

REBEKAHS HOLD OLD TIME DANCE

Havelock Lodge's Social on Monday is Great Success.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 4.—A very enjoyable event took place in the town hall on Monday evening, when the Dorcas Rebekah Lodge No. 98, held an "old fashioned dance" which was a great success, both in the excellence of the entertainment and also in the fact that there was a large attendance of spectators and dancers. The hall was gayly decorated with the Hallowe'en colors of yellow and black. A special feature of the programme, which consisted of round and square dances, was the "lucky number dance." A number was placed on the floor and when the music ceased the couple nearest to it received a prize. The lady's prize was a compact and the gentleman's a deck of cards in a case, the winning couple being Miss Dorothy Watson and Mr. Melville Wright. The music for the evening was supplied by the Brooks orchestra of Trent River.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Leo Doherty entertained the staff of the Bell Telephone office and exchange at their home on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Wilbert D. Wood, local manager of the Bell Telephone here, attended the conference in Peterborough on Wednesday.

The prize-winners at the Rebekah's euchre party last night were: Ladies' games, Miss Alma Simpson; lone hands, Mrs. A. Tripp; consolation, Mrs. C. W. Smith. The men who went home with bundles under their arms were William Brown for games, Ed. Runions for lone hands, and Harry Cassan, the consolation prize. The party was held in the Lodge rooms, Ferris Block, and there were ten tables of players. The small number was due to the numerous counter attractions in and about the town. This is the first of a series of euchres which the Rebekahs will given during the winter.

CHECKS FROM 272 B.C.

CASPER, Wyo., Nov. 4.—Through several Montana and Wyoming towns went C. McDunn, cashing checks. McDunn, who went under several other names whenever he chose, had no money, but he was well equipped with a sense of humor. Every spurious check he cashed was dated 272 B.C., and not a merchant noticed it until irate bankers pointed it out.

Day-Fan Only 30 in the Club

The Annual Greene Christmas Radio Club has always been popular, and this year should be a record one when it is considered that every Club member gets a genuine Day-Fan Receiving Set and on such favorable Club terms. The Day-Fan is the set used by large broadcasting stations to test out their own programmes. It gives the finest reception yet attained in the radio field. To own a Day-Fan is a distinction in itself, and the home where a Day-Fan is found has always a ready entertainer for the family circle or friends

CLUB ADVANTAGES—The special price includes everything — Batteries, Tubes, Speaker, and installed in the home. Guaranteed. Very easy terms. No interest. Just $2.00 to join. Four styles to choose from.

The four Day-Fans we have provided for this Christmas Club are the four most popular and moderate priced Day-Fan Sets. They have 4, 5, 6 and 7 tubes; every set fully equipped with heavy duty B Batteries, 6-Volt Storage Batteries (100 A.H.), Aerial, Tubes and Speaker, in each case, the 7-Tube Set having 3 heavy duty B's for its greater power requirements Hundreds of these Day-Fans were sold in Canada in the last two years, and are giving wonderful satisfaction. We think Santa Claus will be so proud of his gift, where he leaves a Day-Fan, that he will stick around for a few days to enjoy seeing the pleasure it gives.

Act Quick No Time to Lose!

Call at or telephone the Store and arrange for a demonstration. Get your membership recorded right away—that secures your set—and you can decide on the style at your leisure. Every member enrolled makes the number one less, and ONLY 30 can be accepted. That's the limit for the 1927 Christmas Club. Several were taken on Saturday, the opening day.

WOMEN'S PAGE

SOCIETY

Rev. J. L. and Mrs. Hughes were hosts at St. George's Rectory on Wednesday evening to members of the A.Y.P.A. of the church, who held a jolly Hallowe'en party. A number appeared in costume, featuring a Chinese Mandarin, a Gypsy, a Red Cross Nurse, a Midshipman, a Russian Maiden, an Egyptian Girl, Pierrette and Little Red Riding Hood. A programme of songs, games and dancing, followed by the service of dainty refreshments, was much enjoyed and Hallowe'en decorations added to the festive spirit of the evening Before dispersing, the president of the society, Miss Huxley, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, for their hospitality.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. D. Quinlan and daughter, Miss Dorothy, of Rogers street, motored to Newcastle on Sunday and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Parnell and family.

* * *

Miss Berenice Evans, as Queen of Hearts, was awarded the prize for the best costume at the Hallowe'en party held in the George Street Sunday school auditorium by members of the Junior and Intermediate C.G.I.T. groups of the church. About thirty-five girls were present for the occasion. The programme consisted of games and the service of dainty refreshments. Arrangements were in charge of the leaders, Miss Helen Spenceley and Miss Gladys Coon.

The annual congregational social of St. Luke's Anglican Church was a very successful event, held in the parish hall on Wednesday evening. The guests were welcomed by the rector and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. G. J. Bousfield. A great deal of amusement and fun was realized from a unique guessing contest in which those present endeavored to guess correctly the names of old members of the church, whose photographs, from babyhood up, were exhibited about the room. One hundred and seventeen of these were in place, the prize for the greatest number guessed correctly going to Mr. T. H. Adams. A musical programme included vocal solos by Mrs. Wm. Davies, Mrs. W. Hepburn and Mr. V. Wood, pianoforte selections by Mr. W. C. Thomson and Professor Sloane and readings by Miss Queenie Hope. Dainty refreshments were served by the members of the Women's Guild, with the president, Mrs. J. M. Gemmell, in charge.

* * *

A pleasant afternoon tea was held in the Sunday school lecture hall of George Street Church yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Mission Band. The tea was quite successful and arrangements were carried out by Mrs. J. H. Rowe and Mrs. J. E. Todd, assisted by Mrs. V. Walker and Mrs. J. I. Brown. Tea was poured by Mrs. E. W. Coon and Mrs. S. R. Armstrong, assisted by members of the Band, in the Misses Margaret Walker, Mary Vance, Margaret Vance, Helen Burns, Myrtle Burns, Aileen Clark, Dorothy Routly, Eva Trethewey, Dorothy Bamforth and Miriam Purdy. Decorations of the table were a large central basket of fruit and yellow candles in silver candlesticks. The sale of homemade cooking was in charge of Mrs. Wm. Knox ,and the sale of candy was supervised by Mrs. V. Walker and Mrs. R. Powell. An interesting musical programme included a duet by the Misses Helen Burns and Aileen Clark, playing piano and mandolin, a chorus by boys of the Band, with accompaniment by Miss Miriam Purdy, a violin solo by Alex. Carlisle, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. G. D. Carlisle, a reading by Joy Walker, a song by Rosamond Burns, with accompaniment by Miss Helen Burns, a song by Miss Margaret Agnew, accompanied by Mrs. E. Wand, and a chorus by girls of the Band, accompanied by Miss Olive Rowe.

Evening Examiner Fashion

A New Frock for Afternoon or Evening Wear

Unusually attractive is this chic frock of youthful charm. The two-piece flared skirt is joined to a foundation, and the bodice is gathered at the lower edge to give the modish bloused effect. Three bands of material or lace are arranged at the hips, and there are tucks at the front of the neck. Ribbon forms a tie collar and is also used on the long dart-fitted sleeves. The sleeves may be omitted and a ribbon girdle added for evening wear. No. 1675 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years. View A, size 18 (36 bust) requires 3⅝ yards 39-inch, or 2¾ yards 54-inch material, and 4 yards 2-inch ribbon. View B, size 18 (36 bust) requires 2¾ yards 39-inch material; 5 yards 2-inch ribbon; 5 yards 3-inch lace. Price 20 cents the pattern.

SAINT and SINNER

"The trouble with wives," Bob began earnestly, but in a pleasant, reasonable voice, "is that they insist on being wives. You know what I mean! They seem to want to lose their individuality, or rather, the good wives, like you," and he squeezed her hand hard, "think so much of being good wives that they neglect to be themselves. I don't believe one man in a thousand marries a girl because he believes she will make a good wife. To tell you the truth, the phrase rather frightens us men! We marry a girl because we like her as well as love her; we want to be with her all the time, because being with her some of the time is so much fun and genuine pleasure. She is entertaining, pretty—or we think she is; exciting, companionable, all because she isn't part of ourselves, but a distinct individuality whom it is stimulating to be with. Then a man marries his girl——"

"And the poor thing loses his interest just because she is trying so hard to be a good wife to him," Faith interrupted bitterly, "I'm glad you told me! I didn't know."

"Hold on, honey!" Bob coaxed, his voice still reasonable and pleasant, "If she does lose his interest—and certainly I'm not talking about you and me—it's because she tries so hard to hold it! It makes a man frightfully uncomfortable, even if it does please his vanity, to be so all-important to another human being. You see, dear, the wife insists on reversing positions with her husband. Before marriage, she is all-important to the man. He's proud of pleasing her, of winning her in competition with all the other men she might marry. But soon after marriage the girl who has turned into a wife—a good wife—begins to coax and flatter and cajole her husband, demonstrating every hour she's with him that she's taking her job seriously, that her husband is her whole world—and how often she tells him so! —that her sole interest is in him—his food, his home, his business, which she is usually not fitted to understand; his thoughts, his ambitions——"

"What an arch criminal she is!" Faith interrupted in a strangled voice, her tear-blurred eyes fixed on her knotted hands.

"Darling, darling!" Bob pleaded tenderly, but a little impatiently. "Please don't combat me so! I'm just trying to give you a man's side of the argument for once. Can't you see what I'm driving at? A pampered husband is uncomfortable at first, seeing the lovely, gay, independent girl he married making a domestic slave of herself, in the hope of winning her husband's approval. Then he begins to accept it all, to take it—and her—for granted. He gets cockier and cockier—all strutted up with vanity, and his appreciation for his wife's 'sacrifices' for him is less and less often expressed, until she begins to accuse him of not loving her any more, of not appreciating a thing she does for him. He gradually forgets the proud, gay girl he married and remembers only the anxious woman waiting for him at home—anxious to see how he likes the new dish she has concocted for his dinner; anxious to measure just the length of the kiss he gives her; resentful of every interest he has outside the home, for, she argues, it's such a nice home! And she makes him so comfortable! And she slaves for him day in and day out, thinking of no one else but him, when, if she hadn't married, two or three men would be thinking up ways and means to please her. And, honey, do you know why she does all these things, really why she does them?"

"You tell me," Faith said resentfully. "You seem to know so much more about wives than I do!"

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S NEW SUIT.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Hoo oo! Come on out!" called the sly Weasel to the Bushy Bear one morning. The Weasel, who is a small, slinking animal, but very fierce and terrible, stood in front of the Bear's den.

"Why should I come out?" growled the Bear, who wasn't very polite at any time. "I'm hungry, and if I come out of my den I will only be all the more hungry!" said the shaggy chap.

"If you come with me you will not be hungry long," whispered the Weasel as the Bear shuffled to the door of his cave den. "I will get you something to eat."

"What and how?" growled the Bear. "I mean," he added, rubbing his dark black and red tongue over his white teeth, "what will you get me to eat and how are you going to do it?"

"I am going to play a trick on Uncle Wiggily!" chuckled the Weasel. "That is what I am going to do. And this is how." Looking slyly around to make sure no one was listening, the Weasel whispered. "I am going to spatter some mud on that rabbit's new suit. Then we'll catch him and eat him. Of course you, being a big Bear, will have the larger share. A little rabbit stew will do or me."

"That is all very well," rumbled the Bear coming out of his cave den. "But how will spattering mud on Uncle Wiggily catch him?"

"Easily," answered the Weasel. "You see Uncle Wiggily has just bought himself a new light summer suit. He is very proud of it. He will soon come hopping this way. I know for I hid behind a tree and saw him buying his suit at the one and two dollar store, and I heard him say he was coming out here to look for an adventure."

"Well, maybe he is," agreed the Bear. "But I don't see how a little mud will catch a rabbit."

"It will be easy!" chuckled the Weasel. "When Uncle Wiggily comes hopping along this path, wearing his new suit, I will be hiding back of a bush. You will be hiding in the hollow tree a little farther along the path. As soon as Uncle Wiggily hops past where I am hiding I will jump out and fling some mud on his beautiful new suit. He will be so surprised at this that he will be all fuddled up and then you can easily jump out and grab him and we'll both eat him."

"It seems like a good trick," agreed the Bear. "I'll go hide in the hollow tree and you hide behind the bush, for I think I hear Uncle Wiggily coming."

Quickly the two bad chaps took their places, the Weasel hiding near a puddle of black mud. The rabbit gentleman soon came hopping along whistling, twinkling his pink nose and thinking of no harm. The Weasel watched and as soon as the bunny rabbit had passed him the sly creature reached out and grabbed up a paw full of mud to fling at Mr. Longears.

"I'll plaster the back of his new suit well!" chuckled the Weasel. "He will turn around to see what happened and the Bear can get him."

But just as the Weasel filled his paw with mud, all of a sudden, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping along the path, the rabbit gentleman heard, close down to the ground, a little voice asking:

"Please, Mr. Longears, can you help me?"

The rabbit saw a little July Bug crawling along. Stooping over low, to bring his ears close down to the tiny creature, the rabbit asked:

"What help do you want?"

"Will you please help lift this pebble off my left hind leg?" begged the July Bug, and Uncle Wiggily said he would and he did, still stooping over low, for the July Bug was so tiny.

And just as Uncle Wiggily stooped down, the Weasel threw the paw full of mud. Only instead of the mud hitting Uncle Wiggily in the back, it flew harmlessly over his head. And just then the Bear popped out of the hollow tree where he was hiding and the mud which the Weasel threw hit the shaggy chap full in the face.

"Oh, gurr! What are you doing—throwing mud on me, Weasel?" howled the bear.

"Oh, excuse me!" whimpered the Weasel. "I didn't mean to do that!"

"Yes you did! You chucked mud on me purposely!" yowled the Bear. "I'll fix you for that!" Forgetting all about the rabbit, the Bear chased the weasel, who ran away and soon both bad chaps were lost in the deep woods.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Mr. Longears after helping the July Bug on his way. "Those who sling mud often get it on themselves! Ho! Ho!" Then he hopped along with his new suit still spick and span.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The simple white velvet evening dress chosen as a background for green and white cut-glass necklace and pin. There are green and white cut-glass straps on the slippers to match.

If you have fair skill as a home dressmaker there is no reason why you should not succeed in making a velvet gown of the new sort. But you should bear in mind that methods of handling velvet have changed in many ways, and if you want to get the smart effect of one of the velvet frocks just from Paris, then by all means make note of a few details in making.

There is very often no real hem on the bottom of the skirt of the velvet afternoon or evening frock, if by hem you understand a doubling back of the cloth. Sometimes the hem is pinked along the edge by careful snipping with the scissors and a narrow single hem is turned up and rather long but firm stitches are taken to hold this single turning. Again a narrow thin silk binding may be sewed to the rough edge of the skirt—usually by machine stitching—and the hem is then turned up with the silk binding forming the edge that is hemmed down.

Occasionally the hems and other edges of the very thin transparent velvets are hemmed by a narrow double hem secured by stitches that are certainly not fine. In one transparent velvet frock I saw the edge of the skirt was finished by piquot edging. So you see there is a wide variety of the ways in which these lovely materials may be used. The important thing is that machine sewing should never be used where it may possibly be seen and that double hems should never be used save in the most transparent of these velvets.

Remember, too, in planning a frock of transparent velvet that some sort of silk slip must be provided and better as an integral part of the frock. A substantial georgette may answer the purpose, but satin crepe might be preferred, where a more substantial foundation is desired.

Only after twelve years' effort did the sales of "SALADA" Tea exceed two million pounds per year. Now this amount is sold in seven weeks.

NEW NIAGARA HOTEL

The new hotel on Ontario road facing the Niagara Falls view bridge. As the new hotel will cost $1,500,000 when completed it will be the finest in Eastern Canada. It is to be eleven stories high, of brick construction with Indiana limestone trimmings. The ground floor of the new building will include sixteen stores, offices, a cafeteria, 4 private dining rooms and a main dining room. There will be a large ball room, and a convention hall besides a modern roof garden. Over six hundred bedrooms will be installed.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

For Saturday, November 5, 1927.
(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Afternoon hours should be favorable to most important activity on the planet Earth, according to astrology.

In the morning hours of this day it is well to pursue routine matters.

Disagreements regarding policies and even quarrels may be easily precipitated before noon, the seers warn.

Breakfast table quarrels may be numerous under this sway which is adverse to harmony.

It is well to contradict all symptoms of nerves or irritability while this rule prevails.

Advertising is well directed to-day and the afternoon should be a most auspicious time for signing contracts.

Newspapers and magazines have the forecast of large profits in the next few months.

Again the people are to turn to reading as a pastime, it is prognosticated, for they will weary of the usual type of theatrical offerings.

The signs are not favorable to motion pictures, which will perhaps have a period of change and development.

Fame for new actors and actresses on stage and screen again is forecast, but it will be gained by hard work.

Critics will become extremely active, while this rule of the stars prevails, and they will gain much personal praise, more or less unearned, astrologers foretell.

Judges and lawyers may expect many honors as well as large profits, if the stars are rightly interpreted.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect plenty of money in the coming year. Much will be spent on the home by many subject to this sign.

Children born on this day may expect prosperity all their lives. Legacies and inheritances belong to them.

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE.

1. When are suppers usually given?
2. Does one seat guests formally, or is a buffet supper just as good form?
3. At a buffet supper, how is the food served?

The Answers.

1. Sundays, holidays, after the theater or opera, or in summer, when the dinner comes at noon.
2. If served at a table, guests usually just take seats, without formal placing. Buffet suppers are more popular.
3. The silver, dishes and food are placed on tables and either servants pass them or guests wait on themselves.

Get Weight on Your Skinny Body

New YEAST with IRON adds pounds of weight
Quick results—or pay nothing

If you are many pounds underweight, have a pimply, poor complexion, tire easily and have little appetite, then you need the good solid flesh and healthful vigor that IRONIZED YEAST can give. With IRONIZED YEAST thousands of men and women have built themselves up from skinny weaklings to strong, healthy people. It can do the same for you.

You Need Yeast to Gain Weight

IRONIZED YEAST is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial.

This yeast is treated with iron taken from fresh vegetables—spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form Iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it most effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast. By this formula IRONIZED YEAST gives you results in half the time required by yeast and iron taken separately.

No wonder you get pounds of solid flesh in 2 or 3 weeks and look more attractive and youthful. Begin to get this new weight today by getting IRONIZED YEAST from the druggist. See how it tones up the blood, brings strength and richness to the blood. Ugly pimples vanish and you get a nice, healthy color. IRONIZED YEAST tablets are pleasant-tasting—60 to a bottle. Safe for everybody. Does not upset the stomach, nor cause gas or bloating.

Results from first treatment —or your money back

Get just a single course treatment from your druggist today. If you are not absolutely satisfied with the weight and health benefits, money for the bottle will be promptly refunded. If inconvenient to buy at the druggist, send $1.25 to the CANADIAN IRONIZED YEAST

POPPY DAY

IN FLANDERS FIELDS

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly;
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe;
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

—John McCrae.

The Reason of Poppy Day

Poppy Day!

What glorious thoughts come swarming to our minds when we think of Poppy Day and all that is personified in the annual celebration of that day. Deeds of highest valour, sacrifices of immortal fame; innumerable hardships—all these and more were necessary to give Poppy Day its undying significance.

When we look back upon those grim, drear years when the flower of Canada's manhood was being called beyond the seas to preserve inviolate the freedom which we enjoy, a sense of abiding sorrow cannot but fill the hearts of all those who are left behind. And were it not for the knowledge that our ever-living dead are now sleeping "In Flanders' Field, where poppies grow," an ever-present evidence of all that is noble and good in man, we would be sore perplexed.

Now, in this 9th anniversary of the Armistice which ended that bloody ordeal, how can we remember them better than in being present at the annual memorial service next Sunday to be held in the Capitol Theatre, following the parade from the Cenotaph on the grounds of the Legion. And what could be more fitting than that we should show our remembrance of those valiant ones who fell in a more tangible manifestation of our high regard than by just our presence.

It is the expressed desire of the local Legion that the Cenotaph be literally smothered beneath a covering of flowers and wreaths. Ample opportunity for the purchase of these wreaths will be given on Saturday, when loyal hearted ladies and men will be stationed throughout the city with poppies and wreaths for sale. The Examiner knows of no better way to remember this great occasion and more especially because all the funds thus obtained will be devoted to purposes of relief in Peterborough. These wreaths are made entirely and solely by disabled war veterans at the Vetcraft Shops in Toronto—by men who are absolutely dependent upon this means for their sustenance. In this way of showing our appreciation for those valiant warriors who are interred beneath the sod of a foreign country, we also provide the means of keeping alive those of them who returned too crippled to engage in any strenuous occupation.

CANADIAN LEGION HALL HERE TAKES ITS PLACE WITH BEST OF COUNTRY'S CIVIC CENTRES

Improvements Just Completed Include Most Modern Heating Apparatus.

GOOD DANCE HALL

Banquets Can Be Served In Newly Opened Hall on Top Floor.

While sauntering down Murray street, one's unspoken admiration is at once drawn to, on one side, that magnificent pile generally acknowledged as ranking par excellence among the Armouries of Canada, and directly facing it another splendid stone and brick fireproof structure which houses the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion.

Despite a less pretentious exterior, still it has an imposing appearance which attracts considerable and favourable comment. So much so in fact, that it has gained the enviable distinction of being the most completely equipped building of its kind in Canada. It has all the ear-marks of a real community centre.

Previously the old Murray Street church, it was purchased by the G.W.-V.A., reconstructed, and opened in May of 1919. Recent additions and changes have made it the most up-to-date hall in the city. Spacious, centrally located and possessing every desirable facility, it has come to be not only the meeting place of its members but the centre for all large public functions. Hardwood floors, ornate ceilings and cheery decorations throughout make an unparalleled meeting place for all kindred souls and congenial spirits. The very atmosphere seems saturated with an emanation of good fellowship and all which that signifies.

On entering the building, one is immediately put at ease by a friendly "Welcome" sign which is conspicuously hung in the roomy hallway. Passing by the well-furnished office of the secretary, one steps into the ground floor which is fitted up as a billiard room, comprising two first-class English billiard tables and one pool table. A card-room and smoker is curtained off at one end. This opens on to the reading room. The beautiful floor lamp and the upholstered furniture are the gifts of Captain P. E. Layfield. A bookcase and complete writing desk finish the furnishings, while three lovely ornamental ferns impart a final and pleasing touch.

The walls of this lower part are, appropriately enough, hung with finely framed pictures, portraits and paintings in proper keeping with the name and history of the institution. Members of the royal family and prominent figures in the military world, scenes of battle and pastoral paintings are paramount.

Originally, the heating system was composed of two hot air furnaces and small stoves. This being found both an inefficient and altogether too laborious a method, the association purchased and had installed a complete heating plant of almost ultra modern make—a super, smokeless, low-pressure steam boiler. This has made a wonderful difference in the heating of this large three-storied structure.

Adjoining the boiler room is a shower bath compartment for the convenience of such members as desire to use it.

The main floor is devoted chiefly to a bright, airy capacious auditorium which can seat 700 people should the occasion demand. Collapsible chairs are kept on hand for this purpose. A movable stage occupies the southern portion of the hall. It is furnished with a comparatively new Nordheimer piano, footlights, new sliding curtains and other stage requisites including a spot light. The whole is prettily decorated for use as a ballroom and, indeed, this has proved to be a lucrative source of revenue all the more so as the floor is admirably suited for dancing and consequently is in popular demand for all large social functions.

The adjoining anteroom is fitted out with all conveniences, including a telephone pay station. It is chiefly used for a ladies' cloakroom. The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion make it their headquarters also. Every Tuesday afternoon it is utilized by the Well Babies' Clinic whose most laudable work would be seriously handicapped, but for the generous gesture on the Legion's part in providing accommodation rent free.

Important structural alterations have been going on for the last two months and have been completed a little over a week. The kitchen on the main floor is no more. It has been changed into a men's cloakroom, and the kitchen fixtures and utensils moved to their new home on the top flat. The culinary preparations and serving will be greatly assisted by this change since it brings the food department into more convenient proximity to the scene of activity. Roomy cupboards are in position to receive a new supply of dishes which, when they arrive, will provide the means of serving close to 400 people at a time.

The generously proportioned verandah which up to a few months ago looked on the street is now closed in and converted into additional cloakrooms which now fill a long felt want. Perhaps most important of all has been the construction of a stairway leading up to the top from the main stairs at the front. Until this time the only means of access was by way of a narrow stairway at the back. Now, with the two stairways, the management will be greatly facilitated in handling the crowds and in the event of a fire in affording quick egress.

The euchre room itself is a comfortable hall with 60 tables and the required number of chairs always in position. Surplus space will permit of 40 more tables. The hall is used every Wednesday for euchre drives and dances, and the proceeds taken in at these affairs goes to the relief of the needy ex-service men of the city. Handsome euchre prizes are always on view in a fine display case.

HEAD OF LEGION

JAMES A. ABRAHAM
Recently elected President of the Peterborough Legion

COME AND JOIN US

Comrade, we'll greet you; happy to meet you;
Proud of past days when together we stood.
Our aim and our plan is to keep every man
Playing the game, for our sick comrades' good.
Men, we are brothers, but there are others
Outside our ranks; and we want them brought in.
Come and make this your task, although it may ask
That self may be sunk in an effort to win.
Officers and Non-Coms, and all ranks are welcome
All weigh the same in the scales of the cause.
With deeds as your guide, your words shall abide,
"Rank" is no status in comradeship's laws.

ROSES GROW IN CEMETERIES

Flanders Poppies Left Out of Decoration Scheme Overseas.

GO WITH CROSSES

Returning from a tour of the battlefields of France and Belgium recently a Canadian tourist made what he considered to be a startling announcement to the effect that the graves of Canadian soldiers buried in the beautiful cemeteries in the war areas were not covered with scarlet poppies but with roses. This announcement, rather than disturbing the vision recorded in deathless verse by Col. John McCrae, brought even greater contentment to the hearts of those who cherish proud memories of the men resting in that consecrated soil.

Yes, beautiful roses entwine themselves about the neat headstones which have been erected to replace the rough, wooden crosses on each soldier's grave—roses of peace. But to those "who trod the borderland of Death" memory paints a scene of nature's profuse decoration of rough mounds which were the first resting places of those comrades who paid the ultimate price in defence of those principles for which we fought. For in Flanders' field, desolation was never so great that the little red poppies could not raise their heads and cover with a scarlet blanket the destruction wrought by man's violence. And so it was in the scattered burial grounds of war-days that, beside the wooden cross upon which usually rested the steel helmet of the dead soldier and a brief description of his regimental number, name and unit, the only floral adornment was the Flanders' poppy.

It was inevitable that order and permanent should be brought to the war graves in Flanders and France. The same essentials dictated that thousands of bodies should be removed from their original burying place and congregated in large, well-supervised cemeteries. Also, it was inevitable that in the adornment of the graves, the prolific and scarcely controllable weed-flower, the poppy, should be left out of the scheme. The war-time cemeteries, the wooden crosses, the blood-red poppies have all passed from actual existence, but they remain as imperishable symbols in our memories of those who sacrificed that Right and Justice should prevail.

The following letter has been sent to all local merchants and clergymen:

"The Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, requests your kind co-operation in making this year's Armistice anniversary a real period of remembrance.

"So closely associated is the red poppy of France and Belgium with the life of Canadian troops overseas that there does not seem to be any other emblem so well fitted to call back memories of those who fell. It was among these poppies that our men fought and lived and from their graves every year spring new red blossoms that speak once again of the sacrifices they made.

"The Canadian Legion would like this year to see a poppy wreath in every store window and on every church altar or pulpit, and with confidence in the support of Peterborough clergymen and merchants we have prepared a selection for this purpose. You have the assurance of the local officers of the Legion that all proceeds of the sale of poppies will go towards the relief of needy ex-service men, and the emblems themselves are made by disabled veterans.

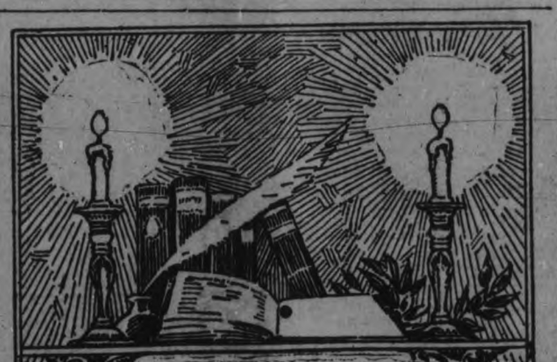
GOD SAVE THE KING



An Ideal

The Canadian Legion stands for an ideal.

Overseas, the Canadian forces were bound together in service; it was each for all and all for each. If one arm of the service was in difficulty, all the others knew that their business was to help it out. In attack and defence they were perfectly co-ordinated.

The Legion believes that the same spirit can be brought into civilian life; that the need of a comrade demands a helping hand from all others; that Canadian ex-service men can be united and strong in civilian life as they were united and irresistible in war.

Even if the ideal is never achieved, those who are striving toward it will be the better for the effort.

WOMEN WORK WITH LEGION

Peterborough Branch of Auxiliary is Energetic and Efficient.

SOME EFFORTS

Just as the women of the world worked hand in hand with the men during the days of War, when they brought their feminine contribution of sympathy and tenderness and healing to the task of caring for the racked victims of strife, so they have worked, also hand in hand, since the Armistice was declared. While their aid in war times was one of imminent haste, their endeavors nowadays are of a remedial type, when other matters besides physical wounds and the woes of lonely men waiting in the trenches for letters and socks and home-made goodies, have to be considered.

The soldiers came back to a different world from the horizon to which they marched in the days when they went forth at first as gallant and eager recruits, and later, as driven by the lash of the draft. They were not the same, either in body or spirit or mental outlook, and the task of binding up spiritual and mental hurts, as well as the more obvious physical abrasions, fell to the lot of the women who waited for them.

And they have rallied nobly to the fray. Right bower to the Canadian Legion itself is the Women's Auxiliary, which has a local very energetic branch. Here, as in other towns and cities of the Dominion, the women have done their work since the war ended. They have helped and encouraged and assisted the men who came back, and they have looked after their families. Food for the women and children, employment, whenever possible, for the men, amusement and recreation and educational assistance for the growing boys and girls, these have all been aided and abetted by the women of the Auxiliary. In the many ways that women know of, they have gathered money, by concerts, by bazaars, by sales of various sorts, and they have used the money for the comfort and help of the men who fought for Canada. Whether those men occupy six feet of earth in a foreign land or whether they were lucky enough to come back to those who waited for them, they know, either in spirit or in fact, that their wives and children will not be forgotten by the women of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion.

Great Britain has a gigantic juggernaut field tank equipped with 10 machine guns, two six-pound rapid-firing guns mounted in half turrets and a platoon of sharpshooters. These war machines, manned by 14 soldiers, travel at a speed of 30 miles an hour on rough ground.

The army making the greatest racket in war in China usually wins. The noise is relied on for two effects. First, to frighten the enemy, and, second, to comfort the firers of machine guns and artillery.

Upwards of 1000 new gases have been developed since the World War.

History of the Cenotaph

THE only memorial that stands in Peterborough to-day in commemoration of those who made the supreme sacrifice "over there" is the cenotaph at the Legion headquarters. It lacks ornate decoration, but its very simplicity touches one's inmost feelings. Symmetrically beautiful in its design, it seems to personify the spirit of willing sacrifice. The iron sword inset gives a hint of the mailed might of war, and the harrowing experiences suffered under his regime.

Strangely enough it remained for the Great War Veterans' Association to promote the erection of this silently standing recognition of their brothers in arms who did not return. Now that time has assuaged the bitterness of those fearsome days, citizens should not be neglectful of their duty. As the wide-stretching graveyards of France are full of sentiment, can they not in some small measure wreath the Cenotaph so that its spirit lives once more, strong and undiminished as ever?

It is to be wondered how many people who will be present at the memorial services on Sunday will recollect some of the outstanding features attendant at the unveiling of the monument on the seventh of November, 1921. The presence of Brigadier-General W. B. M. King lent the scene a special significance, but more than anything else will go ringing down the avenues of time the words of Captain Rollins expressed on that occasion. "In our thoughtless fashion," he said, "we speak of the men who died as those who fell. They are the men who rose."

2ND VICE-PRESIDENT

REV PAUL COSTELLO
The new Second Vice-President of the Legion in Peterborough

Secretary S. Whatley Writes History of Branch for Examiner Readers.

STANDS ALONE

All Kinds of Services Performed for Returned Soldiers by Organization.

The history of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Legion is briefly as follows, and one of which to be proud. The first association of returned men in Peterborough was formed in November, 1916, and was known as the "Peterborough Returned Soldiers' Club." The first President was Sgt. P. Victor (2nd Battalion). Associated with him was R. H. Muir as vice-President and T. R. Cooper, Secretary. Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman was largely responsible for its formation by assisting it financially and obtaining the first quarters in Victoria Hall.

Early in 1917, the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada was organized, but later became absorbed in the larger organization. The first President, P. Victor was followed by H. J. Staunton, A. S. Morrison, R. H. Muir, H. J. Staunton, 1921, 1922 and 1923; Dr. N. H. Sutton, Captain R. E. Layfield, Major G. G. Winterbotham, Captain J. Abraham finished the last portion of the years as President of the G.W.V.A. before the amalgamation in 1926.

In 1918 it was felt that larger quarters were needed and rooms were secured over Moncur's Drug Store, which proved adequate until demobilization took place and the return of hundreds of members swelled the ranks of the organization.

In 1919 a committee was formed under the guidance of R. E. Layfield to secure more adequate quarters, a grant of $10,000 being made by the City Council to this end. A further $10,000 was raised by public subscription. The present splendid building was secured, second to none in the Dominion, a lasting memorial to the wonderful efforts of R. E. Layfield, a strong and faithful henchman in the returned soldiers' cause since his return from overseas in 1918, and who has been associated with the organization through out in all phases of its activities.

The Ladies' Auxiliary was formed in 1917, and has been assidous in work pertaining to the welfare of ex-service men and their families.

In 1920 the annual Convention of the Ontario Command of the G.W.V.A. was held in the hall, the first time that a Convention had been held in a building owned and controlled by a local branch.

In 1926, when the organization of the Canadian Legion took place, Peterborough ex-service men took their third step, advancing in line with the remainder of Canada into unity. Since that time the membership has steadily increased. Among the activities of the local branch are the annual Church Parade and the Decoration Parades. The former is held on the Sunday nearest to the anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres, in which so many of the Peterborough boys gave up their lives. The latter are held on suitable Sundays in early summer to the Protestant and Roman Catholic Cemeteries, when flowers and flags are placed on the graves of deceased comrades.

The local branch has to a great extent been self-supporting and independent of the Provincial and Dominion Commands. They have never used the main Commands for the purpose of propaganda, the raising of funds or similar objects. They have not participated in the numerous Government grants made by the Dominion or Provincial Governments. It has maintained a paid Secretary, who looks after the interest of the branch; it has discouraged the formation of a multitude of soldiers' organizations or clubs, and has looked after the interest of all returned men and their dependents, or the widows and dependents of deceased comrades, whether members or not.

The local branch did not receive one dollar of the Provincial Grants of 1923-24, or the Dominion Government, amounting to some $50,000 or more. We have the proud record that not a single soldier of the Imperial, Canadian, American or Allied forces have been buried in Potter's Field, but have had as far as practicable, a soldier's funeral and have been buried in fitting parts of either of our two cemeteries.

The local branch through its secretary and president, is represented in all community associations or efforts, such as the Mothers' Allowance Commission, Children's Aid Society, Athletic Association, Peterborough Charity Board, etc.

The secretary appears at the civil court cases in which soldiers and their dependents are interested. He assists in the settling of estates of members and their dependents, and has oftimes acted as their executor or been appointed by the Crown as trustee in the settlement of estates. He attends Police Court or other court proceedings, where returned men or their families are interested, and he investigates and looks after claims in regard to pensions, disabilities, hospital and medical for all returned men, whether members of the Canadian Legion or not. last ten years he has been successful in the recovery or settlement of over $1,000,000.00 in claims of this nature.

As an example, quite recently four cases have been adjusted that have been repeatedly submitted to the B.P.C. but in each case repudiated on the grounds that the death of the pensioner was in no way attributable to service, or the disability of the claimant due to war service.

(A) The death of this comrade took place early in 1920, leaving a wife and children. The case was submitted, rejected, persistently followed up and brought before the Appeal Board, the case entirely presented through the auspices of the local branch. As a result pension was ultimately granted; pension paid retroactive to the time of death. Amount of pension cheque, $5,000; with further monthly payments approximating $100 per month.

(B) Pensioner discharged in 1917 with severe bronchial trouble, made claim for pension in 1918, but was refused. Tuberculosis developed and further representation made to B.P.C. Still refused consideration, this case was fought for some seven years. Finally, the condition grew worse. Sanitorium treatment was granted. Discharged as incurable his pension was conceded, and he received a cheque for approximately $2,000. Five months after, this comrade became another martyr to the cause of his country and Empire, but died happy in the thought that through the efforts of the organization, that the future of his wife and family was assured.

(C) This pensioner's case is similar to the foregoing, having been fought since 1919. Repeated refusals on the part of the B.P.C. to concede entitlement only brought more repeated efforts on the part of the Canadian Legion to substantiate the claim. This was ultimately effected within the past two months—and as a result the claimant has or will receive a cheque well within the reach of the $1,000 mark.

(D) Another example is that of a pensioner who has been totally disabled since his discharge in 1918. He received the pension until 1923, but for some reason or other it was discontinued. Repeated efforts were made to secure reinstatement, but without avail; this case has at last received full consideration and been again taken back on the strength of the B.P.C. to where it rightly belongs. There are many such cases on the fyles of the branch awaiting adjustment, and as time passes there must be inevitably more.

The Canadian Legion is at all times at the service of our city and county and are called upon to carry out all kinds of services for returned men. We have the happiest relations with the Provincial and City Police, aiding with cases where soldiers or their families are affected.

Peterborough City and County enlisted nearly 4,000 soldiers for the Great War, and some 1,000 or more ex-service men have at times made Peterborough their headquarters since the Armistice. Peterborough soldiers to the number of nearly five hundred made the supreme sacrifice and a large number have died since then. No later than yesterday a representation from the branch laid to rest the mortal remains of the late Comrade Crouter.

Since 1917 this branch have looked after and alleviated a vast amount of distress and are continuing to do so. Over $15,000 alone has been paid out in relief and in all its phases since the inauguration of the returned soldier movement.

During its first years as a branch of the Canadian Legion and under the capable leadership of Comrade C. H. Ackerman, ably supported by Comrade J. Abraham and the whole of the executive, much progress was made. The first annual Convention of the Provincial Council of the Legion was held in the local rooms and much activity was displayed throughout the year.

At the annual election of officers which took place last month the retiring president thanked the members for their support during his tenure of office and bespoke the same for his successor during the ensuing year. Comrade J. Abraham, the 1st vice-president last year was unanimously elected as president with Dr. Sutton and Rev. Captain Paul Costello, the two vice-presidents. "Jim" has had considerable experience in the work during the past four years, has been Chairman of the Relief Committee, besides being actively connected with other social activities throughout the city. He looks forward with the support of his officers and an influx of new members to make 1928 a banner year.

Much could be said about the aims and objects of the Canadian Legion, but space will not permit at present, but the slogan of all, without exception, should be "STAND TOGETHER," every man who served overseas with the Canadian Corps or fought in France or other fronts in any unit of the British Army should feel a great pride in the fact that he "did his bit." The men of the Salient, of the Somme, of Jutland and Dogger Bank, of Zeebrugge, of Vimy and of the brilliant victories of the Last Hundred Days are justified in feeling that their individual contribution had something to do with the final results. Time can only serve to strengthen this pride of achievement.

But Comrades, the clarion call for further service is sounding. Are you content to sit back and live with the memories of the past? Will you not with those thousands of your comrades translate your war service and achievements into peace-time actions that will go for a happier and more prosperous Canada and a greater Empire?

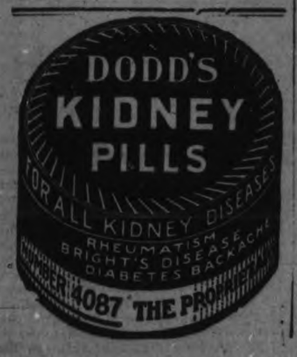
To-day the opportunity for this greater service lies at your hand. Join the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League in the building up of a strong, united organization of all war veterans, an organization that is pledged not only to safeguard the interests of the disabled, dependent and needy, and to hold sacred the memory of those comrades who did not survive the conflict, but which is also committed to a programme of national unity and development, a programme of Empire solidarity and world peace.

In the Canadian Legion there must be no East or West, no racial or sectional divisions. It must be one united entity; it must be strong and vigorous and its future strength must depend upon the membership it gathers. In the shadow of this Armistice celebration let every ex-service men pledge himself to again take up the torch and become a member of the greatest of all war veterans' organizations!

1ST DELORO TROOP BOY SCOUTS.

MARMORA, Nov. 4.—Last week saw the close of the practice competition for October, the new patrol, the Otters, being winners by over fifteen points, with the Rams and the Bulls running close as second and third respectively. An individual competition was also held and resulted in Patrol Leader Lawrence Pacquet being winner with Patrol Leader Norman Smith a mere point behind. Only four boys out of the fifteen competing, gained less than the average, indicating a hard fought contest. Two of the boys were awarded the minimum points for progress as they did not show as much initiative as the rest. Now that most of the scouts have passed their second class tests, their further advancement will be chiefly the result of their own initiative.

At the meeting held on Tuesday evening the Otter patrol surprised everybody by collecting the competition for patrol drill. After some practice for the coming concert, some first aid and signalling work, the troop lined up for games. The Eagle patrol made 6 points, the Loon patrol 5 and the other patrol 4. Next week should see some real competition, as the Otter patrol have a lead already and it will be difficult to pull them back.



ALL PREMIERS OPPOSED TO ABOLITION OF SENATE

Ottawa Conference Considers Possible Measures To Improve Chamber.

B.N.A. ISSUE TO-DAY.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 4.— (Canadian Press.)—Senate reform views of the nine Provinces expressed at yesterdays Provincial Premiers' conference will be given careful cognizance by the Dominion Government. This was the declaration of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, late yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of discussion on the subject.

Unanimous opposition to the abolition of the red chamber —coupled with practical unanimity against the principle of an elective Senate — were voiced. Four other suggestions were considered: (1) A combination of both the appointive and elective principles, (2) A fixed and limited term of office, ((3) An age limit with possible superannuation, and (4) The bringing of relations between the Canadian and Upper and Lower Chambers into accord with the relations between the House of Commons and the House of Lords in Great Britain, with respect to vetoing or amending money or general public bills. In the discussion of many of these latter proposals a conflict of opinion developed.

Earlier in the deliberations, it was decided to refer the question of the jurisdiction of the Federal authorities over aircraft and operations to the Supreme Court of Canada for adjudication.

To-day the question of procedure in amending the British North America Act was to be under consideration.

A series of social functions constituted part of the agenda for the opening day. Late yesterday afternoon, the city of Ottawa tendered a reception to the Provincial delegates. In the evening, a state dinner was given in the Parliament Buildings by the Dominion Government followed by a reception in the Hall of Fame attended by the capital's "official list.'

Official Statement

The official statement handed out last night on the afternoon deliberations reads:

"The Dominion-Provincial conference devoted its entire afternoon session today to an extensive and highly diversified discussion of the subject of Senate reform. While on the question of 'abolishing' the Senate, the members of the conference were unanimous in opposition, and while there was practically unanimity as against the principle of an elective Senate, there was considerable conflict of opinion on many of the other suggestions of reform which have been common currency in the Dominion for many years past, and which are continually cropping up in Parliament and elsewhere.

"The discussion, in which the Premiers of all the provinces participated, and which was introduced by a historical review presented by Hon Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice was carried on a very high plane, and indicated that delegates had given careful thought and much original attention to the much-vexed question. At the conclusion of the discussion Mr. Lapointe stated that the Government would take careful cognizance of the views put forward.

"To-morrow the conference will undertake consideration of item 2 of the agenda, which deals with 'procedure in amending the British North America Act.'

Question for Provinces

"In introducing the question of Senate reform this afternoon Mr. Lapointe stated that the Government had virtually been instructed by the House of Commons on March 9, 1925, to submit the question to a provincial conference. The resolution passed on that date was to the effect that the Senate as at present constituted was not of the greatest advantage to Canada, and that the question of amending the British North America Act in respect to the powers and constitution of the Upper Chamber should be submitted to a conference. This resolution was carried by a vote of 120 to 39. During the same session there was a paragraph in the speech from the Throne referring to the matter.

"The Minister in his review cited the many and varied proposals which had been made from time to time with respect to the Upper House. Among these proposals were: First, abolition; second, the adoption of the elective principle direct or indirect; third, a combination of both the appointive and elective principles; fourth, a fixed and limited term of office; fifth, an age limit with possible superannuation; and sixth, a bringing of relations between Canadian Upper and Lower Chambers into accord with the relations between the House of Commons and the House of Lords in Great Britain. This latter has reference to the powers of the Upper House in the matter of vetoing or amending money or general public bills.

"It may be stated that the question of abolition had not a single backer in the conference. A comparatively small body of opinion favored some change which might bring the Upper Chamber more closely in contact with the electorate, though this was regarded as at variance with the British system of government, upon which the Canadian system is based. With respect to fixed term of office and an age limit, there was a wide divergence of opinion, these proposals not being generally regarded as vital when the question of reform is being considered.

The British System

"The British system, under which in 1911 the powers of the House of Lords with respect to money and general bills initiated and passed in the representative Chamber were restricted, was discussed at considerable length during the conference; while reference was also made to the system existing in the other Dominions of the Empire. Throughout the discussion the right of the Provinces to be consulted on such an important matter as this was frequently emphasized. While there was a strong body of opinion in favor of any reforms which might strengthen the general machinery of Parliament, there was no attempt on the part of any speaker to minimize the value of a second Chamber.

"Frank and candid views were expressed by all the speakers present.

"The conference adjourned until to-morrow at 10.30."

EMPIRE FREE TRADE PLEASING TO TORIES

They Like Mond's Proposal of Economic Union Inside Empire.

LONDON, Nov. 4 (United Press).—Sir Alfred Mond's plea for Free Trade within the Empire and a general tariff against the rest of the world is heartily welcomed in Conservative circles. His declaration: "Give me the Empire as a trade territory and I will produce more than the Americans ever dreamed of," finds a responsive echo among Conservative members of Parliament. It is known that the Hon. Mr. Amory has long held similar views, particularly with regard to competition with the United States.

In his recent appeal, Sir Alfred Mond says, "Great Britain must choose between joining the economic union of Europe or creating an imperial economic union." It is extremely probable that this cry will be taken up vigorously by the Conservatives as against the Liberal attempt to restore complete free trade.

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 7

It is an interesting angle of the game of Auction Bridge that although the informatory double is now an old story in this country, it is just being recognized and played in England. For many years the English players refused even to consider its adoption and all sorts of objections were raised to it, but now these objectors seem to have become converted and the informatory double has obtained an enthusiastic and widespread popularity. Naturally, many questions have arisen as to its application and as some of these are very much to the point, the following are submitted for the consideration of our readers. An analysis of each hand will be given in the next article.

Problem No. 7

Y: Hearts — 9; Clubs — K, J, 8, 2
A B: Diamonds — K, Q, 3
Z: Spades — J, 9, 8, 5, 4

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one spade. If A doubled one spade (informatory), and Y passed, what should B bid? He has a choice of two clubs or one no-trump. What would you do?

Problem No. 8

Hearts — K, 7, 6, 2
Clubs — A, Q, 10
Diamonds — K, Q, 4, 3
Spades — K, 6

Y: A B: Z:

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump. A doubled, Y passed and B bid two spades. If Z passed, what should A bid? Should he pass or bid two no-trump? Think it over.

Problem No. 9

Y: A B: Z:

Hearts — 10, 9, 8
Clubs — A, K, Q, 4
Diamonds — 7, 3
Spades — K, 10, 4, 2

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one club, A bid one spade, Y doubled and B passed. What should Z bid? Should he regard the double of one spade as informatory or as a business double? In either case, what should he do? Think this over carefully for it is a situation where there are conflicting view-points.

Just to vary the thought, here is a problem as to the proper opening lead:

Problem No. 10

Hearts — K, 7, 3
Clubs — Q, J, 10, 9, 7
Diamonds — 9, 7
Spades — 8, 5, 2

Y: A B: Z:

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump. A and Y passed and B bid two spades. If Z bid two no-trump and all passed, what should A open? Should he lead his partner's spade suit or take a chance on his own club suit? Think it over.

Problem No. 11

Hearts — A, J
Clubs — 8, 7, 6, 3
Diamonds — A, K, 10, 9, 8, 7, 3
Spades — none

Y: A B: Z:

Hearts — K, Q, 10, 9, 8, 4
Clubs — 10
Diamonds — Q
Spades — 10, 8, 4, 3, 2

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one heart, (a questionable bid). A bid one spade, Y two diamonds and B two spades. Z and A passed and Y bid three hearts. B and Z passed and A bid three spades, Y bid four diamonds, B passed and Z bid four hearts. All passed and A opened the king of clubs and all followed suit. A then led the seven of hearts. How should Z plan the play of the hand? Solution in the next article.

Answer to Problem No. 6

Hearts — A, K, Q, J
Clubs — A, 4
Diamonds — 9, 2
Spades — 10, 9, 8, 7, 6

Y: A B: Z:

Hearts — 4
Clubs — J, 7, 6, 2
Diamonds — Q, J, 5, 4, 3
Spades — A, Q,

No score, first game. Z dealt and passed. A passed, Y bid one heart and B passed. Z now bid one no-trump, all passed and A opened the trey of hearts. How should Z play the hand so that he can score game against any defense? The lead of the trey of hearts shows that A has five hearts at most. Z should, therefore, play four rounds of hearts from dummy (Y's hand) and on the last three discard the ace, queen, jack of spades. He should then lead the ten of spades from Y's hand and force the play of the king. His spade suit is thus established and Y's hand has the ace of clubs as a re-entry.

Played in this way, Y-Z cannot lose more than one spade, one heart and two diamond tricks, and, therefore must score game. It is an instructive little problem so note carefully. It is very easy to lose game if the high spades in Z's hand are not discarded. Play it out for practice, placing the king of spades in A's hand and have him lead a club when he wins the spade trick.

HEALTH STAMPS WILL BE MAILED

To Be Sent Out Shortly—Will Be Sold For One Cent Each.

The Health Stamps will soon be here. They will soon be mailed out to the list of names prepared by a committee of the Health Association. If you receive a letter with a hundred Health Stamps in it don't hesitate a minute, but just enclose a dollar in the addressed return envelope which will accompany the stamps, and return it to the Health Association. The Health Stamps serve a dual purpose. They not only give your holiday mail a bright appearance, but they provide funds to carry on the campaign against disease, by means of prevention and education.

The proceeds of the Health Stamps are used in our own community. Among the many things that Health Stamps do are:

They furnish money to fight disease.

They help the afflicted to secure proper care and attention.

They guard the healthy.

They provide nurses who teach health to thousands of children and give continuous supervision to those who are predisposed to disease.

They provide headquarters where anyone may be examined free of charge.

They provide milk for undernourished school children who can not afford to pay for it themselves.

They throw wide the door to happiness and security.

The results are distinctly shown in Peterborough. In districts where health habits have been taught by means of the Health Crusade, promoted by the Peterborough Health Association, the number and length of absences from school on account of preventable illness and physical defects have been steadily reduced. The number of the children who have poor reports on account of time lost, is being gradually lessened. These results represent to the tax payers a saving of money invested in the upkeep of schools and teachers' salaries. When you are given the opportunity to purchase a dollar's worth of Stamps, just remember what the dollar is going to be used for and send it with a smile.

STUDENTS SPEAK AT TABERNACLE

Group of Twelve From Bible Institute Here on Sunday.

Sunday will be an unusual day in Bethany Tabernacle. The three services of the day will be so planned to make the Annual School Day a great day of blessing and creating interest in the preparation of young people for service in the Lord's work. There will be present to represent the School, "The Canadian Bible Institute" in Toronto, twelve students; Dr. E. R. Hooper, the principal; Mr. H. R. Pannabecker, the registrar, and Mr. L. Watson, teacher and Superintendent of the Alliance Work in Ontario.

The services will be given over entirely to the school group. The programme will be varied with stirring heart messages from several students. Others will recount the victories they have won through faith when they were in need of funds, etc. There will be special messages, songs, and instrumental numbers. The music of the day will be under the direction of Mr. H. R. Pannabecker, registrar and teacher of music.

The services will at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. All are invited to come and enjoy this day with this splendid company of consecrated, spirit-filled young people and their instructors.

DEER HAS "RHINO" HORN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—Some curious prank of nature has given one of the deer in Yosemite National Park a horn like a rhinoceros. The freak growth projects through the roof of its upper jaw, halfway between nose and eyes. The deer is very tame, but disappears once a year to shed both his antlers and the strange middle horn.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS ADDRESS ON VOCATIONS

A. F. Hagerman Deals Chiefly With Vocational Guidance.

CHOICE OF CAREER.

Several Musical Items Add To Program at Weekly Luncheon.

The Kiwanis Club luncheon to-day was the scene of much levity. President I. P. McNabb turned the chairmanship over to Walter H. Kidd. Naturally it was a foregone conclusion that there would be quite a bit of kidding. There was. Everybody had a "fine" time.

Two lady guests, Mrs. Harry Dickin and Miss Margaret Brown, proved to be a paying asset as those fortunate gentlemen who enjoyed their proximity were fined for the privilege. Not even the clergy escaped. Rev. Douglas Paterson was fined for his resolutions.

George Liddle, organist at George Street United Church, and late of Lindsay, was welcomed to the club as a guest and officiated at the piano during the sing-songs. James Turnbull was a guest.

William Merrell gave a report of the Lindsay trip last evening. Altogether there were twenty-nine members who attended the amateur theatrical staged by the Lindsay Kiwanis Club. In their opinion it was the best and cleverest play put on by local talent that they had ever had the pleasure of seeing. The presentation of the play was absolutely flawless, the visitors said.

Terry McGovern was booster for the day and presented three bags of Monarch pastry flour of varying sizes. No doubt this was just his interpretation of "saying it with flours," or perhaps a chance for the lucky recipients to make some "dough" on the side. Charlie Cummer was the jubilant winner of the first sack, with Harry Huffman and Rev. Douglas Paterson second and third respectively.

Miss M. Brown, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, was then introduced by Harry Dickin as one of the most talented musicians of the country. She favoured the club with two marvellous piano solos. The astonishing ease and dexteritly with which she played the intricate passages, the faultless technique and the softness and eloquence of her touch immediately classed her as an artiste of more than passing note.

Miss Brown's concluding number was received with a burst of applause. And to show the appreciation of the club, Terry McGovern presented her with a beautiful bouquet of roses.

The speaker of the day was A. F. Hagerman, teacher of manual training in the Normal and Central Schools of this city For his subject he chose that phase of vocational training known as vocational guidance. Commenting on this, he said that it was a question that has been in the minds of men since the days of Plato, that eminent ancient who advocated a person being trained for that line of work in which he shows a particular aptitude.

Outlining the stages of advance in character analysis, he pointed out the error of certain types which claim to be the best for determining that line of vocation for which a man is best suited. The best way, he opined, was what is known as behavioristic psychology. That is a process whereby from time to time a person's habits, inclinations, and abilities are kept track of until a commonsense diagnosis of what should be his proper vocation may be determined.

Since no two people react in the same way to a set teaching, an effort should be made to train them along those paths of knowledge which will eventually lead to the point where the person thus trained will be of the best service of society and himself. The weakness of the present educational system is that the same general curriculum of studies is taught to all the pupils, irrespective of whether the pupil is naturally able to assimilate such teaching to his best advantage.

Queen's Park Plaza Bonds Are Offered To Investors

An offering of the unsold portion of $600,000, 6½% General Mortgage Gold Bonds of the Queen's Park Plaza is being made by the investment house of Ramsay, Stewart & Co., Toronto. The bonds are being offered to yield approximately 7% and purchasers of these bonds may acquire common stock up to 50% of their holdings.

The Queen's Park Plaza, a fifteen storey fireproof residential hotel, is now in the course of construction on the northwest corner of Bloor and Avenue Road, and will face Queen's Park. It will afford a wide range of suites and rooms, equipped with every modern convenience. On the ground floor will be located a number of high class specialty shops and stores, most of which have been leased at attractive rentals over a period of years to thoroughly reliable tenants. The second floor is to contain one of the finest and most modern cafes, serving not only the guests of the hotel, but the general public. Private dining rooms and salons, suitable for dancing and private entertainments, will also be located in the building. On the lower floor will be located a high class coffee shop, beauty parlor, valeteria, tonsorial shop and shoe-shining parlor.

A thoroughly experienced hotel manager will be in charge and the Board of Directors are all prominent business men.

The land, building, furniture and equipment have been appraised by John Stark & Co., valuators, Toronto, at $2,217,093, which gives a surplus over and above the first mortgage of $1,342,093 or twice the amount of the general mortgage bond issue of $600,000 presently outstanding, and a surplus of $742,093 applicable to the 50,000 shares of common stock. The net earnings of the Queen's Park Plazza for the first full year of operation, after making allowance for vacancies, all operating and management charges are estimated at $221,058. The forecasted net earnings, after providing for interest and amortization of the first mortgage, shows sufficient surplus to pay interest on the general mortgage bonds at 6½%, over three times, and provide both the interest and the amount payable on the general mortgage bonds annually about 2½ times and will consequently provide sufficient to pay a substantial dividend on the common shares.

It is planned to have the lower floors and business space ready for occupancy about April 5th, 1928, and the entire completion of the upper floors will continue without interruption.

Copper Buying Features Irregular Market To-day

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.— (Canadian Press.) — Heavy buying of copper shares featured the irregular course of prices in to-day's market. Motors turned weak when fresh liquidation developed in Hudson in the early afternoon. Calumet and Arizona's gain of five points, and the establishment of new 1927 high by Magma were bright spots in the Copper group. American Tobacco issues soared to new high records on the announcement of record breaking sales. American Can, American Linseed, Abraham and Straus, Woolworth, and Pittsburgh Coal also were active on the up side. Rails were rather quiet.

Wheat Prices Drop As Shipments Arrive

CHICAGO, November 4 (Canadian Press). — Wheat prices underwent an early setback to-day, influenced by the selling of wheat into store here and by the arrival of another shipload from Duluth. Opening unchanged to ¼c off, wheat later sagged all around. Corn, oats, and provisions were firm, corn starting unchanged to ¼c higher and subsequently holding near to the initial figures.

Opening prices were:

Wheat, December 125⅞, March 129¼. Corn, December 83¼, March 87. Oats, December 48¾, March 50¼.

Movements Erratic; Mine Market Active

TORONTO, Ont., November 4 (Canadian Press). — Price movements were erratic in an intensely active session of the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, when the volume of sales again topped the million share market. The active and strong leaders were Area with a two point gain at 44, Argonaut up nearly two at 38¾, and Jackson Manion. The weaker section of the list followed substantial declines in Lake Shore, which lost 40 at 25.60, Amulet down six at 484, and Macassa down 5½ at 52. Many issues recorded slight losses.

Activity In Trading On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, November 4. — Canadian Press. — Farmers' Dairy, Canadian Canners, Christie, Brown and Loblaw Stores held the centre of the stage on this morning's active market on the Toronto stock exchange. Farmers' Dairy dropped to 225 on sales of 151 shares. Canadian Canners reached the high mark of 75, closing 1-8 lower for a net advance of 4 7-8 points. Christie Brown was up 3¼ to 72¼ and Loblaw 3 to 85. British American Oil was again the active leader and reached a new high at 35, closing fractionally lower for a gain of 5-8. The only decline of any importance was recorded by Walkers, which sagged a point to 60.

MARMORA NEWS

ST. PAUL'S, MARMORA.

Marmora, Nov. 3.—"Passable Perfection" was the subject chosen by the Rector, Rev. A. B. Caldwell, at St. Paul's on Sunday morning. Choosing Matt. 5, 48, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect," the reverend gentleman, in his opening remarks, said: "The text is one we would like to leave alone. Feeling it to be one of the transcendant calls of Christ, above the lot of ordinary folk, we quietly ignore it. In fact, when we read the Sermon on the Mount, the tendency is to regard its precepts as not being possible of translation into daily life and conduct. Is not this a fatal mistake for us to make, when we consider that our Lord and Saviour is a sane and reasonable man? He never demands the impossible. He would not ask us to be perfect if it were not possible."

Continuing, the Rev. Caldwell remarked: "We shrink from the text because it has the word 'perfect' in it. We must realise that it contains two great words. The word 'Father' is first and foremost, second to which is the word 'perfect.' The Father is to be the first thought of in relation to the text because we take Him as our example.

Every new relationship implies new responsibilities. In meeting them we must face them as men. Perfection is a new relationship of soul which Christ has revealed and made plain to us. Are we willing because we have accepted or are accepted to pay the price? Christ has opened up a new conception of fatherhood and motherhood that has taken us into realms of self-sacrifice and devotion. As life widens, we see its inspiration and responsibilities more and more. A man in accepting Christ must accept the responsibilities and obligations. We must learn to be perfect, even as our Father in heaven is perfect. We are summoned not to live as man would live but as God lives. The ideal set before us in this life is that we should become divine. We say that the most reverent thing is worship. Perfection of worship is imitation of the worshipped. The sum of religion is the imitation of the God whom we worship. Real worship is the growing of the heart towards God. We must not idly wait for our perfection to come. The effort towards perfection must come from our side."

Marmora Male Voice Quartette sang impressively without organ accompaniment "I've Found a Friend" and "Jesus, Comfort Me."

KEENE CHURCH READY FOR USE

Rev. T. A. Rodger Will Preach at Opening of New Presbyterian Edifice.

Keene Presbyterian Church, the corner stone of which was laid a few months ago, has been completed and is now a fine stone edifice seating close to 400 people. To mark the opening of the church, which takes place on Sunday, special service have been arranged, followed by a fowl supper on Monday.

The speaker on Sunday will be the Rev. T. A. Rodger of Toronto, who is known as a preacher of eloquence and power. Mrs. Wood of Toronto, Mr. Maycock of Warkworth, and singers from St. Paul's Church Choir of this city will assist in the musical part of the service.

Walter McCleary, B.A., student pastor, who is at present in charge of this church, has worked hard to bring the congregation to its present status. The new building is well equipped, and the basement contains a most up-to-date Sunday School.

International Union To Be One Recognized

TORONTO, Ont., November 4 (Canadian Press). — Recognition by the contractors of only one agreement, that agreement being with the United or International Union of Carpenters, is the proposed basis of settlement of the building trades strike in Toronto, says a Toronto paper to-day. It adds that the new order of things, if approved, will come into effect with the expiration at the end of the year of the contractors' agreement with the Amalgamated, or solely Canadian, Union of Carpenters.

VARICOSE VEINS REDUCED OR MONEY BACK SAY DRUGGISTS

This Simple Home Treatment Giving Amazing Results.

The world progresses. Today ailments that took weeks to treat can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is also a marvelous healing agent.

One application for instance stops the itching of eczema, and a few applications cause the eruptions to dry up, scale off and completely disappear. It is equally as effective in barber's itch, salt rheum, redness and inflammatory skin trouble.

People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of eczema, ulcers, or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you. Bond's Drug Store, C. M. Moncur, Bert McLeod, McDermid Drug Co., Ltd., McDermid & Jury sells lots of it.

"HAM AN'" RULES.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Ham and eggs, better known as "ham an'—" is still the great American dish. Reports taken from hotels, dining cars and restaurants show that this savory, typical American dish is still the favorite breakfast.

Hagen Wins Semi-Finalist Position in Tourney

ARMOUR LOSES OUT IN BATTLE FOR PRO CROWN

Hagen Eliminates American and Canadian Champion 4 and 3.

SARAZEN OUT

Matched Today with Al. Espinosa, the Wily Chicagoian Golfer.

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, Dallas, Texas, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—In a classic battle of champions, Walter Hagen conquered Tommy Armour yesterday for a semi-finalist position in his fight to regain for the fifth time the titular laurels of the Professional Golfers' Association.

Hagen, the defending pre-champion, demonstrated once more his abilities when under fire, in eliminating the American and Canadian open champion, 4 and 3.

To-day Hagen will match strokes against Al Espinosa, the wily Chicagoan, who defeated Morte Dutra of Tacoma, Wash. Dutra went down gamely, losing his match one down on the 36th green after a sensational rally in which he won seven holes in a row.

Joe Turness of Elmsford, N.Y., and John Golden of Patterson, N.J., are the other semi-finalists. Turness eliminated Gene Sarazen of New York, former open champion, 3 and 2, and Golden turned back Francis Gallet of Wauwautosa, Wis., 4 and 2. Golden traded the lead all day with Gallet and finally pulled ahead on the last nine holes.

Hagen triumphed over Armour by getting an early lead and hanging out doggedly, matching the open champion shot for shot and finally running him out of holes by halving the sixteenth when he was dormie three.

The break in the match came on the fourth green in the morning round, when Armour stymied himself after taking the third to be one up. On the fourth green Armour and Hagen both had fairly easy putts for four, but Armour was away and above the cup. His putt missed the cup and rolled behind Hagen's ball for a dead stymie which he failed to pitch over.

Break Cost Match.

The break cost Tommy any chance he might have had of beating the deadly Hagen, for Armour found a trap on the next hole and was unable to beat the birdie two which Walter achieved at number six with a 30-foot putt. Armour continued to be wild at the seventh, hooking to the rough behind trees, muffing his out in the foliage, and taking a five to give Hagen his fourth straight hole and make him three up.

Taking full advantage of this moment of unsteadiness, Hagen played unbeatable golf the remainder of the match, counteracting any momentary lapses in his game with streaks of inspired brilliance which kept Tommy down under. Armour worked the count against him to one hole by winning the ninth and the twelfth, but Hagen birdied the thirteenth to go two up, halved the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth and then birdied the seventeenth and eighteenth to finish the morning round four up.

In the afternoon Armour reduced his handicap to two holes by winning the 24th and 25th with pars, but Hagen won the 27th and 30th to go four up again, and then both shot four birdies in a row to finish the match at the thirty-third.

One of the largest galleries that ever saw a match in Texas followed the Hagen-Armour match, and at times formed a circle of humanity from the tee to the green and back again.

Unable to Gain Lead.

Turness, like Hagen, won his match by running his opponent out of holes. Sarazen succeeded in squaring the match several times, but was unable to gain a lead on Turness at any time. Turness had a 75 in the morning round, and was headed for a 74 in the afternoon, while Sarazen had to be satisfied with 76 in the morning and had a chance for the same figure in the afternoon.

Dutra, in his match with Espinosa, was six down at the sixteenth tee in the morning, but he shot a birdie, a par and a birdie to regain three holes. Starting the afternoon round, he collected three more birdies and forced Espinosa to concede a hole before the Chicago veteran could check him.

Dutra was one up at the 22nd, but Espinosa won the next three to go two up. Dutra won the 26th and they halved the next, entering the back nine with the Chicagoan one up. The 29th and 30th were Dutra's and he was one up. Espinosa squared it at the 32nd, but Dutra shot a par three at the 33rd and was one up again. Espinosa squared it again at the next hole, and they halved in fours at the 35th. Dutra found a trap on the 36th and the match ended.

Golden and Gallet were fairly even all day. They finished all square in the morning and traded holes most of the afternoon. Golden finally forged to the front by winning the 31st, 32nd, 33rd and 34th holes.

London Soccer Team Played On Continent

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Three English football teams invaded the continent Tuesday, winning one game and tying the other two. Blackheath, of the Rugby Union, defeated the Racing Club de France, 13 to 0. In an inter-league match the London soccer team drew with a Paris eleven, one goal each, while at Brussels the London Football Association and the Dishles Rouges played a 3-3 draw.

GIRLS COMPETE FOR TROPHIES

Four Swimming Awards to be Made at "Y" This Month.

ENTRIES CLOSE MONDAY

An interesting series of competitions in swimming, for four major trophies, will be held this month at the Y.W.C.A. pool, when contests will be staged for the Morrow Trophy (senior city championship), the Hamilton Trophy (junior diving championship), the special Junior Y. W. C. A. Life-saving Cup, and the Babies' Cup. These competitions call forth a great deal of interest among the various classes, and the contests are always keenly looked forward to. The date will be announced later. All entries must be in before November 7.

The conditions governing the senior city championship competition are as follows: Swimming for style with breast stroke, back with arms, side over-arm and crawl; also fifty yards free style, long plunge and plain and fancy diving. Points will be given for each event, and the Morrow Trophy will be awarded to the swimmer scoring highest aggregate.

A new trophy this year has been given by Miss Margaret Hamilton for the junior diving championship, competitors to be under fourteen years of age. The contest calls for a plain front dive, running front dive, side dive, half twist, back dive, front jack-knife and high dive. Points will be given for each and the trophy awarded to the winner of the highest aggregate score.

The special Junior Y.W.C.A. Life-saving Cup will be competed for by those who have successfully passed the proficiency test of the Royal Life-saving Society and yet are under the age limit for the bronze medal. A neat dive, a swim of one hundred yards with breast stroke and fifty yards with back stroke, four methods of rescue and three methods of release in water, and surface diving to a depth of five feet for five-pound weight, are the conditions governing this contest.

The Babies' Cup is for competitors under eight years of age. They must swim twenty-five yards with free style and make two dives.

ADAMS SLASHES TEAM'S ROSTER

Only Four Members of Detroit Squad Played Last Season.

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—Jack Adams, manager of the Detroit Cougars, said yesterday that he would carry only twelve men this season.

"Twelve is sufficient," said Adams. "You really do not need any more."

The players who are sure to start the season are:

Harry (Happy) Holmes, goaler; Reg. Noble, right defence; Clem Loughlin, left defence; Dr. Stanley Brown, defence; Percy Traub, defence; Johnny Sheppard, left wing; George Hay, left wing; Lawrence Aurie, right wing; Carson Cooper, right wing; Frank Sheppard, wing; Duke eats, centre; Jack Walker, centre and wing.

Holmes, J. Sheppard, Walker and Keats were members of the Detroit squad last season; the other players will wear a Cougar uniform for the first time this month.

Adams a Substitute

Frank Sheppard is a brother of Johnny Sheppard. He is a left-handed forward.

Manager Adams, who played wing for Ottawa last year ,and who was a centre before that, will act as substitute when a right-handed wing is needed. He does not expect to play much, preferring to manage his team from the bench.

Reg. Noble has been appointed captain of the Cougars.

All the players, with the exception of Loughlin, are here and they have been working out on the Olympia ice this week. The pen was finished last week and ready for play but actual work on the ice did not start until this week.

Loughlin Missing

Loughlin, an important butter and egg man of Viking, Alberta, is detained on his ranch there. From the Loughlin ranch came most of the eggs and nearly all the butter consumed in Alberta. It is a big ranch, really bigger than Mr. J. Sheppard's real estate holdings in Iceland, where he is a strong and popular figure in Iceland's club life.

The absence of Loughlin does not worry Manager Adams. "Clem can get into shape quicker than any other hockey player I know of," he says. "I think he needs no more than three days, at the most. He will be fit when he arrives here.

Squad in Shape

"The squad is in fine physical trim. I have never seen Hap Holmes nor Jack Walker in as fine shape as they are in right now. Holmes, in particular, has undergone vast physical improvement. This is due, I believe, to two operations that he underwent at the close of last season."

Detroit does not open her home season until Nov. 22, when the Cougars play Ottawa in the Olympia. They will play two games during the previous week, one at Pittsburg and the other at Boston.

Most of the tickets for the opening game have already been reserved and Detroit and Ottawa are sure to play to a jammed house.

MAPLE LEAFS HOCKEY CLUB HOLD PRACTICE GAMES

MULLEN NOT TO MATCH DEMPSEY

Wouldn't Use Him If He Were Last Man in Sight, Says Promoter.

DAY IS THROUGH

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 4.—Tex Rickard does not have to hurry in signing Jack Dempsey for another bout with Gene Tunney, through any fear that Jim Mullen may beat him to the match, the local promoter said today.

"If Dempsey were the last opponent in sight, I wouldn't use him against Tunney," Mullen said, when news reached him that Rickard was seeking another presentation of the Dempsey-Tunney annual, for a date early next year.

"In my opinion Dempsey is all through, and his friends should advise him to quit the ring for good.

"When I match Tunney with the title at stake, I expect to have a man against him whom he hasn't already beaten twice, and very decisively each time. I would not want to take a chance on having my audience walk out on the show."

Mullen said that he had two opponents under consideration for the bout, which is expected to take place at Soldier Field next summer, but preferred to await developments before naming either.

NOT SO SURE!

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 4.—A. N. Napolitan was sure that Senator Butler would be re-elected this fall. So, after the election, he had to walk ten blocks in the business district in the day time, clad only in his pajamas, to pay a freak bet he had made with a Democrat friend.

OUT FOR SEASON

"Babe" Dye, the Toronto hockey and baseball player, who broke his leg while practising with the Chicago Black Hawks in Winnipeg Saturday. He was tossed by a defense player. The accident puts him out for the season.

DASH CHAMPION SAYS HE WILL TRY FOR MARKS

California Star May Include Indoor Campaign in Olympic Practise.

START TRAINING

Hopes to Gain Place on Olympic Team for Fourth Time.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Paddock will begin training for the Olympic tryouts as soon as he has finished celebrating New Year's Day. He wants to compete indoors late in February, or in March, his ambition being to go after the longer indoor sprint records before he hangs up his shoes.

Which organization would make an effort to arrange the events for Paddock was not revealed, although it is known that the Crescent A. C., which will conduct a meet at the Thirteenth Regiment on March 10, is the only organization to have its games scheduled for the time when Paddock wants to run.

Paddock first intimated that he would run here in the course of a conversation with Ferris last July at the national track and field championships, in Lincoln, Neb. Talk drifted to the merits of Bob McAllister, and Ferris mentioned that McAllister holds the 150-yard indoor sprint record. Then came the revelation.

Olympic Hopes.

Reminiscences of his memorable indoor debut caused Paddock to express the wish that he could redeem himself before hanging up his shoes. In his 70-yard sprint at the Garden, Paddock got off the mark poorly, but finished with such a burst of speed that there was no question about who would have won if the dash had been ten yards longer. In the 300-yard event his opponents seemed to be flying Paddock on the straightaways, but Charlie crashed into the boxes when he tried to round the turns.

In the belief that he has only a few good races left in him, Paddock foreswore strenuous competition last year, saving up for the current season. His ambition is to gain a place on the Olympic team for the fourth time, a feat which would be unequalled by any other sprinter.

HAGEN TWO UP.

Defending Champion Leads Armour at Quarter Mark.

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—Walter Hagen, the defending champion, was two holes up on Tommy Armour, Canadian and United States open golf champion, at the quarter mark in their third round match of the professional tournament yesterday.

Baseball Veteran Is Reported Alive

MORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).— Montgomery County authorities were surprised yesterday to find that Roy Patterson, who died at the County Farm last Saturday, was not the baseball pitcher who won fame with the Chicago White Sox twenty-two years ago. The former pitcher, they learned yesterday through the Associated Press is alive and well.

WILSON'S BACHELOR

ASSISTANT MAY SUCCEED O'FARRELL

Does Not Want To Spoil Good Catcher, Says Sam Breadon.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—Bob O'Farrell may not manage the St. Louis Cards in 1928 although he probably will remain in Cardinal uniform, President Sam Breadon announced yesterday.

"I do not want to spoil a good catcher by keeping on his shoulders the responsibilities of management," Breadon said. "Perhaps the management worries had something to do with O'Farrell having an unfortunate year.

"Measured by results, which is the only fair thing to do, you must consider O'Farrell a successful manager, for he led the team through all its troubles and won more games than the club won in 1926.

"But spoiling a great catcher, the best in the business, is an expensive way of having a leader. It is easy to get a manager. There are plenty of them. But it is difficult, almost impossible, to get a star player to replace one who is lost. For that reason I am uncertain as to whether I want O'Farrell to again have the worries of a manager."

Bill McKechnie, O'Farrell's assistant last season, has been mentioned as O'Farrell's possible successor.

STEWART HALL FOWL SUPPER

Annual Event of Otonabee Church Very Well Patronized.

GOOD PROGRAM.

Stewart Hall annual fowl supper proved to be one of the largest attended this season. The basement of the hall was lavishly decorated with yellow and black paper streamers, various coloured autumn leaves, wild berries and flowers. The tables were daintily decorated with flowers and fruits. Supper was to commence at six o'clock but on account of the number of people who came earlier serving began about five-thirty.

By six-thirty the hall, porch and steps were crowded and some were standing on the lawn. During the evening between four and five hundred people were served.

After a sumptuous supper that was heartily enjoyed by all an excellent program was given. The chair was most capably filled by Mr. R. L. Stewart. The artists who took part were: Miss Phyllis Moore, Miss Corona Hanbidge, and Miss Wright, who gave readings; Misses Tretheway and Coon, who gave instrumental selections; Mr. Coleman and Messrs. McCamus and Winslow, who sang. The program was delightfully interspersed with pleasant remarks from the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Thornley, and the chairman.

A very interesting feature of the program was entertainment given those waiting to be served, by a radio which was loaned and installed through the kindness of Mr. J. J. Duffus. This was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by all.

ACUTE SORE THROATS

Most sore throats would not develop into serious disorders if the proper hygienic measures were adopted at the onset of the trouble. The first treatment which most people use is probably the worst thing they could do and that is to immediately start gargling with some antiseptic solution. This only irritates the membrane of the throat all the more, and washes away the natural exudations which are thrown out to protect the irritated membrane.

In some cases it may be advisable to paint the throat with a ten per cent. solution of silver nitrate, but this best be left to the judgment of a physician. Even though the antiseptic gargles do retard the development of bacteria, they may produce more harm than good through their destructive action upon the already irritated cells of the tonsils or throat membrane.

It is impossible to tell at the start whether the case is one of simple tonsillitis or a more serious case of diphtheria. The first thing to do is to discontinue all food entirely, having the patient rink large quantities of distilled water. This distilled water is preferable to the ordinary tap water, as it is more quickly taken up by the tissues and thrown out through the kidneys. The elimination of toxins through the kidneys must be increased to carry off the large amount of urates and poisons which are always present with any feverish condition of the body. Enemas should be started at once, and on the first day three or four copious enemas should be used.

If the body does not perspire easily it is advisable to use tepid sponge baths about every two hours to assure a proper elimination through the skin. The patient should remain in bed as long as there is any fever, and should be kept quiet in a darkened room with plenty of ventilation.

An ordinary case of acute tonsillitis will last three or four days, even under the best treatment. If diphtheria patches begin to form upon the throat it is a wise plan to call a physician who can supervise the case and use whatever local treatments he deems advisable. If these greenish patches do not appear, the patient is perfectly safe in considering the case one of tonsillitis, and should continue to use the eliminative measures I have suggested.

One who is subject to acute tonsillitis may have recurring attacks several times during the year, provided he does not study to find the causes which are especially responsible.

The diet must be corrected so as to reduce any systemic disorders caused by hyperacidity of the stomach.

The use of deep-breathing exercises is especially to be recommended to one who has a tendency to either chronic or acute throat troubles. These exercises may be taken with advantage when one is taking his daily walk.

One of the simplest ways to learn how to breathe deeply is to run a few steps every block or two and thus induce a natural deep-breathing. If one will watch how the diaphragm works during this enforced breathing, he will soon learn the secret of systematic breathing exerices.

In tomorrow's article I will explain more about the cure of chronic tonsillitis.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. C. H. writes: "Will you kindly tell me how to reduce the upper arms?"

Answer: Any kind of arm exercises will reduce the fat on your arms. The best ones to take are those requiring a reasonable amount of muscular tension and, at the same time, these exercises should be used rapidly and with vigor. Probably the best plan would be to purchase one of the "chest weight exercises" which you can secure from any sporting goods store. This apparatus is attached to the wall, and the exercises are taken by raising and lowering weights which are attached to handles by ropes running over pulleys. Also, buy a booklet describing how to take these exercises. This booklet can usually be purchased in the same store where the apparatus is sold.

Question: Mrs. Albert J. asks: "Speaking dietetically, is it ever advisable to use any kind of breadstuff with a meal containing either potatoes or meat?"

Answer: Genuine wholewheat crackers, or muffins may be used in a limited quantity with either protein (meat, etc.) or starchy foods, (potatoes, etc.) by those in good health. This seems to be an exception to the general rules regulating the use of proteins and starches. Bear in mind, however, that I say proteins or starches—not proteins and starches, meaning for instance, that potatoes and meat should not be used together.

Question: Mrs. L.M.J. asks: "Is there any cure for incipient tuberculosis?"

Answer: Incipient tuberculosis is curable if the proper methods are used—even advanced cases can usually be cured if every habit of the patient can be controlled. If you will send your name and address I will be glad to send you some articles on the subject which I have prepared for distribution.

MOUNT ZION CHURCH.

WOOLER, Nov. 4.—Sunday being such a wonderful bright day, a large congregation gathered to the Mt. Zion church anniversary. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, plants, vegetables and fruit.

Rev. Mr. Wright, of Wesley United church, Belleville, was in charge. At the morning service, his text was taken from Romans, 8-28, comparing life to a loom.

The evening service was largely attended, and Rev. Mr. Wright spoke again.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"CHANG"

Something quite out of the ordinary in moving picture annals is the feature picture, "Chang," now playing at the Capitol Theatre. It makes a decided departure from the usual type of feature, and shows just what can be done in the realm of the silver sheet. This graphic presentation of life in the jungle is quite extraordinary. It gives the onlooker the impression of reality carried to an extreme, and yet one has the feeling that all of these happenings must have transpired in a forgotten age, as if the secret eye of the camera had looked back to a bygone day and recorded for present generations a tale of conflict between primitive man and the savage beasts that stalked him for food.

In the midst of an Asiatic jungle dwells Kru, a tribesman of jungle life, with Chantui, his wife, and Nah, their son and heir, to say nothing of Bimbo, the white marmoset.

The strange reality and yet unreal atmosphere of this picture is maintained in the savage conflict when the man wages constantly against the cruel beasts of the jungle, and the manner in which he pits his wits against their strength and cunning, to outwit them at every turn. But Kru and his rice crop suffer damage at the hands of the baby "Chang" (the jungle name for elephant) that tramples the fields, ripe for the harvest, and he goes to the village for help. Then the Great Herd appears, the monster collection of elephants that wrecks the village like a house of cards and beats down everything in the path of the onrushing pachyderms. Again, the brain of man conceives a plan. With tough jungle wood and days of patient labor, the villagers construct a giant "krall," into which the elephants, tracked and harried by the beaters, are driven. Then they placed in stocks and tamed and finally become the friend of man, harnessed to do his bidding.

The jungle house on stilts that Kru occupies with his family, the strange animals that gather about his dwelling, and the continual conflict with the savage beasts, the leopards and tigers, are faithfully reproduced in this strange picture in a fascinating and thrilling series of episodes. Here, too, are the apes and monkeys and gorillas, the things that have such an uncanny resemblance to man and bring to mind the disputed theories of creation. Especially alike in facial contour are these clever monkeys and the old toothless men of the village, mouthing and grinning in their councils.

Odd, savage, and elemental, with plenty of educational value in its unfolding, this picture of "Chang" is very worth while, as a picture of a peculiar type of life, far removed from the existence of the city dweller. And it give a delineation of a type of man never encountered outside of such situations as these, the human with a brain fitted to understand the brain of a savage beast, and keen enough to outwit him at his game of prolonging life by hunting his prey with might and main. Struggle and conflict are its keynotes.

A group of interesting short reels and a comedy entitled "Easy Curves" with the simple-faced Billy Dooley as a gob, round out the programme.—Jeanette.

AT THE REGENT.

The All-American picture that all America has been waiting to see—"One Minute to Play!" The Greater F. B. O. production, now showing at the Regent Theatre, has not only Red Grange, the greatest player of all times as its star, but the cast includes another All-American, George Wilson the famous half back. The story, an original by Byron Morgan, was written with the express purpose of showing Grange at his best. There is plenty of football in the picture, and Red's superb technique and dazzling speed are there for all the world to see. The big football game which is the climax of the picture is made thrillingly realistic by the fact that Grange has Wilson as his rival on the opposing team. The production was made under the direction of Sam Wood. The cast includes such favorites as Mary McAllister, Ben Hendricks, Jr., Lincoln Steadman, Lee Shumway, Chargles Ogle, Jay Hunt and Edythe Chapman.

HUDKINS CLAIMS WELTER CROWN

Dundee Faces Disciplining By Boxing Commission For Actions.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press). — Ace Hudkins, Nebraska fighter, vigorously claimed the welterweight championship to-day while the recognized title-holder, Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, faced possible discipline by the California Boxing Commission, which called their scheduled ten-round title fight here last night a no-contest affair because of the failure of Dundee to appear in the ring.

While seventeen thousand fans booed, milled about, and even started incipient rioting, the champion remained in an unnamed hotel. His manager declared the fighter would not appear until the sixty thousand which had been guaranteed him by Dick Ronald, the promoter, had been paid.

At the end of an hour and a half, during which Hudkins had appeared in the ring in fighting togs so he could technically claim the title, the challenger put on his street clothes and the Boxing Commission announced a no-contest affair. Admissions are to be refunded.

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts If You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Weakness.

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lamon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders. By all means drink lots of good water every day.

POLISH HOUSES ARE DISSOLVED

Government Prevents Opposition From Criticizing Its Policies.

THREE MINUTE SESSION.

WARSAW, Nov. 4. — (Canadain Press.)— The Polish Diet and Senate to-day were dissolved by Vice-Premier Bartel, amidst a great uproar, to prevent the opposition from airing its dissatisfaction with the government policies. In a furious three minute session the Opposition denounced the Government's policies and the alleged dictatorial powers of Premier Marshal Pilsudski.

BIG COAL MERGER BEING ADVOCATED

Beaverbrook Opposes Proposition To Cut Down Production in Britain.

LONDON, November 4 (United Press). — Lord Beaverorook is on the trail of the coal owners again. Writing to-day in a rival newspaper, the Liberal Daily News, he denounces the proposal of the South Wales coal owners to reduce the present output and thus force up prices.

He says this would increase unemployment and increase the cost of production in other industries dependent upon coal, which is against the national interest. He demands the merger of the whole coal industry into a giant trust.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY WAS INDISPENSABLE TO AIRPLANE OBSERVERS "SPOTTING" ARTILLERY HITS. AFTER A BIG GUN WAS FIRED THE OBSERVERS FLASHED BACK NEWS TELLING WHETHER THE SHELL HIT THE TARGET OR HOW FAR IT LANDED FROM THE MARK.

MOST OF THESE AERIAL OBSERVERS CARRIED ONLY SENDING SETS. THEY COULD NOT RECEIVE MESSAGES FROM THE GROUND STATION.

HOWEVER, THERE WERE A FEW AIRPLANES EQUIPPED WITH RECEIVING SETS. THE AIRMEN IN THESE MACHINES WORE SPECIAL HELMETS, WITH THE LISTENING APPARATUS LINING THE HEADGEAR.

AS THE WAR ENDURED, THE WIRELESS EXPERTS INCREASED THE EFFICIENCY OF THE AIRPLANE SETS UNTIL THEY COULD SEND AND RECEIVE MESSAGES TO AND FROM COMPARATIVELY DISTANT POINTS. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate

EFFECT OF MERGER IS NOT DISCLOSED

Two Companies Uniting Parts of Businesses Have Canadian Plants.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(United Press.)—Both parties to the proposed amalgamation between a number of departments of Vickers and Armstrong-Whitworth, refused to give any inkling to-day as to the effect of the merger upon the Canadian interests. The amalgamation will principally affect naval ship building and the manufacturing of heavy steel armaments. A new company is being formed to take over this branch of the industry hitherto carried on by the two companies.

UNDERGROUND FIRES.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Underground fires are often found in the neighborhood of coal mines. The other day a seam of smoldering coal eight yards undergound was discovered at Sheffield. These fires are hard to put out. One which was found in a Scottish mine smouldered and burnt for years.

Simple Home Recipe For Bad Stomach Gives Swift Relief

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this good advice.

Artificial digestants and starvation diets are seldom needed. Within reason, most folks may eat what they like, if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion. And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a little Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless form of Magnesia that swiftly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A few days' trial of Bisurated Magnesia (powder or tablets), which any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that fully 90 per cent of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary. Try Bisurated Magnesia today!

CHAMPION FAILS TO ATTEND BOUT

Dundee not at Park.

The two most definite stories, though they were unsupported, were that Max Waxman, the champion's manager, was in a belated conference with members of the State Boxing Commission, and the more startling rumor that Dundee himself had not shown up at the park.

Waxman, manager of Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, declared last night that the titleholder would not enter the ring in his title bout last night with Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, unless he was paid the $60,000 which promoter Dick Donald in a contract, guaranted him. Waxman said he could produce Dundee within 15 minutes of the time the money is paid him.

Seth W. P. Strelinger commissioner of the State Athletic Commission, declared that the only contract on file was one guaranteeing Dundee only a percentage of the gate. This, he said, conformed with the rules of the commission, whereby no fighter could be made a guarantee. If such a contract as Waxman describes exists, Strelinger said, it was on the side between Dundee's manager and Donald.

Ideal weather prevailed last night for the ten round open air bout between Joe Dundee of Baltimore and Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska "Wildcat" in which the Welterweight crown was at stake.

About 20,000 persons were in the ball park when the first preliminary combatant, Fred Beal, climbed into the ring at 8.30 p.m. Beal stayed until he got weary waiting for an opponent who had not appeared at 9 p.m.

The crowd shouted, whistled, booed their dissatisfaction at the late start, which rumour and ringsiders ascribed to a dozen causes from traffic jams to a run out by either Hudkins or the champion.

Betting which had given Hudkins almost an even break a few days ago switched to 10 to 8 on Dundee, and at the ringside had changed to a straight 2 to 1 odds on the champion. At 2 o'clock the fighters weighed in at 145½ each.

At about 9.10 Jackie Fields of Los Angeles and Joey Silver of San Francisco, came in for the first preliminary and Fields carried off the decision in ten rounds. They are welters.

Vince Dundee, brother of the champion made short work of Eddie Mahoney and knocked him out in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout. Young Dundee weighed 114½, and Mahoney 141.

At 10.30 Hudkins preceded by a floral horseshoe and two policemen, came down the aisle and into the ring where he sat down to await the arrival of Dundee.

Hudkins left the ring a few minutes later.

SUN LIFE HEAD GUEST OF HONOR

50 YEARS WITH COMPANY.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—Men eminent in all walks of life gathered last night at the Windsor hotel to render tribute to T. B. Macaulay, President of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, who was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered to him by fellow-directors, to mark the completion by him of fifty years of service with the organization.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Speaker of the House of Commons, was there was an expression of admiration for Mr. Macaulay's personal characteristics. From Sir Arthur Currie, Principal of McGill University, and from Hon. J. C. Tory, Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, and formerly connected with the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, came further compliments for the veteran head of the firm. Then Arthur B. Wood, Vice-President of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, recalled his long association with Mr. Macaulay, stretching back over thirty years.

Competitors Pay Tribute.

Competitors in the life insurance business were on hand to show with what regard they view Mr. Macaulay, and H. C. Cox, President of the Canada Life Assurance Company, delivered a short speech of congratulation.

PRAISES ERBAC FOR WEAK, TIRED, NERVOUS WOMEN!

Gives New Ambition and Courage Abundant Vitality and Strength Or Its Use Costs Nothing

No matter what your age may be or how many treatments you have tried without success—don't get discouraged and think your case is hopeless—until you have tried a 20-day treatment of Double Strength Erbac, without slightest risk of cost unless fully pleased!

Double Strength Erbac, endorsed by Doctors and praised by hundreds of grateful users, is a special private formula designed to build life-giving, age-defying Nerve Force and abundant vitality—and should not be confused with ordinary Nerve Tonics or "so-called" body builders.

Here's the amazing Erbac offer! If you are weak, tired, nervous and run down, if you can't sleep nights, if you lack the ambition and energy to accomplish things you would like to do—go to Bond's Pharmacy or any good druggist and get package of Double Strength Erbac at once, take it regularly according to directions for the full 20 days, and if you are not wonderfully pleased with results you can have your money back!

COMPARES BISHOPS TO GUTTERSNIPES

Dean Inge Makes Caustic Comment On Attacks On Barnes.

LONDON, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press) —"I am not concerned to defend all that Bishop Barnes has said about the Sacrament, but my chivalrous feelings revolt when I see archbishops and bishops join a mob of gutter-snipes pelting one of their order," says Dean Inge of St. Paul's, in caustic comment on the criticism made by prominent churchmen, notably the Archbishop of Canterbury, concerning Bishop Barnes' views on the Holy Communion.

COUNSEL BEGIN ADDRESSES IN NELSON CASE

Woman Who Brought Up the Prisoner Second Defence Witness.

STAMPEDE FOR SEATS.

Serious Crush When the Door Is Opened—Case To Jury To-morrow.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—With the placing on the stand of the second and last of the defence witnesses, Mrs. Lillian Fabian of Palo Alta, Calif., the closing chapter of the trial of Earle Nelson, charged with the murder of Mrs Emily Patterson, is being written in the Assize Court today. Mrs. Fabian is said to have brought Nelson up after the death of his parents.

The prisoner's wife today was called back for re-examination by prosecution counsel after the strange story she told yesterday. With the close of the defence case, counsel began their respective addresses to the jury, but Mr. Justice Dysart may postpone his charge until tomorow. It was unlikely Nelson would testify on his own behalf.

Another stampeding crowd waited in line today in hope of getting a glimpse of the prisoner's wife and there was a serious crush when the court room doors were opened.

ANCIENT TOMB FOUND AT CAIRO

Believed To Be Burial Place of King Zoser, Pharaoh of 4,000 B.C.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

LONDON, Nov. 4. — Canadian Press. — The discovery near Cairo of what is believed to be the tomb of King Zoser, a famous Pharoah of about 4000 B.C., is described in special despatches from Cairo to-day. The find is said to be more important archaelogically than the discovery of the tomb of Tutankhamen.

The glint of precious metals has been seen underground, though the work has been temporarily halted by a slide of earth.

WEDDING BELLS

CRAIG—PRICE.

A profusion of leaves in the beautiful tones of autumn foliage and chrysanthemums, combined to form a pretty setting for the wedding at ten o'clock on Thursday morning at All Saints' Church, of Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Price of Olive avenue, and Sidney Craig of this City, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Craig of Mitcham, Surrey, England. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. J. D. Paterson. The wedding music was played by Mrs. W. A. Logan and Mrs. E. Kitney, during the signing of the register, sang "Because" very sweetly.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of flesh colored crepe romain with hat to match and silver shoes and hose. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and she carried a large shower bouquet of ophelia roses and lily of the valley.

A sister of the bride, Miss Clara Price, acted as bridesmaid, wearing a charming frock of pale green crepe romain, with hat to match, pale green hose and black satin slippers, with silver buckles. Her bouquet was of ophelia roses and carnations.

Two small nieces of the bride, Viola Price and Willa Wilford, made dainty little flower girls, bearing a basket filled with 'mums, roses, sweet peas and ferns. They were dressed respectively in pale pink and pale blue silk, with shoes and hose to match, and wore hair bandeaux of gold and rosebuds.

Sergeant-Major Wilford acted as best man and the ushers were nephews of the bride, Oswald and James Price.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, where about forty guests assembled. The bride's table, centred by the cake, was done in pink and white, the same color scheme being carried out in the decorations of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig left later in the afternoon by motor for a honeymoon trip to Smith's Falls and Ottawa, the bride travelling in a smart gown of green satin-faced crepe, with seal coat and hat of black velvet trimmed with silver.

On their return they will reside at 61 Olive avenue.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid was a bar pin; bracelets were given to the little flower girls, a gold piece to the soloist, a tie pin to the best man and fountain pens to the ushers.

KING'S DAUGHTERS ELECT OFFICERS

Mrs. R. R. Hall is Re-elected President of the Organization.

The annual meeting of the King's Daughters Society was held this week at the home of Miss E. Scott, Hunter street, when annual reports were presented by Miss Scott, the secretary, and Mrs. A. H. Stratton, treasurer. The president, Mrs. R. R. Hall, occupied the chair.

Election of officers resulted as follows: Mrs. R. R. Hall, president; Mrs. N. H. Sutton, vice-president; Miss E. Scott, secretary; Mrs. B. Gillespie, treasurer.

The report of Miss Elizabeth Scott, secretary, follows:

The Onward and Upward Circle of the King's Daughters are closing a very successful year, both as regards work and finances.

During the year eight regular meetings were held, with an average attendance of thirteen members, also a number of sewing and working meetings. The June meeting as usual was held in the form of a picnic at the home of the president, Mrs. R. R. Hall, and was well attended and very much enjoyed.

The weekly visits and distribution of books and magazines to the hospitals have been carried on during the year and also visit to the Home, all being appreciated.

During the year the money to carry on the work was raised in several ways.

At Thanksgiving a tea dansant was held at the Paragon. In December a tea and sale of home-made cooking was held at the home of the president, Mrs. R. R. Hall, the proceeds of which increased our funds considerably. A bridge party to be held at the Paragon was discussed, but the ladies decided to each give $1.50 instead. A tea and sale of cooking was held at the home of Mrs. A. H. Stratton, and a handkerchief sale with tea and cooking at Mrs R R Hall's home.

On October 29 a tea was held at Mrs. N. H. Sutton's home as a finish to our year.

Along with these we had a number of donations given by people interested in the work the society is doing and in all the income for the year amounted to $474.18.

In January a vote was taken, and carried that the annual fee be raised from 50 cents to $1.00. During the year 25 families were visited and subsequently helped.

In December Christmas cheer baskets were made at Mrs. W. J. Kent's home, and Mrs. Fraser and her committee filled and delivered these, while the old people at the Home were also remembered.

At the February meeting, Miss Davidson gave an interesting talk on the Sailors' Mission, and $5.00 was donated towards her work, from the society.

The success of the past year is, we feel, largely due to the untiring efforts of the president, Mrs R. R. Hall, and the members appreciate very much the time she has given to the work.

OBITUARY.

MRS. A. LOCKHART.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Annie Lockhart was held on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, privately.

The bearers were Messrs. J. H. Edmison, James Middleton, George S. Walton, George Harper, David Gordon and John Spier.

Survivors are two children Mrs. S. J. Curtis and W. A. Lockhart, and one sister, Mrs. George S. Walton.

MRS. MARGARET DORGAN

Mrs. Margaret Dorgan died yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. James Collins, 5339 West Munro Street, Chicago. The funeral will be held Saturday morning to the Resurrection Church, Chicago. High Mass will be sung at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Peterborough, at 8 a.m.

Mrs. Dorgan formerly liver near Downeyville. Two sisters, Mrs. M. T. Watters, Grand Hotel, and Mrs. W. T. Young, Water Street, and one brother, William Corbett, of this city, survive the deceased.

Russia is said to be making greater preparations for possible chemical warfare than any other nation in the world.

PONTYPOOL NEWS

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 4.—The dance held under the auspices of L.O.L. 82 was well attended. The Stewart-Moncrief Orchestra made a very favorable impression for their first appearance here. The next dance will be held on November 18, with the same orchestra, and under the same auspices.

Miss Muriel Matchett, who has been ill, has taken over her duties as teacher of Carscadden's School.

Mr. W. J. Goheen has purchased the property better known as the Benson farm from Mr. Norman Scott. Mr. Goheen's nephew, Mr. Garnet Goheen, will work the farm. Mr. Scott is disposing of his live stock and implements by public auction on Monday, Nov. 7.

Miss Kathleen Ferguson is visiting friends in Toronto.

Quite a number from here attended the anniversary services at Lotus on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Poulter of Bethany was the speaker for the occasion and Yelverton choir looked after the musical part of the evening.

Balyduff Dramatic Club put on their play, "Lena Rivers," in the Community Hall in Janetville on Friday evening last.

Rev. Mr. Boomham has returned from his holidays, and has resumed his duties again.

Mr. Bert Richardson and Mr. Albert McMahon left Monday for their annual deer hunt.

Mrs. E. Payne left last week for Bowmanville, where she will spend the winter months with her granddaughter, Mrs. Freeman Eddy.

The chicken pie supper at Manvers Church last Friday night was a great success. The programme was enjoyed immensely by everyone. Those who took part were Mrs. McNeely from Peterborough, elocutionist; Miss Darrow of Bethany, elocutionist; Mrs. Parker of Manvers provided the musical numbers. Mr. Albert Fallis, ex-M.P.P., very capably acted as chairman.

IN MEMORIAM.

ALLEN.—In loving memory of little Jackie, who passed away Nov. 4, 1924:
In God's care softly sleeping
Where the gentle breezes wave,
Lies one we loved so dearly,
But whom we could not save.
Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day, we know not when,
We shall clasp those little hands in a better land
And never part again.

HEINKEL PLANE REACHES HORTA

Flies 1,000 Miles in Little Over Eight Hours To Join Sister Plane.

FOR NEW YORK FLIGHT.

HORTA, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press) The Heinkel hydro aeroplane D-1220 made a fast trip from Portugal to the Azores, arriving here at 2.50 this afternoon.

LISBON, Portgual, Nov. 4 (Canadian Press).—Another attempt to span the Atlantic by air was started today when the plan hopped off from Lisbon at 6.15 a.m. for the Azores, approximately a thousand miles distant. The plane will continue to New York via Newfoundland. A sister plane, the D-1230, is already at the Azores, waiting for a chance to complete the flight with the Viennese actress Lilli Dillenz as passenger. The German Junkers Company is sponsor of the flights.

NELSON HANGS FRIDAY, JAN. 13; JURY DELIBERATIONS SHORT IN STRANGLER'S TRIAL TO-DAY

Judge Charges the Jury To Deal With Case on Evidence Alone.

DECLARED SANE.

Doctor Reports Nelson as Being Perfectly Sane—Closing Evidence.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—Earle Nelson was found guilty today of the murder of Mrs. Emily Patterson after short deliberation by the jury. He was sentenced to hang January 13.

Nelson heard the verdict without emotion, standing erect with his hands behind his back and his head thrown back in his characteristic pose.

Mr. Justice Dysart asked the prisoner if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced. Without a change of expression Nelson said, "By reason I am not guilty."

There was no disturbance of any kind in the Courtroom when the verdict and sentence were announced. Nelson was immediately taken in charge by his two guards and marched back to the Provincial Jail.

The necessity or dealing with the case on the evidence, because it was a matter of common knowledge that the case had been widely published in many of its features, was emphasized by Mr. Justice Dysart in his charge to the jury.

The case went to the jury this morning.

The judge stressed that the jury must dissociate themselves with any beliefs they might have formed from newspaper accounts of the case.

Sane "Strangler"

Direct evidence was provided yesterday by the Crown in the trial of Earle Nelson, alleged "dark strangler," in an effort to prove that the man charged with the murder of Mrs. Emily Patterson of Winnipeg is absolutely sane and physically normal.

The medical evidence with which R. B. Graham, crown prosecutor, indicated he would seek to undermine the insanity plea of the defence, was dramatically introduced after the prisoner's wife and aunt had pieced together Nelson's life history, replete with eccentricities and "often terrifying deeds."

The mental state of the accused was described by Dr. T. A. Mathers, psychiatrist of the Winnipeg General Hospital, who told of visiting Nelson in his cell periodically over a stretch of nearly four months.

Dr. Mathers testified that he had examined the prisoner thoroughly for mental derangement and other abnormalties. Every test known to medical science, witness declared, had shown him to be perfectly sane.

A few minutes later counsel were on their feet in bitter argument over the admissibility of a conversation between Nelson and a constable who guarded him in the cells of the Winnipeg police station.

Constable Donald McRae, who was called by the Crown to relate this conversation, was subjected to a rigid examination by the court, following which he was permittel to give his evidence.

"What was the question which Nelson asked you on the morning of June 23, when he was awaiting his preliminary arraignment?" Mr. Graham asked.

"He asked me how he should plead at his trial," the witness replied.

Constable McRae added that he had informed the prisoner that his duty did not permit him to offer any advice.

"How about pleading insanity?" the witness quoted Nelson then as saying. Again he had told him it was useless to seek advice.

Throughout the recitation of the Crown's rebuttal evidence, the crowded court room was the scene of mild demonstrations and guards worked overtime to hold in check the pent-up spectators. There was a general stampede as the court was opening and despite precautions of the police, a number of women were overcome when the crowd rushed forward.

Addresses Jury

Mr. Stitt commenced his address to the jury at 3.35 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

As the senior defence counsel faced the jury, Mrs. Mary Fuller, wife of the accused, and Mrs. Lillian Fabian, his aunt, broke down and wept. They were sitting only a few feet from the expressionless and inert prisoner in the dock.

Mr. Stitt proceeded: "It is some months since I was appointed to act in this case. During all those months I have earnestly hoped and prayed that I would be guided properly in the conduct of this case. At the time you were called to serve as jurymen I challenged every one of you to clear your minds of every prejudice and to give the prisoner a fair trial. Almost every individual who has followed the case has said that in the nature of things, with all the publicity that has been given to it, it would be well-night impossible to give this man a modicum of British justice."

Mr. Stitt declared he did not believe the jury would be actuated by malice or moved by the spirit of vengeance. He was satisfied that they would judge the case on the strength of the evidence produced and according to the dictates of their conscience.

"I have pleaded not guilty to this charge," defence counsel continued. You must remember that every man is innocent until it can be shown beyond the shadow of doubt that he is guilty.

"What is the evidence? The evidence is entirely circumstantial. No one saw the crime being committed. We know that a woman has been killed and that the man in the dock is charged with the murder.

"Circumstantial evidence may look strong. The evidence is bound to look strong against an individual of his proclivities, an individual who was an inmate of a lunatic asylum, and whose conduct has not been governed by any reasonable mode or thought of common life. From his early life the prisoner was an unreasonable and eccentric individual.

New Abbey Favored To Hold Immortals

LONDON, November 5.—Westminster Abbey is full to overflowing. The Cathedrals Commission of the Church of England Assembly so reported yesterday. The Commission favors the erection of a new "Temple of Immortality" within the grounds of the abbey or near the abbey church.

Among the Americans immortalized in the abbey are Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and Walter Hines Page. The suggestion is made that an appeal be broadcast for a fund of $2,500,000 in which the people of the United States should take part.

Sarnia Hotel Owner Announces That They Favor His Campaign.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press). — James H. Brady, hotelman and theatre owner of Sarnia, an Ontario visitor in Chicago, declared yesterday that a large percentage of Canadians were supporting Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, in his campaign against "pro British propaganda." The directors of the Chicago Library Board to-day continued to ignore the Mayor's request for their resignation. From big business came the warning that his anti-British campaign was affecting exports.

JOINT MEETING OF W. M. SOCIETIES

Travelling Secretary of Dominion Board Addresses Meeting at Knox.

A large number of W.M.S. workers, representing the six United Churches of the city, met yesterday afternoon in Trinity Church, where Miss Evelyn Mitchell, travelling secretary of the W.M.S. Dominion Board, gave a most inspiring address.

Mrs. A. F. Bookhout, vice-president of Lindsay Presbyterial, presided. With her on the platform were Miss Dickson and Mrs. J. K. Moore, hon. presidents.

The opening devotional service was led by Mrs. Bookhout in a beautiful Scripture lesson, and was followed with prayer offered by Mrs. Moore for the great work being accomplished by the society, and for the workers at home and on the foreign field.

In her address, Miss Mitchell spoke briefly on each of the different fields being reached by the W.M.S., noting specially the problem confronting them in our own Canada. This problem, she stated, is undeniably with regard to the newcomers to our country ,and she enlarged on our duty toward them. She made a strong appeal for the support of all Christian women in undertaking to give these "strangers within our gates' a Christian education.

During the afternoon, two much-appreciated solos were contributed by Mrs. W. H. Hohner and Mrs. H. F. Doig Miss Mabel Clarry playing the accompaniments.

St. Lawrence Traffic Affected By Storm

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press). — Upper St. Lawrence traffic was affected yesterday by a heavy snow storm which obscured visibility and caused freighters to move only with the greatest caution through the island channels. Some freighters anchored or put into the nearest port until the snow storm should cease, while others moved forward at only a snail's pace.

FLOOD RECEDES IN CANADA BUT GROWS IN U. S.

Bursting of Dam at Montpelier Raises Toll of Lives.

PROPERTY LOSS HIGH.

No Report Yet Received of Damage Done in Isolated Cities.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—Conditions throughout the Eastern Townships of Quebec following yesterday's serious flood were much more reassuring and it was the general impression that the worst of the flood was over. Everywhere, however, the toll taken by flood could be seen and each town and village had its own chapter of ruin added to its own history. Sections of Sherbrooke were badly flooded today, but the huge dam on the Magog River held.

It will be some time before the actual damage is known. Two hundred thousand dollars damage has been done to highways alone, it was estimated today. The total is well over a million. Almost every town and city is isolated. Three lives have been claimed.

Farmer Drowned

THREE RIVERS, Que., Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—Hubert Dessales, 36, a farmer, was drowned trying to pull away a small bridge threatened by a swollen stream on his farm at Bocanour. His brotherin-law had a narrow escape from the same fate. The body has not been recovered.

Feared 100 Dead

BOSTON, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press). — New heights were reached today in the ever-mounting toll of life and property lost in the worst storm and flood disaster that New England has experienced within memory, and although thirty persons were reported to be dead and material damage ran into staggering sums, it was feared that when the full news of the catastrophe which overtook Montpelier, Vermont, became known, the list of victims might be greatly increased.

Unconfirmed reports placed the dead at over a hundred in Montpelier when the dam burst, but the city was completely isolated and it was impossible to verify these figures. Only one message, by radio, was received from Montpelier, telling of the loss of ten in the neighboring city of Barre, including Lieut.-Governor S. H. Jackson, and that no check had been made of the loss in Monpelier. A food and milk shortage was feared.

Try to Reach City

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—Unremitting efforts were underway today to penetrate the silence enveloping Montpelier, the capital of Vermont, since it was overwhelmed by flood waters on Thursday night. The depth of water in the valleys halted determined correspondents, relief corps, and vans carrying supplies. Radio and airplane seemed the only means of communication. Reports say there is a heavy loss of life there, but there is no means of confirming them. A brief message from the Associated Press correspondent by radio told of devastation wrought by the flood.

FOUR MORE DROWNINGS.

BOSTON, Mass., November 5 (Canadian Press). — The drowning of two men at Newport, Vermont, and the probable drowning of two others who started over a flooded road in a motor car, brought the New England death total in the floods at noon today to thirty-two, with several others reported missing. This was exclusive of possible heavy loss in the city of Montpelier.

The weather was clear and much colder in most sections to-day, and in the upper valleys the water is receding somewhat, but on the larger rivers conditions are getting even more threatening.

Railwaymen Killed.

WOODSTOCK, N.B., Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Three men in the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Fred Purton, Neil Turner and Victor Monteith, lost their lives when the Canadian Pacific freight train when through the trestle over the Downey Creek, north of here, to-day.

Engineer Dies.

ASBESTOS, Que., Nov. 5.—Walter Nixon, engineer on the Canadian National train which was wrecked yesterday, died of injuries in hospital here to-day. This brings the total death list due to floods in Eastern Canada to six.

SANDE LOSES LICENSE.

Card Revoked For Foul Riding at the Pimlico Meet.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—The Maryland Racing Commission today upheld the action of the stewards of the Maryland Jockey Club in suspending Jockey Earl Sande for foul riding at Pimlico yesterday. The Commission ordered that Sande's license be revoked.

South Africa Flag Bill Passes Second Reading In Union Senate

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, November 5 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's). — The Flag Bill passed the second reading in the Union Senate yesterday. The chamber was packed and the atmosphere tense when the debate began, as it was expected that Hon. Dr. F. Malan, Minister of the Interior, would refer to the recent interview in which he was quoted in a Dutch newspaper as declaring that the Government had made no concession regarding the design of the National flag.

The Minister, however, in moving the second reading of the Bill, made no reference to the interview, but his earnest and impressive tone reiterated the assurance given by Premier J. B. M. Hertzog and himself in the House of Assembly that the Union Jack would be flown as far as was possible and reasonable so as to satisfy the existing state of feeling in South Africa.

Senator F. S. Malan emphasized that all would be well if Dr. Malan only repeated outside of Parliament what he had said inside. Replying during the debate, the Minister stressed the point that the Bill ensured that the Union Jack would always fly in South Africa by law, which was sufficient to say that South Africa had two flags.

Referring to F. S. Malan's remarks, Dr. Malan declared that if the Senators believed less in newspapers "then it would be unnecessary for it to be insinuated that I lapsed from my usual consistency."

Open Belgian House In University City

PARIS, Nov. 5.— Canadian Press). — Prince Leopold of Belgium, open yesterday in the University City a Belgian House for students given by Mr. and Mrs. Biermans of Montreal. While the ceremony was nominally Belgian, the function in reality assumed a Canadian character owing to the tributes paid to Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian High Commissioner, and to Canada, owing to the fact that Canada was the first country to have her own house in Paris.

Hon. Gaston Doumargue, Cabinet Ministers and other distinguished Frenchmen were present at the ceremony.

BIRDSALL'S MAN IS HIT BY TRAIN

AT NORWOOD CROSSING.

NORWOOD, Nov. 5.—George Barrie, of Birdsalls was badly cut about the head when his car was struck by the westbound passenger train here yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Barrie was driving east through Norwood on his way to visit his daughter who is teaching school in Blairton. Dr. Sutton attended him and had him taken to the hospital in Peterborough on the same train. The car was badly damaged.

MARKET FILLED WITH PRODUCE

Both Inside and Outside Sections Crowded This Morning.

APPLES PLENTIFUL.

The visitor to the farmers' market this morning had a wide range of vegetables, apples, meats and relishes from which to choose. Inside was a variety of fowl, butter, eggs and home-cooking, as well as a miscellaneous assortment of other commonplace edibles. The square outside was filled with everything good to eat fresh from the farm.

Predominant among the produce was a superabundant supply of apples. By the barrel they brought these prices: Snows, $4.00; Kings, $4-$5; Russets, $5; Greenings, $4; Peewaukees, $4; Spies, $7. Selling by the peck they ranged from 35c to 50c, according to the quality of eating and cooking.

Eggs were sold from 55c to 60c a dozen, and 40c to 42c was asked for butter. Chickens brought 25c to 30c a pound; geese, 25c; ducks, 25c; turkeys, 40c.

A feature of the market was the quantity of pork. Although some farmers asked as high as 20c and some as low as 16c, the average run was 17c to 19c. Lamb sold at 25c to 27c.

One lot of honey was displayed of a good quality. A five-pound pail of clover honey sold for 75c, and mixed honey for 50c.

Quite a number of potatoes were on sale at $1.85 to $2. Carrots were $1.25 per bag, and turnips, 75c per bag. In smaller quantities vegetables sold as follows: by the peck, parsnips, 30c; carrots, 25c; onions, 30c; by the quart, brussels sprouts, two for 25c; pickling onions, two quarts for 25c; green tomatoes, 25c for six-quart basket; by the bunch, celery, 10c and 15c; salsify, 10c; sage, parsley and lettuce, 5c. Citrons, squash, vegetable marrow and pumpkins were there in sufficient supply and sold according to size. The prices were moderate.

The fishmonger did quite a thriving trade at the following prices by the pound: Lake Ontario whitefish, 20c; fresh sea salmon, 20c; frozen sea salmon, 18c; smoked herring, 15c; smoked haddie, 15c; kippered herring, two for 35c.

M. LONERGAN DIES SUDDENLY

NOT FEELING WELL.

Michael Lonergan dropped dead this morning at his boarding house on the corner of Rubidge and Townsend. He went to work at C. G. E. as usual but feeling unwell he returned home shortly after. He was not in the house more than a few minutes when his unexpected demise occurred.

That Mr. Lonergan's death should have happened in this way is all the more surprising as his wife died in the same manner at his mother's home in Asphodel, October 6th, 1926. Very rarely does a case come up when a couple pass away in almost identically the same way.

Mr. Lonergan went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and served in France. He was a member of the Canadian Legion.

He leaves to mourn his loss five children, Mrs. H. B. Carr of this city, Mrs. W. D. Armstrong of Hamilton, Mary, Lucille, and Harry of Detroit; two sisters, Mrs. J. Ryan of Toronto and Sister Mary Theresa of this city; six brothers, James, Joseph, Fred and Thomas of Toronto, Frank of Norwood, and Egbert of St. Louis, Mo.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. H. B. Carr, 788 Water Street.

BAND CONCERT

By permission of Lt.-Col. W. Gordon Hall and officers, the band of the 57th Regiment Peterboro Rangers will give the following programme in the Capitol Theatre on Sunday night, commencing at 8.30. The band will be assisted by the following artists: Miss Isabella Black, soprano; Mrs. J. Dwyer, contralto; Mr. Harold Lee, tenor; and Mr. Edward Barclay, baritone. Mr. R. J. Devey, accompanist; Lieut. W. H. Peryer, Bandmaster, conductor:

March—"The Thin Red Line" (Alford).

Overture—"In the Hand of the Missions" (Mustol).

Synopsis: The missionary arrives in the early morning. The natives are suspicious and rent, at first the friendly overtures of the missionary. After a while he wins over the natives and is allowed to teach them. The music then depicts the Hymn of Peace and the final rejoicing of the natives. This was the test piece selected for the band contest at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

Vocal solo — "God is our Refuge" (Lewis Carey), Miss Isabella Black.

Vocal solo — "Anchored" (W. M. Watson), Mr. Edward Barclay.

Humoresque — "The Lightning Switch" (Alford).

This humoresque affords an interesting example of the difficulties encountered by composers in their search for original melody; numerous airs are welded together in a continuous blend of harmony and merriment, illustrating the similarity of one tune to the other.

Vocal solo—"If with all your hearts" (Elijah), Mr. Harold Lee.

Grand selection—"Songs from the Old Folks," including: "Marching Through Georgia," "Soldiers' Farewell," "The Old Oaken Bucket," "Ben Bolt," "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," "Sweet and Low," "Auld Lang Syne."

God Save the King.

RAILROAD FOR ICELAND.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 5. — Never having had a railroad, Iceland now is to lose that distinction by the construction of a 50-mile electric line from the capital, Reykjavik, to a fertile section in the south. Four years will be required in the construction, which will cost $2,000,000.

CONTRACTS LET FOR REMOVAL OF CITY SNOW

Tenders Show Figures Are Higher Than Those Received Last Year.

WILL BUY TRACTOR.

Regular Business Transacted at Meeting of Board of Works.

Winter is coming. The Board of Works last night let the contracts for snow ploughing. Whether or not the city's by-law, requiring the householders to shovel the snow in front of their houses has made any difference, the number tendering was larger. However, the figures are higher. Last year there was competition for only two of the seven districts, while two were not tendered for at all, nobody apparently wanting to take the contract for Ashburnham.

This year the two Ashburnham districts were the most sought after, with three competing for the southern section and four for the northern section. The three districts comprising the west and southern sections of the city had only one tender each, while the two northern ones were applied for by two men. District No. 1, the centre of the city, will be handled by the municipal employees as usual.

The tenders received were as follows:

District 8—E. J. Ferguson, $150; J. Conroy, $145; R. Mitchell, $145; B. Revoy, $137. B. Revoy accepted.

Messrs. McEntee and Record, residents of the district at the corner of Smith and Reid streets, came to ask that something be done about the drain in that section. They stated that a sixteen or eighteen inch drain is emptying into a twelve inch one, and that as a result stoppages are frequent, causing the water to come on their property. They were promised that something will be done.

TRACTOR ORDERED.

REMAND GIVEN MAN ASSISTING GRAVE ROBBERY AT MARMORA; COMES UP AGAIN NEXT FRIDAY

Ewart Warren, Who Confesed Part in Crime, Given First Hearing.

ONE OTHER ARREST.

Frank Sullivan, of Toronto, Arrested in That City By Provincial Police.

(By Staff Reporter).

MARMORA, November 5.—Ewart Warren, charged with attempting to rob the grave of Mrs. B. C. Hubbell on the night of October 28th, was remanded for one week by Magistrate Casement yesterday in police court here.

Warren has made a clean confession to the provincial police and acknowledges being implicated in the molesting of the grave of Mrs. B. C. Hubbell. Two other men Frank Sullivan and Philip Revoy were named as accomplices with Warren in the plot.

Warren spent his boyhood days in Marmora, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warren. About thirteen years ago when Ewart was nine years old they left to reside in Toronto.

Warren became conscious stricken on Monday in Niagara Falls and their went to the Salvation Army and confessed being an accompuice in the deed. From Niagara Fall he went with an army officer to Toronto where he saw Major J. A. McElhiney and D. P. McCrae.

Thursday, Major McElhiney, Warren and Mr. McCrae left Toronto for Marmora, arriving here about seven o'clock. The two officers went up to see Mr. Hubbell who is manager of a general store here.

The officers wanted to take Warren back to Toronto so that the other two men might be arrested but Mr. Hubbel, who is a justice of the peace, issued a warrant for his arrest

Warren at the time of the arrest was being looked for by the Provincial Police, as he was suspected of being one of the members of the gang.

In running down the three ghouls a great deal of the credit goes to Constable Gillen of Marmora. Mr. Gillen, on investigation, found that Warren paid a visit to the Marmora Protestant Cemetery in the pretense of viewing the grave of his grandmother. While at the cemetery he saw William Phillips, the caretaker. He said to Mr. Phillips: "Do they bury any north and south in this cemetery?" "No, they bury all east and west," said Mr. Phillips. "Well, Mrs. B. C. Hubbell is buried north and south," was the reply.

On the day the crime was committed Constable Gillen found out that Warren, Revoy and Sullivan arrived here in the afternoon. Warren went to see his wife, who was visiting in Deloro; Revoy visited friends, and the actions of Sullivan are not known. To several people they represented themselves as smoke stack painters.

The grave is situated in a stone-fenced enclosure, and was an ideal place for ghouls to work.

Think Jewels Sought.

TORONTO, Nov. 5. — Belief that valuable jewellery was buried with Mrs. B. C. Hubbel is accepted by the Provincial Police as the reason for interference with the grave. Burial of the body in a steel casket prevented actual interference with the remains, police say.

Arrest By Inspector.

Church Shuts Door To Kaiser's Sister

BONN, Germany, Nov. 5 (Associated Press).—The Evangelical Presbyterian Church has refused a permit for the use of its building here for the marriage of Princess Victoria Schaumburg-Lippe, sixty-three, sister of the former Kaiser, and Alexander Zoubkoff, twenty-seven, Russian refugee.

The church regards the match as "unethical" because of the disparity of ages. Former Kaiser William, as chief of the Hohenzollern house, has declined to give his consent.

NO MORE BODIES FOUND IN WRECK

Divers Unable To Locate Part of Ferry Believed To Hold Bodies.

BOAT IN TWO PIECES.

SYDNEY Australia, Nov. 5 — (United Press). — No more bodies were recovered from the sunken ferry in Sydney harbour to-day. The present casualty list comprises 74 known dead 22 definitely reported missing, 55 injured, with the prospect that several more would be added to the list of missing.

The search for bodies being conducted by divers at depth of 70 feet has been hampered by the drifting currents and harbour silt. The ferry is broken in two and the ladies saloon section, where most of the missing are believed to be entombed, has drifted away and could not be located this afternoon.

86 Now Feared Lost.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press Cable).—The number of dead in the sinking of the ferry, Greycliffe, by the British liner Tahiti last Thursday is steadily mounting, and to-day a loss of eighty-six lives was feared. The police are daily recording fresh names of persons supposed to have been on the ferry and who are now missing. Divers have been unable to find the second part of the wrecked ferry and the search is continuing.

Heavy Loss of Life In Montpelier City

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Nov. 5. — Unconfirmed reports of heavy loss of life in Montpelier, the state capital where the collapse of a large reservoir was said to have flooded the city deeply were in circulation here last night.

According to these reports the death list ran from 137 to 212. Montpelier is about 56 miles from this point and is completely isolated.

Telephone and telegraph service from the state capital failed early Thursday evening and since that time no definite news has been received. Two telephone girls who left Montpelier at 8 o'clock Thursday night and arrived here yesterday, said water was running 10 feet deep in State Street, the main street of the city at that hour.

Several persons here with relatives in the capital, last night were striving to find some means of reaching Montpelier over the rain wrecked roads. Persons familiar with the layout of the capital said that collapse of the reservior would place practically the entire city under water.

Nobility Gather At Naples For Nuptials Of Anne of France and Duke of Apulica

NAPLES, Italy, November 5 (Associated Press). — The wedding to-day of Princess Anne of France to the Duke of Apulia will be graced by the presence of kings of two great Latin countries and the pretender to the throne of a third.

With princes and princessess of the houses of Savoy, Bourbon, Orleans and others flocking here, the gathering is attracting more royalty than any other similar function since the war with the possible exceptions of the marriages in Great Britain of Princess Mary and the Duke of York. Weather permitting, it will be one of the most gorgeous fetes ever celebrated in this city, accustomed to regal pageantry throughout the centuries

From the historic "Hall of Hercules" and the royal palace where the civil ceremony will be performed, to the ancient church of San Francesco Di Paola, where Cardinal Ascalesi, Archbishop of Naples, will unite the princely couple, all is in readiness for the passage of the bridal procession. The parade of royalty with the marchers in bejewelled gowns and striking uniforms, will form one of the most brilliant kaleidoscopic effects ever seen in this colorful country.

The church of Francesco will be adorned with many of the most precious ornaments of other Neapolitan churches that for the occasion. Red and gold predominate in the scheme of decorations. A special box has been erected for the kings, princes, dukes, and their consorts at the right of the main altar, and facing this will be the throne for Cardinal Ascalesi.

PLACES READY FOR STRIKERS

No Trouble Expected in Placing 900 Men on Jobs.

TORONTO, Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press). — Contractors do not expect any difficulties will be met in placing the 900 carpenters of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners whose strike was settled yesterday. Work will be resumed next Tuesday. Blake Jackson, one of the contractors, pointed out to-day that contractors were working with only half forces of carpenters during the strike, these men being members of Amalgamated union which is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labour.

"We have lost about five weeks of really wonderful building weather," he said "And in consequence we shall have to almost double our forces on all big jobs to keep ahead of the winter."

ESTIMATED PROPD STATE FLOODS RUNS INTO MILLIERTY DAMAGE IN NEW ENGLANONS OF DOLLARS

FAMILIES MAROONED.

Communication Lines Disrupted —Industry Brought To Complete Standstill.

(By the Associated Press)

Death and destruction were yesterday riding the crest of angry flood waters that swirled in unprecedented fury over five New England States, part of New York and up into Canada.

The cost in human life and in property damage could not yet be counted, for the waters had not receded to reveal the full tragedy of their passing, and communication to many of the most seriously affected districts was still completely destroyed. It was easy to estimate, however, that the loss in property would run well into the millions of dollars, and it was feared that when the final count of human life sacrificed to the storm's ferocity was made, the total would be more than a score.

The flood began two days ago when dams in New England rivers, strained beyond endurance by excessive rainfall, began bursting asunder to rlease upon the valleys through which they ran more terrible torrents than the inhabitants had ever seen.

Houses, whole districts, were washed away; livestock was swept to death from field and barn, fugitives from the rushing flood were drowned and in the manufacturing centres, industry was brought to a complete standstill.

Telephone and telegraph lines were disrupted, train service was brought to a halt, whole families were marooned, and the entire countryside was placed in a stage of siege under the relentless attack of the forces of Nature.

Dozen Lives Lost

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Flood waters last night still gripped New England. Rain had ceased in most sections but streams which had taken a toll of at least a dozen lives and probably more, continued to rise. Railroad service was paralyzed in Vermont, New Hampshire and Western Massachusetts. Scores of bridges had been swept away, with several dams. Highways were many feet deep in water over extensive areas. The damage will total several million dollars.

The known dead:

Rutland, Vt.—John Sabula and Mrs. Lucy Salter.

Barre, Vt.—Ralph Winters and Gerald Brock.

Westfield, Mass.—Mrs. Anna Kannia.

Worcester, Mass.—Mrs. Marcella Cassius.

Beckett, Mass.—Mrs. Gustine Carroll.

Millbury, Mass—Mrs. Charles A. Putnam and daughter, Dorothy, 8.

Northampton, Mass.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rubeck.

Boston—Carmile Bardilio.

Bennington, Vt.—Martin Shepard.

Reported Dead:

Westfield, Mass.—Three unidentified persons.

Pittsfield, Vt.—Unidentified man.

Missing:

Westerly, R.I.—Albert Blacknell.

All day there were rumors of heavy loss of life in Montpelier and Barre, Vt. Both cities were cut off from all communication and the rumors could not be confirmed. Thursday night both places reported heavy storm damage and Montpelier sent an appeal to Burlington for boats to use in the flooded streets.

Came Without Warning

The flood came without warning. The heavy rains of last summer had left the streams higher than usual at this season. Rain began to fall Thursday in Vermont and Western Massachusetts. Thursday night it became a downpour and spread into New Hampshire and Eastern Massachusetts. The rainfall varied from three to seven inches in different localities. Countless brooks carried the surface flow into the little rivers, which quickly became rushing torrents, went over their banks and in turn sent a mighty volume of water into New England's great rivers, the Connecticut and the Merrimac.

There was no withstanding the force of the walls of water which swept down the valleys. Foundations

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—Apart from a short period of selling about midseason which carried prices down about 1¼c. the local wheat market had another uneventful day. Final quotations were 1 3-8c to 7-8c lower. Export demand has not yet materialized. Movement in the country continues heavy. Excellent prospects in the Argentine are blamed for the waiting attitude of foreign purchasers.

OBITUARY.

MARY FARLEY.

Mr. Patrick Farley, of Douro, received word Saturday morning of the death of his sister, Mary Farley, aged 71 years, in St. Paul, Minn., Saturday morning.

The late Miss Farley was a former resident of Douro but had lived in St. Paul for some years. She leaves to mourn her loss, three brothers, Patrick in Douro, Michael in Alaska and Frank in St. Paul, also three sisters, Miss Sullivan of East City, Mrs. Alive Fitzgerald, Indian River and Miss Rose Farley in St. Paul.

Further information as to the burial will be given later.

COBOURG C. I. PUPILS GIVEN THEIR PRIZES

Annual Commencement Exercises Are Held in School Gym.

JUDGE HUYCKE SPEAKS.

Gives Word of Encouragement To Graduates—Speaks of Value of Subjects.

COBOURG, Nov. 5. — Principal Davidson, the staff and pupils of the C.C.I. are being congratulated upon the exceptionally interesting manner in which they conducted their annual commencement exercise yesterday afternoon and evening.

In the afternoon, tea was served in the Collegiate gymnasium from 3.30 to 5.30, to the mothers of the pupils. The girls of the graduating class were hostesses and poured tea.

In the evening, the commencement exercises and presentation of diplomas and prizes also took place in gymnasium. While the Collegiate five-piece orchestra played the latest numbers, the parents, friends and general public filled the large gym. to capacity. Even the track was utilized for all the available sitting and standing room which it afforded. Though there were many remaining in the corridors, Principal Davidson lost no time in beginning the long and interesting program which was to be completed without the slightest interruption.

The orchestra, he said, had been very generous with their music and he considered that they had already acquitted themselves honorably. Therefore, he would consider that they had already played the first number of the programme and continued to outline briefly the commencement exercises. All the prizes and diplomas for the past year, he said, were to be distributed. These included the academic awards, field day athletic prizes, and various others donated by the citizens and associations of the town of Cobourg. Referring to the Collegiate as a whole, Mr. Davidson said that he had been unable to procure complete statistics but that the standing had been exceptionally high.

Very heartily then, Mr. Davidson welcomed Judge Huycke, Peterborough, who was to be the principal speaker of the evening as well as to present some of the prizes. That the judge is well known and highly respected, need hardly be mentioned where Cobourg is concerned, yet Mr. Davidson felt it his duty to mention the fact. He also welcomed the parents who were sufficiently interested to attend; the clergy, who were exceptionally well represented, and the general public. Without further remarks, Mr. Davidson called the names of the graduation class of last year. These were:

Irene Clarke, Percy Climo, Archie Eddie, Mabel Gaffield, Edna Grasley, Mary Hall, George Murray, Burton Roberts, Vera Blackburn, Wilbert Mann, Gordon Wilson, Anita Gilland, Don Harper, Hazel McEllenborough, Beatric Jibb, Mary MacDonald.

Not all these were present. Invi-

CRASH REPORT WAS INCORRECT

Rev. J. O. Totten Says He Saw Truck, But Driver Gave No Sign.

WRONG GARAGE.

The item in Wednesday's Examiner reporting an automobile crash on the highway involving cars driven by Rev. J. O. Totten of Cavan, and a truck owned by Alex Leitch of Norwood, was not correctly stated, Mr. Totten informed The Examiner today.

Mr. Totten's car is a landau sedan, not a coach, as was reported, and Mr. Totten saw the truck after he had crossed the brow of the hill, but Mr. Leitch, did not see his car. No warning was given by the driver of the truck, who turned across the road not far in front of the sedan, Mr. Totten told The Examiner, giving him no opportunity to avoid the collision.

And finally, the car was taken to Tinney's Garage at Cavan, by the Chevrolet service truck, and not by Gillespie's truck, as The Examiner was erroneously informed.

RECEIVES PRIZE FOR SMITH FAIR

Miss Mila Bogue, of S. S. No. 6, Champion—Masonic Visit Paid.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 4.—Miss Mila Bogue was presented with the championship cup won by her at the Smith Township School Fair, held at North Smith. Mila has just passed her twelfth birthday and is a pupil of S.S. No. 6 Smith, and is a daughter of Mrs. Ella Bogue and a grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Alford. The cup is presented to the boy or girl winning the greatest number of points at the school fair. Mila has for the past three year (1925, 1926, 1927) won the singing prize, and possesses a sweet soprano voice which is worth cultivation.

Tuesday being All Saints' Day, there was a celebration of Holy Communion in St. John's Church at 10 o'clock in the morning. The Holy Day was observed specially also in St. Paul's Church.

Masons Visit Brethren

The members of Durham Masonic Lodge, No. 66, A. F. and A.M., Newcastle, paid a fraternal visit to Clementi Lodge, No. 313 on Tuesday evening and a pleasant evening was spent. There was a large turn-out of both the visitors and the local members.

Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Creighton entertained about a dozen children on Monday evening at a jolly Hallowe'en party for their young son and daughter. The youngsters had a delightful time.

The young people of Knox United Church held a jolly and very successful Hallowe'en party in the school room of the church on Monday evening. The evening was spent in games and contests.

Mr. Henry Oiver, the alert shortstop of the Selwyn softball team, had the misfortune to break a finger on Friday evening last, when he slid to the home plate in the fourth innings of the Selwyn-Musky game.

There are still flowers in sheltered spots. Several gardens have calendulas still holding their own and with their bright-hued blossoms making a bright spot in the frost nipped gardens.

CASE DISMISSED.

Sanford Lindsay Freed of Charge of Assaulting Woman.

MARMORA, November 5. — For want of sufficient evidence, Sanford Lindsay, who appeared before Magistrate R. R. Casement at Marmora yesterday, charged under Section 292, Sub-Section A, Criminal Code, with an offence against a married woman on October 26, was acquitted.

Crown Attorney Donnan, who prosecuted, agreed with the Magistrate, and E. D. O'Flynn, lawyer for the defence, after the hearing of the complainant and another woman, that there was no prospect of conviction.

Owing to the nature of the evidence to be submitted, the Court was cleared for the hearing. Great difficulty was experienced in extracting evidence from the complainant, who is of the subnormal class. She testified that she was married at Tweed two weeks ago. Previous to this she had resided in Madoc Township. On the morning in question her husband went to work at an early hour. Some time in the forenoon, she could not remember when, Lindsay came into the house. When asked concerning his actions, the witness seemed at a loss for words, laughing and calling to her husband to stand by, a courtesy which the Crown ultimately permitted.

The question, "What did he do?" was again applied, and the witness admitted difficulty in remembering.

"What did you do?"

"I ran around the stove three times and went outdoors."

"Why did you run around the stove?"

"To get away from him."

"How many rooms where you live?"

"One room—all in one."

"I walked out."

"How did you go outdoors?"

Witness then described the attempted assault.

Counsel for the defence having intimated that there could be no committal on her evidence, the other woman was called to the witness box.

"Do you know this man Lindsay?"

"Well, I am slightly acquainted with him."

"When did you see him on the 26th?"

"I saw him between 9 and 10 in the morning."

She further deposed that when in her own house she saw Mr. Lindsay pass and enter the other house. Later she saw the woman run out of the house hitting Lindsay, who grabbed her, but breaking away. She ran into the house and shut the door. When he had gone, she told her of his improper conduct.

This concluded the evidence, and upon discharging the prisoner, Magistrate Casement said: "You will be very well advised to keep away from the locality where these people live."

C. N. STATION IS BURGLARIZED

Robbers Scorn To Take Few Coppers Left in the Cash Drawer.

POLICE ON TRAIL.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 5. —Burglars forced their way into the office of the C. N. R. station here some time on Thursday. Unable to force the door, a "jimmy" gave access via a frame window. The same instrument also forced open a cash drawer which contained but a few coppers. These the thieves did not confiscate.

Plainclohtesmen who are investigating the affair have made several useful discoveries, which, it is expected, will lead to the offenders being brought to justice. Just what action will be taken is not known as yet.

OLD MASTERS

And as in uffish thought he stood,
The Jabberwock, with eyes of flame
Came whiffling through the tulgey wood,
And burbled as it came!

One two! One two! And through and through
The vorpal blade went snicker-snack!
He left it dead, and with its head
He went galumphing back.

"And hast thou slain the Jabberwock?
Come to my arms my beamish boy!
O frabjous day! Callooh! Callay!"
He chortled in his joy.

'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves
Did gyre and gimble in the wabe:
All mimsy were the borogroves,
And the mome raths outgrabe.

Symbols of the HARVEST

The Ancients brought the first fruits of their harvest to the Temple of Ceres, the Goddess of Grain. As ordained by the oracles of all-powerful Rome, the populace paid this annual tribute for bountiful yields. It was a pagan thanksgiving ceremony, centuries before the Christian era.

In those far-off days Ceres typified all that was good in the harvest. If a similar symbol were required today, millions of people of many nationalities doubtless would point to the familiar figure of the friendly Quaker. While the people once brought their tribute to Ceres, today the Quaker distributes the choicest of the yield in the form of milled products throughout the world.

The Quaker Oats Company, largest cereal millers in the British Empire, join heartily in this year's Thanksgiving festival. Once more Providence has been lavish with our Dominion in providing an abundance from the land. Helping to mill this great yield into foods for man and beast is the part The Quaker Oats Company plays in the great economy of things.

To the end that these foods shall be pure, wholesome, nourishing, and within the reach of every purse, The Quaker Oats Company takes advantage of all that science and merchandising can devise, and a century's milling experience recommends. Experts search out whatever is best in grain throughout the length and breadth of Canada. The faith that people have shown in the Quaker symbol, as representing the highest food standards, must be consistently and deservedly maintained.

Ceres, the mythical goddess, today is remembered only in history and legend. The Quaker figure lives in the minds of men, women and children of 58 different countries, as representing true excellence in cereal foods.

Let us be thankful.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

A little more knowledge and a little more thought, on the part of most people, might take some of the conceit out of the human heart and make life both pleasant and profitable for the average person. At the best, none of us has much to boast about. Man is an unimportant animal scientifically considered. He cuts as much figure in the evolutions of the universe as the myraid microbes on a biffed golf ball. His machines and machinations make just as much difference in the progress of the elemental game as the mute opinions of the unseen germ.

Perhaps after this introduction it will not puff up the human atom too much when he learns that all the electrical energy generated on this globe in the course of a year, if concentrated in one great electric light, would make a glimmer about twice as great as that around which this terrestial sphere revolves—namely, the sun.

SUNSENSE.

We have lately come across the word "sunsense." We never heard it before, but suddenly we know what it must mean. The man who has sunsense is the man who sees his neighbors and his fellowmen and his town in the sunlight. Things look bright to him. His neighbor holds out to him infinite possibilities of friendliness; his fellowman is worth knowing better and helping merrily on his way; his town is the best town he has ever seen and in the sunlight it seems to beckon him to come and make it better.

The man who has sunsense knows nothing of rain except that it waters the flowers and saves the crops. The only clouds he sees are those that are drifting away.

It is a great pity if such a man is not definitely and actively identified with a church. Men of this sort make the very best church members. But even if such a man is not linked up with the church he surely is animated by the very spirit of some famous, ancient words.

Love suffereth long, and is kind; love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up.

Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil;

Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth;

Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

Love never faileth.

The trouble in looking for trouble is that it unfits your focus for seeing anything else. The habit can get so fixed that a man can see trouble with his eyes shut. The world needs merry hearts more than it needs medicine. By calling this world a vale of tears we may be helping to make it so. Nestle up close to Him who is the life and the light of men. He will give you sunsense.

OUR LITTLE GROUCHES.

We all love heroes. There is enough of the poet and the actor in the average man, there is enough imagination, to enable him to put up a fair imitation of a hero whenever the opportunity offers.

We can all manage to meet failure, grief and death with some show of bravery. But we are very often cowards when we face the petty irritations of every day. And as these ills are of hourly occurrence we are much less heroes in fact than we fancy ourselves. So it is a good plan, once in a while, to make a little record of our ordinary grouches.

There's the getting-up grouch. Its causes are many, the cure is the same for all. It can be had before we leave our rooms—just a little deep breathing before the open window, or a cold plunge, will do the work.

There's the grouch because the morning coffee is too weak or too strong. Well, most of us drink too much coffee anyway.

If we live in a big city, there's the grouch because we have to stand up in the street car. But hanging onto a strap is excellent exercise, as good as a $2 massage for that part of the population that sits at work all day, even if it does not give the same pleasant feeling while it is being administered.

There's the grouch over our clothes—which are never quite good enough. We can never cure this by buying more. If a woman can afford a chinchilla coat at $4,500 she covets a sable cape at $20,000. But if we will put our minds on the needs of our less fortunate neighbors in this and other lands we may very soon become ashamed of our mad craze for finery.

There's the office grouch—which consists in trying to go opposite to the course of business events. Just average human perversity kills harmony and co-operation in many an organization. There's always someone above us or next to us to be jealous of. The cure for this is to remember that "he who would command must first learn to obey." And if this kind of philosophy does not help, then the honest thing is to find another job.

Every morning we seize afresh upon all of our little pet grouches as if they were novelties belonging to each one exclusively, and not ancient incumbrances which we should have discarded yesteryear. And perhaps we cannot cure ourselves altogether of the habit of getting grouchy about something. But can we not prove ourselves extraordinary, almost heroic, by getting rid of all these commonplace grouches and inventing a few brand new ones?

LET'S BE PRACTICAL.

Instead of thinking so much about ourselves it will pay us to think just a little more about others.

It is an easy matter to give a person a little bit of praise once in a while when it is warranted. The majority of us take too much for granted. We expect a great deal and take everything as a matter of course.

Even your best friend likes to hear a complimentary word.

If your husband does something which you appreciate very much, tell him so. Compliment him with enthusiasm.

If your wife does something above the average, tell her how proud it makes you. Encouraging words have a marvellous effect sometimes. And by speaking them you may get rid of many of your grouches. At any rate they make life run smoother. And what better work can you do than make home happy to those nearest and dearest?

Between the closest friends too much is taken for granted sometimes, and a pleasant surprise and show of appreciation spins a golden thread of sympathy and understanding as nothing else can.

Probably the worst people in the world are those who have the best intentions but never carry them out.

—Allan Fairbairn.

War Is Costly

DURING the dark days of "The World War," one father in England was seen in a railway carriage in tears—which he could not control. When a kindly fellow-passenger asked him softly the cause of his grief, he said: "I am very sorry to give way, but my five fine boys are killed, and I have just left my wife, as a consequence, in a lunatic asylum." As in the days of the last plague in Egypt, there was scarcely a house in which there was not one dead.

It is a terrible reflection upon our much vaunted civilization to think that we cannot settle our international differences without resorting to force of arms with the tremendous expense of life involved. O, for the advent in glory of the Prince of Peace at whose return universal and everlasting peace will be established among men.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

A GIRL who had long been kept at Sunday school by the force of her parents' will suddenly became very much attached to it. Instead of being her detestation, it became her delight. On being asked the reason of this change in her feelings, she replied: "I have a new teacher, mother. Since Miss Wilson took our class I take quite a pleasure in my lessons. The first day she taught us I did not know my lesson. But she did not speak cross or scold me, as my other teacher used to do. When I failed to answer my questions, she looked right into my eyes in such a sad way that I almost cried. Since that day I have always had the lessons."

When You Are Tired, Quit

WE repeat—when you're tired, quit.

That doesn't mean, necessarily, quit work.

It means quit spending so much time in other ways that you don't get enough sleep to furnish you with the proper working energy.

You can, of course, keep going on black coffee and your nerves. But whenever you spend more energy than you are getting, you're issuing checks against the bank balance of future health. And as these checks are cashed the balance dwindles.

One "night" tonight must be repaid in later life—with compound interest.

ARMISTICE

"HE MAKETH WARS TO CEASE"

WHO does not remember the glib prophecies of 1914? We were told that it was a war to end war. That at the coming of peace we should see the final triumph of right over might, and the emergence of a new heaven and a new earth. But the whole trend of things since 1918 has proved that such prophecies have been the merest tinkling of cymbals. The loudly and widely advertised assertion that the World War would summarily end all war is now recognized to be a hollow mockery. Meanwhile the present stumbles on under the burden of what has gone before, with more of fear than of faith gripping the imagination. Nevertheless, humanity, with the exception of a few professional soldiers, yearns for peace that shall never again be disturbed by the sounds of shot and shell and the groans of dying men.

How and when shall that peace be established upon the earth?

If we depend upon diplomacy and look to our politics and alliances we are doomed to disappointment. The trouble lies with human nature! The heart of man is out of harmony with the heart of God—and that harmony can be restored only by the transforming grace of God. Man needs a new nature. And this is made possible by the redemptive work of Jesus Christ. "He maketh wars to cease."

When the new heavens and the new earth shall appear there shall also be a redeemed and regenerated race that shall learn the art of war no more. That time is on its way, and there is nothing that men or devils may do that will prevent its triumphant arrival.

NOT OUR BUSINESS.

While surprised to find that it can agree with anything said or done by "Big Bill' Thompson, The Examiner must confess that it can see nothing wrong with the action of Chicago's mayor in intimating to a Canadian organization which sent him a telegram, that it was interfering in what did not concern it in any way.

We don't believe that Canadian bodies or individual Canadians have any justification for sending letters or telegrams of protest to the Mayor of the Windy City

His campaign is ridiculous ,of course; if we have any sense of humor it must be giving us daily opportunities to laugh, but in the name of common sense let us refrain from taking it seriously enough to make Mr. Thompson think that he is getting under our skins.

After all if he wants to get rid of what he calls British propaganda books in Chicago's public library that is not our business.

We may think he is absurd, but let it go at that.

If the people of Chicago want that kind of a mayor that again is not our business.

They elected Big Bill Thompson and they'll have t. stand the consequences

Why should we worry?

THE PERIOD OF SILENCE.

It would be well to remember that although the Canadian Legion's ceremonies in connection with the celebration of Armistice Day are as usual being held tomorrow, the Sunday preceding that historic anniversary, the two-minute period of silence will be observed on Friday, November 11th, the actual anniversary of the end of the war.

The people of the British Empire are being asked to pay this tribute of silence for two minutes at 11 a.m. on November 11th and the King's request to this effect has been called to the attention of Canadian citizens by the Premier of the Dominion, who urges all Canadians to co-operate.

No more impressive demonstration of the fact that the British Empire does not forget the men and women whose lives were laid down for the Empire's cause in the Great War could be given than this stopping for two minutes of the machinery of the whole commonwealth of British nations, while the people of those countries pay a silent but heartfelt and grateful tribute to the Empire's war dead.

Peterborough's citizens should, wherever they are at 11 o'clock next Friday morning, take part in this most significant yet simple ceremony.

TOMORROW'S SERVICE.

The Canadian Legion, in arranging its annual Armistice memorial celebration, has made it possible for the citizens of Peterborough tomorrow to do honour to the memory of the city's soldiers who poured out their lives in fighting for Canada in the Great War.

The ceremonies at the cenotaph and the memorial service in the Capitol Theatre should be marked by an attendance large enough to show that Peterborough gratefully remembers those who fell.

Especially is it hoped that the cenotaph, which stands as the only visible memorial to the city's soldier dead, will be covered by wreaths of poppies, placed there by friends who on this significant anniversary desire to pay tribute to the memory of the dear ones who did not come back.

For some reason or other our attitude toward the cenotaph has been in sharp contrast with that of the people of Toronto and other cities where there is constant evidence in the form of fresh floral tributes to show that the dead have not been forgotten.

Tomorrow's services, so splendidly planned by the Canadian Legion, should find the citizens, generally, gladly co-operating with the ex-service men in paying proper honour to the memory of many very gallant Canadian gentlemen who made the supreme surrender that the rest of us might enjoy the blessings of life in a free country.

MILWAUKEE'S MAYOR TELLS 'EM.

Asked by Mayor Thompson of Chicago to play a horn in Big Bill's circus parade, Mayor Hoan shoots back an answer that snaps and crackles. The game is to join Big Bill's "America First foundation," with the aim of "teaching the Constitution of the United States and respect for our form of government." All well bred horses please refrain from laughter.

Mayor Hoan had a variety of subject matter wherewith to make answer, but wisely confined himself to facts in an undisputed record. Chicago—the very officialdom of Chicago—has a record on this "respect for government." It has taken water from Lake Michigan; it has laughed at the orders of seven Secretaries of War. It has sneered at citizens along the Illinois River where it poured its sewage. It has antagonized our friendly neighbor, Canada. It has—but enough is enough, and here is the whiplash: "We are too busy making local government worthy of respect to indulge in gallery play."

Ouch, Daniel, that was a hot one for a man who is already being laughed at from coast to coast, a circus mayor who made a tour talking about the Mississippi Valley floods and then was besought by an Iowa Congressman, "Let us not make vaudeville stuff out of this serious problem."

Chicago to teach loyalty and respect for our form of government! Big Bill, with his "sixth German city" and "second Swedish city" and "second Polish city" stuff, to talk about "America First"! Far be it from Milwaukee's Mayor to divide the honors with Big Bill in buffoonery or march beside him behind a calliope.—Milwaukee Journal.

THANKSGIVING.

Thanksgiving Day, set apart as an occasion for giving expression to our gratitude for the many blessings vouchsafed us during the year, is at hand.

Of all peoples in the world Canadians surely have reason to be thankful.

No land has been more favoured this year; we have been blessed with bountiful crops, have enjoyed most delightful weather, have seen business and industry flourish.

We have been spared epidemics and disasters and have had peace and prosperity from one end of our country to the other, while a nation-wide celebration of our Dominion Jubilee has made us better Canadians and better citizens.

Well it is that there should be a special day of thanksgiving for Canada, and each one of us should enter heartily into the spirit of the occasion.

Perhaps this is not so easy as it should be, as The New Outlook points out in the following:

"Thankfulness seems to be a grace rather difficult of expression with some of us. Perhaps it is that we have not practised it enough. If we were a little more given to it we might not be so awkward at it. And it is such a seemly grace that it were a great pity not to cultivate it.

It certainly ought not to be hard for any of us to feel thankfulness, even if it is not always easy for us to express it. All that any of us would need to do to stir up within himself great waves of gratitude and thankfulness would be to think intelligently and with some little touch of imagination of the blessing and good with which his life has been filled. Ingratitude is such a dull-witted, stupid sort of thing that it does look altogether unpardonable in men and women of any vision and intelligence. If we could look with any real understanding at all into the life we have been permitted to live this day we would find in it a thousand things to fill our hearts with gladness and gratitude. If we do not see these things it is because our eyes are shut and our souls utterly unresponsive.

"It is a good thing, indeed it is an absolutely necessary thing with most of us, to stimulate ourselves to see the good that is in our lives. The old hymn calls it counting our blessings, but whatever name we give it, it is an altogether wholesome exercise. And to try to measure the sum of the good that is in our lives, to cultivate a habit of responding to it in a spirit of appreciation, is to open up a way to happiness and joy in living that too few of us travel upon."

CANADA'S NEWEST NATIONAL PARK.

(Natural Resources.)

Saskatchewan, which has long been noted as possessing to its immense, arable areas one of the Dominion's most extensive working fields, is now to have a worthy playing field, or recreation ground. This is Prince Albert National Park, situated in the middle of the Province, being about forty miles north of the city from which it takes its name. This recreational area was established last spring by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior. It is somewhat irregular in shape, extending about forty miles from north to south and about the same distance from east to west in the widest part; it covers an area of 1,377 square miles.

The Commissioner of Canadian National Parks, Mr. J. B. Harkin, who made an extended inspection tour of Western parks during the past summer, spent considerable time in travelling through and over this park with the object of laying out the programme of improvement necessary to make the playground as accessible and useful as possible to the people of Saskatchewan. The method of travel was by motor car from Prince Albert to Waskesiu summer resort at the east end of Waskesiu Lake, and thence by canoe through a chain of rivers and lakes to Little Trout Lake in the northwest corner of the park. From this point an extended aeroplane flight was made over the northern part of the park, including a circuit of three of the largest lakes there. This survey showed the possibilities of the area reserved. The feature that will appeal most strongly to visitors is the immense extent of beautiful sandy bathing beaches along the shores of the lakes, little and big, which occupy such a large proportion of the area. There are three main lakes in this chain, Lake Waskesiu, about seventeen or eighteen miles long; Little Trout Lake, and Crean (formerly Big Trout) Lake, slightly smaller. Montreal Lake and Bittern Lake are a little to one side in the northeastern corner of the park. The water of the lakes is as clear as crystal, without trace of alkali, and, as the names of some of them indicate, is the home of valuable species of fish. The miles of sandy beaches indicate that there is room enough for summer resort and cottage and camping sites to meet the need of the people of Saskatchewan.

The big game animals having their habitat in the park, which now becomes a sanctuary, include caribou, moose, elk, Virginia deer and bear. Regulated fishing is permitted in national parks and will here form a powerful attraction, the principal species being lake trout, white fish and pike.

As some of the mountain parks are famous as being the starting places for mountain climbing trips, so Prince Albert Park will be the rendezvous of those who want to explore the illimitable northland. Canoe journeys may be begun here, which by means of a series of waterways will lead on to the great Churchill River and Hudson Bay. Or a deviation may be made to the right hand or the left to bring the adventurer out in northern Manitoba or northern Alberta. It is no exaggeration to say that a thousand different canoe trips, short and long, some following the routes of the great explorers and others possessing all the fascination of the unknown, may be started from the park.

Part of Prince Albert Park was formerly within the boundaries of the Sturgeon national forest, which accounts for the summer resort already located at the eastern end of Lake Waskesiu. Despite the present limited facilities for travel, a growing use is being made of the recreational advantages of this area, and this indicates that when the plans for development are completed Prince Albert National Park will take a prominent place among Canada's tourist resorts.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Canadians should have no difficulty in finding many blessings for which to give thanks.

There doesn't seems to be any particular reason why The Press should not be allowed to report what delegates to the Dominion-Provincial conference have to say upon such matters as Senate reform.

A typographical error made The Examiner last night say that 16,000,000 tourists entered Canada this year. The correct number was 11,000,000 out of which 8,500,000 came to Ontario.

London is using 25,000 stickers in an effort to bring the vote out at the municipal elections. Only 35 per cent. of the electors voted last year.

There is no rose without a thorn. Look at the new rules the professional hockey players have to learn.

So far there has been no move to make licenses for back seat drivers compulsory.

CATTLE GRAIN, AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 5.— Under heavy offerings of over 8,000 cattle this week, the market has shown remarkable strength, giving every indication that cattle prices are on a rising grade. Many dealers have expressed their belief that prices will rule considerably higher before the end of the season.

Prices this week have held steady to strong, averaging strictly higher before the end of the season.

Prices this week have held steady to strong, averaging strictly higher as the week advanced.

With butcher cattle prices ruling high, stocker prices have necessarily had to follow suit, so long as the present good demand for stockers keeps up.

Hogs weakened slightly, following the lower markets over the border. Closing prices on Thursday was $8.75, f.o.b., selects, but packers bidding 25c lower for week-end loadings.

MONTREAL GRADE AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—There was some demand from exporters for wheat in the Montreal grain market yesterday and a sale of a round lot of No. 2 Northern was made at 17c per bushel over the Winnipeg November option, c.i.f. Montreal, and another round lot at 8c per bushel over the same option, c.i.f. Bay Ports.

The trade in coarse grains on spot was quiet, the demand being only for odd cars of oats.

Prices for all grades of Spring wheat flour were well maintained under a moderate local and foreign demand. The condition of the market for winter wheat flour was unchanged with a small trade reported

A feature of the millfeed trade was the good demand from United States buyers and a fair business was done. The domestic trade was also active and prices were firm. A fair trade was reported in standard grades of rolled oats at unchanged prices.

The foreign demand for Canadian baled hay continued good and a fair volume of business was done.

The egg market was moderately active and firm. The receipts were 702 cases.

The demand for all grades of potatoes was again of a limited character and prices were inclined to be easy. Sales of odd cars of Prince Edward Island white potatoes were made at $1.30 per bag of ninety pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.30 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.25 per bag in bulk, and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

A moderate trade was done in imported beans and values were steady. Car lots of choice white hand-picked on spot were offered at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, while broken lots sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

A stronger feeling developed in the Butter market and prices for undergrades were advanced ¼c per pound. This was attributed to the increased demand of late. The receipts were 506 packages.

The demand from English buyers for cheese showed further improvement and several sales were made. The local inquiry was fair and values were about steady. The receipts were 5,962 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—Prospects of heavier deliveries of wheat by Canadian farmers as soon as fall plowing is complete did much to pull down wheat values yesterday. Besides, new export demand for North American wheat appeared to have flattened out. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 to 1¼c net lower, with corn ⅛ to ½ down; oats ⅛ to ¼ off, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a shade advance.

Adding to selling pressure on the wheat market yesterday were predictions which were current that the Canadian government would raise its estimates of the 1927 yield. In this connection, a Canadian trade expert was quoted as saying that Alberta province may produce nearly as much as Saskatchewan, although Saskatchewan has about double the acreage of Alberta. The contribution of Alberta, according to this authority, is the remarkable feature of this year's Canadian crop, and even better than expected, whereas Manitoba and Saskatchewan actual returns are disappointing.

Numerous standing orders to sell out and stop losses at various set limits were forced into operation here by yesterday's setback in wheat prices. One of the contributing factors was word that harvesting in advanced sections of Argentina is expected to start around November 20. Meanwhile, further selling of wheat into store here was noted, and another ship load arrived from Duluth. The Duluth cargo was of premium grade and unlikely to be delivered on Chicago speculative contracts.

Corn and oats were relatively firm in the face of wheat weakness.

It was reported that the Pacific coast trade in reaching into Kansas and Nebraska for corn at better prices than Omaha or St. Louis are paying.

Scattered selling of lard eased the provision market.

WAS SO NERVOUS and SHORT OF BREATH COULD HARDLY SLEEP

Mrs. Louise Raglin, Golden Lake, Ont., writes:—"For several years I was greatly troubled with my heart. I was so nervous and short of breath I could hardly sleep at night, and if I did sleep for a while I had bad dreams.

"I managed to keep at my work, somehow, until I began to have dizzy spells which got so bad I had to give up. I used many kinds of medicine, but found no help until I got a box of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS. After the first box I found a great change, and after two boxes I was as well as I could be.

"I told my mother, who had choking sensations, about them and they helped her greatly."

TRUE STORIES ABOUT LIFE INSURANCE
By a Mutual Life Representative

His Family's Future Was in the Fire

HE had need for insurance and proposed taking out a $5,000 Policy in the Mutual Life.

I asked him what was the minimum by which his widow could carry out his plans for his boys' education. How long could his family live and how much education could they have for $5,000?

"Make it ten, then," he said, "with an extra thousand for my mother—say $11,000."

I got the Head Office to make out three policies—two for ten thousand each and one for one thousand in favor of his mother.

"I can't pay for it," he said, when he saw the extra $10,000. "I have other irons in the fire."

"You have your family's future in the fire," said I. "Don't leave it there."

He hesitated, but saw the logic of the situation and accepted the full amount of the policies—$21,000.

"It will cost me $700 a year," he said, "but my family's future is worth it."

BALLOONIST FOUND.

Body Taken From Wrecked Balloon Miles From Starting Point.

SPARTA, Texas, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—The body of a balloonist, believed to be that of Captain Hawthorne Gray, who took off from Belleville, Illinois, in an attempt to establish a world's altitude record, was taken from a wrecked balloon here to-day.

A farmer reported seeing the balloon descend rapidly and said it was wrecked and there was a body in it. Gray had intended to ascend forty-five thousand feet and to stick to his balloon until the last. His ascent to 41,000 feet last May was not recognized because he had jumped in a parachute. Air experts said he could have lost consciousness in the rare atmosphere in the extreme heights to which he was equipped to go.

Had Gone 40,000 Feet.

SCOTFIELD, Ill., Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—Capt. Hawthorne Gray, definitely established as losing his life at Sparta, Texas, had attained the height of forty thousand feet in his balloon before it crashed, according to the log found in the wreckage. This is a world's record if authenticated.

Wheat Prices Go Up Following Liverpool

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. —(Canadian Press). — Unexpected strength of wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with adverse crop reports from Argentina, gave early upward swing to-day to the wheat market here. Opening unchanged to a half cent higher, Chicago wheat soon advanced all around, Corn Oats, and Provisions were likewise firmer, Corn starting unchanged to 3-8 up, and susequently hardened a little more.

Opening prices were: Wheat, Dec. 124 3-8, March 127 7-8, Corn, December 83, March 86 7-8. Oats, December 48 1-4, March 49 7-8.

Railway Shares Lead Upward Move Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press). — Stock prices resumed their upward movement to-day under the leadership of investment railroad shares. Delaware and Hudson suddenly jumped seven and a half points Norfolk and Western climbed more than four points and others sold two to nearly four points higher. Northern Pacific touched a new top. Expectations of heavy holiday trade accompanied renewed accumulation of mercantile shares. Radio Corporation ran into some profit taking after its spirited advance earlier in the week and a few other soft spots developed here and there but they were disregarded. The closing was firm.

NEW RECORD CLAIMED.

Italian Aviator Said To Have Averaged 298 Miles Per Hour.

ROME, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—The Royal Aero Club of Italy asserted to-day that Major Mario De Bernardi attained a speed of more than three hundred miles an hour in a hydro airplane test yesterday, smashing all existing records for speed. His average was 298 miles. The official world record was made by Lieut. Webster of Great Britain, 281 miles, in winning the Schneider Cup.

RHODES IS ILL; DEBATE HELD UP

Maritime Representation in the Commons To Be Discussed Later.

PROGRESS RAPID.

OTTAWA, November 5 (Canadian Press).—The slight illness of Premier Rhodes of Nova Scotia, who is confined to his hotel room with a cold, made it impossible for him to attend the Provincial Conference this morning and the question of Nova Scotia's representation in the House of Commons was postponed for debate until a later date.

The conference proceeded to discuss the Industrial Disputes Investigations Act and the standardization of regulations governing agricultural products. The question of child welfare and certain public health problems also came before the conference. It was not known what decisions were reached, but progress with the conference agenda was very rapid this morning.

The Maritime representation in Parliament was a debated question of this morning's conference of Premiers. The three provinces by the sea, which had forty-three members of Parliament in the seventies, now have twenty-nine, and the whole question was pushed to the front by Premier Rhodes of Nova Scotia, who presented a memorandum to the Federal Government on the subject.

Industrial problems were also to the front to-day, the Industrial Disputes Investigations Act being debated.

TWO KINGS ATTEND ROYAL WEDDING

Princess Anne of France Becomes Duchess of Apulia.

NAPLES, Italy, Nov. 5—(Canadian Press). — The wedding of the Princess Anne of France to Prince Amedeo of Savoy Duke of Apulia, was celebrated to-day with all the pomp and circumstance attendant upon royal weddings. They were married first in the civil ceremony at the Royal Palace and then at the religious ceremony. The kings of the two great latin countries, Victor of Italy and Alfonso of Spain were present The wedding attracted more royalty than any other since the war, except the respective weddings of Princess Mary and of the Duke of York in Britain.

LADY DELIGHTS CLUB MEMBERS

Playing of Miss Margaret Brown Demonstrates True Musicianship.

AT MUSIC CLUB MEETING.

(By Jeanette)

Miss Margaret Brown of the Faculty of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, was the visiting artiste at the bi-monthly meeting of the Women's Music Club, held yesterday afternoon in the hall of the Conservatory of Music. Mrs. W. H. Hohner assisted with vocal solos, and Miss Mary Agnes Logan played her accompaniments.

Miss Brown, who wore a dress of poppy red, used a concert grand piano sent down from Toronto especially for the occasion. She charmed and delighted her audience by her superb playing, demonstrating the art of the true musician in her absolute absorption in each number, meeting the varying demands of contrasting types of compositions by an instant adequate comprehension of the composer's mood. Without mannerisms, with an artistic quality of smooth, dreamy tone, delightful alike in smashing forte passages or in delicate cascades of silvery trills, with a flawless memory that sent her through an exacting programme without the aid of musical notes, and a technical training that enables her to give the most difficult numbers, the pleasing allusion of being very easy to play, Miss Brown possesses the main requisites of an outstanding musician. Despite her years, being still in the early twenties, she has a strength and vital force in execution that is always subordinated to the smooth, soft tone that makes her music so delightful. She was accorded enthusiastic applause at the conclusion of each section of a wonderfully interesting programme.

Some of the dainty dance music of d'Albert, an English composer, in an "Allemande, Gavotte and Musette," formed the opening number by the pianiste, followed by a florid setting by Busoni of a Choral in G major by Bach. This has an intricate right-hand accompaniment to the rather dignified melody carried by the bass. A charming bit of Ballet music arranged by Friedman from one of Gluck's elusive melodies was a prelude to the lengthier "Prelude and Fugue in E Minor" by Mendelssohn, which formed the conclusion of the first group. Alluring in its clearness of design, illustrating the imaginative, expressive quality of the great master, this selection showed a striking contrast in the passionate Prelude, which merges later into the more restrained Fugue section, and demonstrated admirably the graceful quality in playing which distinguishes this young musician.

The second group was drawn largely from the works of the Romance type of composer, for which Miss Brown seems to have a special aptitude. The noble individuality of Schumann was adequately illustrated in his "Romance" and "Prophet Bird," with the dreamy, idealistic character of the composition, and its aspiring, limpid tone, pictured in the "Romance." The song of the prophet bird, another idealistic conception, is filled with little detached, silvery triplets with an upward swinging finale, the plaintive melody recurring again and again.

Chopin proved another admirable avenue of interpretation for Miss Brown, who played his "Impromptu in A Flat" and his "Nocturne" from Opus 15, Number 1, with its haunting, wistful cadences and sudden abrupt changes. Two of the modern composers had their place on the programme, in the "Marche" of the Russian, Serge Prokofieff, a gay, swinging morsel in vivacious style, with an abrupt conclusion, and in the "Rhapsody in C Major" of Ernest von Dohnanyi, a celebrated Hungarian pianist of today, whose work shows the characteristic descriptive quality of the Czech musician, with fire and forceful vigor in the brilliant, rapid tempo of the major passages, and a broad melodic theme throughout.

As an encore to the repeated applause vouchsafed this group, Miss Brown played some of the merry ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamonde."

The odd music of Brahms, with its emotional yearning and severity in expression, was displayed in his "Intermezzo in A Major," which, with the Strauss-Schulz-Goler arrangement of "By the Beautiful Blue Danube," formed the concluding programme numbers played by the pianiste. This latter selection was an extremely popular one, the lovely bright melody of the popular old favorite recurring as a constant refrain in the embroideries given it by the composers, building up around the thematic melody alternating passages of delicate, metallic runs and heavy, strongly-accented chords.

As a final encore, Miss Brown played one of the bits of exquisite music in which she apparently delights, with the spiritual quality of the musician overruling the vital, compelling composition. This was an Alabieff-Liszt arrangement of "Nightingale," simulating the liquid song of the sweetly-singing bird.

Mrs. W. H. Hohner, assisting vocalist of the afternoon, sang a trio of difficult songs with excellent interpretive quality in their clear, high rendition. These included Durante's "Danza Banza," Gretchanioff's "Over the Steppe," and Cadman's "Spring Song of the Robin Woman."

Afternoon tea was served at the conclusion of the recital, it which the president, Mrs. J. Forbes Allan made the announcements.

HOVIS
The Bread of Health

Why Children Thrive on HOVIS!

EVERY golden-brown slice of HOVIS Bread is a slice of true food... Natural and wholesome. Far more nutritious, slice for slice, than any ordinary bread can ever be. And here's the reason:

The wheat germ is that valuable part of the wheat grain which contains the most vitamines—the most nourishment, and promotes regular habits.

In HOVIS Bread there is wheat germ in abundance!

That is why children have in HOVIS, a bread which gives them the full nutrition their growing, active bodies need.

Every day you give your children HOVIS Bread you are helping them to health and happiness and providing a food which will build sound, strong bodies for their years to come.

Costs a little more—worth much more.

Children Love the HOVIS Flavor

No coaxing. Children gladly help themselves to HOVIS Bread because the flavor is new and different.

It is nutlike and rich, yet HOVIS is light and easily digested. Good to the last crust!

HOVIS FLOUR is made by the millers of PURITY FLOUR —trade-mark protected.

The Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O. D.E. held a very large and successful card party last evening in the new Ford building, kindly loaned for the occasion by Messrs. Hood and Cummings Fifty-five tables of cards were played, the majority of bridge, with a few tables of "five hundred." Announcements were made by Dr. J. J. Craig, who also extended the thanks of the Chapter to Messrs. Hood and Cummings and to all who patronized the card party and to those who helped in any way to make it so successful. Arrangements were in charge of a capable committee, convened by Miss Ethel Richardson, with active helpers last night in the convenor of refreshments, Mrs. J. J. Craig, assisted by Mrs. J. Bradbury, Mrs. Frank Sherwood, Mrs. C. E. Graham, Mrs. G. R. Scott, Mrs. H. Carey, Mrs. Gordon Hill, Mrs. F. Hooper, and the Misses J. Eagleson, Helen Anderson, Myra Baird, C. Smith and E. Clementi. Others in this group who assisted were the regent, Mrs. J. McNabb, Mrs. C. S. Browne, Mrs. L. Conway and Mrs. F. Jobbitt. At the conclusion of the card games, dainty refreshments were served. The decorations were very attractive, with the red, white and blue streamers and colored pennants used last week still in place, and I.O.D.E. insignia decorating the windows. The tables were draped with dainty white cloths crossed by red streamers. Prizes for bridge were won by Miss Marjorie Hatton and Mr. E. K. McNutt (first) and consolation awards went to Miss Helen Lamb and Mr. W. E. Kidd. Mrs. F. Weir won the 'lucky number' prize and Mrs. R. Ferguson the prize for "five hundred." SAINT and SINNER

"Oh, I guess it's not much use," Bob said, "trying to explain a man's psychology to a woman. A woman translates every generality into a personal insult. I suppose we'd better get home. Look! The streets are almost deserted. And the lights have gone out over the theater. It's a peach of a night—as crisp as cold lettuce right out of the ice box. Shall we drive a bit?"

"Please go on, dear," she pleaded, fighting back her tears and smiling determinedly with her lips. "I was just acting—like a wife. Give me another chance, darling."

"Good old Faith!" Bob's hands closed over hers tightly. "You're a real thoroughbred, honey! And it's sweet of you to give me a chance to air these half-baked views of mine. I got a lot of them when I was a youngster. My mother was the kind of wife I've been talking about—the kind you're in danger of becoming if I don't force you to think of yourself more. She pampered my father till it was a sin and a shame, and all the relatives and neighbors pointed to her as the best woman in the world!

"I don't want to become that sort of tyrant! Why, frequently I longed to kick him in the shins because he made my mother cry, and it was not until I was a grown man that I realized that she invited his tyranny by pampering him to death, by living only in him, trembling when he frowned, echoing him nervously when he expressed an opinion, almost weeping with joy when he chose to be jolly and nice. And of course her exaggerated pleasure in his good mood always turned it into a black one, and she suffered terribly, not dreaming she was the cause of it all.

"And I cannot have you like mother, darling! Her life was too miserable, and Dad's wasn't any too happy! Do you think he liked being a tyrant, that he enjoyed knowing that every little mood of his was so terribly important to her? It made him frantic at times, I do believe! But he couldn't analyze it all, and he couldn't possibly accuse her of any fault. She was so good!"

"I am like her," Faith said slowly, shame fighting with resentment in her heart. "But I do see what you mean. What were you going to say a while ago? You were going to tell me why wives act as they do—"

"Because they want to make themselves absolutely necessary to their men, make them realize that they are really owned by their wives," Bob said, frowning as he tried to make his meaning clear. "Women become wives; they want their men to turn into husbands. The old curse of possession. A wife can make any man ridiculous by referring to him always as 'My husband.' That settles his hash, all right! Turns him into a possession, reduces him to one dimension. He's a husband! She won't let him be anything else, or, if he is, she won't acknowledge to herself that he is. I would not dare talk to you like this if I didn't believe you were only incipiently a 'good wife,' with too much sense and individuality to go the whole hog. I guess you know," and he gave her a teasing, sidelong look out of his brilliant blue eyes, "that I kind of like you as well as love you. Now shall we go home, sweet?"

"Not on your life!" Faith cried with sudden gaiety. "Let's go somewhere and dance. I rather like being seen with a good-looking chap like Bob Hathaway. You will notice," she smiled gallantly, "that I didn't say 'like my husband'."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1927

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

According to astrology this is a day of contending planetary influences, disturbing to the nerves.

Good and evil aspects may be felt while this configuration prevails, and it is wise to pass the day in rest and recreation.

There is a sign unfavorable to the efforts of the clergy under this direction of the stars since it causes a critical and analytical attitude of mind.

The rule makes for religious controversies and sceptical comment. Scientific books will gain wide favor.

Promise of fame for new preachers and new leaders in the churches is read in the stars.

There is an aspect presaging for the Pacific coast growth of many novel sects and cults.

Minds attuned to the occult and students of psychic phenomena are to find in the west encouragement, which will later be deplored, the seers foretell.

This should be a favorable direction of the stars for the aged and for established forms of belief.

Reactionary tides of thought promise to sweep over the land, making for many big reform movements and stronger adherence to the orthodox churches, astrologers forecast.

The evening of this day is read as most unfavorable to courtship, and as boding ill for engagements made under this sign.

Journeys of statesmen who will investigate political affairs may furnish sensations for the press, the seers prognosticate.

Pleasure-seeking, dancing and extravagance in entertaining are indicated for the coming winter.

Persons whose birthdate it is should beware of romance in the coming year. Love-letters may be especially dangerous.

Children born on this day probably will be adventurous and able to attain interesting careers.

FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1927

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

This is one of the rarely lucky days in planetary direction, according to astrology, which finds benefic aspects strongly dominant.

It is a day in which women should put forth all their best energies, especially in mass efforts connected with clubs and other organizations.

This is a lucky wedding day, especially is the marriage ceremony performed at noon.

Engagements to marry made under this direction of the stars are read as most fortunate, since they presage prosperity as well as long happiness.

There is a sign today encouraging coquetry and intrigue, for men are easily deceived while this sway prevails.

Banks and bankers should benefit today and it is believed that they will gain greatly in power over governmental as well as commercial affairs.

Workers may nurse a new discontent at this time of the year in which disputes with employers are presaged.

Traditions of the past, so rapidly disappearing, will be swept away by means of some sort of world upheaval, the seers forecast.

The new era, which will be more and more evident in all mundane matters, will show certain reactionary trends that make for stabilizing effects in manners and morals.

Friction between France and the United States again is prognosticated, owing to clashes between irresponsible persons.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have a year of profitable endeavor. Expectations from wills may be futile.

Children born on this day probably will be positive and aggressive in character. They may be inclined toward superstitions.

RUN DOWN IN HEALTH.

Why Many Men and Women Are Badly Handicapped.

When you are so run down in health that it impairs the efficiency of your work as well as your power to enjoy your leisure hours, or obtain rest, it is time you looked to the cause. If you do not, a serious breakdown is almost sure to result. In nearly all cases this condition, which doctors usually describe as general debility, is due to poor blood—blood that is deficient in red corpuscles. When the blood is thin and weak your whole system suffers. You lose your appetite, have no energy, your nerves trouble you and you feel restless.

What you need is help to build up your blood and you should begin at once to make your blood rich and red by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You will soon notice the difference in your health by a better appetite and increased vigor. The reason is that the new blood created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills stimulates all the organs of the body to healthy activity and so the system gains nourishment and strength. If you are weak or out of sorts, begin gaining new strength today by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. "I was in a badly run down condition", says Mrs. J. Potter, of Winnifred, Alta., "when I began using Williams' Pink Pills and they fully restored my health. I strongly recommend this medicine to all weak people."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Simple enough to make at home is this straight line black velvet frock. There is a fold of the velvet around the bodice to give a bolero effect, with an opening left for a lace handkerchief, and a shirred panel of velvet applied at the side of the skirt.

Evening gowns this season are frequently considered primarily as a background for brilliant jewelry. And because of the revived interest in rubies-emeralds and sapphires, the all-white, simply-fashioned evening frock has come into prominence.

True, you may wear a green evening gown with emeralds, but the brilliance and enchanting color of the emeralds are much better emphasized if you wear them with white.

These robes-bijou—as the French call them—are sometimes of black, but the black frock is better suited to show the beauties of pearls and diamonds than the colored stones.

If you have precious stones of course you are wearing them—that is, if you can have them reset in the substantial settings that fashion now demands. The insignificant little chains and brooches that used to be worn are no longer smart. Jewelry must be large enough nowadays to be seen from a distance.

Much has been said about the passing of imitation bijoutery. The tendency may be in that direction—especially so far as pearls are concerned. But good-looking imitation colored jewelry is still worn and most effectively.

Evening jewelry sets now include a pair of slipper heels. Rings are usually used but sparingly, bracelets abundantly. And almost always there is a necklace or chain of some sort. A brooch on one shoulder or at the juncture of the shoulder strap and frock is effective on the simply constructed frock.

What of earrings? They are very much worn, certainly, and word has just come from Paris that earrings are becoming smaller or at least shorter. The reason for this is that ears are being shown more freely than has recently been the case. Women who have permitted their hair to grow again wear it drawn back so that only the top of the ear is covered and the new bob is quite short over the ears—that is, if you have good-looking ears.

LIGHTHOUSE MAN BADLY WOUNDED

Robert Young Says Indian Shot Him While He Was Fixing Lights.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Nov. 5. — (Canadian Press).—Robert A. Young, sole keeper of the lighthouse at the mouth of the French River, is in a critical condition to-day with a gunshot wound in his body, and Provincial Police are investigating following Young's assertion that the shot was fired by an Indian as he was fixing buoy lights on the river. Young is 69 years of age. He struggled on foot twelve miles to the nearest rail point and underwent a journey of fifty miles by train before he secured medical aid.

SOLVE THIS PUZZLE. What Is This Mysterious Message? WIN FIRST PRIZE.

The mysterious jumbled message printed on the above Banner contains four words purposely misplaced and when correctly placed is the slogan of a better hosiery service. Each little group of letters represents a word and the four words form the slogan. For example, the first group of jumbled letters is "BNERAN" and when put in its proper order is "BANNER." If you can solve this fascinating puzzle you have opened the way to being declared the first prize winner. Be neat and careful. Follow the rules.

RULES

1. Write answers in ink on one side of paper only. Put name and address and name of this paper in upper right hand corner, stating whether Mr., Mrs., or Miss. Put anything else on separate sheet. Don't send fancy or typewritten answer. 2. You must be 15 years or over to enter. Employees of this company or their friends are forbidden to enter. 3. Final awards will be made by a committee of three Toronto gentlemen having no connection with the firm. Contestants must agree to abide by their decisions.

Prizes will be awarded by points. 275 points, the maximum, or nearest thereto, will take the first prize. 125 points will be awarded for the correct solution of the puzzle, 50 points for general neatness, appearance, spelling, punctuation and handwriting of entry, and 100 for fulfilling the conditions of contest.

of bridges crumbled and the superstructures crashed into the streams Where small streams had been dammed to form reservoirs or mill ponds, the great added weight of water burst the dams.

Houses Swept Away

Houses were swept away by the dozens and hundreds of others were left standing with water up to the second story or higher. Cattle and sheep in the pastures or tied to barns perished in large numbers.

Electric light and power ceased to function in numerous cities and towns. Industry came to a standstill and schools were closed. Telegraph and telephone wires went down by the hundreds and many communities were isolated. The supply of drinking water was cut off or contaminated in some places. In a day filled with excitement and heroism there were some outstanding occurrences. Perhaps the most spectacular incident of the flood was the bursting of a reservoir on a high hill a mile from the little village of Becket in Berkshire County, Mass. The owner of this private lake of water, William Ballou, fearing that this would happen, had watched the property all night. When he saw the banks begin to cave in, he jumped into his automobile, drove at breakneck speed into the village and warned every man, woman and child of the impending danger. The inhabitants rushed to the mountainside near the village. One woman, Mrs. Gustine Carroll, alone refused to believe that the peril was imminent. She stayed in a store which was swept away with almost the entire village when the wall of water poured down a few minutes later. A snowfall late yesterday added to the discomfort of the refugees.

Many Rescued

At White River Junction, Vt., Henry B. Leavitt, a policeman, saved many lives by his heroism. Where the White and Connecticut Rivers had overflowed their banks and surrounded many houses in the lowlands, Leavitt plunged into the icy water and made repeated trips to rescue the inhabitants.

When a dam across the White River went out, the flood carried away the home of Claude Reynolds. Reynolds managed to save part of his family and to escape himself, but his wife and two of their children were swept to their death.

At Millbury, Mass., Mrs. Charles A. Putnam and her eight-year-old daughter, Dorothy, were standing on a dam across the Blackstone River in Smith Village watching the rising water and with no thought of danger. Suddenly the dam gave way and they were drowned.

In Crawford Notch, in the heart of the White Mountains, a landslide sent masses of earth and rocks hurtling down the mountainside over the State highway and the railroad and struck a freight train.

GUARD THE CHILDREN FROM AUTUMN COLDS

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day is warm, the next cold and wet, and unless the mother is on her guard, the little ones are seized with colds that may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mothers' best friend in preventing or banishing colds. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent colds, or if it does come on suddenly their prompt use will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

plough, for use on the main streets of the city, will be bought from J. S. Innes and Company for $3,860. The machine, which is of the caterpillar type, will be provided with fittings so that it can be used on pavements in the summer time for any purpose. The machine will clear a path fourteen feet wide, running at the rate of five miles an hour. Aldermen Denne and Stocker proposed that a number of snow sleighs be purchased so that when the snow has been plowed it can be drawn away more quickly, as the tractor would pull several of them at once.

The matter of some more thorough system of checking up on complaints made to the City Engineer's department by the public or the aldermen was brought up by Ald. Ackerman, who suggested a book in which all such items might be entered, the engineer to initial them when he read them. Every now and then a check could be made of the various matters, to see which ones had been attended to. To Ald. Greene's remarks that there were dozens of small matters which had been reported to the engineer which had not been attended to, Mr. Parsons replied that hundreds of similar matters had been fixed up without any person having reported them.

A pump will be bought from the De Laval Company for use in cleaning out the lagoon and other tanks at the sewage disposal plant. This will be a portable apparatus and is to be fitted with a fifteen horse power motor.

Mr. Parsons reported that the sewage disposal plant is working well now with the spare settling tank in use as a digestive tank. New digestive tanks are to be built in the spring and the plant will then be complete. The trouble had been, he said, that the department had passed the plant as complete when it had not been, as there was no provision made for disposal of the sludge.

Serial Debentures.

The debenture for the Collegiate extension will be issued in serial form instead of in the sinking fund plan. This was decided by the Finance committee after considering a report from City Treasurer Frank Adams that the city would have about $26,000 thereby, with a loss of not more than $1,500 in the amount offered by the financial houses. The city of Toronto and the Province of Ontario issue serial bonds.

An account from Dr. Louden for treatment for a member of the Fire Department brought up again the matter of whether such cases should be treated by the Medical Officer. It was conceded that the first treatment might be given by which every doctor was available, but the aldermen felt that further attendance should be by the city's own physician. The Mayor pointed out that Dr. Young did not think his duties covered this matter, but the by-law was produced, one clause specifying that the duty of the medical officer include the giving of service to any officer or member of the fire department injured while on duty.

COBOURG C. I. PUPILS GIVEN

tations had been sent them and regrets had been received from various points between Saskatchewan and New Jersey. This gives some idea of how little time is required to scatter the members of a class to the far corners of the world.

For the benefit of those who did not know the requirements, Mr. Davidson explained that a graduate must have Lower School Canadian History, Middle School British History, English Literature and Composition, and at least five other Middle School subjects. In the commercial department a speed of thirty words per minute correctly typed and sixty words in shorthand are the requirements. The commercial graduates were: Mary Corkery, Frank MacDonald, Clara Curtis, Albert Thompson, Verna Hillier, Lillian Medhurst, Floris McBride, and Greta Davie. To these as well as the graduates from the other departments, Judge Huycke presented their diplomas ,shaking hands with each in turn as he extended the diploma.

Judge Huycke.

As he stepped forward to address the audience, the Judge addressed himself to the principal, staff, ladies and gentlemen young and younger. This unusual salutation was explained when he said he felt quite young himself as he recalled past memories of associations with the C.C. Institute. He also promised to comply with Principal Davidson's request for a short address. He felt, he said, honored and privileged to be given a place on such an interesting programme, and he was also pleased to notice that so much public interest was taken in the affair. As he looked back to his earlier years, he recalled many interesting circumstances. Once, he would not be more specific, he had been master of Classics at C.C.I. Now he was pleased to see this office in the hands of a very beautiful and most attractive young lady. In this respect, the pupils were much more fortunate than in his day. This remark brought brought hearty applause for Miss Lalande, who smiled her appreciation. In later years, said His Honor, he had been a member of the School Board and had, thus been directly connected with the administration of school affairs. His sons had received part of their education at the Cobourg Collegiate. One of them who had accompanied him from Peterborough, had graduated from the C. C. Institute. Through all the years Cobourg Collegiate had kept a good record. With the exception of himself, it had always had a good staff. He was pleased that it had not been permitted to lower its high standard, and hoped that the citizens would realize fully their obligations to the teachers of the staff. One writer had said that there were still some students, even in the universities. This was a very sweeping remark, and the Judge did not entirely agree. He knew that sports and pleasures played a part in the lives of the students, but hoped and was satisfied that the younger generations were still putting first things first.

It was easy, he said, to criticize, but more difficult to improve. The chief ground for criticism was not with the staff, but with the steel-like regulations which held them. People claimed that education had become standardized like peas in a pod or bricks from a mould. Thus individuality was surprised. But he was getting away from his subject. He had intended to speak a few encouraging words to the grads. The fact that they were so widely scattered was of interest to him. He felt safe in saying that the thoughts of those who were absent would be with the commencement that night. The fact that most of them were in Canada and few in other countries was very pleasing. He felt sure that Canada's future is so bright that the wanderers will soon return. (Applause.)

But he cautioned the pupils against thinking their work was completed when they had passed their tests and received their diplomas. It was only beginning. They had but laid the foundation for their life work. Many, he said, go through schools and pass their examinations with high standing. Yet they fail to grasp the sense of beauty and culture which proper education ought to give. They were nothing but boors. Students must achieve their own truest pleasure from individual effort.

While certain subjects appeared useless for any practical use, Judge Huycke pointed out that they trained scholars to think. The greatest man of his time was Francis Bacon, and he, like many other great men, was a student of the classics. These gave the student a culture which was equally and perhaps more desirable than brawn.

Above all else, the younger student must not think he knows everything and no one else anything. It was for this very reason, intolerance, that the second year university students were called sophomores. This word is of Greek derivation, and means wise fool. Intolerance is the curse of the world, in all walks of life. It is depressing and injuring Canada.

His Honor expressed a hope that they were studying French. (Applause for Miss Quinlan). He thought it an excellent idea to put French teachers in English schools, and also the reverse. This would greatly benefit conversational French. Greek, he claimed, was the most beautiful of all languages. The translation from one language to another was one of the best known brain developers. King James' English Bible is one of the greatest works of literature. A youth setting out in the world with a knowledge of Shakespeare is as well equipped to face life as he who goes with a brain full of mathematics.

He did not know the young people in the Collegiate, but he hoped that they would prove an honor to themselves, their homes, home towns, churches and country. Quoting from Tennyson, His Honor compared life to the process of forming metal from the crude ore. He hoped they would stand the test.

There were none of his old classmates present he said. Many had given their lives for their country. If they considered their country worth such a sacrifice, surely it behooved the younger generation to safeguard their heritage. (Applause).

Mr. Davidson assured Judge Huycke that his remarks had been appreciated. But regarding the reference made of the teaching of French, Miss Quinlan had spent two summer vacations in Quebec and one in France for the purpose of studying the language.

A piano solo by Mary Moore, 4th Form, was encored.

Roy Jex, chairman of the school board, presented the certificates to the pupils of the Upper, Middle and Lower schools. Mr. Hopper, donor of two silver and two bronze medals for elocution and oratory, presented them himself to Alex Young and Mary Hall for oratory, Mona Casey and Margaret Holle, winner of the elocution medals, were not present.

Before asking Mrs. Davidson to present the girls" field day prizes, Mr. Davidson paid a neat compliment to Grace Hayden for the excellent and proficient manner in which the afternoon tea had been arranged and carried out. Mrs. Davidson, honorary president of the girls' athletic society, then presented the prizes to the winners of the events.

Senor—

Grace Owens who won the cup, Gertrude Morton, Betty Spooner, Muriel Niles, Georgina Thompson, Clara Stannard, Margaret Holle, Lenore Kennedy, Kathleen Turpin,, Marion Wagar, Jean Booth, Grace Mitchell, Kathleen Sloper, Elma Harper.

Junior—

R. Minifee, Ethel Gatridge, Viola Spry, Marion Robertson, Louise Flannagan, Mary Bird, Jean Nichol, Jean Robertson, Ethelyn Skill.

Major Cecil Peterson, officer commanding the Cobourg Heavy Battery, presented the Laura Secord prizes to the marksman of C.C.I. cadet corps, William Blezard. In doing so he complimented the corps on its excellent appearance when on parade and its efficiency as an organization. Mrs. F. P. Lloyd presented the Laura Secord prize to William Wing (Chinese) crack shot of the Public school cadet corps.

The boys' field day prizes were presented by Harry Field of the Public School Board. He emphasized the necessity of a clean mind in a sound body.

In presenting the I.O.D.E. prizes for History, Miss Clara Field said that those who can win prizes in history can make it and what Canada needs is men not only born to the country, but alive to it.

This ended the program, except for Mr. Davidson's expression of gratitude for those who had assisted in the entertainment and in the program otherwise.

The boys winning prizes were: G. Forbes cup, E. Woods silver medal, L. Robertson silver medal, E. Conlin bronze medal, W. Blezard bronze medal.

Efficiency—H. Hayden, K. Pilatt, B. Hodgetts, W. Kaves, J. McGlade, W. Mann, C. Leonard, R. Davidson.

Boys' Athletics, Jr.—W. Johnson, cup; G. Jarrell, silver medal; E. Mattershead, bronze medal; G. McCullough, bronze medal; R. Cooper and H. Hayden, bronze medal.

Intermediate—B. Hodgetts, cup; C. Leonard, silver medal; J. Owens, silver medal; H. Raversdale, silver medal; J. McGlade, bronze medal; F. Bendall, bronze medal; J. Staples, bronze medal.

But while the singing of the National Anthem closed the program for the evening, it did not signify the end of the commencement celebration. Saturday afternoon in the school gymnasium, from five to eight-thirty, the graduating class will entertain the alumni at a tea dance. The Collegiate orchestra will furnish music for dancing.

Walter Hagen Smashes Way To Pro-Finals

MATCHED AGAINST TURNESA FOR HIGHEST GOLF HONORS

Defeats Espinosa In One Of Greatest Battles of Tournament.

PERFECT GAME.

CEDARCREST COUNTRY CLUB, Dallas, Texas, Nov. 5 (Associated Press).—Walter Hagen, "the invincible" of the links, and Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N.Y., flash, hurdled the last barriers of a great field of golfers yesterday to fight it out to-day for the championship of the Professional Golfers' Association.

Hagen, who hails from Pasadena, Fla., putted to one of his typical triumphs over Al Espinosa of Chicago on the thirty-seventh hole of their semi-final match.

"The Haig" already has won the professional golf title four times.

Turnesa gained the final bracket in a runaway match with John Golden of Paterson, N.J., whose putter acted like a sore thumb yesterday, and forced him to bow, 7 and 6, before the handsome Anglo-Italian from New York.

Espinosa put up one of the greatest battles of the tournament against Hagen. The Chicagoan won holes with his putter and niblick when his longer clubs deserted him, but the strain of the last nine robbed him of the services of these trusty friends and he was in trouble on the thirty-sixth and thirty-seventh greens while Hagen was dropping his safe pars.

Played Perfect Golf.

Turnesa played perfect golf in his morning round with every shot almost taking the shortest line to the pin and every first putt either dropping for a birdie or hanging on the lip of the cup for a sure par. Golden on the other hand, was far off his putting game. He could not get close enough to the pin to be sure of his next putt and he failed to win a hole all morning, shooting an 81 while Turness turned in a 33, two under par on the first nine, and finished the round in a par 71.

The Hagen-Espinosa match was ragged in many spots, but their dramatic fighting comebacks time and time again added an electric quality to it which the Turnesa match lacked.

To-day's battle will be a battle between youth and age, and the novice and the veteran. It will also contain a slight element of revenge, as Turnesa was eliminated in the first round of the P.G.A. event last year by Hagen. Turnesa is no stranger to major competition, having been a runner-up in the open of 1926, but he has never won a big classic and, compared to the much be-titled Hagen, he is a newcomer in the finalist ranks. Turness is 27 years old and Hagen is 35.

The Scotch, who invented the ancient and honored game, will not have a show for the title, as Turnesa is an Anglo-Italian and Hagen an Anglo-Irishman.

Hagen chipped an eighteen-inch stymie to go one up on the first hole and missed an ace by less than a foot to win the second. The third, fourth and fifth were halved, but Hagen went three up at the sixth when Espinosa wasted an approach. A seventh and eighth were halved but Espinosa regained a hole when Hagen missed a two-foot putt on the ninth green. He gained another at the tenth when his approach was five-feet from the pin, and squared the match at eleven. Hagen came back to win the twelfth when Espinosa was trapped and took the fourteenth when Espinosa overshot the green.

Hagen's tee shot missed the fifteenth green, and Espinosa was one down again. At the sixteenth the gallery had a comfortable chuckle when Hagen, "The Master," looked up in the middle of an explosion shot and dubbed the ball to square the match. Espinosa went one up for the first time at the seventeenth by dropping his approach four feet from the cup, but lost his advantage on the eighteenth to be all square at lunch. Hagen dropped a 45-footer on this green to knot the count.

Espinosa battled the trees on his first afternoon hole and Hagen sank a birdie two at the next to be two up. He lipped the cup at the 21st, however, for a halve and Espinosa squared again at twenty-two when Hagen was trapped. The champion lost the twenty-third because of another trap, but recovered from a trap to halve the twenty-fourth. The twenty-fifth was likewise halved and Hagen squared at the twenty-sixth when it was Espinosa's turn to battle the traps.

The twenty-seventh was halved and also the twenty-eighth, when a heart-breaker hung on the lip of the cup for Espinosa. Hagen won the gamble at the 29th, clearing the trees at the dog leg while Espinosa's attempt to use the same short cut hit a tree squarely and Hagen again was one up. The 30th was halved and at the 31st Espinosa electrified the gallery by squaring the match with a gallant 20-foot putt on a side hill. His hard luck still pursued him, however, and he picked up at the next after failing to get out of the trees. The thirty-third was another half.

The gallery chuckled again when Hagen smothered his drive and hooked to the left, losing his one-hole advantage. Hagen appeared to be lost when he dubbed a short approach at thirty-five and Espinosa was one up and one to play. Both were in the rough at the thirty-sixth, but Hagen squared the match when Espinosa used three putts. The Chicagoan was twice short on putts at the thirty-seventh and Hagen was the victor.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Earle Sande Ejected From Pimlico Track

BALTIMORE, Md. Nov. 5. — (AP). — Earle Sande, famous jockey, was stripped of his badges and ejected from the Pimlico race track yesterday after running of the $40,000 futurity. He was alleged to have fouled Reigh Count, ridden by C. Lang.

Sande up on J. E. Widener's Batteau, bore over on Reigh Count, it was charged and used his elbows to interfere with Lang. Reigh Count was the favorite.

BOXING BOARDS SEVER RELATIONS

Pennsylvania Commission Accepts Benny Bass's Claim To Featherweight Title.

NEW YORK, November 5 Canadian Press. — Relations between the boxing boards of Pennsylvania and New York were broken yesterday when the local commission refused to accede to the ultimatum of the Pennsylvania authorities that Benny Base be recognized here as featherweight champion of the world. The Pennsylvannia commission, which has had a close working agreement with New York for several years has accepted the Philadelphia boy's claim to the title vacated a year ago by Kid Kaplan.

The controversy over the featherweight title claims Bass and Tony Canzaneri recognized in New York as the "outstanding contender" for the crown, reached a climax with the written demand of Frank Wiener, chairman of the Pennsylvania commission, that Bass be recognized as champion. Wiener wrote that unless the New York commission accepted Bass' claim, "the working agreement between Pennsylvania and New York boxing commissions must be considered concelled."

In reply, James Farley, chairman of the New York board, said that the local commission could not change the decision reached last week, when it was decided that a champion among the featherweights could be determined only through a meeting of Canzaneri and Bass. Bass received title recognition in Pennsylvania after his defeat of Red Chapman of Boston, in Philadelphia recently.

SOFTBALL GAMES AT LAKEFIELD FAST

Business Men and Bridgenorth Winners in Keen Contests.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 5. — The first game of softball on Tuesday evening was between the Business Men and the High School and was fairly fast. The Business Men's team has been so decimated by the hunting season that they were compelled to recruit from the spectators and several other teams. The game got away about 8 o'clock with a good crowd and Albert White on guard at the plate and Joseph O'Connor chaperoning the bases. The score by innings was:

Business Men.. .. .. .. 0221006—11
High School.. .. ..2311001— 8

The following is the line-up:

Business Men—E. H. Northey, p.; H. Hamblin, c.; E. Moore, 1b.; C. S. Tanner, 2b.; J. Sabatino, 3b.; C. J. Tanner, s.s.; W. Trude, s.s.; G. Wilson, l.f.; K. Junkin, r.f.

High School— Clayton Fitzgerald, p.; Ronald Kempt, c.; Jack Gibson, 1b.; Emerson Kemp, 2b.; Kenneth Kemp, 3b.; Harry Stabler, s.s.; Patrick Allen, s.s.; Wilfrid Pluard, left field; Harry Sherin, r.f.

Harry Sherin, who made three runs for the H. S. team and K. Junkin, who did the same for the Business Men, were rather outstanding.

The second game followed immediately between Douro and Bridgenorth. The former team was not out in full force and were handicapped by the loss of some of their best men, but they put up a strong game in the fourth and fifth innings, which put a great deal more pep in the game. White, the catcher for Bridgenorth, was hit with the ball on the nose twice, which kept him out of the game for part of an innings. Bridgenorth was shy of their snappy first baseman, Bradshaw, but the team as usual gave an exhibition of snappy ball. The umpires were W. Elliott at the plate and R. P. Payne on the bases. The score by innings was:

Bridgenorth.... .. .. ..7230201—15
Douro.. .. ..0003600— 9

The line-up for the game was as follows:

L. Forsythe, p.; A. White, c.; H. Dormer, 1b.; W. Shearer, 2b.; C. Nicholls, 3b.; G. Dormer, s.s.; A. Robinson, s.s.; M. Wilson, r.f.; F. Woods, l.f; M McWilliams, sub.

Douro—R. Walsh, p.; E. Moore, c.; W. Towns, 1b.; F. O'Brien, 2b.; L. Moher, 3b.; C. Coughlin, s.s.; H. Allen, s.s.; J. Delaney, r.f.; J. Garvey, l.f

	Played.	Won.	Lost.
Bridgenorth 4	4	0
Cubs 4	4	0
Selwyn. 4	3	1
Muskies 4	2	2
Douro 4	1	3
Business Men 4	1	3
Canada Cement ...4	1	3

KEARNS PLANS WALKER FIGHT WITH DEMPSEY

Will Offer Former Champion $250,000 To Get Into Ring.

MAY BATTLE BERLENBACH.

Conqueror of McTigue Improving With Every Fight, Says Manager.

CHICAGO, Novemebr 5. — While the badly battered Michael McTigue and his crestfallen manager, Jimmy Johnston, were proceeding back to New York, Jack Kearns and Micky Walker were beginning to look over the field for more opponents in the light-heavyweight division.

Walker's sensational victory over McTigue, which amounted to one of the most surprising events of the boxing year, more than makes good Kearns's claim that he will yet steer Walker into the light-heavyweight title.

The Jersey Bulldog has a match tentatively arranged for Los Angeles with Paul Berlenbach, another of the former champions in the division, but Kearns seemed a little disturoed yesterday over the failure of the Coast promoter, Dick Donald, to register some definite details about the match.

Jim Mullen, the local promoter, tried to match Walker with Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, making the latter a substantial offer, which was promptly refused, the inference being that Slattery wanted none of the Jersey battler. Then Mullen discussed the Berlenbach match, but no conclusion was reached.

Kearns was in his usual good form following Walker's rapid annihilation of McTigue.

"I told you that fellow was improving with every fight," he said. "He's got something of Jack Dillon and something of Sam Langford in his fighting style. I never saw any heavyweight hit harder than Mickey did against McTigue."

McTigue, the fallen warrior, had something to say about the punching power of Mickey.

"I never was hit so hard in my life as that fellow slammed me," said Mike. "I remember landing a right hand to the head in that round, but that's all I do remember. You can say that Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney, Tommy Loughran, Battling Siki, and all the rest of the men I have fought never hurt me so much."

Walker's knockout of McTigue is the third that has been registered against the former champion, but in neither the fight with Delaney, nor the one with Sharkey, was McTigue as badly damaged as in the two minutes and fifteen seconds he spent stopping Walker's wallops. In fact, it was several hours after the fight before Mike was in regulation shape. He was unable to leave he ring for nearly ten minutes after the bout.

Kearns left for New York, where he has that hearing on his suit against Jack Dempsey coming up this month. Kearns seemed confident that he would win judgment against the man he led into a world's championship.

"When that one is over, I'm going to offer Dempsey $250,000 to get in the ring with Walker," he said. "Then everything will be even all around."

OSHAWA HERE ON THE HOLIDAY

Rugby Fans Will See P. C. I. Team in Action on Monday.

Peterborough is not to be without its Thanksgiving rugby fare, thanks to the Peterborough Collegiate team which has arranged a game for the holiday afternoon with the fast Oshawa Collegiate. The game should not only be a rattling fine exhibition of Interscholastic football, but it will serve to give an excellent line upon the chances of the local students in theire Interscholastic O.R.F.U. fixture here next Saturday with the crack University of Toronto Schools.

U. T. S. won the group from Oshawa, but the Motor City boys held the Toronto crew to a close score, and the P.C.I. squad will profit greatly by a battle with them before they have to take on the U. T. S.

P.C.I. have been working out faithfully and are in good shape for these two big games.

Monday's clash with Oshawa will be staged at James Stevenson Park and will get under way at 2.30 o'clock.

Football fans will welcome the opportunity to see the students in action and the holiday attraction should bring out a big crowd. Oshawa won here last year and the local team is very anxious to even up the count.

O-LEO-LAHIE!

PARMA, Mo., Nov. 5.—Parma at last is quiet. Parma after a long period of hectic unrest has returned to its peaceful ways. Jo-Jo, a pet donkey, was the goat. Jo-Jo yodeled. In the morning, and at noon and in the far reaches of the night, Jo-Jo yodeled. Public opinion grew so tense that Jo-Jo was ordered banned by a special meeting of city council. Now Jo-Jo is yodeling in the open spaces.

Inside Sportin Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, I see another 1 of the birds what brung Peterboro her 1st sr. championship 2 years back has joined the big money class. With Mister Bailey in the N.H.L., Mister Dwyer, Mister McLeod and Mister Ranger in the American Hockey League and Mister Babe Bogardis now in the Can. Pro. loop, it looks like the Petes has done their share providing material for the cash and carry customers. Stratford gets a good little man in the same Mister Bogardis, for if gameness was electricity Babe would be a whole power house.

Our jr. rugby team has been in action since my last, Mac, and their 1st start seen Penetang knock them for a row. The lads couldn't hang unto the ball any better than a kid does unto 2 bits these days, and only 2 things saved them a worse beating. Them 2 was the legs of Mister Westbrook which burned up the grass for 2 touchdowns. The Penetangarines didn't have no big stock of plays, but they knew what they all meant. At that the Petes has plenty of material, and if the management provides a little glue for the ball carriers and the back fielders, they ain't no reason why they shouldn't give Penetang a awful battle up there where Mister Payette stables his fast horses.

Anyway, the game was an old home week-end for a Peterborough boy what knew a whole storeful of groceries when he was starring on the gridiron. Mister Ross Craig, who refereed the rumpus, was a star line plunger in the days when they wasn't any holes made for the guy with the ball that you could drive a truck through. Mister Craig made his own holes—and how! Every time the Hamilton Tigers handed him the ball he just naturally ploughed through for 10 or 12 yds., and he generally left a trail of busted tibias behind him for the Drs. to ponder over. Nowadays all a bird needs to do is to steer himself thru a gap in the line, and even at that they don't seem to make the gains that birds like Mister Ross Craig used to tear off with ½ team hanging unto their back.

By the way, Mac, I want to sorta apologize to the good folks of Chicago. You see, when this Big Bull Thompson started that anti-British bunk of his I kinda got the idea that Chicago must be the home of a lotta guys that would be running a big risk to walk through the park where the squirrels could get a chance at them. But something happened the other night, Mister Sporting Editor, that made me think mebbe I was wrong. This bird Mister Dave Barry what refereed the Tunney-Dempsey thing came out to handle another bout, and that gang of fight fans right away counted up to 14 without a mistake, so I guess they can't be so uneducated after all. I had a notion that any bird what voted for a mayor like this Bull Thompson couldn't get much higher than 5 or mebbe 6 without some help.

I see, Mister Sporting Editor, that we're going to have penny banks in the schools. The idea is good, but the same night I read about the school banks to teach thrift I seen where Ottawa reports the Scottish immigration to Canada is on the increase. Mebbe if our School Board waited a year or 2 longer they mightn't be no need of thrift education. I won't charge them nothing for the tip anyway.

Well, Mac, the hockey season'll soon be with us, and I hope to shout that we'll have a good bit of action here, even without some well-known faces. They ain't no reason for being gloomy about the outlook anyway.

Next week perhaps they'll be something more for the customers what like their hockey. Meanwhile, I'll fade outa the picture.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

Cheek, Real Veteran Of Race Track Game

CHICAGO, Ill., November 5.—Tom Cheek, the 103-year-old horseman, with his three-horse stable, is on his way to Havana to spend his sixteenth winter at the Cuban tracks, with a profit of $5,890 on the season's racing in Illinois. The other two horses brought in no purses, but Basha, which took the place of his aged red, Star Campaigner of last year, earned $5,250, including six firsts, two seconds, and four thirds.

Old Tom said he added $2,250 to this by wagering on Basha, and held his expenses down to $1,310, including the cost of his 50-year-old stable "boy."

DUNDEE FACES CRIMINAL ACTION

Following Refusal To Defend His Crown Against Ace Hudkins.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 5. — (AP). — Joe Dundee, world's welter weight champion, who declined to defend his crown againts Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, last night in the absence of a reported guarantee of $50,000 yesterday, was faced with the necessity of defending himself against criminal action.

The Baltimore titleholder, his manager Max Waxman and Promoter Dick Donald were charged with false advertising in warrants issued by the city prosecutor.

Possibility that the charge might be increased to "attempting to obtain money under false pretenses" appeared later when it was learned that the prosecutor contemplated such action if any of the ticket holders cared to make the complaint. When Dundee refused to enter the ring at Wrigley baseball field members of the commission pointed out that they had no knowledge of the reported guarantee to the champion.

The commission yesterday looked over Hudkin's claim to the welter weight crown by default and tabled it. A crowd of angry ticket holders, with tickets ranging in value from $2 to $11, stormed Donald's office and demanded return of their money. As a result, the Better Business Bureau representatives called on the city prosecutor and the complaints were issued.

A committee of business men was appointed to assist in getting refunds for the ticketholders.

Ball park officers estimated that "the gate" probably exceeded $80,000. Of this amount, it was expected that the state and federal governments would lop off their taxes. After that, the preliminary bout fighters would have to be paid as well as ushers, ticket sellers, policemen and firemen on detail.

An advance of $33,000 on Dundee's guarantee was returned to the commission by Waxman.

Dundee and Waxman were missing from the hotel suite in which they had confined themselves since Thursday night's fiasco when two police officers went there for them late today. A police search of the city was immediately started. The two are wanted on warrants charging false advertising.

GREAT-WEST LIFE IS OPENING OFFICE

Company Has Been Doing Business in District For 30 Years.

George C. Stevenson, District Manager of the Great West Life Assurance Company, who announce the opening of new offices at 414 Water street, today made some kind remarks about The Examiner.

"It is certainly true", said Mr. Stevenson, "that one can judge a community by its newspaper. Your Hallowe'en party was splendid, and the backing The Examiner gave the tremendous July 1st demonstration was equally admirable.

"I have been a resident of Peterborough for just a few months, but have already received and seen many evidences of the fine spirit which exists here—a friendly, boosting attitude which assures the future welfare and progress of our city and district. The Examiner ably reflects and encourages the optimistic spirit which prevails."

In speaking of his company, Mr. Stevenson said: "The Great West Life has written business in Peterborough and district for thirty years and has a host of policyholders and friends here. The company operates from coast to coast and has nearly 300 representatives in Ontario alone.

"In thirty-five years of unparalleled growth the Great West has developed into the largest financial institution native to Western Canada, and one of the foremost life insurance companies of the Dominion. Insurance in force now totals almost $500,000,000.00.

"Its profits to policyholders are unexcelled, and its popularity is ever-increasing as a prosperous, progressive and friendly company."

FORMER SCOUT SIGNS FOR YEAR

Broke Into Major Leagues 25 Years Ago With Red Sox.

BOSTON, November 5. — John T. Slattery, former big league star, scout and more recently coach of Boston college is to be Dave Bancroft's successor as manager of the Boston National League baseball team.

President Emil E. Fuchs in making the announcement, expressed the belief that Slattery would bring new strength to the trailing Braves. The arrangement is for one year.

Slattery broke into big time baseball here 25 years ago as catcher for the Red Sox, and then to the St. Louis Cardinals, and afterward the Washington Senators where he caught Walter Johnston when the latter was at his heyday.

He took to college coaching in 1916 when he guided Tufts College nine through two successful seasons. Later he served as head coach of the Harvard nine for five years and for three has been at Boston College. For five years he has coached and scouted for the Braves.

JURY AWARDS PRIEST DOLLAR

Father Minehan Gets Verdict For Damages For Confinement.

IN INSANE ASYLUM.

TORONTO, Ont., November 5.—At 10.07 p.m., Thursday night, after 8 hours 37 minutes' deliberation, an Assize Jury returned a verdict awarding Rev. Father James Minehan one dollar in his action against Dr. N. H. Beemer, Superintendent of the Hospital for the Insane at Mimico, for damages for detention in that institution from July 4 to July 24, 1922.

The jury found that plaintiff was not of unsound mind at the time of his admission, but that he was of unsound mind from the time of his admission. They also declared that defendant had acted honestly and in good faith.

Question to Jury.

"So you find that all the time he was in the asylum he was of unsound mind?" Mr. Justice McEvoy asked the jury.

"Yes, my Lord," the foreman replied.

"And the evidence does not satisfy you he was of unsound mind until the time he got to the hospital?"

"No."

The jury retired at 1.30 o'clock, and were brought back to the Court-room at 2 o'clock for redirection on various objections raised by counsel to his Lordship's charge.

They retired again at 2.15 o'clock, and three times before returning their verdict they returned to Court to seek information from the Court upon numerous points that arose during their deliberations.

Questions and Answers.

The questions submitted by Justice McEvoy to the jury and their answers thereto follow:

Question 1—Was the plaintiff admitted by the defendant to Mimico Asylum? If so, when?

Answer—Yes. On the evening of July 4, 1923.

Question 2—Was plaintiff detained by defendant in Mimico Asylum? If so, from what date to what date?

Answer—Yes. From the evening of July 4, 1923, to the evening of July 24, 1923.

Question of Certificates.

Question 3—Was plaintiff admitted to Mimico Asylum without certificates of two legally qualified medical practitioners, accompanied by the family history in prescribed form, and the financial and estate history in the prescribed form and without notice having been received from the Superintendent of the said hospital that there was a vacancy for plaintiff? If not, what certificates was he admitted on, detained on, and from what date to what date?

Answer—Yes, except that the Superintendent stated that a vacancy existed at the hospital for the plaintiff. Admitted on none. Detained on or after July 5 on one medical certificate signed by Dr. Guinane, certified by only one witness and one family history certificate signed by Dr. Guinane, and on and after July 15, 1923, by one medical certificate signed by Dr. McLelland.

Question 4—Was plaintiff of unsound mind and dangerous to be at large at the time of admission?

Answer—Yes.

Question 5—Was plaintiff of unsound mind and dangerous to be at large at any time during his detention at Mimico Asylum? If so, give dates.

Answer—Yes. From the time of his admission to Mimico Hospital on the evening of July 4, 1923, until the time of leaving for Montreal on the evening of July 24, 1923.

Question 6—Was plaintiff detained in Mimico Asylum in a safe and comfortable place, not being a jail, lock-up, prison, or reformatory, and from what date until what date?

Answer—Yes. From the evening of July 4, 1923.

Why Removed.

Question 7—Was plaintiff at his own request or at the request of his friends removed from Mimico to another place of detention in another Province?

Answer—His friends'.

Question 8—If defendant did admit into and detain plaintiff in Mimico Asylum, did defendant therein act honestly and in good faith in receiving and detaining plaintiff If not, in what did his lack of honesty and good faith consist?

Answer—Yes.

Question 9—What amount of damage, if any, did plaintiff suffer on account of admission to and detention in the Mimico Asylum?

Answer—One dollar.

The oldest university in the world is that at Pavia in Italy, founded in 825 A. D., by Lothair, grandson of Charlemagne.

TRIAL BY BOXING SEEMS DOOMED

Brooklyn School Superintendent Disapproves of Old System.

PRINCIPAL REPLIES.

NEW YORK, November 5 (United Press). — A unique system of "trial by boxing gloves" originated twenty years ago at a Brooklyn Public School appeared doomed to-day with the statement of William J. O'Shea, superintendent of schools, that he disapproved of it.

William M. Rainey, principal of the school, said he would fight to retain the idea, however.

Rainey recently was summoned to the Magistrates' Court by Ralph Esposito, 15-year-old student, who charged that the principal had "forced him to fight with another boy as a disciplinary measure. The case was dismissed.

The principal explained the system as follows:

"In all the twenty years I have been at the head of the school, I have never had to suspend a boy for incorrigibility. For nineteen years our school has held the Brooklyn Public School Trophy for all-round athletics, and for six consecutive years the Greater New York Trophy.

"Much of that success I attribute to the peculiar psychology of the gloves. Their use is not punitive, and I have never forced a boy to box another. The boys have their choice in cases where they are reporte for insubordination, insolence, or defiance — as with the Esposito boy—of putting on the gloves under strict supervision with boys of their own size, or of having their parents sent for.

"The system is popular with the boys. They love the boxing, and rarely does a student select the alternative of summoning his parents."

RUTH ELDER LEAVES FOR HOME TO-DAY

Promises Doctor She Will Sleep Ten Hours a Day on Ship.

PARIS, Nov. 5 (United Press).—Just an American girl again with "an envelope full of dresses and a trunk full of souvenirs," Miss Ruth Elder entrained at 10.46 a.m. today for Cherbourg to board a liner for New York.

Tired out after the heroine-worshipping that followed her rescue from the sea at the end of her trans-Atlantic flight attempt, Miss Elder went to the railway station in care of a doctor. Her last word to Dr. A. L. Hipwell, representing the National Aeronautical Association, as she entered the train, was a promise to remain in bed ten hours each day of her voyage to New York.

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood ,attacks the seat of the trouble ,and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont

Why do you love your dog?

Because:

1—He doesn't talk back to you.

2—He thinks whatever you do is all right.

3—You don't have to make company of him.

4—He eats what is set before him, and asks no questions.

5—He will follow you to the end of the earth.

6—He never sulks when you mistreat him.

7—He tried to please you.

8—You have no rival in his affection—his love is all yours.

9—He respects your moods.

10—He never tells you his troubles.

11—He never pries into your secrets.

12—He is polite and thanks you with his tail for every kind word you see fit to give him.

13—He will fight for you.

14—He misses you when you are away.

15—He rejoices when you return.

16—He is faithful unto death.

17—He does what you tell him, without knowing "Why?"

18—He is jealous of the attentions you show other dogs.

19—He trust you to the uttermost with a faith that is wonderful, blind, inexplicable.

DROWSY, TIRED FEELING COMPLETELY GONE

"Fruit-a-tives" Made a New Man of Him

MR. D. DUPERRON

Unnatural drowsiness and continual bodily fatigue usually mean constipation. In Maxville, Ontario, Mr. Donald Duperron experienced this serious handicap. How he overcame it he tells as follows:

"After trying several so-called remedies for constipation," his letter runs, "I was recommended to try 'Fruit-a-tives,' which I did. The results are marvellous. That drowsy, tired feeling has completely gone. 'Fruit-a-tives' has made a new man of me. I cannot recommend it too highly."

Perhaps you are bothered the same way, have headaches and drowsy spells, are short on ambition and energy. If so, try "Fruit-a-tives." "Fruit-a-tives" is a splendid tonic-laxative. It contains the best of anti-constipation ingredients,—the juices of fresh fruits,—intensified and blended with tonics. It tones up the bowels and liver, assists the kidneys and soothes the stomach's lining. Obtainable everywhere, 25c and 50c. Go and get it today.

TAPS

When the day is done
And camp life is still,
So hushed is the world that we feel
The closeness and nearness of infinite things
When taps are sounded it thrills.

So soft and retarding each note clear and sweet,
It echoes far out o'er the white silent streets,
Of white tented domiciles
Covering our men so brave and enduring,
God! Lend them a hand.

The taps do you hear them?
Tarah—tarah—tarah—and a wail;
'Tis the lullaby time with the nightingale,
Mingling in sweetness and sadness of tone,
It makes men think of love and home.

Some on beds of sweet spruce branches,
Covered by sacking alone,
They want no theological sermon,
They get that in the rocks and stone

When slumber so gently creeps o'er them,
And taps no longer resounds,
The soul is cradled in comfort,
Floats off to that invisible land.

The men, boys at heart, God's children,
Yet in this short span of life,
Take up the duties, brave soldiers,
And work for the right with a might.

Hard faces some had, lined, weather-beaten, and gaunt,
But the closed eyelids hid,
All the deep seated yearnings and wants.

By the day, they are wag and good fellow,
Fingers clenched in strenuous grasp,
Pursed lips, gathered eyes, and eager
To compete with strength any clash.

And the taps will mean to all men,
Archangels ascending on high,
To join the Hosts everlasting,
That sounds out the taps by and by.

Our short span of life is but one step,
We know that eternities roll,
Ere our soul reaches the state of perfection,
When love reigns supreme in the soul.

And each pick up the golden bugle,
With diamonds and jewels sublime,
For our home over there is supernal,
Each soul expressing God's love divine.

Tarah—Tarah—Tarah—
Calls out with clarion call,
The taps lovely notes, hark, listen how sweetly it floats,
So ethereal caressing 'tis—
The Prince of Peace with His Hosts.

RETURNED MEN RETAIN SPIRIT

Tackle Responsibilities of Civil Life as They Did Those of War.

WORK IN LEGION.

By Past Commander C. H. Ackerman, of the Canadian Legion.

As Armistice Day approaches, the thoughts of the civilized world become again concentrated upon the World War. A great deal of thought is given and some attention paid, to the way in which the world is "carrying on" today.

To the returned man, particularly, is this time of the year always given over to a serious stock taking of the past nine years. To those fellows who have been following the newspapers a very special significance must be given to this year's observance of that memorable day.

Upon that day H.R.H. the Prince of Wales will talk to and an attempt will be made by means of radio to communicate with his comrades of the Great War from Albert Hall in London. He will address the entire British Empire on what he has termed the "finest institution in the British Empire"—the British Empire Service League.

His knowledge of service is known to the wide world—to many thousands of returned men in Canada is it well-known, but unfortunately there are many fellows who yet do not realize that it is the desire of H.R.H. to continue to serve his comrades in peace and assist them in such a way that they may assist the British Empire in peace as they did in war.

The Canadian Legion is that institution in Canada. Very rapidly are the different returned soldiers' organizations coming to the realization that their participation in the past war does not relieve them of other responsibilities as citizens, but rather does it attach an additional responsibility. And that responsibility must be not only the responsibility of trying to look after his war-time comrades, but also the responsibility of trying to bring into civil life that as yet undefinable spirit that pervaded the British Regiments.

No spirit of Bolshevism amongst the ranks of returned men will be tolerated if that responsibility be kept to the forefront. The serious consideration of all Canadians will be focused upon the problems of all returned men, and the weight of the Canadian Corps that played its part in France will and must be felt in Canada, to the everlasting credit and memory of those Canadians who have given their life.

The Canadian Legion—an organization of ex-soldiers, sailors, and nursing sisters of all wars, who recognize no politics or religion are bound to and will measure up, if given a chance in civil life as they have done in war.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

CRITIC GIVES PRAISE TO "THE WAY OF THE FLESH"

"The world's greatest character actor in the most painstakingly perfect characterization of his life."

The soft lights in the studio projection room flashed on like a mechanical dawn following the final fadeout on the screen; for a few poignant seconds there had been absolute silence.

Then the voice again in the half-light; a whispeh like an echo:

"A perfect performance."

The tribute came from a nationally known motion picture critic; a man who has seen more films,—good, bad, and impossible,—than any other person connected with the industry. It was made in the laboratory projection room of Paramount's West Coast Studio. The critic had just witnessed a preview of "The Way of All Flesh" in which Emil Jannings, the supreme international film artist, makes his American debut.

"Jannings has portrayed a character in that picture who will live as a vivid, appealing and mighty personality for all time."

This wonder picture, acclaimed everywhere as one of the finest films of the year will be shown at the Capitol Theatre net Monday.

Belle Bennett, the star of "Stella Dallas" and Phyllis aver, who made fame and fortune for herself in "What Price Glory," head the supporting cast. "The Way of All Flesh was directed by Victor Fleming, producer of "The Rough Riders." Donald Keith and Fred Kohler play important parts.

AGNEW JOCKEYED HIS WAY TO TOP IN RACING FILM

Robert Agnew, who is playing the leading role of Marty Kruger, the money rider, in King Baggot's production "Down the Stretch," a Universal Jewel, coming to the Regent Theatre Monday, entered pictures as a jockey.

Strangely the finest part the young actor secured was one which taxed the wits of the casting director, even as his present role in "Down the Stretch" caused King Baggot to search the lists of filmdom.

Agnew was not many days in New York when he learned that Vitagraph was looking for a young chap who could ride for the role of the jockey in "The Sporting Duchess." Practically every juvenile in New York had tried for the part, but for some reason or other, was found wanting. Agnew buckling in his belt, and it needed buckling in on this particular morning, as breakfast was sacrificed to provide the carfare to Brooklyn, and proceeded to the studio.

The casting director was brusque, brief and formidable.

Yes, they were looking for an actor who could ride?

Could Agnew ride?

"I guess I ought to be able to ride," said Bobbie. "I was born in Kentucky and reared in Texas. Ride—well!"

And for ten weeks young Robert was a jockey. That was six years ago and now once again filmdom was combed for an actor of small stature who could ride, and once again the lad who was "born in Kentucky and reared in Texas" was found to be the only one who could fill the role.

TWO HOSPITALS ARE APPROVED

Nicholls and St. Joseph's Pass Requirements of College of Surgeons.

ONTARIO LIST.

"The Hospital Standardization movement", said Dr. Franklin H. Martin, Chicago, Director-General of the American College of Surgeons, of which Dr. A. W. Moir and Dr. E. H. Wood as Fellows, "is now in its tenth year. Its growth has been phenomenal; from 89 hospitals meeting the requirements, or 12.9 per cent. in 1918, to 1803 hospitals, or 69.9 per cent. in 1927. This is due to the fact that the people of the United States, Canada, and other countries, where this movement is carried on, have been convinced of its worth both from the humanitarian and economic aspects. Every community must accept the responsibility of providing adequate care of the sick and injured. The only way possible to do this in a proper manner is through the acceptance and carrying out the principles of Hospital Standardization, as many of the hospitals in your community have done.

"Choosing your hospital when sick or injured is a most serious responsibility. This has been made easier in recent years through the publishing annually of the list of hospitals approved by the American College of Suregons officially announced this morning. These approved hospitals stand for the right kind of care of the patient through the utilizing of the best means of diagnosis and treatment that modern scientific medicine can afford for the one out of every ten persons, or 12,000,000, who seek hospital care annually at a maintenance cost aggregating over $1,000,000,000.—Results count most. These are evidenced by the lower average days' stay of patients in hospitals, the gradual falling of hospital death rates, the minimizing of complications, and the improving in results generally.

"I am sure it is a great satisfaction for the people to know that the patient in a standardized or approved hospital is better assured of a prompt and accurate diagnosis, more scientific treatment, and an earlier return to normal physical condition if at all possible.

This is what every patient is entitled to and is the responsibility of the hospital to carry out. It is quite true that under the new regime of Hospital Standardization during the past ten years many hospitals, which might be in the past described as mere nursing homes, have been transformed into real scientific institutions where the patient's condition can be promptly diagnosed and treated. Here the patient can secure the benefit of the accumulated knowledge of all the medical profession through consultations, staff conferences, group study, and more thorough means of investigation and treatment rather than that of one individual as formerly in the practice of medicine. With this there has been a marked advance in medical science throughout America.

"The American College of Surgeons greatly appreciates this opportunity of officially announcing the list of approved hospitals for 1927. These hospitals have adopted the fundamental requirements for the right care of the patient and the rendering of the broadest community service as provided for in the minimum standard laid down by this organization, charged with the responsibility of the great movement known as Hospital Standardization."

The following hospitals in this province have been awarded full or conditioned approval. Conditioned approval indicates that the hospital has accepted the requirements which result in the best care of the patient, but for lack of time or other acceptable reasons, have not put them fully into effect:

Here Is A Low Priced Oil Burner

OFFERING

Comfort—

With a Just-Rite Automatic Oil Burner in your home you can go away for a day or a week and return to find the same pleasant temperature. You have a silent heating system—no banging of noisy grates or doors and no hiss or roar.

The Just-Rite simplifies the task of house-keeping, for there is no soot or odors. You have no ashes or coal to handle cellar drudgery is eliminated. That's the comfort of the Just-Rite.

Safety—

The Just-Rite is absolutely fool proof. Safety devices make it as safe as electric light. There is nothing to get out of order—no air or oil under pressure and nothing to explode. That's the safety of the Just-Rite.

Economy—

In the Just-Rite every atom of oil is turned into heat—nothing is wasted. When the desired temperature is reached the burner automatically turns to low fire. If the temperature falls, the burner turns to high fire. The motor consumes no more than a 30-watt lamp. The exclusive in-the-door installation costs less because there is no baffling or bricking up inside and the furnace is not changed in any way. A better burner at half the cost. That's the economy of the Just-Rite.

Don't go through another winter of discomfort and inconvenience. Let us show you the features that make the Just-Rite better. Come and see it in operation. Note its compactness and efficiency and you'll be agreeably surprised at its moderate cost.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

CCCXXXVI—Science in the World War—LXXXIV. Wireless and the Next War

by MAX HAHN

WIRELESS WILL BE FULLY AS IMPORTANT AS BULLETS IN THE NEXT WAR, IF THERE IS ONE. EXPERIMENTS BEING MADE JUST BEFORE THE ARMISTICE GIVE AN INKLING OF THE FUTURE WAR.

THE FRENCH WAR DEPARTMENT ALREADY HAS DEVELOPED WIRELESS CONTROL EQUIPMENT TO DIRECT A PILOTLESS AIRPLANE AS IT CIRCLES AND DASHES THROUGH THE AIR. IN A TEST THE FRENCH WIRELESS PLANE IS SAID TO HAVE MANEUVERED FOR 51 MINUTES BEFORE BEING GUIDED BACK TO EARTH.

SCIENTISTS AND INVENTORS ALSO ARE PROGRESSING WITH WIRELESS DEVICES TO PILOT TORPEDOES, SUBMARINES AND EVEN BATTLESHIPS FROM A GREAT DISTANCE.

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

IT IS LIKELY IN THE NEXT GREAT WAR THAT HUGE FLEETS OF AIRPLANES, WITHOUT A MAN ABOARD, WILL BE SENT FLYING THROUGH THE AIR TOWARD ENEMY TERRITORY, WHERE THEY WILL BOMB THE FOES BEFORE BEING GUIDED BACK HOME. SIMILARLY, FLEETS OF BATTLESHIPS MAY BE SENT OUT WITHOUT MEN TO TAKE PART IN A TERRIFIC BATTLE. WIRELESS WILL BE THE KEY TO VICTORY.

GUY FAWKES' DAY

Guy Fawkes' day, and its attendant burning of effigies, has passed entirely into desuetude in Peterborough as it has in all Canada and Great Britain, except for a few remote places, but in the early days of the settlement, the pioneers on the banks of the Otonabee and their families, for many years, continued, as in the Old Land, to burn the famous conspirator in effigy and to chant the old refrain:

Remember, remember!
The fifth of November,
The gunpowder treason and plot.
There is no reason
Why the Gunpowder treason
Should ever be forgot.

While there is absolutely no reason for us to doubt the guilt of the men who were punished for the attempt to blow up the Houses of Parliament, in the reign of James I., there is little doubt that the trial was handled in such a manner as to prejudice the mind of the country against those holding the religious and political belief of the plotters. There is no trial in our annals of which such abundant materials are left for forming a judgment, and yet of which as regards many of the details it is wellnigh impossible to arrive at the truth. From the very first, the Government seemed determined to publish just as much and just as little as suited their own political purposes. For six months after the arrest of Fawkes, the king's commissioners continued their investigations. The three greatest lawyers of the day gave their closest attention to the subject. No less than 500 depositions and examinations were taken down from the lips of the various conspirators; and yet, when the "King's Book" (wrongly ascribed to James himself), purporting to give "a true and perfect account" of the Plot was published shortly afterward, only two of these countless examinations appeared in it—namely, Guy Fawkes' declaration and the confession of Thomas Winter. As Jardine, the historian, has pointed out, so far from being "a true and perfect account," "it is obviously a false and imperfect relation of the proceedings; a tale garbled and misrepresented like so many others of the same age to serve a State purpose."

There have been those who maintained that the whole Gunpowder Plot was a fiction invented by the Government, but this view has long been generally disregarded.

When the foundations of the old House of Lords were examined in 1823, distinct traces of the conspirators' work was discovered.

Its Origin.

The originator of the Gunpowder Plot was Robert Catesby, a gentleman of ancient family who had vacillated considerably in his religious and political beliefs, and finally established himself with a small group of fanatics eager to bring about by any means the downfall of the Government.

When he had reconciled himself to the project for wiping out King, Lords, and Commons at a single blow, he confided it to Thomas Winter, a gentleman of Worcestershire, who, at first, shrinking in horror from the idea, was at length induced to take part in the conspiracy. Winter procured the services of Guido, or Guy Fawkes, who, far from being the hired assassin pictured by popular legend, was a well-bred gentleman of Yorkshire, but a determined enemy of the Government, possessing a daring and ferocious temper, ready to perpetrate the bloodiest deed in the advancement of any cause he had at heart. Other disgruntled individuals were admitted to the conspiracy, and in a secluded house at Lambeth oaths of secrecy were taken and details were studied.

A building adjoining Parliament House was secured and it was resolved to mine the House when the entire assembly of the representatives of the nation was in occupation of the legislative halls.

The Empty Cellar.

The discovery that a dealer in coal, who had formerly rented a cellar below the House of Lords, was removing his stock to another place was hailed as a golden opportunity. The cellar was hired from the merchant. Thirty-six barrels of gunpowder were surreptitiously brought into the vault. Huge stones and iron objects were placed in position to increase the effects of the explosion, which was to take place at the opening of Parliament by James I. on November 5,

Plot Leaks Out.

As to the manner in which the information regarding the plot was conveyed to the authorities, the exact truth will probably never be known. What has been established with a tolerable degree of certainty is that the famous letter supposed to have been written by Francis Fresham, one of the conspirators, to his brother-in-law, Lord Mounteagle, one of the thirty Roman Catholic members of the House of Lords, was not by any means the first intimation that mischief was afoot. Probably the Chief Minister, the subtle and relentless Cecil, became cognisant of the scheme through the reports of his spies, who maintained a sleepless vigilance over practically every disaffected man of influence in the country. Every historian of repute agrees that the Government simply allowed the scheme to proceed after taking precautions to round up the conspirators as the plot neared its culmination. The story of the decoction of the mysterious letter, by the "British Soloman," the contemptible, pedantic James I., under an inspiration from Heaven was circulated merely to enhance the royal prestige.,

Meanwhile, signs were not wanting which clearly showed to the conspirators that their activities had not escaped notice. Intimation was received from a servant in Mounteagle's household, that Lord Mounteagle had laid the letter with its warning before the Government. On the very day before Parliament was assembled, the cellar was visited by several noblemen who found Fawkes busying himself with a pile of wood which covered the explosives. In answer to inquiry, Fawkes explained that he was an employee of the individual who owned the cellar.

In spite of these ominous signs, the conspirators, with almost incredible folly, deluding themselves with the belief that the real nature of their designs was still unknown, continued their preparations.

At two o'clock in the morning of November 5 a party of soldiers visited the cellar, and seized Fawkes, who was in the act of completing his terrible task. The other conspirators, learning of this disaster, fled, but were pursued and either slain or made prisoners, to expiate their crime on the scaffold.

Searching the Vaults.

Since that date, the searching of the vaults of the Houses of Parliament has been a feature of the procedure of the opening of a new session. For many years the burning of the effigy of Guy Fawkes was a popular event among all classes, Catholic as well as Protestant, in England and Scotland.

Guy Fawkes' Ghost.

Tradition declares that the ghost of Guy Fawkes haunts the corridors of the present Houses of Parliament. At various intervals during the past two centuries, individuals have come forward with statements that they have seen the ghost of the man who made the daring attempt to "elevate" the Parliament. The rumors were prevalent while Parliament met in the old quarters, and were continued after the Lords and Commons were housed in their present buildings. The last time the ghost was supposed to have been sighted was towards the end of the nineteenth century.

A Blessing to People of Advanced Years

"I wonder if you really know what a blessing Gin Pills are to people of advanced years.

"I am 72 years of age, and suffered for a considerable time with kidney and bladder trouble. My rest was broken through having to get up in the night three and four times. Later I suffered with pains in the bladder, and my son, who had used Gin Pills for pains in the back and lumbago, bought me a box. Before I had finished it I was relieved of the pains in my bladder and had to get up less frequently. At my age I can scarcely expect to be permanently free from troubles of this kind, but if Gin Pills will give others the relief they have given me, they will be a blessing indeed."

(Name on request.)

Prompt and lasting relief has been found in Gin Pills by thousands of people of advanced years who have had kidney or bladder trouble. If even slightly troubled in this way, get a box today at your druggist's—50c. National Drug & Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Canada. 126

WEDDING BELLS

HOCKING—COLLINS

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Varker, Bloor Avenue South Porcupine, on Thursday, October 20th, at 8 p.m., when Miss Winsome Collins, eldest daughter of Mr. George H. Collins, Peterborough, became the bride of Mr. Charles A. Hocking of the Dome Mines. The bride was attended by Mrs. P. Varker, as matron of honor, and a brother, Mr. W. H. Hocking, supported the groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. Bain of the United Church, after which a luncheon was served. The young couple will reside on Main Street, South Porcupine.

OBITUARY.

MRS. GEORGE PETERS.

There passed away, this morning, at her residence 450 Rogers Street, Mrs. George Peters. The deceased would have been 90 years old on the 25th of this month. She was born at Cam House, Bilsdale, Yorkshire, England, and came to Canada when a child, and has lived in Ashburham for almost 50 years. She was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian Church. Her husband predeceased her about three months ago passing away in his 95th year. She leaves two children, Annie E., at home and Walter, of the Examiner Staff, living at 681 Reid Street.

The funeral will be on Monday at 2 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Wm. Allan, internment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

GERALD LLOYD NICHOLS.

The funeral of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace Nichols took place yesterday afternoon from his parents' residence and was largely attended. The numerous floral tributes testify the high esteem in which the family are held. The interment took place in the family lot in Bridgenorth cemetery, with the Rev. Mr. McNeely officiating.

MRS. HENRY WILLS

The death occurred last evening at ten-thirty of Sarah Wills at her home, 147 Park Street, this city. The deceased was born 72 years ago in Lakefield. Besides her husband she leaves to mourn her loss one son, Albert, in Alberta; and three daughters, Mrs. E. Good, in Alberta. Mrs. William Faux of this city and Mrs. A. E. Pratley of Belmont, Mass. Also two brothers, Welland and Albert Hill of Lakefield; and two sisters, Mrs. R. Crawford of Lakefield and Mrs. J. Moury of Ottawa.

The funeral will take place on Monday, November 7, 1927, from All Saints' Church. Service will be at 2 o'clock, with the Rev. J. D. Paterson officiating. Interment is to be in Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. HENRETTA PERRIN.

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 5.—The death occurred on Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Paul Sutton, of Toronto, of Mrs. Henretta Perrin, beloved wife of the late Mr. Herbert Perrin, in her 63rd year.

The deceased has lived the greater portion of her life in this district and has only in recent years made her home with her children in Toronto.

The late Mrs. Perrin's husband predeceased her about fifteen years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss three daughters, Mrs. Frank Savigny and Mrs. J. Hutchison, both of Otonabee, Mrs. Paul Sutton of Toronto, two sons, Reg and Lionel at home; five sisters, Mrs. Jno. Jewison of Toronto, Mrs. C. Perrin of Oakwood, Mrs. W. H. Barnard, Bailieboro, Mrs. R. Falls, Bailieboro and Mrs. F. M. Staples, Bailieboro.

The funeral took place from the home of her son, with interment in the Bailieboro Baptist cemetery.

The pallbearers were six nephews, Messrs. Ernest and Howard Barnard, Fred Perrin of Oakwood, Stanley Robinson, Roy Staples and Fred Barnard. Rev. J. L. Horton, of Park street Baptist church, assisted by Rev. Edgar Russell, taking charge of the service.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sutton of Toronto, Mrs. M. Mason of Toronto, Mrs. P. Rutherford of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. C. Perrin, Oakwood, Mr. and Mrs. F. Perrin, Oakwood, Ex-Mayor Taylor of Peterborough, Mr. Buller of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. H. Perrin and son Donald of Oakood, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thompson and son Billie of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cole of Port Hope.

SAMUEL WRIGHT.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 5.—There passed away on Monday morning an old and highly respected member of this community, in the person of the late Samuel Wright, after a short illness.

The deceased, who was seventy-seven years of age, was born and spent his whole life on the farm at Lot 26, Con. 8, just a short distance east of Zion Church, of which he was a life-long member, from the time that it was a Methodist meeting house, and continuing when the congregation entered Union. He was a man of sterling Christian character and a power for good to all who met him.

A son of the late Gilbert Wright and Susan Mundell, the deceased cleared the farm on which he was born, and carried on farming operations there for all the active years of his life. For many years the late Mr. Wright was interested in beekeeping, and was considered an authority in this industry. In politics the deceased was a staunch Liberal, and always took an interest in his country's welfare. In the family of four children to which the late Mr. Wright belonged, this is the first break, three sisters surviving: Mrs. Daniel Petherick, Havelock; Mrs. Alfred Atkinson and Mrs. David Brunton, Seymour East.

The late Mr. Wright was predeceased by his wife, the late Janet Meiklejohn, and two sons, John and George. Surviving are three sons: William at home, Gilbert of Stanwood, and Harry of East Seymour and three daughters: Susan at home, Mrs. John Wilson, East Seymour, and Mrs. Alfred Brunton, West Seymour.

The funeral was held from the family residence on Wednesday afternoon to Zion Cemetery, with service in the church conducted by the Rev. C. D. Daniel.

Bearers were all neighbors of the deceased: Messrs. Alfred Barnum, Hector Arnold, Ed. Wilson, Kent Lawrence, Charles Watson, Will Simpson.

Some of the words in the Chinese language have as many as ten different meanings.

And I am all alone,
Into my heart there comes a longing:
If you could only come home.
What would I give to clasp your hand,
Your happy face to see,
To hear your voice and see your smiles
That meant so much to me.
You always had a cheerful smile,
Your smiles I see them yet,
Your tender love for everyone
I never shall forget.

War Veterans Honor Memory of Comrades At Memorial Service

Hundreds of Citizens Attend Impressive Ceremonies Conducted by Local Branch of Canadian Legion on Sunday — Major-General C. H. Mitchell Addressed Meeting.

PRESIDENT OF LEGION AND OTHER SPEAKERS TAKE PART IN ARMISTICE SERVICE PROGRAM

Hundreds of reverent citizens attended the Armistice Memorial Service held in the Capitol Theatre on Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Peterborough command of the Canadian Legion. A short service was held in front of the Cenotaph, after which the members of the Legion, headed by the Peterborough Rangers' Band and the Machine Gun Pipe Band, paraded to the theatre.

At the service in the theatre Major-General C. H. Mitchell, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., who was Chief Intelligence Officer of the Canadian Army during the war, delivered an inspiring address in which he emphasized the Legion's ideals as being those of Loyalty, Comradeship, and peace, and that Armistice Day to the returned soldiers was a feast of union, goodwill, self-sacrifice and co-operation.

Captain James Abraham, President of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, presided. Other speakers were His Honor Judge Huycke, Rev. Capt. Paul Costello, and Alderman George A. Macdonald, who in the absence of Mayor Holloway represented the city. E. A. Peck, M.P., and W. H. Bradburn were unable to attend.

The Salvation Army Band, under the leadership of Frank Robinson, was seated on the platform and played several selections during the service. Others on the platform were General Mitchell, Lt. - Col. Ackerman, Aldermen Stocker, Hancock and Macdonald; Rev. Paul Costello, Col. Miller, Captain Abraham G. A. Gillespie, E. B. Fowler, Mrs. Mills, and Mrs. Tamblyn.

The service was one of memory and thankfulness. Memory for those who in the words of the poet:

"They went with song to battle; they were young,
Straight of limb, true of eye steady and aglow;
They were staunch to the end against foes uncounted;
They fell with their faces to the foe."

Thankfulness on the part of those who were permitted to return and be able to live in the Dominion of Canada.

Memories Fadeth Never.

"The passions of the war, and the war was not fought by the British except in the cause of duty, may fade, but the memories and what they meant do not fade," said General Mitchell." "The Canadian nation has put Armistice Day in its calendar as one of our national holidays. We as citizens should make it one of pride and solemnity. The ceremony has become a family feast if we might look upon it that way, for it is a feast of union, good will, self sacrifice and co-operation.

"The day may come when the spirit of Armistice Day as we now celebrate will no doubt lose some of the self sacrifice for which it stands, but now it is a day of remembrance and thanksgiving rather than one for celebrating victory."

"It was perhaps an accident," said the speaker, "that the war was brought to a successful close at the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month. What have we to be thankful for? It is for what our fathers did, and that we come of the stock we do, that we live in Canada, a country full of resources, with something to live for and work for. There is greater happiness in Canada to-day than in any other country, and with our bountiful harvest we have many things in which to be thankful."

Day of Remembrance.

"It is a day of remembrance for those of us who served our country. We who came back have our memories of the past, and on this day these memories crowd back fast like moving pictures, some fast, some slow, some bright and some dazzling."

"Do you remember other Novembers of the great war. We of the first division found ourselves in November of 1914 amongst the rain and mud of Salisbury Plains. By November, 1915, we had been in action and the second division had arrived in France. The battle for Hill 63 had been fought, by November, 1916, the battle of the Somme was over, and none will ever forget November of 1917, for on this very day the battle of Passchendaele was fought, and then in November, 1918, came the end and all the triumphs of a real victory. Comrades, I always think of November as being one of the greatest months in the war."

After all what do we remember? I seem to remember the more pleasant things. The comrades who were left behind it is only the best in them. Before going overseas my father told me, 'Remember me at my best always,' and it is only our comrades at their best that I remember, for they gave their lives as a sacrifice. They expected us to win and all they want.

PROVINCES ASK FOR INCREASES

Nova Scotia Minister Says Federal Government Invades Their Revenue.

DEDUCTION OPPOSED.

OTTAWA November 8. Canadain Press. — The Dominion Provincial Conference to-day resumed the discussion of the question of "Federal subsidies, including the recommendations of the Duncan report there on." Attorney General Harrington of Nova Scotia, continued the debate. When the conference rose about one o'clock the discussion had not been concluded and it is understood the Cabinet conference scheduled for this afternoon was postponed to enable the conference to continue the discussion.

Mr. Harrington dealt with the fiscal policies of the Maritimes examined by the Duncan commission, which had found the Maritimes could not meet the cost of government from available revenue. He thought this principle applied to all the provinces of the Dominion.

The Federal authorities had invaded the provincial field of taxation at confederation, he said, and the modern tendency was to justify the invasion. He classed the income tax, however, as an embarrassment to the provinces which had an income tax.

Prince Edward Island, represented by Premier Saunders then asked better terms.

Mr. Harrington contended that the sum of $135,000, deducted by the Federal government from the permanent Nova Scotia subsidy on account of the troops used at the time of the strike, should not have been deducted without a decision by the courts and Premier King said the government would gladly abide by the decision of the courts as to whether it was legal or not.

HARVEST GOOD IN NORTH EMILY

Buckwheat and Alsike Are Particularly Good Crops.

FEW ROTTEN POTATOES

KING'S WHARF, Nov. 8.—The harvest is all finished and was very fair, especially buckwheat, which is a wonderful crop. Mr. Herb. McFeeters threshed 900 bushels last Thursday. Alsike is fair. Mr. Neil Herlihey and son sold 150 bushels the other day for $9.90 per bushel. The potatoes are all out, and in a few cases a few rotten ones were found, but in general they are a good crop.

SENTENCED TO LIFE.

Quebec Doctor Found Guilty of Charge of Manslaughter.

QUEBEC, Nov. 8 (Canadian Press). —Dr. Michel Brunet of this city was to-day sentenced to life imprisonment on a charge of manslaughter in connection with an illegal operation which ended fatally.

RELIC OF WAR.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 8 — At Belle Grove, Va., stands a dwelling which still bears the chalk marks of soldiers of the Civil War. The building stands in the centre of the historic Cedar Creek battleground, a mile south of Middletown. It was designed by Thomas Jefferson, and erected in 1793. Near this house General Phil Sheridan ended his famous ride.

TOLL HIGHER IN EASTERN STATE FLOODS

Aged Resident of Milan, Quebec, Found Near Black Lake.

WATERS SUBSIDED.

Railway Services Have Been Resumed on Almost Normal Schedules.

MONTREAL, Que., November 8 (Canadian Press). — The death toll from the floods which swept the eastern townships of Quebec and Western New Brunswick was increased to eight last night with the finding of the body of Alex. A. MacIver, an aged resident of Milan, Que. The body was discovered near Black Lake after the waters had subsided.

MacIver left his home last Tuesday on a three-day trapping expedition, and as soon as the receding waters made a search possible a party set out to find him. The body was found in a swampy hollow and doctors said the man had been dead for two days. He is survived by seven daughters, residing in Western Canada, Boston, Mass., and Graniteville, Vt.

Communications Restored.

With almost complete restoration of telegraph and telephone communication throughout the eastern townships and with rivers again within normal bounds, a more complete check-up of the damage is being made. Reports from outlying districts have added to the estimated damage which is now placed at over two million dollars. Damage to roads alone is expected to pass the million dollar mark, while the railw ys and manufacturing concerns and private individuals suffered heavily.

Railway services had been resumed on almost normal schedules yesterday.

Accumulated mail was delivered by post office authorities yesterday. trucks being pressed into service for the work.

Residents of towns and districts in the flood areas were busily engaged in repairing the damage wrought by the water.

Lending Helping Hand.

BOSTON, Mass. Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—Many agencies lending a helping hand in flood damaged New England, with Vermont towns the chief objective, have turned from rescue to relief. Efforts to feed and clothe the sufferers bore increasing fruit yesterday as those on the outside seeking to help the victims fought and won over many obstacles.

Trucks supplemented the faster airplanes of slight carrying capacity which have played a lone hand in the first succor, flying with medicine and food to dozens of towns struck by the flood.

There are no roads in many places for the trucks to use, but they pushed on anyway and relieved several acute situations where food was at a minimum.

Bolton, one of Vermont's chief sufferers, however, remained practically cut off and faced a problem of going hungry unless a way can be found to furnish relief.

Major-General Preston Brown, commanding the first corps area, who completed a survey from the air of the situation in Northern Vermont, said last night that the problem has become one of administration.

Gen. Brown called the flood disaster the most serious that has come to the affected section. He paid high tribute to the spirit of the people. With an absence of anything approaching disorder, he found the people attacking the task of reconstruction.

Restore Roads.

A pressing need said the army officer, is to restore roads and railway tracks that communication may be re-established and supplies transported to those in need. He praised the early and effective co-ordination of relief agencies and threw the forces of of the army into the effort of the Red Cross and state and municipal authorities.

Troops are assisting civil authorities in the emergency and the army is furnishing blankets, bedding and food. The efforts of the relief agencies were centred yesterday in the Winooski Valley, where the need was greatest.

Several Injured In Celebration Marking Tenth Anniversary of "Red" Revolution

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Celebration here of the tenth anniversary of the Bolshevik Revoltion of 1917 was marked by an attack upon the Soviet Consulate by "White" Russians, with the resultant death of at least one person and the injury of eleven others.

With the attacking mob dispersed, police last night were patrolling the neigborhood of the Consulate and no further disorder was expected. However, as an additional safety measure heavy police patrols were stationed in the Chapei District, which is heavily populated by Russians, in order to prevent the gathering of further mobs.

The riot began during a reception in the Consular building in honor of the anniversary. A group of "White" Russians, representing the class that were expelled after the Bolsheviks gained control, gathered about the building. As the crowd grew and began surging toward the doors of the building, some of its members hurling bricks at windows and attempting to break in the barred door, shots were fired from inside over the heads of the crowd.

When the first pistol shots failed to disperse the crowd, the aim was lowered and individuals began to fall, police said last night.

THREE MEN NOW IN CUSTODY FOR MARMORA GRAVE OPENING

Phillip Revoy Arrested in Toronto and Taken to Belleville.

TO BE TRIED THERE.

Penalty For Offence is Five Year Term in the Penitentiary.

BELLEVILLE, November 8. Canadian Press. — Philip Revoy, the last man of the trio, who it is alleged, desecrated the grave of Mrs. Hubbell, in Marmora, was arrested on Saturday afternoon n Toronto, and is now in custody in the county jail in Belleville. Frank Sullivan, an ex-convict Ewart Warren, and Philip Revoy, are the men charged with the offence, and all are residents of Toronto, although Warren, who acted as a go-between lived for some time in Marmora.

All are charged that they did on the 26th of October, improperly or indecently interfere or offer an indignity to the human remains of Mary Hubbell, the deceased wife of B. C. Hubbell in the Marmora cemetery.

When they appeared for hearing the police asked for a week's remand, which was granted by Magistrate Casement of Madoc, who will hear the evidence in the preliminary hearing.

It is the intention of the police to have the case tried in Belleville, instead of taking the prisoners from this city to Marmora and back.

The penalty for this offence, if they are found guilty, is five years in prison.

PROTECTION FOR WOOLLEN TRADE IS NECESSARY

With Five Per Cent. More Canadian Woollens Would Work at Full Capacity.

NOW 60 PER CENT.

J. J. Southern Explains Process of Manufacturing Cloth To Rotarians.

That if the Canadian woollen industry was favored in the next budget with five per cent more protection, the plant of the Canadian Woollens in Peterborough now about 60 per cent. active, would be working 100 per cent and perhaps night and day, was the interesting statement made by J. J. Southern of Canadian Woollens in an enjoyable aduress beofr the Rotary Club today.

Pointing out that figures given by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showed that Canadian mills produced only 35 per cent of the woollen material used in Canada, Mr. Southern said that if importations were cut the mills of this ountry would be fully employed. Canadian Woollens, he explained, paid $500,000 in wages in Peterborough.

Mr. Southern, who was introduced by Rotarian Rev. Father Costello as having all the qualifications for a splendid Rotarian, gave a most lucid explanation of the making of a piece of tweed cloth at the Auburn mills. He traced the various processes from the reception of the wool through to the final inspection, explaining the various stages in a manner that gave his hearers a new conception of the local industry. His address was not too technical and yet it was detailed enough to make his audience realize that the manufacture of a piece of tweed suiting was a much more complicated operation or series of operations than they had imagined. He explained that the new automatic looms made it possible for one weaver to operate four looms whereas the old style machines required a weaver to each loom. Operating four machines the operator was able to earn twenty-five per cent more than under the old conditions, Mr. Southern asserted.

President A. L. Killaly expressed the thanks of the club and said that as citizens interested in Peterborough and realizing the importance of Canadian Woollens to the city they shared Mr. Southern's hope that the local mills would soon be operating 100 per cent.

Next Monday, the District Governor is to visit Peterborough and the weekly meeting will be held at 5 o'clock.

Premiers to Discuss Immigration Problem With Robert Forke

Will Hold Conference On Thursday When Endeavor Will Be Made To Secure Greater Co-operation With Respect To Recruitment and Placement of Incoming Settlers.

CONSTITUTIONAL AND FINANCIAL QUESTIONS TAKEN UNDER REVIEW

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—Immigration will be the subject of a heart-to-heart conference on Thursday between Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, and representatives of the nine provinces. This agreement was finally arrived at following a continuation of discussion on immigration at yesterday's deliberations of Provincial Premiers. An endeavor will be made on Thursday to eliminate duplication of effort and secure greater co-operation with respect to recruitment and placement of incoming settlers.

Constitutional and financial questions were also under review. Nova Scotia was promised sympathetic consideration in her request for an increase in the number of members elected by that province to the House of Commons. Federal subsidies to the provinces were considered, but no decision was made.

Hon. Robert Forke, in outlining the immigration policy of the Dominion Government, laid down the principle that in the selection of immigrants precedence be given to British, American, Northwest European and selected immigrants from other parts. Mr. Forke believed that Canadian boys might be encouraged to go on farms on a 50-50 loan basis as between the Dominion and the provinces; and the suggestion will be discussed at Thursday's conference. Arrangements were being made, declared Mr. Forke, for a highly efficient staff "to deal in a business-like manner with the return of Canadians from the New England States."

Several Western delegates took the ground that immigration should be absolutely under the control of the Federal and Provincial authorities. The activities of outside organizations, religious and otherwise, should, in their opinion, be very carefully supervised. Saskatchewan believed that young men, mentally and physically fit—not only from the farms but from the cities of Great Britain and not only from Great Britain but from the Continent—could be absorbed and assimilated.

Increased Representation

Nova Scotia's claim for increased representation from fourteen to fifteen members was presented by Hon. G. S. Harrington, Prinvicial Minister of Mines. Premier J. B. M. Baxter of New Brunswick supported Nova Scotia; while Ontario took a favorable viewpoint. Prince Edward Island, in joining with the other Maritime Provinces, said it had entered Confederation on the assumption that its representation in the House of Commons would never be less than six members. Quebec believed it would be better for the Maritime Provinces to concentrate themselves upon the securing of better terms than on the changing of the British North America Act.

For the Dominion Government, Hon. Lucien Cannon, Solicitor General, stated that if Nova Scotia could show an error of calculation that error should be corrected. So far as the claims of Prince Edward Island were concerned, this was a fundamental matter in connection with which all other provinces would have to consent.

Increased Subsidies

British Columbia, Manitoba, and Prince Edward Island pressed the question of increased subsidies. The appointment of a commission to go into the whole matter was advocated by British Columbia.

In the course of his address Mr. Forke declared that the policy of his department was to secure the largest number of immigrants of a suitable character which could be assimilated with the best advantage both for the newcomer and to the various parts of the Dominion. Quality rather than quantity was of supreme importance.

Following the recruiting of immigrants, he said, direction and colonization must go hand in hand.

Outlines Scheme.

The minister outlined the British Empire settlement scheme by which the Provincial Governments and organizations approved by the Federal Department could nominate those who might be brought to the Dominion and placed there. This year, he said, quotas could be given to about half a dozen such organizations approved by the department. He believed that a good deal of criticism originated from organizations who desired to bring over immigrants at £2 per head on a wholesale basis. To accede to such a proposal would inevitably lead to much unemployment.

Under the Department's policy so long as a man was physically and mentally fit and expressed a wish to go on the land he would receive every consideration. Most of the restrictions which had been imposed by the Department and against which there had been some complaint had been decided upon for the good of the

POLICE ARREST TWO FOR THEFT

Men Charged With Hold-up of Two Railway Stations.

ONE WOUNDED.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—After a gun fight with London police officers, in which one was wounded in the wrist, two men were arrested at Thorndale to-day, charged with holding up the London and Port Stanley railway stations at London and St. Thomas last night. The police had followed the trail of the robbers all night.

The police made an effort to arrest the two men at a pool room. One surrendered but the other took to flight and forced a farmer to drive him. Overtaken by the pursuing police the car was ditched and Robert Wheaton, the farmer, suffered a bad gash in the forehead. The bandit again took to his heels but a bullet through the wrist from the gun of Detective Bolton stopped him. The pair are being brought to London after receiving treatment. They had been in the Thorndale neighborhood for a couple of weeks and it is understood they came from the Southern States.

The men gave their names as John Elliott and George Peters, and Elliott was taken to the hospital with a shattered arm. In their car a sawed off shotgun and scattered coins and bills were found.

DEATH TOLL REACHES TEN

A Tenth Victim From Last Week's Floods is Found.

TRAINS RUNNING.

MONTREAL., Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—With practically the complete restoration of wire communications, another death was added to the list of victims of the floods in eastern townships last week, bringing the toll to ten. The drowning of Joseph Comeau near Danville yesterday was reported to-day. Train services are getting back to normal.

TWO GIRLS HURT.

One in St. Catharines Hospital With Concussion Following Accident.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—Maza Emory of St. Thomas is in the St. Catharines General Hospital with concussion of the brain, while Marguerite Teeple of St. Thomas has a sprained ankle and various bruises received when a car driven by the latter was hit by a Canadian National light engine on the St. Thomas Niagara Falls highway at Allanburg on Sunday. Miss Emory's condition is serious.

THE WEATHER

The thermometer is reading a little lower each night, and this morning it showed the temperature as being down to 15 degrees, the lowest of the present season, and a little foretaste of the much more severe weather we are sure to have later on. While the summer was cool, the fall was an especially fine one, and we have little occasion to grumble. The section north of Toronto, between the city and Lake Simcoe, had a heavy fall of snow yesterday. There was also snow south of Rice Lake as well as in the neighborhood of Ottawa — W. P.

MEMBERS OF CALEDONIAN CLUB ATTEND SERVICE AT ALL SAINTS'

Rev. J. Douglas Paterson Gives Address on War Memorial at Edinburgh.

DESCRIBES MONUMENT

Cenotaph Stresses Lesson That Such a Tragedy Must Never Happen Again.

The Scottish National War Memorial stresses the lesson that such a tragedy must never happen again, said the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson in a sermon based on the great structure which was dedicated last summer at Edinburgh. He was addressing particularly the members of the Caledonian Club, who marched to All Saints' Church on Sunday night. He pointed out that while the section devoted to each regiment contains the names of all the battles in which the unit has fought, some of the more famous ones going back to Blenheim and beyond and including engagements in every war since, up to the last one, there is no space left for the inclusion of more names.

It would be a glorious thing, he continued, if those old standards which were carried up from St. Giles' Cathedral during the celebration and deposited in the shrine were never moved again. Men are working and planning that such a war can not happen again.

Another significant point moved by the speaker was that war is neither glorified nor condemned. There is nothing of the music and the glory of the battle, he said, but the feeling is that, as it could be necessary, and it was necessary, for our Lord to lay down His life there will be still be the need if it should arise, God help the man who stands back.

Describes Site.

The speaker described the site of the memorial, in Crown Square, on the top of the Castle Rock in Edinburgh, where David I of Scotland erected a chapel to the Virgin Mary in the year 1020. Some of the old stones used in the first chapel were incorporated in old barracks which stood round the square and the buildings were torn down and the stone used for the new shrine.

Hypnotism Latest Exc use For Crime; Robber Confesses But Says He Was Forced

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 8.—(United Press.)—Hypnotism was introduced into the hold-up business yesterday. It was the defence of Jacob Epstein, a mild-eyed, well-dressed young man charged with binding Ralph Sanchez, a diamond merchant, in the Times Square Hotel, taking from him the keys to his Fifth avenue office, and the combination of the safe.

'You Honor, I am not a criminal," Epstein said to Magistrate McAndrews. "I was commanded by my master to do this thing. His will is stronger than mine. I am helpless."

Epstein told a convincing and detailed story. He said he had been under the influence of the master for some time. Last Tuesday "the master"—whom Epstein steadfastly refused to name—hypnotized him and gave him explicit instructions for meeting Sanchez in the hotel room. There, Epstein said, he resisted the power but saw himself binding Sanchez as "the master" silently directed.

GOLDEN MAIL.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The newest fad in Paris is a golden coat of mail. The vogue was begun by Mabel Boll, a well-known American girl here called "The Queen of Diamonds" because of the immense rings she wears. Miss Boll's blouse was of fine gold mesh, with a design in platinum. It's quite chic, but scratchy, Miss Boll says of it.

Posted sixty-two years ago and just now delivered, a letter was found in the ruins of a London demolished house. The receiver was charged a fee of six cents because the stamp was out of date.

PARLIAMENT OPENS WITH GOVERNMENT IN DIFFICULTY

The Growing Prestige of Lloyd George Increases Irritation.

PAPERS CHANGE OVER.

Support of Liberal Leader By Leading Journals Adds To His Influence.

LONDON, Nov. 8 (United Press).—Parliament opened this afternoon with the Baldwin Cabinet confronting a host of difficult problems, made more difficult by an interesting hostility of public opinion and intensified in their irritation by the growing prestige and incluence of Lloyd George, whose boom received impetus today by the reception given to his vigorous attack of Sir Austen Chamberlain's foreign policy in his speech before the Aldwich Club yesterday. His pungent criticisms are being given the widest publicity in Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail and Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express even more than by the Liberal papers. This naturally strengthens the widely held belief that both Lord Rothermere and Beaverbrook are so friendly to Lloyd George that they will support him and his policies in the next general election as a counter-blast to Baldwin, whom they both dislike and oppose.

One of the straws in the wind at this particularly interesting moment is the action of The Morning Post, owned by the Duke of Northumberland, in running a series of articles exposing how Lloyd George secured his campaign funds. It is understood that Conservative headquarters have inspired and authorized these articles. Previous articles in the same paper a few months ago referred cuttingly to the purchase of titles from the Lloyd George ministry, which provoked Rothermere to quick reaction in favor of Lloyd George, recalling to the public mind the fact that he and Beaverbrook were both honored under the Lloyd George ministry.

The effect of all this has been to given Lloyd George a new lease of life not only politically but personally, his vitality and vigor have increased in radiance with his prestige

REBEL CHIEF EXECUTED BY FIRING SQUAD

Gomez Pays the Penalty Five Weeks After Beginning of Revolution.

OTHERS CAPTURED.

Federal Forces On Lookout For Two Remaining Revolutionary Leaders.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 8 (Associated Press).—Five weeks almost to the day after he left Mexico City with General Francesco Serrano to head an armed revolutionary attempt against the Calles Government, General Arnulfo Gomez has met the fate which overtook Serrano within two days. The body of Gomez, captured and executed Friday night in the mountains of the State of Vera Cruz by General Escobar, commanding the pursuing Federal troops, reached Mexico City Sunday night and will be delivered to relatives. They showed bullet wounds in the temples.

It now develops, said an official statement, issued by the presidential office announcing the capture and execution of Gomez and his nephew, Francisco Gomez Viscarra, and the capture of three other rebel officers, who will probably be executed, that the rebel leader had never been more than about twenty miles from the mountain region around the town of Perate. He went to this section when he left Mexico City to carry out his revolutionary plan which was to be put into effect Sunday night, October 2.

Forces Scattered.

The rebel forces were defeated and routed on October 9 by Federals under Escabar in the battle near Ayahualules, which is in the Perate region. This defeat left Gomez with only a handful of followers, who divided into groups of twos and threes and scattered through the mountains. Since October 10, the status of Gomez, according to official Federal information, has been virtually that of a hunted mountain bandit without followers other than a few professional mountain outlaws.

Gomez was captured by General Escabar between the towns of Tescola and Ixhuacuan, less than 20 miles from the town of Perate, in Vera Cruz. The object of the Federal troops had been to keep Gomez bottled up in this mountain region to prevent his escape to the sea coast, where he might be able to take ship for a foreign country.

135 PERISH AS BUILDING FALLS

Many Injured When Structure Collapses in Shanghai Native Quarter.

ATTENDING MEETING.

SHANGHAI, November 7. — Trapped within falling walls and crushed by debris and splintered beams, 135 of more than 500 women and children in a three storey buiding, perished in the native quarter of Shanghai when the structure collapsed on Saturday.

At least 300 more were seriously injured.

The disaster came in the midst of a meeting held on the third floor of a picture palace in the Chapel district where the women textile workers had gathered to form a new labor union. A local labor leader, Yen Hain, who was attending the meeting, is the only man known to have been killed.

The workers after discussing various problems of the new organization had just elected their officers and were standing up to applaud them when the floor beneath their feet began to sway. Bearing its burden of 500 or so human beings, the floor gave way and crushed down upon the second floor of the structure. This floor in turn yielded under the enormous strain and collapsed while the walls on every side tumbled in, showering down bricks and splintered timbers, burying the mass of victims underneath.

As soon as word of the disaster was received, Chinese troops surrounded the areas and with policemen went to work extricating the dead and injured.

Lloyd George Challenges Government's Foreign Policy In Address On Disarmament

LONDON, November 8 (Canadian Press). — Former Premier Lloyd-George yesterday hammered away on the disarmament question, sharply challenging the Government's foreign policy in an address before the Aldwych Club in answer to a speech by Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, who last week criticized the peace policy of Mr. Lloyd-George in a speech before the same club.

The war time Prime Minister yesterday declared that as far as the Locarno pact was concerned, Sir Austen was "a fundamentalist," and insisted that if there was to be peace in the world this pact should be treated simply as one of a series of steps.

"And we must get along from it," asserted Mr. Lloyd-George, with an emphatic shake of his bushy head. "Sir Austen has rested long enough on Locarno. It is no use standing on the shores of Lake Maggiore like a stork looking preternaturally wise because you have swallowed a trout.

"Let him lift up his wings and proceed on his pilgrimage of peace. Foreign Minister Briand of France is now sending the dove of peace toward Washington in an endeavour to make a pact between two of the world's great Republics that there never shall be war between them. Let Sir Austen follow that fine example. If by casting a few stones at him to-day I stir him up and make him spread his pinions toward the sunlight, even if I have made no contribution to the peace of the world in the past, I shall have made some contribution for the future."

CONTINUE INVESTIGATION INTO CHARGES OF JURY TAMPERING

Government Employee Charged With Holding Communication With Juror.

WITNESSES HEARD.

Action For Ridwell Petition For Contempt Deferred Until Later.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. — Back-fires were started yesterday from two different sources by those who have come under grilling in the government investigation of charges of jury tampering in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial.

William J. Burns, founder of the detective agency bearing his name, gave life to the first with a charge that the only agent who made contact with any member of the now dismissed jury was not a Burns man but an employee of the Federal government itself. That employee promptly gave the 'lie' direct to the accusation.

Edward J. Kidwell, celebrated juror Number 11, got back into the limelight by filing a petition with Justice Siddons asking for a contempt rule against the street car conductor and the newspaper reporter who said he talked freely about the case during the trial, and expressed the hope of getting an automobile a block long. Action on the petition was deferred.

While these events were occurring on the outside the Grand Jury inquiring into formal charges of attempts to influence the jury laid against Harry F. Sinclair, and his confidential agent, Henry Mason Day, drove ahead steadily with its work, examining eight witnesses and preparing to continue its inquiry for many more days.

Burns, chief under Harry M. Daugherty, of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation, was the first of the days witnesses. He came out of the grand jury room bobbling over with conversation, which he carried on with newspaper correspondents for nearly an hour.

The internationally known detective startled his listeners with a demand to know why the district attorney had not made public a "complaint and affidavit" filed by his agents with Justice Siddons last Friday making charges against a government man.

Was Government Agent.

"The only person who has made contact with one of the jurors was a government employee and a newspaper reporter," he declared in a high pitched voice that must have been carried to the grand jurors in a nearby room.

The Justice, who was holding court said he had received no such "complaint and affidavit" in the case. District Attorney Gordon asserted he had never seen anything like it, and that Burns was in error if he contended, as he did, that the facts recited were in the reports seized by the government agents in the raid on the Burn's men's headquarters at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Operators' Reports.

NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH FORMALLY OPENED AT KEENE

Rev. T. A. Rodger Preaches Fitting Sermons at Two Services.

SPECIAL MUSIC.

Spacious New Edifice is Crowded at Both Morning and Evening Services.

KEENE, Nov. 8.—The members and adherents of the Keene Presbyterian Church may be justly proud of the splendid new structure which was formally opened for regular worship on Sunday. The building is of brick structure on a concrete foundation with a low belfrey, and windows of Gothic pattern. It is heated with the latest type of Findlay furnace and, for the present, lighted with gasoline lamps. The residents of Keene expect to have electricity there in the near future, hence the temporary lighting arrangment.

Inside the church, the main auditorium has a seating capacity of four hundred, which is somewhat larger than the usual rural church. The walls are finished in pure, unrelieved white. The pews and other woodwork are of fumed oak, with maroon and gold doors leading into the vestibule at the rear and the vestry at the front of the church. The main floor is of hardwood and slopes gently toward the front. In the aisles are suitable rugs which serve the double purpose of making footsteps less noisy and protecting the floor where the wear is greatest. The choir loft at the front of the church and forming a semicircle about the organ and pulpit, has a seating capacity of twenty-six.

Fully twenty minutes before the hour of service had arrived Sunday morning, the auditorium of the church was filled to overflowing and chairs were placed in all the available space. The congregation consisted not only of the members of that particular church, but of all the other denominations in the village and surrounding communities who came to express their goodwill toward their sister church. Very generously indeed did the authorities of the Roman Catholic Church, which is directly across the street ,open the gates to their grounds and allow the visitors to use the space for parking purposes for their cars.

The special minister for both services was the Rev. T. A. Rodger of Toronto, a most gifted and convincing speaker, whose sermons were the result of extensive preparation and delivered in a manner which was at the same time convicing and easily understood. Both morning and evening, Mr. Rodger delivered messages from the Gospels which will afford those who heard them, food for thought for many days to come. The appreciation of the congregation was marked throughout by the rapt attention with which they listened.

The morning service opened with the singing of "The Old Hundredth," and a brief prayer, followed by the singing of the 120th Psalm: "Unto the hills around do I lift up my longing eyes." After the reading of the lesson, Mr. Maycock, Warkworth, sang, "Open the Gates of the Temple." Mr. Maycock's pleasing baritone voice was greatly appreciated.

After a prayer and the singing of a hymn, Mr. McCleary, minister of the church, took the opportunity of speaking a word of welcome to the visitors and expressing his pleasure at seeing the church so well filled. He also hoped that it would be as well occupied for the evening service. As the intimations for the coming week, he reminded the congratgation of the fowl supper to be served in the church Monday, Thanksgiving evening, and the program which was to be given in connection. He also mentioned the opening services of the Westwood Presbyterian Church which will take place Sunday, November 13th. In introducing Mr. Rodger, he said that he was not well known to the people of Keene, but felt assured that he would have a message for them which would afford them food for thought for the future.

As an offertory, the choir sang, "Seek Ye the Lord," the tenor solo being taken most acceptably by Mr. C. E. Clarke, Peterborough. There is no doubt that the beauty of this sacred number depends largely upon the quality of the soloist who sings the leading part throughout. Mr. Clark's singing was very much appreciated. After another hymn, the Rev. Mr. Rodger began his sermon.

During the last two and one-half years, he had had the opportunity of going from coast to coast and visiting churches in most of the cities and towns in the Dominion. For many years he had wished to engage in evangelistic work and after twenty-three years of regular pulpit service, the opportunity had arisen. This came as a direct result of the disruption at the time of Church Union. At that time he had prophesied that ten years' time would see the Presbyterian Church returned to its former status. Now he wished to revise the statement and say it would have recovered from the blow in the short period of five years. He reminded the people of the Keene Church that many minority groups were still worshipping in houses and barns. They were much less fortunate that the people of Keene. But, as a word of encouragement, he mentioned the fact that some city churches had had as many as three hundred new communicants at one communion service, most of them new members who were uniting by confession of faith.

He also conveyed his congratulations to the people of the Keene church and to their minister, Mr. McCleary, who, backed by the good will and zeal of the people, had been able to accomplish so much as was manifested by the splendid building in which the congregation was now worshipping. Recently, during his stay in the city of Winnipeg, a lady had stopped him to ask for the church in the vicinity where young men were saved. He had been unable to tell her, but immediately made inquiries and himself went to see the place. He found that at almost every service ,some person would publicly proclaim their belief in the living and true God. He hoped that the church at Keene would find men within its walls who could go out and preach the gospel.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of Friday and Saturday, when reports from the Argentine told of rust and frost damage, an influential factor in boosting prices in Northern markets, the wheat market during the past week experienced extreme dullness. Day after day an uneventful pit trade saw prices fluctuate narrowly, one day up and the next down. Export sales were so small as to be almost negligible, and other buying support was decidedly slow. The cash trade and coarse grains also suffered dullness in line with wheat.

Saturday there was a stronger tone to the market, following adverse reports from the Argentine, and prices advanced sharply to close 1⅜ to 1½c higher.

The November future closed at $1.29¾; December $1.27½, and May $1.31¾.

OLD MASTERS

Make thy lyre, even as the forest is:
What is my leaves are falling, like its own?
The tumult of thy mighty harmonies.

Will take from both a deep, autumnal tone,
Sweet though in sadness. Be thou, Spirit fierce,
My spirit! Be thou me, impetuous one!

Drive my dead thoughts over the universe,
Like withered leaves, to quicken a new birth;
And by the incantation of this verse.

Scatter, as from an unextinguished hearth,
Ashes and sparks, my words among mankind!
Be through my lips to unawakened earth.

The trumpet of a prophecy! O Wind,
If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind?

giment had its own section, with a book containing the names of the men who died. He instanced the Royal Scots, a regiment for which 35 battalions were raised and of which 585 officers and 10,360 other ranks paid the supreme sacrifice. Other regiments commemorated are the Scots Guards, the Royal Scots Fusiliers, the Scottish Rifles, the Highland Light Infantry, the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, the Cameronians, King's Own Scottish Borderers, the Black Watch, the Seaforths, the Gordons and the Scots Greys. There are also sections containing memorials to the women, one commemorating those more actively engaged, such as nurses and ambulance drivers, and the other those who served at home and on the land and in the shops. The navy, especialy those men from the Scottish fishing villages who manned the mine sweepers, is also recalled, while tablets are included bearing pictures of the horses, camel, and all other animals which were employed.

Inside the shrine itself there is a casket, not of gold or silver or ornamented with precious jewels, but steel for the hardness of warfare. This is the gift of the King and Queen and contains rolls bearing the names of all Scotlands' hundred thousand dead.

Service of Dedication.

Mr. Paterson described the service of dedication. Only a few could get into the square besides the representatives of all the regiments, the officials and the clergy, but loud speakers had been installed and a great crowd of more than 100,000 gathered in the streets of the city, some of them being half a mile away from the memorial. Through these crowds the great men of church and state passed, but there was no demonstration. The lifting of hats acknowledged the passing of the King and Queen and of the Prince of Wales, but the only honor shown was to the standards borne from the old cathedral to the new shrine, men and women saluting the banners behind which they or their relatives had marched away.

"Why?" asked the speaker, "should you honor a man when he will return to his clay? Why should you honor a person when perhaps his place is only through privilege? The soul of Scotland was borne through the crowds in those standards."

When the pipers on the rock began to play "Scots Wha Hae" and "The Flowers o' the Forest," the people below sang so that the music was drowned out. In no place but Scotland, said the speaker, could there be such an amount of religion in such a place. The people stood for four hours, and there was neither laughing nor mourning evident in all that crowd.

The lessons for All Saints' Day, which were read, were very fitting for the sermon, referring as they did to those who have gone before. Suitable music was given, including the Scottish lament, "The Flowers o' the Forest," sung by Miss Jessie Hill, and the anthem, "Give Peace In Our Time," with solo part taken by Mrs. Willis.

Former Wife of Salm Marries Arture Ramos

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y., Nov. 8. —(Canadian Press).— Millicent Rogers, former wife of Count Ludwig Salm, was married yesterday afternoon to Arturo Peralta Rames, Argentinian, after a sudden change in plans, the bride's father, Col. H. H. Rogers, announced after the ceremony.

Col. Rogers' secretary, who made public the announcement, declined to give out the details of the wedding, beyond saying that the wedding day had been pushed forward because of the critical illness of the bride's grandfather, George Hilliard Benjamin.

It was announced that Mr. and Mrs. Rames left immediately for New York, where they will stay until they sail for South American on Thursday.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE R. VARTY.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 8. — George Riley Varty, one of the first residents of the Township of Belmont, dropped dead at his home yesterday morning. Mr. Varty came to Belmont 50 years ago, when there was no village of Havelock, and very few residents in the township.

For some time Mr. Varty has been in poor health, but Saturday he was able to take a load of wood to Havelock. Yesterday morning he was up and around as usual. Mrs. Varty had left the house for a few moments and when she returned found her husband lying on the floor. Medical aid was called but death was announced as a result of heart failure.

Mr. Varty was a member of Havelock L.O.L., under whose auspices the funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon, Wednesday, at his late home, at two o'clock, Rev. W. R. Archer, officiating. Interment will be in the Pine Grove cemetery.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing widow, four daughters Mrs. J. Bound and Mrs. B. Baxter of Havelock; Mrs. W. A. Wynn of Campbellford, and Mrs. M. Green of Brighton; also three sons, Walter, at home, and Fred and Frank of Cordova.

J. J. DUFFUS TALKS ABOUT USE OF ROAD

Broadcasts Address in Safety Campaign Being Conducted in Province.

The following address was delivered by J. J. Duffus over the radio on Friday evening:

The Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of Ontario, of which I have the honor to be president, are glad to co-operate with other bodies in this drive for greater safety on the highways.

You remember that Mark Twain said in regard to the weather that everybody talked about it but nobody did anything about it. Here in Ontario we have been talking about the appalling number of accidents that the great growth in motor traffic has brought about, and now it seems to me the big question is what you and I are going to do about it.

Are we going to go blithely on our way, winking at the regulations whenever we think no policeman or traffic officer is near, taking chances at railway crossings, driving too fast on city streets, and cutting in on the highways?

Or are we going to face this problem like sensible people, recognizing that the prevention of accidents is not just the Government's job, or the motorist's job, or the pedestrian's job, but is in truth everybody's job. We can't prevent accidents by letting George do it; we have each one of us to make our personal contribution to safer driving conditions.

The motor car has brought many benefits, but with it a menace. We want to retain the benefits and eliminate the menace, for if we don't, and the slaughter of lives on the highways continues, sooner or later we may find our use of this convenient form of transportation jeopardized.

The automobile itself is not responsible for the long list of fatalities. It is the way we use it as drivers and the attitude we take toward it as pedestrians that are the primary causes of the problems. The simple duty of everyone, it seems to me, is to develop a traffic consciousness that will lead to a general adoption of safety first principles and I propose to discuss briefly a few ways by which I believe conditions will be improved.

The Proper Use of the Road.

It is open to question whether there is any problem more vital today than that of road use. It concerns everyone who rides and everyone who walks. It has social, moral, industrial and economic aspects, and carries with it national, provincial, municipal and individual responsibilities.

As an instance of the ramifications of road use, consider for a moment the industrial angle. The motor vehicle is today regarded as a part of ordinary business equipment, as indispensable as the telephone. In Ontario, under the Workmen's Compensation Act, there is no distinction made between an injury sustained by a truck driver on a highway a score of miles from his employer's factory, and an injury sustained by a workman in the factory itself. The public highway, therefore, in a sense, may be regarded merely as an extension of the employer's premises when it is carrying his motor vehicle.

Industrial managers whose employees drive motor vehicles as part of their duties, owe it to those employees, therefore, to exercise the same oversight in respect to their working conditions as is given to conditions within the plant itself. An equal degree of carefulness in road use should be required from the drivers of motor trucks as from factory machine-operators.

Traffic Accidents and Their Causes.

One of the most frequent of the types of accidents that occur on our highways, outside of the urban centres, are those in which pedestrians, while walking on the right hand side of the roadway, are run down by motorists from the rear. A number of these accidents are caused through the motorist being temporarily blinded by the headlights of an approaching car from the opposite direction, and if two cars are passing each other near where the pedestrians are walking, the following motorist has little or no chance of seeing the pedestrian at all with the result that a serious accident, often resulting in a fatality, occurs.

Accidents of this kind are sometimes due, not to the blinding effect of an approaching headlight, but to the fact that the driver of the car which does the striking is driving with his dimmers on or possibly only the cowel lights which do not throw sufficient light to show up any objects in front of the car. This is exceedingly dangerous practice on dark highways, and the importance of having adequate headlights cannot be over emphasized as they serve a double purpose, not only of showing up objects ahead of the driver, but if pedestrians step into the beams of a headlight, they are immediately aware of an approaching car, and irrespective of what the motorist might do they are then in a good position to avoid being struck themselves.

It is, of course, of the utmost importance that the headlights while being adequate for illuminating purposes shall be focussed properly so as not to be blinding in the eyes of approaching traffic. Accidents of this kind where pedestrians are run down from the rear could practically all be avoided if the pedestrians were to walk on the left hand side of the highway where they would be facing oncoming traffic and if an approaching car did not turn out, they would then realize that they had not been seen and could quickly step off the pavement and avoid being struck. A certain percentage of people in reply to this suggestion state that the pedestrian has a perfect right on the highway. That, however, is not the point in question, and as a matter of fact it does not help any victim in the least to have a corner's jury embody in their finding a statement to the effect that the victim had a perfect right to be where he was.

At this juncture I am reminded of a story of three men motoring along the highway approaching a railway crossing. A train was in sight. The driver of the car said "I'll wager $10 that I can get over before the train." His companion in the front seat said, "I'll take you." The third man in the rear seat said, "Let me out." "Why do you want to get out?" said the driver. His reply was, "I'm afraid it will be a tie."

Most of the accidents in which pedestrians are injured in the cities, towns and villages are either the result of thoughtlessness or carelessness often on the part of both the driver and the pedestrian. Frequently they are the result of a lack of knowledge with respect to the distance that is required to stop a car going even at a moderate rate of speed. Very few pedestrians, and in fact very few motorists realize that with the average two-wheel brake car travelling along at the moderate rate of speed of twenty mile an hour, it is a physical impossibility for that car to be brought to a stop after the brakes commence to act in a shorter distance than from 35 to 40 feet. In addition to this distance a certain lapse of time occurs between the instant that the driver of a car perceives danger and the instant that the brakes commence to act. Even although he acts as quickly as is humanly possible, there is a loss of from two-fifths to three-fifths of a second in time, and from the results of a number of experiments, the average for a normal alert person is half a second and at a speed of twenty mile an hour a car will travel approximately 15 feet in that half second. Thus it will travel another 35 to 40 feet, or a total distance of 50 to 55 feet from the instant the driver observes danger to the point where the car can be brought to a standstill.

It must therefore be apparent, that where people step out from between two parked cars, or from behind some other object that obscures the vision of the driver of an approaching vehicle, directly into the path of that vehicle at a time when the car is within 50 feet of them, if the car is travelling at twenty miles an hour or more it is impossible for the driver to stop before striking them. The only hope then is that the driver might be successful in quickly swerving the front of his car in such a manner as to avoid striking them. If pedestrians realize these facts, they would probably look before stepping out into vehicular traffic right of ways.

One of the saddest aspects of the increasing number of fatalities which are occurring is the large proportion of small children who pay with their lives for the negligence which in many cases cannot be placed anywhere except on their own parents. A child of tender years has no conception of danger. Their thought is entirely on their play and often, without a moment's hesitation, they will dart across the road directly into the path of a rapidly approaching vehicle, the driver of which has not the slightest opportunity of avoiding the accident. The only way of controlling these sad fatalities is through the parents prohibiting their children from crossing the roadway at all, whether in play or for other purposes unless they obtain a policeman or some adult to take them across by the hand. Any adult when asked by a child is only too glad to escort that child safely across the roadway, and if this principle were instilled into the children of asking an adult to take them across, it would result in a tremendous saving of young lives annually.

A number of accidents are, of course, the result of inexcusable carelessness on the part of the drivers of cars for various reasons which are well known to everyone, and I feel that the authorities are doing the utmost in their power to see that such recklessness is curbed.

Most accidents between vehicles, a large proportion of which occur at intersections, are the result usually of a lack of observation of the law on the part of both drivers, and a number of such accidents are the result of thoughtless indifference on the part of the drivers who drive across an intersection apparently without any thought of anyone else on the highways other than themselves. The law distinctly provides that no motor vehicle shall be driven at a greater rate of speed than 10 miles an hour outsides of a city, town or village unless, of course, a clear view exists of approaching traffic on the intersecting street or road, and if this law were observed there would be few if any accidents at intersections.

In conclusion it is admitted that the number of motor vehicles has increased much more rapidly than anyone ever anticipated, making it very difficult for those in authority to devise ways and means to cope with the situation. Consequently, it is the duty of everyone to use every possible care and precaution in order to reduce to a minimum the number of accidents, fatal and otherwise, as far as lies within our power. Surely this is not asking too much when the lives of our citizens are at stake.

CONTINUE INVESTIGATION

what purported to be affidavits of two of his operatives Wm. V. Long and F. J. O'Reilly. That by Long told of following an automobile bearing the license P-1738 to the Potomac Flying Field, across the Potamac river from Washington, where the occupant talked with Norman J. Glascock, juror number 10. This was on Oct. 22, ten days before the government had a mistrial declared.

O'Reilly's affidavit was that the car bearing the licenes P-1738, was owned by Harris R. Lamb, a special assistant attorney general, who the reports of the operatives showed, was shadowed for days and nights, or at least the car bearing the license was.

Lamb was promptly summoned and sent before the grand jury. When he came out he declared that the allegations respecting him made by the Burns men were "lies," that he had never been at the Potomac Flying Field in his life, that on Oct. 22, the day it was claimed his car was there, the car was in a shop for repairs and he did not obtain it until late in the day, when he drove to the Washington Golf and Country Club in nearby Virginia to play golf.

Neil Burkinshaw, assistant district attorney directing the Grand Jury inquiry, said the Lamb matter was a piece with many other things found in the reports of the operatives;—charges which when run down proved to be without any foundation in fact.

Employed Agency.

Burns freely conceded to newspaper men that Henry Mason Day employed the detective agency now conducted by his son to shadow the members of the oil conspiracy jury, declared that this was a proper thing for "the defense" to do and asserted that such employment was justified by "the facts" obtained as to a government employee making contact with a juror.

"None of the Burns men made contacts with the jurors," he added. "Of course they could not legally do that and if any did we will be glad to assist in his prosecution."

In connection with Burns' testimony yesterday before the Grand Jury, it became known that a subpoena had been issued for J. J. Jeffreys, an official of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Company, who is expected to come here from New York on Thursday for questioning.

John Lucas, another employee of a Sinclair campany, also was called in yesterday, but he was before the Grand Jury only a short time and there was no indication either as to the trend of his statement or whether he was regarded as an important witness.

SKY DISPLAY.

VOLCANO HOUSE, Hawaii, Nov. 8—One of the most spectacular and vivid displays of sky phenomena seen in Hawaii National Park for a long time, was observed here recently when an immense lunar rainbow arched itself over the crater of Kilauea volcano. The rainbow flamed in a myriad of colors, its brightest portion being directly over the fire-pit of Halemaumau, where the steam column from the grottos played in the reflected light. Visitors who saw the spectacle from a hotel two miles distant, acclaimed it one of the most impressive sights seen in the Hawaiian Islands.

THE PRESS AND THE CONFERENCE.

The disappointment voiced by many Canadian newspapers at the barring of the press from the Dominion-Provincial Conference will be shared to a considerable degree by the public.

The chief interest in the conference lies in the attitude taken by the various delegates toward the subjects on the agenda, and the official communiques give but sparse information along that line, while the attempts of the newspaper brigade to fill in the gaps do not take the place of accurate reports written on the spot by trained reporters.

It is difficult to see where any harm would have been done had the proceedings been thrown open to the press; on the other hand, the public would have benefitted by being able to read reliable and complete stories of the deliberations.

Whether or not any concrete results follow the conference the people have a right surely to know the stand taken by the different representatives in regard to the matters under discussion.

WHERE ARE THEY?

A Chicago dispatch reports a Sarnia hotelman and theatre owner, now visiting the Windy City, as declaring that a large percentage of Canadians were supporting Mayor Thompson of Chicago in his campaign against "pro-British propaganda."

If the Sarnian has been correctly quoted, it is to be hoped that his fellow-townsmen will know how to treat him when he gets home.

It is difficult, however, to imagine that there is a Canadian anywhere who would be guilty of such an unblushing falsehood as is credited to this particular individual.

The people of Canada regard Mayor Thompson in one of two ways: either as a shrewd politician who is riding the anti-British horse because he finds it the best kind of a campaign nag, or as a clown whose opinion on any question is not likely to be of any particular value.

In any event there is no Canadian sentiment in favour of his campaign, and anyone who goes over to Chicago and says that there is must be classed as among the greatest liars known to history.

FULLY APPROVED.

It is a matter upon which Peterborough as a community is to be congratulated that both the city's hospitals have been included in the list of approved hospitals announced by the American College of Surgeons.

Both Nicholls and St. Joseph Hospitals have met all the requirements, and are officially declared to be "fully approved."

They are listed among the institutions which the College of Surgeons says "have adopted the fundamental requirements for the right care of the patient and for the rendering of the broadest community service."

Peterborough's two hospitals have long been noted for their efficient care of their patients, and for their general excellence, and their inclusion once more in the "approved" list will be gratifying not only to their staffs but to the citizens generally, who recognize the desirability of adequate care for the sick and injured.

In hospital service as in many other things Peterborough stands in the forefront of Canadian municipalities, and this latest recognition is just another proof that this is a city of which it is a fine thing to be a citizen.

SUNDAY'S SPEAKER.

Brigadier-General Chas. H. Mitchell, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., whose eloquent address was an outstanding feature of Sunday's memorial service, under the auspices of the Canadian Legion, is not only one of this country's most distinguished engineers but proved during the war to be one of the cleverest staff officers in the British service.

He was one of those militia officers who in the days before the great conflict upset the world took his military duties seriously.

Joining the militia service in 1899, Brig.-General Mitchell devoted himself to studying the science of soldiering, and when the call to arms came in 1914 and found him by that time a major in the Corps of Guides and divisional intelligence officer on the general staff, 2nd Division, Toronto, there were few militia officers so were prepared as he was for the acid test.

His career during the five years of his military service overseas demonstrated that fact, his record on the general staff (intelligence) being a series of triumphs.

He was a lieutenant-colonel on the general staff of the 1st Canadian Division in 1914-15, on the general staff of the Canadian Army Corps in 1915-16, was transferred to the general staff of the 2nd Imperial Army under General Plumer in 1916-17, and on the general staff, general headquarters, of the British army in Italy in 1917-18, finishing his overseas service as a brigadier-general in the War Office, London, in 1919.

The fact that he was seven times mentioned in dispatches and was decorated with the C.B., C.M.G. and D.S.O., the Legion of Honour of France, the Order of Leopald and the Croix de Guerre of Belgium, and the Order of the Crown of Italy and the Croce di Guerra, Italy, indicates to some extent the brilliant war record of this Canadian citizen-soldier who saw the desirability of militia training and was ready when the emergency arose.

TRAGEDIES AND FOOTPATHS.

Two days ago a young man in the town of Brampton was acquitted by a jury on a charge of manslaughter arising out of the deaths of two women who were struck by his automobile while walking along the highway late at night. When the verdict of the jury was announced the judge stated to the accused that he had to "thank a very able counsel that you find yourself a free man."

There is one part of the evidence in this case to which the attention of Hon. George S. Henry should be directed. In his address to the jury counsel for the accused made a forceful and apparently effective appeal for acquittal when he argued that the lack of footpaths was primarily responsible for the accident which resulted in two women being hurled to eternity. A report in the press states: "Mr. Greer spoke of the neglect of the Government to provide footpaths for pedestrians, though spending millions on roads fitted to the ever-increasing demands of the automobile industry. Nothing has been done as yet in the exact limitation of speed, or to correct the menace of glaring headlights."

On other occasions The Globe has called the attention of the Government to the need for footpaths where pedestrians may walk in safety in the vicinity of towns and villages. Mr. Henry has ridiculed the idea of placing footpaths along the thousands of miles of Provincial highways. As a matter of fact no one but Mr. Henry has ever contemplated such a procedure. It is in proximity to community centres that these paths are most needed. There are still some people who do not possess automobiles and are compelled to walk on the highways. At the present time they do so in peril of their lives. The Highways Department would be well advised to grapple with the problem now.—The Globe.

KEEP AT IT, GENTLEMEN!

Premier Brownlee, of Alberta, is visiting the East and spreading the gospel of Western optimism. Among other things, Mr. Brownlee—a native of Simcoe, Ontario—is trying to arouse greater interest in the subject of a real Canadian fuel policy. His address before the Canadian Club in Toronto this week contained striking references to this subject.

"Canada," the Western Prime Minister said, "is sending millions of dollars to the United States each year for something that she has in her own country, and she doesn't get a cent back for it. There is not another country in the world that would allow that economic fallacy to continue for one year."

Mr. Brownlee spoke only the simple truth. Imagine a single European nation that would permit such a condition of affairs to go on year after year. Mr. Brownlee says that even if some of the richest deposits as yet undeveloped were left untouched, Alberta could supply Canada's total coal consumption for the next thousand years. Yet we keep on importing. The situation is ridiculous. It is more than that. It is tragic—from a national economic standpoint.

The Alberta Government is doing its best to bring Western coal to the attention of the people of Central Canada and in this work it is being assisted by the Ferguson administration in Ontario. To date, however, the leadership that such a situation as this demands, has not been forthcoming from the seat of Federal authority in Ottawa. Mr. Brownlee, in his Toronto speech, urged a greater co-ordination between the Provincial Governments in the work of research, of searching out the potential resources of the country and forming a policy for their development. By similar action, he said, there could be formulated an immigration policy, not of the haphazard description, but which would take cognizance of all the potential resources of the Dominion.

This country is rapidly arriving at—if indeed it has not already reached—the point where we must do more than we have done in the past for the development of policies calculated to improve national conditions. There is no denying the fact that we have gone along in a haphazard way. Indeed, it would not be too much to say that we have enjoyed a fair measure of success in spite of ourselves. Here we are with one of the richest countries in the world, yet securing a minimum of national advantage from the great resources we possess.

Coal is one item, a large and important item, but it is only one. Our pulpwood resources—so often referred to by Mr. Frank J. D. Barnjum in his letters to the press—constitute another. The raw material from our Canadian forests, material that can never be replaced during the life of the present generation at least, is going over the line in vast quantities, to keep American industry busy, to pay American workmen, to add to the wealth of another country. This is absurd. It is a denial of the first principles of economics. It is a national error of the grossest kind. There would be objections, of course, if the Government were to decide that all Canadian raw materials would have to be transformed into finished articles before being shipped out of the country, but of what value are a few objections when opposed to the general interests of the country?

The most flagrant situation of all, of course, is that in respect of coal. As Mr. Brownlee has said, we are buying millions of dollars worth of this commodity from across the line every year, while Canadian mines and Canadian miners stand idle for want of sufficient markets. And it is not as if the coal from Alberta were a poor article. One could not blame our people for turning it down were its quality not up to the mark. The fact is that Alberta produces excellent coal, coal that has been tried and tested for years, coal that gives the best of satisfaction. It would meet Ontario's needs. It would be satisfactory from all standpoints. And yet, because Canada lacks a national fuel policy, Ontario people are denied the privilege of purchasing this Canadian product and thus keeping millions of Canadian dollars at home.

The Star hopes that Premier Brownlee, Premier Ferguson and others will keep after this coal matter until some arrangement is worked out by which Alberta will be allowed to fill the country's bins. Surely our public men are not going to sit down and admit that the problem is too big, too complicated, for them to handle. —Border Cities Star.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—Owing to the reports of traces of rust in the Argentine wheat fields, United Kingdom importers of wheat accepted practically all offerings of Manitoba Spring wheat here Saturday, and a fair amount of business was done.

A feature of the domestic grain trade was the further demand from exporters for wheat sales of some round lots of No. 2 Northern enroute for Fort William were made at 16c per barrel over the Winnipeg November option, c.i.f. Montreal and 8c per bushel over c.i.f. Bay Ports. A firm feeling prevailed in the market for coarse grains, but the volume of business was small.

Prices for all grades of spring wheat flour were well maintained under a good demand from local and foreign buyers. The undertone to the Winter wheat flour market was steady with a fair trade passing.

A fairly active business was done in all lines of millfeed and the feeling was firm. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was unchanged.

The exports of baled hay to the United Kingdom from the Port of Montreal from October 26 to date were 46,820 bales. The local and foreign demand Saturday continued good and values were unchanged.

Owing to the continued small supplies of strictly fresh eggs coming forward on account of the smaller production than usual throughout the country, a firmer feeling prevailed in the local market and prices for fresh firsts were advanced two cents per dozen, and are now selling at 48c to 50c. Storage grades were also firm. The receipts were 121 cases.

The trade in butter was moderately active and prices were steady. The receipts were 309 packages.

The export trade in cheese was rather quiet Saturday ,there being pratically no demand from English buyers. The local demand was also slow and the undertone was easier. The receipts were 3,147 boxes.

Potato and bean markets not available.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—Wheat developed an upward tendency yesterday, stimulated by reports of rust and frost in Argentina and by smallness of the United States visible supply increase. Corn displayed marked strength owing to a forecast of rain and snow throughout the corn belt.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as Saturday's finish to ⅜c higher; with corn ⅜ to 1c up; oats showing ¼ to ⅜c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

Late upturns in wheat values were mainly a response to the fact that domestic visible supply total exhibited an increase of only 394,000 bushels, an amount far less than generally had been looked for. Heavy snow reported as having fallen in Alberta, where considerable wheat is still unthreshed, was also a bullish influence. Earlier, though, the chief incentive to buy came from complaints of rust in Santa Fe province, Argentina, and of light frost last night over a section of Western Argentina wheat belt.

According to advices current in Chicago the prevailing weather conditions throughout Argentina are too cold for proper development of the wheat crop. Besides, it was asserted damage fro mthe frost of October 31 is appearing. On the other hand, fresh evport buying of North American wheat yesterday was estimated at not to exceed 400,000 bushels, whereas the supply of wheat on ocean passage increased 2,928,000 bushels, making the total 56,072,000 bushels, compared with 38,000,000 bushels a year ago.

Speculative buyers in the corn market found a dearth of future delivery offerings until the May price had risen to around 92c. At that point profit taking set in. Sside from a forecast of unfavorable weather, there was a better eastern cash demand, with talk current that New England States had become active purchasers of corn at New York available for immediate use. Oats averaged higher with corn.

Provisions were responsive to an upturn in hog values.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

New lustre added to the fame of

MOFFATS
Electric Ranges

THE latest tribute to the general high quality and excellence of Moffats Electric Ranges comes from New Zealand, where—in competition with ranges from Canada and all parts of the world, at the New Zealand and South Seas Exhibition—they have been awarded the gold medal, the highest award in the gift of the Exhibition Council.

Moffats made no special models for this exhibition; they were taken from stock. You can secure one just as good from your own dealer.

Moffats devote their attention exclusively to cooking ranges. They only make one quality—the highest, yet you pay no more than for an ordinary range.

REMEMBER: There are over 80,000 Moffats Electric Ranges in daily use throughout the world. You cannot do better than buy a Moffat.

CO-OPERATIVE COMPANY STARTS SHOPPING SERVICE IN ONTARIO

Will Buy Anything the Farmer Wants at Wholesale Price.

MANY ARTICLES SOLD.

Biggest Item in Past Season Has Been Binder Twine.

A shopping service for farmers has been instituted by the United Farmers Co-operative Co. of Ontario, Toronto. When this company was organized in Ontario, a retail stores division, comprising about 35 stores and carrying stocks of many items used by the farmer, was an important phase of the work, but in a change of management, the new executive decided to discontinue this section of the business. However, in its place there has come this "shopping service." The slogan used in advertising the department is "almost everything for the farmer," denoting that there are some, if not many, articles which are not handled.

In an interview with an official of the United Farmers Co-operative Co., Ltd., in Toronto, Hardware and Metal gathered some very interesting points with regard to the shopping service which it publishes in a recent issue. Primarily the service is claimed to have been inaugurated purely as a service to members. Should any merchandise be required, the farmer writes to the service explaining his wants, and those in that department make it their business to purchase the material and send it to him. Enquiries are received with regard to prices being asked for various commodities in the city and should the farmer's local prices not be in accordance with those in the city, buying is done through the city office of the company. It is understood there is no extra charge for this service, goods being invoiced at cost, plus shipping charges.

The only items not handled through this new department are said to be mechanical goods, such as tractors, engines, etc., or any goods requiring local service.

Got Five Spools of Thread.

The shopping service has not been in operation quite long enough to determine what influence is going to be felt in the hardware trade through its existence. It is understood that a considerable business has already been done in milk, dairy and strainer pails. An instance of its completeness in service to the farming community was indicated by the fact that a farmer's wife wrote, asking for five spools of thread of a certain kind, which were readily bought for her and mailed by return.

Should this department of the company be used to any great extent many lines of business, relying on the farming community trade for a good portion of their business, will feel the effect. It is understood the company have wholesale connections where goods can be had at regular wholesale prices, and passing on these values to the farmers will not be of any benefit to the retail trade throughout rural districts.

Heavier Lines Carried in Stock.

Through local agents of the company in various sections of the province the heavier lines of hardware, such as fencing, barbed wire, binder twine, etc., are distributed, and in some cases carried in stock. Dealers have felt this competition rather keenly for some time, and with the further addition of the "shopping service," this form of competition is increased.

The membership in the United Farmers Co-operative Co., Ltd., of Ontario, has been greatly increased this year through the formation of a "wheat pool" for the province. The company started this pool, aiming at a membership of 10,000 farmers. The success to which the organization has attained can be judged from the statement that the company now has 9,300 signed contracts from farmers, flour millers and elevator owners. A large quantity of this year's crop has already been handled and the company are offering farmers one cent more per month to hold their grain until it can be handled in the province. This it is claimed will keep the Ontario mills and grinders working steadily for a much longer time than if the grain was sold for export.

The "wheat pool" has been the chief factor used to increase the membership to its high level, and the shopping service is another development which is expected to appeal to the farmers and help to hold their interest in the concern.

Selling Binder Twine Now.

Binder twine is just now probably the item of keenest competition between the U. F. O. and the retail hardware store. The sales of that commodity through been equal to that of 1926, but there has possibly been more twine used. A considerable stock was carried over from last year in certain parts of the Dominion, and that naturally reflects in the buying for 1927.

Further developments in the U.F.O. shopping service will be watched with interest by many in the retail trade, and this is broader than an Ontario affair, because of the fact that the U.F.O. Co-operative Co. in this province is now working in very close touch with similar organizations in other provinces in connection with grain marketing and there is little doubt but that various practices such as a "shopping service" will become standardized throughout most parts of the Dominion. If this is the case it will represent a certain portion of rural hardware needs which will be supplied direct to the farmer by his organization.

MILLBROOK NEWS.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 5.—Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Robinson and daughter, Miss Helena, of Toronto, were guests of Mr. A. A. and Miss Etta Needler this week, returning to Lindsay, where they are visiting her sister, Mrs. J. McClennan, on Wednesday.

Mr. S. Stinson of Lindsay was a week-end guest of Councillor and Mrs. P. Stinson.

Mrs. (Canon) Allen will give a travel talk in the St. Thomas' Church Parish Hall on Thursday, November 10 at 8 p.m. This interesting event will be open to the public, the Women's Auxiliary adding to its funds from the small fee charged for admission.

Rev. F. H. Howard was called to Olean, N.Y., this week owing to the serious illness of his brother, Dr. Frank Howard, who, however, has somewhat improved in health during the past few days.

His Lordship Bishop Sweeny, who conducted confirmation services in the local parish on Sunday, was the guest of Rev. Canon and Mrs. Allen at the Rectory during his stay in town.

Mr. A. A. and Miss Etta Needler, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Edmunds, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fallis were among those from here who attended the matinee of Dumbells at the Grand, Peterborough, last Saturday.

The X. L. Mission Circle of St. James' Church gave a jolly party at the home of Miss Aileen Rose, Morrow Street, on Friday evening, to honor the winners of the very successful contest just closed. The house and table decorations were in keeping with the Hallowe'en season, as was also the excellent program provided. Those assisting in the program were Mrs. G. Rowe and Miss Jean Hamilton, readings; Mrs. E. Frost and Miss Geneva Sedgwick, vocal solos; Mrs. E. Rowe and Miss Aileen Rose, piano solos. The surprise feature of the evening came, when to the strains of the wedding march, there entered little Miss Dorothy Frost, a tiny bride, lovely with the usual veil, blossoms and train, with Master Jack Welbourn a happy bridegroom. They drew to the feet of Miss Jean Hamilton, a bride-to-be of the month, a miniature wagon prettily decorated and laden with gifts, both beautiful and useful, from the members of the Mission Circle, of which Miss Hamilton has been a member since its inception. Dainty refreshments were served at the close of the evening, and a hearty vote of thanks tendered the hostess, voiced by Miss Greta Welbourn, leader of the winning side in the contest.

Evening Examiner Fashion

A One-Piece Frock of Youthful Charm

This chic one-piece frock will be found quite simple to fashion; yet a style very smart in every detail. The front of the skirt has three set-in plaits to give the necessary fulness, and the deep V front has a becoming vestee and round collar. The long tight-fitting sleeves are finished with turn-back cuffs, and the waist is girdled with crushed ribbon fastening with a buckle in front. Buttons—so important this season—adorn the front, and frilling adds a dainty finish to the collar and cuffs. No. 1479 is for Misses and Small Women, and is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 (36 bust) requires 3¾ yards 39-inch material, or 2½ yards 54-inch, and 2½ yards 1-inch ribbon for frilling, and 1¼ yards 6-inch ribbon for belt. Price 20 cents the pattern.

The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are advance styles for the home dressmaker, and the woman or girl who desires to wear garments dependable for taste, simplicity and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our patterns. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

For a few days after Bob's frank talk with Faith concerning a man's attitude toward marriage, the Hathaway home was a very pleasant and tranquil place indeed. Cherry, in a repentant and ingratiating mood that lasted longer than usual, voluntarily instructed Bob to deduct and turn over to Faith ten dollars a week from her salary of thirty-five dollars, and also began the custom of endorsing to Faith her weekly alimony check of fifteen dollars from Chris Wiley, entreating Faith at the same time to hire a new maid to take Mrs. Lundy's place. And Faith, deeply impressed by Bob's little sermon, agreed to look for a maid as the first step in saving herself from the horrible fate of being a 'good wife.' She was also making quiet plans to interest herself in something worth while outside her own home, something which would accentuate her own individuality, which Bob had shown her was in danger of becoming submerged in the role of wife.

As for Bob, he was very busy, casually cheerful, and increasingly optimistic about his business future. He was like a man who has gotten a load off his chest and is able to breathe more freely. Faith, watching him closely and pretending not to, lest she rub the bloom off his mood, could have wept with relief, but was busy and cheerful and casual herself. Joy was suspicious and curious at first, but quickly decided to make the most of this interlude of serenity by getting a little attention to her own childish joys and tragedies.

"I believe I'll try to get Kate Lundy back," Faith remarked at breakfast one morning. "She's grouchy a lot of the time, but she's absolutely devoted to all of us, especially Hope, and I never in my life saw a woman who could turn off the work that she does."

"Good idea," Bob agreed over the edge of his morning paper. "Why don't you call her up this morning? No use wasting time."

"She may not want to leave her new place, and I feel rather a dog about luring her away, but—I believe I will." And Faith, happy that Bob was still serene and cheerful, hurried to the phone.

When she returned to the breakfast table a few minutes later her face was white with anger, her brown eyes flashing.

"I don't believe it! I can't. Why didn't he tell us that he was not happy with Fay and Junior?" she cried.

Cherry dropped the bunch of grapes from which she was picking a dainty but insubstantial breakfast and sprang to her feet, her golden eyes ablaze with indignation. "I knew it! Fay said that's why he wanted to leave here—because she was working here! Are they really going to get married, Faith? We've got to stop him! Dad shan't do it! Why, Muggy hasn't been dead a year yet—"

"What in the world are you two babbling about?" Bob demanded, flinging his paper aside.

"Dad's married Kate Lundy, Bob." Faith sank into her chair and put her trembling hands before her face.

"A servant for a step-mother!" Cherry shrilled furiously. "I'll never speak to him again! To shame Muggy and us like that! Oh! The scheming old thing! She had her cap set for him the minute she laid eyes on him!"

Joy's big grey eyes raced from one to the other of them, then she flung a bomb: "Goody! I'm glad he did! Mrs. Lundy's awfully nice. Can I live with Dad and my new mamma, Faith? Say, can I?"

"When did they marry?" Bob asked quietly, but his face was very pale.

Faith realized then that this marriage of his father-in-law to a cook would hurt her husband's prestige as an architect who had promised to become rather the fashion among the rich who could afford his services for country homes and artistic business buildings.

"They were married last night. I suppose it's in the paper," she answered with a shiver.

Bob had just discovered that the only newspaper mention of the marriage of Jim Lane and Kate Lundy occurred in the regular column of "Marriages, Births, Deaths," under the heading, "Marriage Licenses": "James G. Lane and Katherine Penn Lundy," when Fay and Junior arrived, excited and apologetic.

"Really, Faith," Fay gasped as soon as she entered the dining room where the family were still at breakfast, "I'm just as much surprised as you can possibly be. Father Lane had not told us a word! We thought he was perfectly happy with us, and that the reason he had come to live with Junior and me in the first place was that he wanted to escape Mrs. Lundy. That's what he said. Of course we noticed that he was dressing up and going out mysteriously nearly every evening, but we thought it was just to gossip with his old cronies! I'm so sorry and so—"

"I never want to lay eyes on him again!" Cherry broke in passionately. "It's too silly for words! They haven't any money at all, unless Kate Lundy keeps on working as a servant, and think of the disgrace of that! I suppose they think you boys will support them—"

"No, they don't," a strident voice that had long been familiar in the Hathaway household interrupted from the living room. "Jim and me can take care of ourselves, thank you kindly, Cherry! Come on in, Jim. It seems to be a family reunion." And Kate Lundy Lane, dragging Jim Lane by the hand, came striding into the dining room.

"Good morning, Mrs. Hathaway. We didn't mean to butt in without ringing, but nobody answered the bell and Jim just opened the door. You know he ain't one to stand on ceremony like me. Well, folks, here we are! We got married last night at the Second Baptist church all right and proper, and Jim thought it was only fair to come around and tell you so. And I don't aim to start my new married life by coming between father and children."

The "children" looked at them, too startled at first to speak. Faith had the odd feeling that she had never really seen these middle-aged people before. They stood in the archway between the dining and living rooms, their veined, brown, work-marked hands clasped, the new Mrs. Lane towering over her husband, but somehow not extinguishing him as Martha Lane had done. Kate was wearing a new, home-made blue taffeta dress under her decent gray tweed coat, and her broad, truculent, honest face was flushed with pride and shy love, rather than with embarrassment. Faith's eyes roved wonderingly to her father. He was standing very upright, his shoulders squared proudly in a new navy blue serge suit. Gone from his care-worn, lined face was the hang-dog look which had so often cut her to the heart since her mother had died and Jim had felt useless and unwanted in the homes of his children. And in his eyes, too, as they rested on Kate Lundy Lane's big, homely face, was a shy new love and an understanding sort of respect.

Suddenly all her unworthy resentment fell away from Faith, and she was merely glad. With arms outstretched she went forward to welcome the new member of the Lane family.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Except in the early morning hours this is read by astrologers as an unfavorable day.

While there is a fairly good rule for all mercantile interests conservative methods should prevail in business.

Holiday trade probably will be fair, but profits will accrue to those who sell practical gifts.

There is a sign warning of quarrels and misunderstandings among political leaders and today's conferences may be especially inharmonious.

Efforts to obtain promotions in business organizations or to better one's financial condition should be delayed.

This is not an auspicious day for seeking employment. Both men and women may be unlucky.

Domestic relations are subject to rupture, or at least to strain, while this planetary government prevails.

It is wise to avoid entrance to a quarrel under this direction of the stars. Nations as well as individuals should be wary.

While this rule prevails there may be much changeableness and uncertainty regarding stocks. Speculation should be avoided.

There is a threatening sign for all who enter into any new partnerships today, but the evening may be a favorable time to make plans or to reach agreements.

Newspapers and magazines are subject to influences making for large gains and general prosperity.

The position of Mars continues menacing to Japan and seem to indicate serious troubles in the Orient.

Important treaties and commercial pacts may be expected among foreign countries, which may later be inimical to America.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect sharp changes in the coming year.

Children born on this day probably will be faithful in love and honest in business. General prosperity is augured for them.

MILLBROOK NEWS.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 5.—The "west end" social club held its weekly gathering on Tuesday evening at Mr. F. A. Kidd's, when a Hallowe'en spirit marked the occasion both in the decorations, and in the entertainment provided.

A taffy pull was the main feature of the occasion, with games, cards and dancing for those who wished.

The three rooms of the public school observed Hallowe'en on Monday afternoon, with decorations of black cats, bats, witches, on runners, and "pumpkin heads a-glowin'" in convenient corners. Programs of readings, choruses, etc., and suitable games filled out the occasion happily under the direction of the respective teachers, Mrs. B. B. Dawprincipal; Mr. J. H. Anderson and Miss B. Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brown visited friends in Uxbridge, Pefferlaw, Orillia, and Cannington last week.

Mrs. W. E. Russell was called to Queensville last week to attend the funeral of her brother, Dr. Graham, who had passed away rather suddenly. Mrs. Russell's many friends extend their sympathy to her and her sister, Mrs. Matin, in their sad bereavement.

Mrs. J. R. Eakins, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, in Toronto for the past two weeks, has returned home.

MARMORA NEWS.

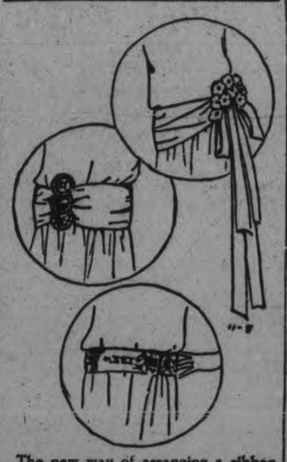
MARMORA, Nov. 8.—Mr. Harold Nayler has been on the sick list for the past few days.

Mrs. J. A. McCallum is spending the winter in Toronto with her daughter, Mrs. Robbilard.

A pie social held under Anglican auspices in the lower part of the Masonic Hall on Thursday evening disposed of the surplus food from the fowl supper of the previous night and received good patronage.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



The new way of arranging a ribbon girdle with glass flowers at the side is shown above. In the center rhinestone and onyx circles fasten a silk girdle on a tulle frock, and below is a rhinestone and jade buckle at the side of a silver cloth girdle.

Waistlines may be as far from normalcy as ever—though there is certainly a tendency to make them higher this season—but there is no doubt whatever that the waistline, normal or otherwise, has returned.

Belts, girdles, waistbands and even sashes are to be seen on the new frocks, and the old-time chemise frock with no sort of visible horizon whatever is seldom to be seen. Even suit jackets and coats often have some sort of belt or indicated waistline. And slip-on sweaters and jumpers are usually worn with a belt.

In choosing the belt or girdle for the day-time frock, care should be taken that there is no outstanding bow or puff that will detract from the perfect flatness of the coat silhouette. Lelong of Paris has made an ensemble consisting of a velvet frock with a slightly draped skirt with a draped velvet girdle and a very flat knot of velvet at the side front. Over this there is a fur-trimmed ribbed cloth coat with seaming at the hips and a slight blousing of the material above this.

This flat treatment of the girdle and belt is frequently found in evening frocks, too, though sometimes there is an outstanding bunch of flowers or a looping of ribbon or a puff of tulle at the hip. Whether or not you choose such a decoration depends on the cut of your evening wrap. The fact that most evening wraps are made with slender, close lines about the hips has had a good deal to do with the popularity of the flat belt or girdle for evening.

There is nothing crushable about the glass flowers and loops of ribbon shown in one of the accompanying sketches. Glass and crystal flowers have that advantage over those of silk or tulle or velvet.

THE HOUSE OF NUTHALLS

You're going to hear about the Nuthalls of England ever so often in tennis chatter during the next few years. Not only plenty about Betty, already one of the best woman players in the world, but also about Molly and Thelma and Pat when they get a bit bigger and older. The three youngsters are excellent players now, Britishers claim. The Nuthalls pictured here are Molly, Betty, Thelma and Pat, reading left to right.

"The hip-line must be snug"

INDEED so snug is the hip line of the new frocks, that only slim, slenderizing undies may be successfully worn beneath.

So comes the new May Belle Bobette and Slip combination — (Bloomer and shadow slip). Truly, a slenderizing little combination—easy fitting and comfortable—but without an ounce of unnecessary fullness at the hips! An ideal garment to wear when no costume slip is desired. The illustration explains its unique design.

PARLIAMENT OPENS

Conservative leaders are naturally anxious over the turn of even's, although Joynson-Hicks still asserts that all the Liberals returned at the next election would not fill a cab. However, there is only one London newspaper which now consistently supports the Government—a situation which has not existed for many years.

No Ceremony

LONDON, Nov. 8. — Without any more ceremony than after an ordinary week-end adjournment, the British House of Parliament convened today for a short and probably stormy session. The "flapper vote" question was brought before the members as they assembled, women parading outside the Commons reminding them, with banners, of the Government's promise to grant women votes on the same terms as men.

After an hour of questions, the House immediately plunged into the heavy program of legislation which will last until Christmas. Reform of the House of Lords is probably the thorniest of the many difficult questions confronting Parliament. Others are disarmament, the dole, economy, aid for British pictures, and amendment of the wartime regulations which still exist.

Nile Dam Question

The Abyssianian Blue Nile Dam question cropped up in the House of Commons today, some members apparently believing that the reported contract awarded a United States firm involved a political issue between Britain and the States. Sir Austen Chamberlain, however, said he was sure the Abyssionion Government was aware of its obligations to Great Britain and that no issue of any kind had arisen.

Emperor Hirohito reviewed the Japanese fleet in Tokio Bay recently, preparatory to the naval manoeuvres, which were the biggest and most important ever held in the Far East.

JUNIOR PETES OUT OF RUNNING

Lose To Penetang 7-6 in Return Game of Series.

SNOW COVERS FIELD.

The Peterborough Junior O.R.F.U. team journeyed to Penetang on Thanksgiving Day to play their return engagement with the team of that place, but failed to make up last Saturday's deficit, losing a closely-contested 7-6 decision.

As was to be expected with a team seven points to the good, the Penetang lads relied to a great extent on the kicking of Shanacy to keep the Petes at their own end of the field. For the most part they were successful in this strategy, but the long gains made by Hatton and Westbrook in running down the backfield kicks made them change their tactics in the early part of the game and resort to line plunging, in which they excelled.

About two and a half inches of snow covered the playing field and made the game anything but a picnic. It was too slippery underfoot to attempt speed plays, and consequently both teams featured the afternoon's motions with long punts. Although such a type of game would not allow much really clever play, yet it proved to be an interesting and more spectacular exhibition of rugby from a spectator's viewpoint.

Penetang scored their points on a touchdown, a deadline kick, and a rouge. Peterborough scored a touch-via Newson, who went through the middle on a beautiful play following an onside kick which brought them to Penetang's 10-yard line. McLeish booted to dead-line for the other point. The score was tied until the last quarter, and the Petes tried valiantly to overcome their lost advantage of a week ago.

Throughout the entire game they were a much steadier and surer aggregation of ball carriers than in the first game here. With a couple of preliminary games under their belt before entering the elimination series it is more than probable that they would have come out on top, in this round at least.

Peterborough line-up:

Hatton and Fraser, flying wings; Westbrook and McLeish, halves; Newson, quarter; Mackey, snap; Fawcett and Welbourn, insides; Ashmore and Miller, middles; Henry and Hope, outsides; Allin, Robertson, Dobbin, Mackness, White, and Peryer, subs.

TRAIN DERAILED.

Traffic Held Up On C. N. R. By Wreck Caused By Broken Rail.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., November 8 (Canadian Press). — Canadian National passenger train No. 20, running between Toronto and Montreal, was derailed early to-day between Lansdowne and Mallorytown Stations A broken rail is given as the reason for the accident. Four cars of the train left the tracks, but no persons were injured. Belleville and Brockville wrecking crews sent to the scene succeeded in clearing the eastbound tracks later this morning.

English Parliament Re-assembles To-Day

LONDON, November 8 (Canadian Press Cable). — Parliament will re-assemble to-day, and it will be necessary to compress the glut of Government measures, mostly domestic, within seven weeks of sittings . The Opposition is expected to insist upon at least one day's discussion of the recent Geneva Naval Conference. The House of Lords debate on this subject opens on Wednesday.

The "Flappers" measure, granting votes to young women, is unlikely to come up before the February session. The Bishops are anxious that the legislation affecting the new prayerbook is taken up before Christmas. Their hopes that the wind was set appreciably fair for the measure has been dispelled by the continued gusty weather provoked by the Bishop Barnes controversy. Right Hon. Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, and at least two other Cabinet members are pronouncedly hostile to the new book. The Government, however, is anxious to afford a most ample opportunity for free discussion, which would hardly be possible if the subject were taken up prior to Christmas.

BANDS VISIT LOCAL CORPS

Salvation Army in Peterborough Holds Open House on Holiday.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Thanksgiving Day at the Salvation Army was one of constant activity. Commencing at 2 p.m. for the social afternoon, a large crowd gathered, and the afternoon was spent in pleasant conversation and interesting games amongst the young people. The Open House was evidently meeting a need for a central meeting place as evidenced by the happiness prevalent and the large number present.

The Thanksgiving supper was largely attended and the catering arrangements were ably accomplished by the Women's Home League. The visiting bandsmen were the guests of the local Salvationists.

Three bands and a Songster Brigade all vied to make possible a successful and creditable program. The Temple was crowded to capacity for this event. Ensign Pollock, the officer-in-charge of the Salvation Army in Cobourg, was the chairman for the occasion. Captain Mundy of Lindsay, and Captain McMillan of Campbellford also took part in the meeting.

The surprise of the evening was the splendid advance of the Cobourg Band since their last visit, a year ago Thanksgiving. Under Bandmaster Kershaw, the Band has grown during the last four years, from a small combination of five players to the present number of twenty-six musicians. Their playing of some of the lates Salvation Army Marches and Selections was a revelation to the local band, and their rendition of a very high order.

Lindsay Band, under Bandmaster Maslin, although smaller in numbers than the Cobourg Band, gave a good acount of themselves in the part they took in the program. Their playing, considering the size of the Band, certainly showed careful training. This was the first visit of the Lindsay Band to Peterborough for some years and they seemed to greatly appreciate the contact with the local musicians.

To say that the Peterborough Band did well, would be like "carrying coals to Newcastle." However, it can be said that in the items given by the Peterborough Band, under the able leadership of Bandmaster Frank Robinson, were quite up to par and their lead in musical affairs among bands well maintained. It is interesting to note that in connection with the Peterborough's band's playing at the Commemoration Service in the Capitol Theatre on Sunday, that the chief speaker of the afternoon, General Mitchell, at the conclusion of the meeting, sent for Bandmaster Robinson and spoke in high terms of the band's playing and congratulated the bandmaster on the splendid organization he commanded, and thanked the band for their presence and inspiration.

The Peterborough Songster Brigade, under Songster Leader Ben Smith, has certainly made rapid strides. Their singing in the regular services at the Temple is well known to the congregation. The purity of tone and well balanced expression was remarked upon very favorably by musical critics present.

At the conclusion of the program, Commandant Frank Ham, called upon Bandmaster Robinson and Songster Leader Ben Smith to express the thanks of the local bandsmen and songsters to the visiting bands. Bandmaster Maslin of Lindsay and Bandmaster Kershaw of Cobourg responded with short speeches of appreciation.

The whole congregation joined in singing that grand old hymn, "Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me," to the well-known tune, "Wells," thus fittingly ended a real day of Thanksgiving.

FEW IMPORTANT ELECTIONS TO-DAY

Most Items Brought Up in United States of Local Interest.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—J. Hampton Moore's endeavor to defeat the political machine of United States Senator William S. Vare at Philadelphia and a lively contest over the proposed removal of parimutuel machines from the race tracks of Kentucky furnished points of interest in the elections today in scattered states throughout the country. Stock and other local exchanges were closed.

For the most part the issues before the people were local. These included the election of Governors in Kentucky and Mississippi, three members of the lower chamber of Congress, numerous municipal and state officials, and decisions by referendum on State legislation. The most important of these was in New York where the question was whether the term of Governor should be extended to four years; this being opposed by Governor Al. Smith.

Moore at Philadelphia is the mayoralty candidate. The Kentucky betting machine was involved in the contest between J. C. Becham, State Governor, and his Republican opponent, F. D. Sampson. In the gubernatorial election in Mississippi Theo. Bilbo was considered unavoidably the next Governor.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

THE MARKETS.

Wheat Prices Go Down On News From Argentine

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—With reports at hand that the weather in Argentina has become favorable, wheat averaged lower in price today during early dealings. Opening unchanged to ⅜c off, wheat later underwent a sag all around. Corn was strong, starting ⅛ to ⅜c higher and continuing to point upward. Oats were firm.

Provisions tended down grade.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 126⅛, March 129¾. Corn December 85, March 88⅞. Oats, December 48¾, March 50¾.

Heavy Trading To-day; Most Mine Stocks Higher

TORONTO, Ont., November 8 (Canadian Press). — Heavy trading after the holiday was the rule on the Standard Mining Exchange today. The market was bullish and gains were recorded in the majority of issues. Howey Gold touched 155 at one time, but later declined, and at the noon recess was boarded at 131, a gain of twenty-four since Friday's market. Amulet gained 10 at 497. Argonaut Consolidated, Barry Hollinger, and Bidgood all firmed. Crown Reserve was six higher at 50. Hollingtr Consolidated was 25 higher at 17.25, while Tough Oakes Burn was up 1¾ at 56.

Unlisted Shares Lead Trading In Toronto To-day

TORONTO, Nov. 8. — (Canadian Press.) — Activity was more or less confined to the unlisted issues on the Toronto stock exchange to-day, with British American Oil leading trading. This issue gained 1 1-8 to 36 1-8. The market held steady. Brompton gained two at 19½, while Canners Preferred firmed at 109½. Cosmos gained ¼ at 28, while Industrial Alcohol was 1 1-8 higher at 40 3-8. International Nickel was the leader, gaining 1¾ at 67½. Among the unlisted issues, Imperial Oil was up ¾ at 41½, while Canada Brewing was 1-8 higher at 32, Carling dropped ¾ to 26.

THANKSGIVING SUPPER HELD

Many People Attend Annual Social at Mark Street.

CONCERT LATER.

Ladies of Mark Street United Church were in charge of arrangements for the very successful Thanksgiving supper held last evening in the church basement, and attended by about four hundred and fifty people, an increase of about one hundred over last year. The tables, loaded with a sumptuous supper, were decorated with flowers and evergreens.

The concert which formed the evening's entertainment, in charge of Mr. V. Boorman, included the following numbers: Orchestral selections by an orchestra directed by Mr. R. Gliddon, songs by Mrs. Ross Williamson and Miss Olive Howland, readings by Miss Alberta Throop and Miss Eva Outram, cornet solos by Mr. J. Minicolo. Brief talks were given by Rev. R. Bamforth, former pastor of the church, and Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, pastor of St. James' United Church, and a Gallagher and Shean duett was presented by two youths, Messrs. Smith and Shepherd.

WIFE IN POOR SPIRITS.

LIBERAL, Kan., Nov. 5.—There's little marital bliss in living with a wife who is invisible and who can talk only through the lips of a spirit medium. John Seybold, 71-year-old farmer, is suing the medium for $7,500 which he says he spent since his "wedding" with his spirit bride, "Sarah." He completely outfitted a home for his invisible soulmate.

Y.M.C.A. TEAM WINS BIG RACE

Second Annual Relay Race Proves Very Successful Event.

LINDSAY TEAM THIRD.

The second annual Thanksgiving Day ten mile relay race proved to be a great success. Although the weather was very cold for running, eight teams entered the race, three coming from Lindsay, three from the Y.M.C.A. and two from the Athletic Club of the Canadian General Athletic.

The Y.M.C.A.'s firsts won the race in 57 minutes and 59 seconds, taking all four relays. The first team of the C.G.E. finished 36 seconds later for second place.

Each runner ran two and a half miles. Hamilton, the last man who ran for the winners, made the best time, covering the course in 13 minutes and 56 seconds, twelve seconds faster than Bates, the last runner for the C. G. E..

Members of the winning team were Sturgeon who made the course in 14 minutes and 18 seconds, Larmer in 15 minutes and 4 seconds, Dorrington in 14 minutes and 34 seconds, and Hamilton.

In the first two laps the first team from Lindsay held second place, but in the third they dropped back to third place where they finished, being only 8 seconds behind the C. G. E.

Motorists several times hindered runners as they were finishing the course. Lindsay runners were in poor condition as they had not the training of the winners. One team from Lindsay was composed of boys all under 15 years old.

C.G.E. firsts—second place. Runners: Laderach 15.12 Tranter 14.16, Dundass 14.43, and Bates 14.09.

Lindsay firsts — third place: G. Strickland 15.12, B. Gamble 15.10, L. Stinson 15, D. Brandon 14.17.

Lindsay seconds — fourth place: Caley 14.18, Smith 16.20, Clemett 18.05, and Gamble 15.32.

Y.M.C.A. seconds—fifth place: Outram 16.24, Chenhall 17.47, French 16.07 and Bearne 14.17.

Y.M.C.A. thirds—sixth place: Adair 16.48, Levine 17.21, Ward 17.07, and Goheen 16.00.

C.G.E. seconds—seventh place: Morley 16.12, Jay 17.15, McGillen 17.18, Palmer 15.84.

Lindsay thirds—eighth place: Walters 16.24, Dickerson 17.27, O'Brien 17.57, Fisher disqualified.

A large number of citizens lined the streets in the vicinity of the Y.M.C.A. to watch the race.

Rheumatism

that twinge of pain in the shoulder or elbow,

—like sand in the bearings of a machine—that is rheumatism, and the sooner you attend to it the better.

A Radox bath will give you instant relief from rheumatism, as is proved by the following letter:

"Just to bear testimony to the great benefit I have received from the use of your preparation, Radox Bath Salts. For several weeks past now I have been using it for rheumatism (rheumatoid anthritis)—left ankle. Having constantly used it and received great relief, I cannot speak too highly of it, and shall have great pleasure in recommending it." A. M.

You can have the same instant relief from the nerve-racking jabs of rheumatism. Simply put two tablespoonfuls of Radox Bath Salts into a hot bath. Then sit in it for 20 minutes. The Radox-treated hot water penetrates the clogged pores of the skin and cleanses them from the uric acid which is the chief cause of rheumatism. You will feel a new man after a Radox bath. Don't delay. Get a 60c pink package of Radox from your druggist on your way home.

Girls, Earn Money

During Your Spare Time!

Personal and social news is the greatest asset any newspaper can have. It has the greatest reader interest and pleases the greatest number of people. Besides being of interest as reading matter, it serves many good purposes. To the sick it brings messages, flowers, and good wishes. Among holiday-makers it lets their friends know they are away, and oftentimes saves time and inconvenience.

The Examiner is known even among the progressive daily newspapers of Ontario for the amount of local news it carries every day, but The Examiner wants more personal and social news.

A limited number of girls and women are invited to participate in a contest in reporting for The Examiner such items as personals, general news about persons, social events, and so forth. There is NO LIMIT to the amount of space The Examiner will devote to this feature.

The regular space rate for all published news will be paid. Considering the carte blanche the reporter has, this space rate is higher than the rate paid by most city newspapers for their correspondence.

And in Addition

there will be a prize of $2.00 every week for the next eight weeks, awarded the person sending in the most usable news, and a grand prize of $10.00 for the person sending in the most usable news before December 17. This will come in handy for Christmas. Other prizes will be announced later.

Contestants must be at least sixteen years of age. Readers of The Examiner will be allowed to send in their own contributions and have them credited to their favorite contestant.

Note that too many contestants cannot work efficiently, so get in your application early. The city editor reserves the right to limit the number of contestants, and choose the applicants who seem best fitted.

All who register and are accepted will be given instructions and helpful tips and furnished with paper and other supplies. Everyone will be paid the regular space rates, and the prizes are additional awards.

Readers of The Examiner are asked to co-operate in making this newspaper more newsy and in encouraging the contestants to get this valuable training. All contestants will be cautioned not to publish personal matters when requested not to do so, and against giving offence in any way. Readers are reminded, however, that if they enjoy reading the personal news they should be willing to contribute to it.

The Contest Starts on November 12th

WAR VETERANS HONOR MEMORY

ed was for us to carry on over there and when we came home to still carry on, as the Canadian Legion is doing to-day."

Day of Thankfulness.

"Also it is a day of thankfulness for those who served and are still able to carry on. They, too, are living sacrifices. We to-day are thankful for the faithfulness of the same old comrades whom we fought beside and who we are with to-day."

General Mitchell paid a tribute to the work of the Legion in Peterborough." It was with great pleasure I saw your hall and centoph. The parade to-day showed that you were carrying on just as those who lie over yonder would have wanted you to. I wish for you God speed in this great movement. Co-operation meant everything in the great war and to-day it is the backbone of the Legion and its work."

"In conclusion I appeal to you on this day of memory and thankfulness to continue to live and be loyal citizens just as they who were left behind stood together and served our country and maintained the ideals of our fathers."

Doing a Great Work.

President Abraham introduced Alderman Macdonald as a veteran of the South African war.

"This is a day of remembrance," said Mr. Macdonald. "Our memories go back to the day when Peterborough's manhood left for the Great War and to-day we remember that many of the flower of Peterborough did not return. They are not dead, they are alive in the great Eternity of God. Members of the Legion, you are doing a great work. You are working for others and in doing so you are helping yourselves. As representing the City of Peterborough, I hope your work will progress, that you have great success in coming years. I also take great pleasure in welcoming General Mitchell to this city."

Hold Memory Sacred.

President Abraham in a short address said he regretted to announce that Mayor Holloway, E. A. Peck, M. P., and W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., were unable to attend. "We are here to day to hold sacred the memory of our fallen comrades whom we left behind and those who came back maimed. Your sorrow is our sorrow, and your mourning our mourning."

Captain Abraham asked that all returned men join the Canadian Legion. "We need you all there; we have a great work to be done. You who read The Examiner know some of the things we have accomplished. Rank does not enter into our Legion, so come and be one of us."

His Honor Judge Huycke

That he was probably regarded as somewhat of a hardy perennial because he had spoken at every veterans' service since the end of the war, was the opening remark of His Honor Judge Huycke, but one that was refuted by the intertested attention and applause that was bestowed on him. His Honor referred to the recent Jubilee celebrations, stating that Canada is celebrated for many things in this great year of her history, but that he likes to think of her as known for her loyalty.

He referred to a statement by Mr. Lloyd George: that, if it had not been for the great activity with which Canada and the other Dominions entered the conflict, the result would have been in doubt, but that the cubs had rallied to the defence of the mother when she was threatened.

There are many sad homes in Canada even yet, continued the speaker, and there are many places in France and Belgium and at the bottom of the sea that are now parts of Canada, because Canadians who fell lie there. "We do well to celebrate what those boys have done—those who have done so much," he declared.

His Honor spoke of the dedication during Canada's Jubilee Celebrations of the shrine in the Victory Tower of the Federal Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, containing the Book of Life. This beautiful book contains the names of all those who died in their country's service during the war. He explained its title of the Book of Life as being fitting, because when most people of the present day are dead and long forgotten the names of these men will be remembered and inscribed in the hearts and minds of their countrymen.

There should be, continued the speaker, a feeling of thanksgiving and also of mourning, but in addition there should be a feeling of pride that Canadians have done such things. He expressed his pleasure in the observance on Armistice Day of the two minutes of silent homage. "When no foot should move, nor wheel turn, and there should be absolute silence," and all should join in contemplation of those departed.

Addressing more particularly the veterans present, the speaker said that the two minutes was a sacred time, and that they had made it so. People ask, What good the war has done? It has made better homes and a better country, while the soldiers themselves are better bacause they have learned the lesson of sacrifice.

Rev. Captain Paul Costello.

Tribute to General Mitchell's record as Chief Intelligence Officer of the Canadian Army was paid by Rev. Captain Paul Costello, who also referred to the work for the soldiers done by Judge Huycke, whom he had heard a returned man couple with Bishop O'Brien as two leading citizens who had worked hard in recruiting during the war and in helping the men who returned.

Father Costello referred to the good humor which had characterized the soldiers in the trenches. They had done their work determinedly, but they had done it pleasantly.

Speaking of the sadness which accompanied thoughts of the days in France, the speaker referred to the hundreds of celebrations throughout the Empire and other allied countries this week, and stated his belief that no location surpasses Peterborough in the tribute paid to the dead, with three memorial services yearly.

When the war broke out, he continued, it was not the maimed and weak who responded, but the flower of the country's manhood. He could recall seeing the men go up into the lines, fine, strong men, and seeing them come back, borne by the stretcher-bearers, wrecks, mangled and maimed for life. Many of them had wished that they had been killed, but now they are working in occupations for which they are fitted. In this connection he spoke of the men who make the poppies which are sold annually ,and mentioned that the sales of the previous day in Peterborough had totalled nearly $1,200.

Speaking of the Canadian Legion, Father Costello referred to the Dominion Convention in Winnipeg, to which he had been a delegate, and where he had seen returned men, once the flower of their country physically and now leaders in their civil professions, thinking and planning for the betterment of the country's returned men.

A stirring declaration of allegiance to the British Empire, of which "no historian has ever said—no historian can ever say—that the war fought by Britain was unjust, for Britain has always stood for right and justice," was made by the speaker, and echoed by his audience with tumultuous applause, which re-echoed when he declared that should it be necessary to fight again he would be proud to be the first to sign his name to fight for the greatest Empire under Heaven.

The speaker closed with an appeal to the returned men to give the same co-operation in civil life that they knew in France and Belgium, and to make Canada the greatest country in the world. She is potentially the greatest, he said, but Bolshevism and the Red element must be kept out. That there is such co-operation he was assured by the success that was made of the Jubilee celebration.

REBEL CHIEF

Gomez and his nephew and the capture of three Gomez officers, still leaves at large in the Perote mountains, two other leaders, General Hector Almeda and General Francesco Medina, who are being pursued by Escobar's forces and whose capture is expected soon, the presidential office announces. Almeda was the Federal officer who led the troops from the Mexico City garrison on October 3. Most of the troops, however, abandoned the revolutionary enterprize when they learned what was being done.

General Quijano, recently court-martialled and executed, was an officer under Almeda. Quipano was made prisoner by his own troops and turned over to loyal Federals when Quijano's soldiers learned that in obeying Almeda's and Quijano's commands, they were being hurried into a revolutionary movement.

General J. G. Escobar, who personally captured Gomez and who commanded the Federals which routed the Gomez forces in the Ashaulules battle, has commanded the Federal forces operating against Gomez throughout the campaign. He has long been known as one of the most efficient commanders in Mexico and is a trusted right hand man of President Calles.

VETERAN WINS OUT.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 5.—A table and lamp made of 47,854 pieces of wood helped to save the life of George L. Hathaway, disabled veteran of the World War. Believing he was engaged in a race with death, Hathaway worked for months in making his table, which contains 72 varities of trees His idea was to leave his work as a memorial, but after two years of work his health began to improve. It took 39 months to complete the job.

NEW PRESBYTERIAN

Paul's letters to the Corinthians, the sixth chapter and the fourteenth verse, Mr. Rodger claimed the apostle to be the greatest minister of Bible times. The world is still waiting for the manifestation of the Christian religion by actions and not merely by words. There must be a difference between the people of the world and God's followers. Men and women must go to far corners of the world and preach the word of God.

One of the first to go on such an errand was Abraham, who went at the direct command of the Almighty. He was designated as the friend of God. Moses had refused the opportunity to acquire fame in the land of Egypt by marrying the daughter of the Pharaoh. He preferred to remain a member of God's chosen people. Paul had also chosen to become a missionary for God. He knew that though the great powers of the world would gradually pass into oblivion, the word and works of God would continue down the ages through time immortal.

There were three classes of people who are opposing the church, he said. The first was made up of those who ignored the church entirely, scorned or antagonized it. There were those who withdrew from the world in order that they might lead a righteous and Godly existence. One of these, a monk, had written one of the finest of the present hymns, one that would be sung in the Christian church as long as it existed, "Art Thou Weary, Art Thou Languid." But the monk, he thought, did not have the true idea which Christ wished his disciplines to follow. He did not wish them to retire from the world, but to mingle with the people in all walks and places of life, preaching the word. He illustrated his point by the story of children playing at school in an attic playroom, and by the well known tale of the Publican and the Pharisee.

One of the glories of the Presbyterian ministry was that there were no set rules for the people to follow. Rather there were great guiding principles set forth in the Bible which were for their guidance. Men, he said, were flesh of Gods flesh and bone of His bone. They must keep pure for him. The call of God was coming to the church to-day and the influence which the church has on the world would be greatly increased when the call was heard. Every organ of the church must be used to promote the Kingdom of Heaven. Christ came not to be ministered unto but to minister. But the church of the past had not had enough "go" to accomplish its mission. If the church obeys the behest of its God, it will see its reward. The church was not only a member but a part of the body. It must recognize its true relationship and be prepared to present itself to God, without spot or wrinkle.

As a reward, God had promised to receive them. "No good thing will I withhold from them that walk uprightly." Also he said, "I will receive you. I will be a Father to you." Happiness, he said could only be found through fellowship with God. All the gold in Alaska had not brought happiness to the men who had mined it. In the United States in the year 1925, thirty-seven millionaires had committed suicide. Twenty-five of these had left notes saying that they had been unhappy. In his church duing the war, 357 men had answered the call to arms. Forty-seven had given their lives for the British cause. There was another call now from the King of Kings, and he hoped that the men and women would respond as generously.

After the sermon, Miss Cullen, of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, sang "Fear Ye Not, O Israel," which was greatly appreciated. Hymn 544, "Fight the good fight," and the benediction brought the morning service to a close.

PREMIERS TO DISCUSS.

immigrants themselves.

With respect to land settlement schemes several of the provinces had shown an inclination to participate. Losses through the assisted family scheme and land settlement scheme had been infinitesimal.

Mr. Forke explained the policy pursued in connection with European immigrants. The railway agents themselves exercised care in the matter of selection and in addition to that the departments agents were very strict in the matter of fitness. The regulations with respect to health were much more adequate than ever before. This was necessary in order to prevent the tragedies of deportation which must be carried out at the expense of the railway companies. Mr. Forke dealt at some length with the advice and services which were available from the supervisors under the land settlement branch. As regarded restrictions he explained that there were none upon any British born subject who desired to come to Canada, provided he could pass the medical examination and in the event of his not taking advantage of the assisted passage scheme which applies to agriculturists, could pay his fare.

During the discussion it was emphasized that the need for immigration varied both so far as quantity and kind were concerned in the different parts of the Dominion. It is thought that such a conference as has been fixed for Thursday next will do much to dissipate certain misunderstandings which may exist and to bring about a more co-ordinated effort on the part of all concerned.

It took seven years to sell the first two million pounds of "SALADA" Tea, but such is the reward of giving public satisfaction that this quantity is now shipped in seven weeks.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES.

BETHANY UNITED Y.P.U.

BETHANY, Nov. 8.—The members of the Young People's League of the United church gave a Hallowe'en party on Monday night in the Sunday school room. The young people for the most part came in fancy costume. An interesting program was given of songs, recitations and a short address by Rev. A. Poulter on the meaning of Hallowe'en.

Games were enjoyed for a time following the close of the program then refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

WOOLER MISSION CIRCLE.

WOOLER, Nov. 8.—The popularity of the young ladies members of the Mission Circle, was shown on Monday evening, when every chair was taken for the annual masquerade party on Hallowe'en. The church parlors were decorated, very attractively with the Hallowe'en colors and emblems, lighted pumpkins, and the rosy red apples in abundance. The varied prgoramme was in the hands of the chairman, Rev. H. B. Neal.

Opening chorus—Missionary Bells.
Recitation—Jean McColl.
Vocal duet (comic)—Farrow and Hubbs.
Talk on Hallowe'en—Ethyl Gunter.
Recitation—Lulu McColl.
Stunt, Reverse — Ruby McColl, Jessie Rogers, Muriel McColl, Ada Whitney.
Vocal solo—Laura Vosburg.
Monologue—Mrs. Neal.
Piano—Miss Helen Windover, Frank Ford.
Vocal duet—Edith Austin and Douglas Steinburg.
Matrimonial race—The Winners, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Stacey.
Recitation, "The Dressed Turkey," Muriel McColl.
Recitation song—Gwendoline Elford, Laura Vosburg, Marjorie Sharpe, Mabel Forbes.
Piano solo—Mrs. Robert Walker.
The Little Cowboys—by eight girls.
Masquerade parade.
Prizes for the best dressed couple were won by Frances Terrill and Stella Nelson.
Single prize—Francis Stacey.
The funniest costume—Alice McColl.
The best dressed junior couple — Edith Austin and Doris Nelson.
Single prize—Helen Bentley.
Booby prize—Douglas Steinburg.
Refreshments of sandwiches, cake, and pumpkin pie in abundance were served.

Lakefield A.Y.P.A.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 8.—The annual Hallowe'en party of St. John's A.Y.P.A. was held in the Sunday School room on Monday evening with a good attendance present. About eight o'clock a grand parade took place of the young people who were nearly all in costume. There was a great variety of costumes. A Chinese Mandarin in the dignified habiliments peculiar to his high calling was seen as a conspicuous figure; a Ghost flitted about in spooky fashion; a Witch with high hat and broom all complete marched about with a mighty hunter who bore a trophy of the hunt upon his shoulders. A pretty Dutch Girl and a Miner paraded before the spectators; a jolly Jack Tar and a Flapper; Gypsies, smart little boys who in everyday life are dressed in skirts, and others representing a merry group of joy seekers.

The committee consisted of Mrs. Trude Waldon, Misses Amy Watson and Mae Mahood and Messrs. F. Remnant and T. Simpson, and no pains were spared to make the whole evening enjoyable. A peanut hunt took place and it was an ice breaker (if one was needed) and mixed the company up into smaller groups. An advertising contest kept one racking one's brains for the answers. This was won by Mrs. W. Millage.

A novelty contest was won by Mrs. Millage and Mr. Lawrence Charlton after what was almost a dead heat with Miss Winnie Payne and Mr. Stenner.

Refreshments were served and the evening wound up with a jolly little dance.

The room was gaily decorated for the occasion with orange and black crepe paper streamers, and cat and witch cut-outs and Jack o'Lanterns.

WARKWORTH, Nov. 8. — A very enjoyable evening was spent in the Sunday school rooms of the Presbyterian church when the Young People's Society entertained the members with a Hallowe'en social on Oct. 31st. Costumes were splendid.

A short program was enjoyed after the unmasking, after which three contests were puzzled out. The apple eating contest proved great fun for the children. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the evening was the pie eating contest, performed by two of the gentlemen present. It was a tie.

Mrs. Walter McKenzie, of Portage La Prairie, Man., spent Tuesday with Mrs. J. E. Thompson.

Mr. C I. Maycock has purchased a new car.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchinson are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Langford at Niagara Falls.

Miss Olive Moore is visiting her sister, Mrs. Sidney Wood Port Hope.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

MILLBROOK, November 5. — Centreville Presbyterian Church successfully observed its anniversary occasion on Sunday, large congregations gathering both morning and evening for public worship.

Rev. D. A. Thomson, of Hastings, preached inspiring sermons at both services, and the soloist for the day was Mr. Charles Clarke, of Peterborough, who delighted the congregations with his selections

The church was appropriately decorated with autumn flowers and foliage, flowering house plants adding to the beauty and fragrance of the arrangement. The thankoffering, with the receipts from the annual fowl supper served on Tuesday night in the Sunday school hall, amounted to over $600.00.

The trustees of the church consider that there has been no more successful anniversary in its history.

The eight hundred people attended the supper on Tuesday evening and all were well pleased with the fine program provided by Peterborough talent including Gliddon's orchestra, with soloist, Miss Tully, elocutionist, and Miss Viola White, pianist.

Quite a number from Millbrook motored over both on Sunday and again on Tuesday evening.

OMEMEE PERSONALS

Dr. H. and Mrs. Irvine and Mrs. A. Staples, of Lindsay, visited the latter's sister, Mrs. William Earle, on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mann, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mann, of Bridgenorth, and Mr. and Mrs. John Deyell, of Mount Horeb, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. D. Belsh.

Mrs. C. L. Morcombe has returned home after spending some time at her home at Whitby.

Mr. Albert Byers, of Toronto, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ivory over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie, of Peterborough, visited Mrs. T. A. MacPherson on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Patterson and Mr. Samuel Stinson, of Janetville, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. Bushwell on Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. M. Lethang and children, of Ballyduff, spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. R. Poast.

Mr. Allan Adams, who was in the employ of the C.N.R. station at Sturgeon street, has secured a position at Midland.

Mr. J. Brown, of Lindsay, was in town on business Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Langdon, of Lindsay, were the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Laidley, on Sunday.

Mr. F. C. Nugent, Mrs. T. Wilkinson, Mrs. Hough and daughters, Miss Catherine and Mrs. Thereaux, of Lindsay, called on Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Mahood on Sunday.

Mr. Alvin Courtney, of Toronto, visited his mother, Mrs. J. Courtney, last week.

Mrs. R. J. Mulligan and Miss Ella McCrea, of Lindsay, were in Omemee on Saturday and called on numerous friends.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander and daughter, Nancy Jane, of Uxbridge, spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamb.

Mr. and Mrs. Laverne McKinley, of Fleetwood, spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clemett.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Mitchell and daughter, Miss Emily, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Williamson.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stinson, of Peterborough, visited Mrs. W. D. Stinson on Sunday.

Among the many from Omemee who attended the Dumbells' latest revue, "Oo! La! La!", in Peterborough on Saturday last were: Mr. and Mrs. R. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. W. Brown, Dr. G. N. and Mrs. Earle, Miss Jane and Bill Earle, Mrs. William Earle, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamb, Miss Jessie Lamb, Mrs. Charles Ivory, Mr. and Mrs. L. Mahood, Rev. E. W. and Mrs. Rowland, Mrs. Musgrove, Mrs. E. Jamieson, Miss Lenore Jamieson, Miss E. Robinson, Miss M. Dickson, Mrs. F. Parker, Mrs. T. C. Stephenson, Mrs. R. J. Adams, Miss C. Cornwall, Miss M. Faulkner and Mrs. S. Grandy.

Mr. J. W. Deyell, of Lindsay, visited his brother, Mr. D. Deyell, on Sunday.

Mr. James Bushnell, who carried off several prizes at the different fall fairs with his team of road horses, has disposed of them. Messrs. Curtis and Sullivan, of Norfolk, Connecticut, were the purchasers, they having travelled this distance before locating a suitable team.

Sheriff R. J. and Mrs. Patterson, of Lindsay, were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Thorne, on Sunday.

A reception service was held at Trinity Church on Sunday morning, followed by the communion service. Six new members were received and welcomed by the elders, after which the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, delivered a splendid address on the church, taking his text from St. Matt. 16-18, "Upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Next Sunday (tomorrow) special Thanksgiving services will be held, when the Rev. J. E. Griffith, of Blackstock, will be the speaker. On Thanksgiving night the annual hot fowl supper will be given by the ladies, followed by a splendid programme.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Stephenson spent the week-end with Toronto friends.

Mr. Reuben Bradley suffered a painful accident last week when, in giving assistance around a cement mixer, had the nail torn from one finger and two fingers badly bruised on his right hand, one of which required two stitches to close.

Hallowe'en in Omemee passed very quietly. The children attired in costumes other than their own spent the entire evening in making their annual call on nearly every home in the village, where they were generously provided with a treat of some sort. A few pranks were played, but they were not carried to the extent of previous years.

BERLIN EXCHANGE SLUMPS FOLLOWING GILBERT WARNING

Reaction Takes Form of Hectic Flurry of Stocks on Bourse.

HEAVY LOSSES.

Memorandum Embodied Counsel Against Undue Expenditures By Germany.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—(A. P.)—Reaction to the memorandum of S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations handed recently to the German Minister of Finance, and the German government's reply took the form yesterday of a hectic flurry on the Bourse, where leading stocks slumped in various degrees, some losing 38 points as compared with Saturday's closing quotations.

Mr. Gilbert's memorandum embodied a warning against undue expenditures by Germany and the negotiations of loans; the German government's reply consisted of a defence of its financial policy's review of the progressive improvement in Germany's foreign trade and a promise to live up to the principles of the Dawes reparations plan.

The German steel trust shares the reparation agent's opinion that Germany needs to reorganize her financial policy if industrial and economic catastrophe is to be avoided. The trust's annual report concludes with a passage, which is believed to be partly responsible for to-day's Bourse slump.

"Complete stagnation of a great part of Germany's economic life, particularly in the coal and iron industries must be reckoned with unless within a very short time there is a complete re-organization of German economic and financial policy, and unless these burdens imposed upon Germany is not further increased, but on the contrary, are considerably reduced."

The report also says that the trust's turnover had increased and enough orders are available to keep it as busy in the coming months as last year. Technical improvements and other considerations had brought the expected decrease in costs, but these, the report declares, have recently been unfavorably effected by increased social burdens, higher wages, shorter hours and particularly by a tendency of the international coal and iron market to reduce prices.

Special dispatches from New York and Washington to the German papers assume that the exchange of notes between the reparations agent and the German government has worked "incalculable harm" to German financial and political prestige abroad.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BAKED APPLES

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Come on, Jackie!" barked Peetie Bow Wow to his brother one morning. "I know where we can get some dandy big ones!"

"Fine!" whined Jackie. "Are they nice and green?"

"Oh, as green as grass!" barked the other puppy. "We can crawl under the fence and pick up a lot of 'em off the ground and eat 'em!"

Uncle Wiggily, who was sitting under a spice bush, taking a rest before he started to look for an adventure, heard Jackie and Peetie talking in this way.

"Ah ha!" murmured the rabbit what those puppies are going after—green apples. Well, only one thing can happen when puppy dog boys or other boys eat green apples in summer—they will be made ill, that's what!"

Peering around the corner of the spice bush, Uncle Wiggily saw Jackie and Peetie trotting away, and then, after wisely twinkling his pink nose, the rabbit gentleman hopped after them.

"They are going to the orchard, crawl under the fence and take the green apples they find on the ground," said Mr. Longears to himself. "I know, for I used to be a green apple boy myself. Now I must stop those two little puppies from making themselves ill. I must get to the orchard ahead of them."

Taking a short cut over the fields, and by using his longest hops, Uncle Wiggily reached the orchard ahead of Jackie and Peetie. And you can imagine how surprised those two little dogs were when they saw the rabbit gentleman sitting under the tree after they had crawled through the fence.

"What are you doing here, Uncle Wiggily?" barked Jackie.

"I might ask you the same?" chuckled the rabbit gentleman. "Did you come here to get green apples?" he went on.

Jackie and Peetie always told the truth so they shuffled their paws in the dirt, twiddled their tails and Jackie said:

"Always at this time of year, Uncle Wiggily, and sometimes earlier, we boys eat green apples."

"Yes, I know, I used to do it, and other boys after you will do it," said Uncle Wiggily. "But it isn't good for you."

"Oh, couldn't we have just two green apples?" pleaded Peetie. "The seeds inside are almost brown," he added. "One apple won't hurt us, please, Uncle Wiggily!"

"No!" said the rabbit gentleman, shaking his head. But when he saw how sad and hungry Jackie and Peetie looked he said: "Roast green apples will not do much harm. If you want to get some wood so I can make a camp fire and roast a few apples, why I think that will be all right."

"Oh, that's great!" barked the two puppies, and soon they were scurrying around picking up dried wood. Once Jackie picked up a green apple, but Uncle Wiggily saw him and gave a shout.

"I was only just going to break it open on a stone to show you that the seeds inside are really quite brown," barked Jackie politely.

"Never mind about brown seeds—just gather wood so we can bake the rgeen apples," laughed Mr. Longears.

Soon he had a little camp fire going on a stone hearth he made, and when the stones were hot Uncle Wiggily laid on them some green apples, putting them near the glowing red hot embers. Soon the apples began to sizzle and siss and a most lovely smell filled the air.

"When can we eat the apples?" asked Jackie, hungrily.

"In a little while," answered Uncle Wiggily. He had been to the store for his wife and had a pound of sugar. He sprinkled some of this on the baking apples and the smell of them was better than before.

At last the apples were baked soft and brown and with a stick Mr. Longears rolled them out of the embers and away from the hot stones on some plates he made of pieces of birch bark.

There were four baked apples and Jackie and Peetie wondered who would eat the extra one, for counting Uncle Wiggily, there were only three at the fire.

But all of a sudden the Bob Cat came slyly stalking out of the woods and crept up to nibble the rabbit gentleman.

But the Bob Cat saw the extra baked apple, lying on the ground, still close to the blaze, the bad chap put his paw on it intending to claw it apart and eat it. But he had no sooner done this than he gave a loud yowl and a howl, and dropping the hot baked apple, ran away to cool his burned paw in the brook.

"Ho! Ho!" laughed Jackie and Peetie. "It's a good thing we baked apples, isn't it, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Yes, and it's a good thing you didn't eat any green ones," said the rabbit.

He dropped the hot baked apple.

DOURO PLOWMEN ARE SUCCESSFUL

Win Large Number of Prizes in Various County Matches.

DOURO, November 8. — Local men have had remarkable success at the ploughing matches in this and surrounding counties. Messrs. John O'Brien and Alex. Carlow have made a record which would be hard to equal

In Victoria County Mr. O'Brein won first for sod ploughing with plain plough and special for best finish. In Durham County Mr. O'Brien won the first prize for land crown and finish) for jointer plows in stubble. In Peterboro county Mr. O'Brien won first in sod for those who had never won a first prize. He also won the Burnham and Gordon cups. He was also a competitor at the provincial match but owing to having to use a wide plough, to which he was unaccustomed he did not make as good a showing, though awarded fourth prize by the judges it was not given him by the directors as he was a few minutes late in finishing, this due also to the plow being new to him.

Mr. O'Brien won second prize at last year's provincial match at Niagara.

The classes in which he competes have always a large number of entries so Mr. O'Brien's achievements are splendid to say the least.

Mr. Alex. Carlow has proved himself an expert in the use of a two-furrow plough, winning first in Victoria, Peterborough, Durham and at the provincial match.

Mr. Michael Leahy made a fine showing at the Peterborough match, winning first for common ploughs in sod and being a close contender for the Burnham cup.

Mr. Kenneth Cavanagh won first for wide ploughs in sod and Edward Carlow second at the Peterborough match, and Mr. Cavanagh won second in the Fleury plough special in stubble in Victoria.

IN POLICE COURT.

Reckless drivers are being dealt severely with by Magistrate O. A. Langley in an effort to have more care and courtesy displayed by the motoring public in the city and county of Peterborough.

Frederick Mackay this morning, in police court, was fined $25.00 and $4.50 costs for reckless driving on Water street. He will also have his driver's license cancelled for three months an in default of payment of the fine he was sentenced to one month in the common jail.

W. H. Ellis, of the township of Asphodel, pleaded guilty to stealing an automobile wind shield and horn, the property of Edgar Tripp, on Sunday, October 30th. Mr. Ellis was remanded to jail for one week on request of the Crown, as other thefts are to be investigated by the officers.

Middleweight Champ Stages Private Scrap

REDBANK, N.J., Nov. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—Edward C. Walker, otherwise known as Mickey Walker, middleweight boxing champion of the world, engaged in fisticuffs yesterday with Walter Reade, middle-aged and wealthy owner of a chain of movie theatres on the north Jersey coast.

The altercation took place in Reade's office and exactly what occurred was not learned, although both issued statements after. Walker was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Foswell and held under bond of $500 on a charge of assault and battery.

The men were discussing the possibilities of Walker obtaining a lease on a projected $2,000,000 theatre and amusement pier in Ashbury Park, according to the fighter, when Reade remarked: "You don't think the municipality of Ashbury Park would let a prize fighter have the place, do you?"

Reade acknowledged making the remark, but disagreed as to who struck the first blow. Reade's forehead was bruised.

THE FIVE PIANO ENSEMBLE

Five Heintzman Pianos on the concert stage at one time

ANOTHER TRIUMPH for Heintzman & Co.! Last week in Massey Hall, Toronto, a great crowd listened to the Five Piano Ensemble composed of five of Canada's leading pianists—Ernest Seitz, Reginald Stewart, Alberto Guerrero, Viggo Kihl and Mme. Norah Drewett de Kresz. Five Heintzman Grand Pianos playing on the stage . . . at one time . . . in perfect harmony . . . like a great symphony orchestra. Exceptionally brilliant artistry . . . on instruments that have no peer in the entire musical world.

A visit to our store will prove that the glorious tone of instruments used by the Five Piano Ensemble is truly representative of all Heintzman pianos.

TIGERS TAKE BIG FOUR TITLE FROM OTTAWA

Bengals Take Fifth Straight Victory to Defeat Senators 15 to 4.

STRENUOUS GAME

Smash Long Holes in Opponent's Line for Long Gains.

HAMILTON, Nov. 8.—(Canadian Press).—After an absence of two years the Big Four championship returned to Hamilton on Saturday afternoon when the Tigers defeated Ottawa 15 to 4 to annex the title. The game, the fifth straight that Tigers have won in their dash to the top of the heap was a battle from wire to wire and the yellow and black clad warriors defeated Ottawa at everything the Senators attempted.

The well-coached Rodden machine tore large holes in the Ottawa line for long gains and but for numerous penalties handed out for alleged infringements of the rules the new champions would have had a much larger margin than even points to boast of. And every Tiger played an important part in the win that cinched the title. But outstanding both on the attack and defense was Glenn Small, Tigers sterling flying wing. Small never looked better in his three years as a Tiger. He hit the Ottawa line with telling effect all afternoon covering the length of the field twice over in his plunges. In the second period he ran eighty yards on two downs and placed Tigers in a position to score their only try of the game when he was tackled only three yards out from the Ottawa goal posts. Jackie Baker supplied the necessary punch when he bowled three Ottawa players out of his path in his plunge for a try.

Scores Ten Points.

Again Frank "Pep" Leadley appeared very much in the picture by scoring ten of the fifteen points the Bengals amassed. The king of all field goal kickers kicked four on Saturday out of his six tries but one was disallowed when a Tiger lineman was found to be ahead of play. His first was a mammoth hoist, coming from the forty yard line and the ball sailed straight and true between the Ottawa goal posts. That kick put new life into the Bengals for aside from short spells in the third and final period they outclassed the champions at football and held their own at handing out punches, something the Ottawa wings resorted to when they saw the championship slipping from their grasp. The Tiger line was exceptionally strong against the Senators. The plunging of Timmis and Baker being much too good for the Ottawa line. Time and again the husky middle wings ripped through the Ottawa line for gains of ten and fifteen yards and they were going as strong on end as they were at the finish.

It was the Ottawa backfield that saved the Senators from a worse lacing than they received. Tubman was a star at returning punts with Tigers hanging all over him while Kehoe and McInenly ran back punt after punt for big gains before being brought to earth. Kehoe was the outstanding player on the Ottawa team and despite a rough voyage never gave up trying. Tubman booted well but he did not have the success of Kehoe in running back the punts of Leadley.

Tigers started with the wind against them and for the first ten minutes they held their own against the Senators, thanks to the line plunging ability of Small, Baker and Timmis and the smart hoofing of Leadley but just before the period ended a fumble by Walker and a Tiger off side put Ottawa in a scoring position and Tubman booted over to Walker who was smothered by Ottawa tacklers.

Second Period.

The second period opened with Tigers on their own twenty-five yard line and being hard pressed but Small and Leadley relieved the pressure by rounding an Ottawa end for thirty yards. Baker and Timmis plowed through for ten more and then McKelvey carried the ball to midfield and on Ottawa's forty yard line. From there Leadley kicked a field goal to put Tigers in front. From the kick-off Tigers carried play to the Senators but a fumbled ball put Ottawa in possesion on Tigers twenty yard line and McInenly tried a field goal which went amiss but Walker was forced to rouge. Then Tigers started after the champions in real earnest and never let up for the remainder of the afternoon. From the scrimmage Walker rounded an Ottawa end for forty yards. A plunge by Baker got ten more and then Glen Small found a hole in the center of the Ottawa line and was not grassed until he reached Ottawa's three yard line. From there Baker plowed over for a try and Tigers were leading 8 to 2 when the half time whistle sounded.

In the third quarter the Senators were seldom in the picure as it was Tiger penalties that paved the way for their two single points while Frank "Pep" Leadley added six for the Tigers with two of the nicest field goals seen at the historic H.A.A. field in some time. His first was from twenty-five yards out, while his second was from forty yards back and both were made in the face of a strong wind.

Scored Only Point.

In the final quarter Tigers scored the only point a kick to the deadline by Leadley and then they laid back to protect their lead. Hadley and Connell tried hard to halt Tigers via the punching route but this failed miserably as the Bengals fought back and more than held their own in the numerous exchanges.

The teams:

Tigers—Flying wing, Small; backs, Leadley, Wright and Walker; snap, Cox; quarter, McKelvey; insides, Benman and French; middles, Timmis and Baker; outsides, Bowman and Veale; spares, Springstead, Robinson, Bates, Molan, Boden, Charters, McCrea, Wager and Shuttleworth.

Ottawa—Flying wing, Emerson; backs, Tubman, Kehoe and Connell; snap, Bruce; quarter, Lynch; insides, Beckell and Humphreys; middles, Kealey and Smith; outsides, Young and Herbert; spares, Currie, Ketchum, Mulroney, Pritchard, Radley, Hutchingame, McInenly and Wright.

Referee—Reg. DeGruchy; umpire, Barton.

M'GILL SUFFER FIRST DEFEAT

Varsity Get First Win of Season in an 8 to 1 Victory.

TIE FOR LEAD

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 8.—(Canadian Press).—University of Toronto defeated McGill 8 to 1 here Saturday in the final local scheduled intercollegiate senior football match. It was the first win of the season for the Toronto squad and also the first defeat in a scheduled fixture for the McGill team.

The result left McGill and Queen's, of Kingston, tied for first place with two wins and one loss apiece, thus leaving the deciding of the championship to next Saturday's game at Kingston between Queen's and McGill, the final game on the 1927 Intercollegiate Senior schedule.

Saturday's contest was witnessed by 14,000 people in perfect football weather. The playing field, however, was somewhat sodden following two days of steady rain and this tended to slow up the play to a certain extent.

The Varsity team which had lost three straight games, one to McGill at Toronto and two to Queen's, one each at Kingston and Toronto, played steady football and with a few minor exceptions played faultless football, giving their best display of the year, thus winding up rather a dull season with a brilliant finish.

McGill's red team could never get going and seldom threatened beyond centre field. Their flashy backfield composed of Captain Little, Tremain and St. Germain found the going hard and could not get their fast lateral passing plays working, while McGill line, although showing decided improvement in the second half, was clearly outplayed by the blue front rank in the first two quarters.

Won in First.

The game was won by the visiting Toronto squad in the first quarter, when the Varsity front rank ripped the centre of the McGill line to pieces on four consecutive plays for a march of 105 yards for a touchdown. Varsity was in possession on the Blue's five-yard line and Harrison plunged for ten to take play temporarily out of danger. On the next play Dundas broke through centre and ran forty yards to centrefield. Captain Trimble then squirmed through centre on a similar play and dashed to the McGill five-yard line. It was a sudden change in the fortune of play and before McGill could settle down, Trimble had again crashed through centre for a touchdown.

Before the end of the session, Toronto obtained a single point when an onside kick rolled out of touch behind the McGill line. In the second period McGill looked somewhat better and had some success in solving Varsity's trick and criss cross plays through centre. The Red team's offensive, however, still lacked punch. Varsity resorted to a kicking game and Sinclair was outbooting Tremain and St. Germain who shared the punting for McGill. Twice Jack Little made heroic runs from behind his goal line but finally Sinclair booted one too far and his wings gave the McGill captain no chance whatever to get out, making it 7 to 0 for Varsity at half time.

Play Safe Football.

The second half saw Toronto playing safe football, two bucks and a kicking featuring their play. They were strong defensively and the majority of McGill's line and open field attempts were nullified by the visiting students' steady game.

McGill obtained their lone point in the third quarter when Tremain booted a high one to Sinclair behind the Varsity line. Near the end of the final quarter, Varsity faced a beaten McGill team and once more went on the offensive and managed to add another single point to their total making the final score 8 to 1.

While the entire Varsity team played a steady game and while McGill's squad put up a game fight, the two opposing captains, Jack Little for McGill, and Frank Trimble of Toronto, played outstanding games. Little led the team's offensive and any considerable gains made by McGill were either completed or engineered by Little. Trimble featured with his long dash and resultant touchdown.

NEVER TOO OLD.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—It's never too late to mend, and a hen is never too old to hatch. That's the inference drawn from the fact that a 20-year-old hen at Heppershall Beds recently hatched a brood of 14 chicks. It has been held by most authorities that the hen is too old to hatch at the age of three years.

Johnny Miles Wins Halifax Marathon

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Johnny Miles of Sydney Mines, N.S., racing under the colors of the Hamilton Olympic Club, won the full distance marathon race run here yesterday from a field of forty-three starters. Miles was trailed by Clarence Demar, United States champion, and Harold Webster, of the Hamilton Olympic Club, who ran second to Bricker in the recent Ontario marathon. Miles is the holder of the world's marathon record.

Miles was unofficially credited having covered the course in two hours and forty minutes. William Taylor, a dark horse from Sydney Mines was second.

UPHOLD ACTION OF COMMISSION

Jockey Club Stand by Ruling Revoking License of Earle Sande.

ALLEGED FOUL RIDING

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 8 (Canadian Press).—The Baltimore News today quotes Jos. E. Widener, of Philadelphia, president of the Jockey Club, as declaring that body would uphold the action of the Maryland Racing Commission in revoking the license of Earl Sande, America's foremost jockey, for alleged foul riding at Pimlico last Friday. He also was quoted as criticizing the rule as being "too harsh."

"It seems a shame", the newspaper reports Mr. Widener as saying to its representative over the telephone from Philadelphia "that a boy with the reputation of Sande, should be railroaded. It is criminal."

Sande was accused of bumping Reigh Count, the favorite in the $54,000 Pimlico futurity. He was suspended by the stewards for the remainder of the meeting and after reviewing the complaint of the track officials the racing commission revoked Sande's license.

W. M. Jeffords is the owner of Bateau, which Sande was riding when he committed the alleged foul.

According to the News, Mr. Widener said "The New York Jockey Club upholds the decision of every recognized racing body in the country. In this case no exception will be made."

Sande was said to have gone to New York yesterday in hope of enlisting the aid of the Jockey Club members to obtain reinstatement, the racing commission having consented to grant him a hearing.

SELWYN WIN FIRST GAME

Defeat Canada Cement Team 19-7 in Lakefield Softball Series.

CUBS TAKE SECOND

LAKEFIELD, November 8. — The first game on Friday evening was between the Canada Cement team and Selwyn. Both teams were short of several of their trusty men, but a good game followed, though a rather one-sided one from the spectators' standpoint. A brand new ball of exceeding hardness probably put the teams off their form. Branch's home run for Selwyn in the seventh innings was the high spot of the game.

The umpires were: Russell Payne at the plate, and Wallace Shearer at the bases.

The following is the line-up:

Selwyn — Elliott, p; Northey, c; Branch, 1b; Darling, 2b; McConkey, 3b; C. McIlmoyl and Dobson, ss; W. McIlmoyle and Dean in the field.

Canada Cement — Douglas, p; Briant, c; Green, 1b; Sabatino, 3b; Charlton, 3b; Blewett and Payne, ss; Junkin and Wingett in the field.

Score by innings:

Selwyn	4301135—19
Canada Cement	1220002— 7

The second game was exceedingly snappy for the first four innings, and it was anybody's win, but in the fifth inning the Cubs pulled ahead and retained their lead. The Muskies' team was short several players who had forsaken the diamond for the hunt. W. Elliott and G. Porter were the umpires.

The Cubs' line-up was as follows: Madill, p; R. Payne, c; Stabler, 1b; FitzGerald, 2b; Moore, 3b; T. Payne and Webster, ss; Morin and Junkin in the field; Spence, sub.

Muskies—W. Blewett, p; Nicholls, c; Dobson, 1b; Armstrong, 2b; Gibson, 3b; Trude and Hall, ss; Windover and Wilson in the field.

Score by innings:

Cubs	0400305—12
Muskies	3000011— 5

WINS CROWN FOR FOURTH STRAIGHT YEAR

Turnesa Cracked in Last Six Holes to Lose Match.

PLAYED RAGGED GAME

Has Occupied Professional Golfers' Association Throne Since 1924.

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Walter Hagen, veteran of many classic struggles of the links, came from behind Saturday to shake off the challenge of youth and successfully defended his title of champion in the professional golfers' association.

Joe Turnesa, handsome 25-year-old pro from Elmsford, N.Y., played a versatile and led the old master most of the way, but cracked for a moment in the last six holes and lost the match, one down on the thirty-sixth green.

In winning the title, Hagen added the professional crown to his winter wardrobe of fancy headgear for the fourth consecutive year and for the fifth time in his career. Ten P.G.A. tournaments have been held and Hagen has won half of them, in addition to being runner up in 1916. He first won the coveted championship in 1921, after which Gene Sarazen, of New York, ruled for two years, but Hagen came back in 1924 and occupied the throne since that time.

The champion's game was frequently ragged Saturday but his face betrayed no emotion as hole after hole wore away with Turnsea still in the lead and playing consistently.

Crucial Break.

The crucial break finally came at the thirty-first green. Hagen had won the twenty-ninth to square the match when Turnsea's ball hung on the edge of the cup and forced him to take a four. Turnsea's irons, which had been steady most of the day, wavered for a moment at the thirty-first. His second missed the green and third was 25 feet over the pin. Hagen got down an easy four, but Turnesa took a six and was one down for the first time since the sixth hole.

The two then halved every remaining hole. Turnesa did not break under the strain but Hagen gave him no opportunity to recoup. A putt that would have halved the match on the final green, hung on the lip when Turnesa failed to give it the extra fraction of an ounce it needed to sink.

Biggest Lead.

Turnesa apparently was in for a drubbing as the match got under way. He dropped an approach in a trap at the first green and overshot the third to go two down. That was the biggest lead Hagen ever obtained, however, as Turnesa took the sixth, seventh and eighth to go one up. Hagen turned into the last nine still one down. Each had a medal score of 148 for 36 holes.

Turnesa took his defeat graciously, wringing Hagen's hand over the 36 cup, where his putt for a win was still hanging on the lip. The two then walked to the locker room shoulder to shoulder where Hagen was handed a check for his capital prize of $1,000 and Turnesa a check for the runner-up position which amounted to $600.

Presented a loving cup by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, Hagen complimented Turnesa saying:

"He showed that he is a player of rare metal and I hope that if I ever do have to relinquish my title, Turnesa will be the man that receives my congratulations."

Al Espiness, of Chicago and John Golden, of Paterson, N.J., each received $300 for being semi-finalists and Marte Dutra, Tacoma, Wash., Tom Armour, Washington, Gene Sarazen, New York, and Francis Gallet, Wauwatesa, Washington, were given checks for $200 each for playing in the quarter before the quarter-finals.

Brilliant Drop Kick Wins Mactier Match

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 8.—(Canadian Press).—A brilliant drop kick, which sailed from the toe of Babbitt, half back, through the opposing goal posts, won yesterday's English rugby match by a score of 4 points to 3 for the University of New Brunswick in their invasion of Montreal in defence of the MacTier Cup, the emblem of English rugby supremacy of the Dominion. Canadian Vickers, who, through heading the local league, earned the right to challenge the Maritimes champions, had secured a three point lead through an unconverted try by Taylor just before the first half ended. Babbit's kick came half way through the second half.

WESTWOOD NEWS.

WESTWOOD, Nov. 5. — Several from the district have already gone deer hunting. The Humphries hunting party are located this year ten miles north of Apsley.

Hallowe'en was celebrated in Westwood in usual fashion. A large number of both the juvenile class as well as adults appeared in costume, which were for the most part comic and well disguised. The sports indulged in by those in costume were not of a distinctive nature and were much enjoyed by the citizens as well as those taking part.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nevins spent Sunday with friends at Norwood.

Mrs. Russel Warner of Hastings is visiting friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. Tudhope, Miss Evelyn Tudhope and Mr. Harry Tudhope of Peterborough were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Sargent on Sunday.

Mrs. William Wilson and little daughter, Jessie, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. L. Humphries.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manley spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Warner.

The W.M.S. of the United church will hold their annual thankoffering service on Sunday evening, November 6th. The pastor, Rev. S. H. Moyer, will be in charge of the service.

EVERTON LEADS FIRST DIVISION

Ran Away With Match Against Leicester City on Saturday.

ENGLISH SOCCER

LONDON, England, November 7 (Canadian Press Cable). — The splendid performance of Everton, who have lifted themselves to the top of the English League (First Division) standing, attracted most attention among the soccer football matches in England on Saturday. Critics have begun to talk about them as possible champions. In their game against Leicester City they ran away with the match ,and were obvious winners before the interval. Weldon scored three times and Dean and Critchley once each before half-time. Dean netted a couple of times afterwards. Chandler got a lucky goal for Leicaster.

Forty thousand turned out for the match between Tottenham Hotspurs and West Ham United at the White Hart Lane grounds of the former. They saw a fairly even struggle, with the 'Spurs always having a little the better of it. The 'Spurs showed vastly improved form. O'Callaghan scored first and Handley headed in the second goal for Tottenham. Barrett replied for West Ham by goaling on a brilliant long shot. All the scores took place within three minutes of each other. Elmes and O'Callaghan scored two more before the interval for the home team and Ruppell for West Ham.

Earle put in one for West Ham nine minutes after the turn round, and Osborne for Tottenham just before full time.

Newcastle United beat out Sunderland at home before 35,000 spectators. McDonald scored in seven minutes for the Novocastrians, while Marshall equalized 4 minutes later. After the interval the game was played at a tremendous pace. Seymour and Moray settled the doom of Sunderland by cleverly executed goals.

The bumper crowd of 60,000 saw Aston Villa and their neighbours Birmingham, battle to a one-all draw. After half-time Crosbie netted for Birmingham, Walmer equalizing for the Villa thirteen minutes from the end.

Played in Downpour.

The one-sided match between Bolton Wanderers and Burnley was played in a downpour of rain. The match was staged at Bolton. The Burnley goalie, Somerville, broke his collarbone and Hill replaced him. Bolton scored almost at will against the weakened Burnley team. Jack achieved the great distinction of getting his second hat trick. He headed in three goals from centres by Butler and Vizard. The other Bolton scores came from Blackmore ,who scored four times. Park scored for Burnley.

Chelsea played like champions against Swansea in the presence of 35,000 people at Stamford Bridge. All the London team's four goals were made in the first half through Cramford, twice, and Thain and Thompson. Swansea made a fine showing in the second half, but could not score on account of the strong defensive tactics adopted by Chelsea.

Win Out by Odd Goal.

The Clapton Orient team led Fulham by two goals to one at half-time, and finally won out by the odd goal. Elliott netted for Fulham first of all. Then the Orient staged a great rally and Denison equalized. Gardner netted the Orient's second counter and added the third after the interval. Harris scored for Fulham from a penalty.

The defeat of Manchester City by Grimsby was a surprise, though there was nothing of the fluke about it. Grimsby forced the play right at the beginning and counted through Marshall and Robson, the latter netting twice. Smelt scored the City's only goal. Bastall increased Grimsby's lead.

Reading won their first match of the season by beating Hull City.

Heaviest scoring of the day was done by Northampton against Walsall, the former playing on their own grounds and securing ten counters.

Charlton Athletic lost their unbeaten record when Crystal Palace turned the tables on them by the surprising number of five goals to nil. The Athletic were up to Saturday the only unbeaten team in the English and Scottish Leagues.

Partick Thistle top the list for heavy scoring among the Scottish First Division teams. They notched seven and blanked Aberdeen. McDougall found the twine on three occasions and the other Thistle scorers were Ness, Grove, Williamson, and Salisbury.

BURT SHOTTON TO TAKE HELM FOR PHILLIES

Replace Stuffy McInnis, While McKechnie Will Succeed Bob O'Farrell.

SLATTERY AT BOSTON

O'Farrell to Stay on Backstopping for Cardinals Next Year.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(Canadian Press).—National League teams will have at least three new pilots for the 1928 pennant race.

This was assured today when two shifts were announced almost simultaneously, one resulting in the selection of Bill McKechnie to succeed Bob O'Farrell as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and the other sending Burst Shotton to replace Stuffy McInnis at the helm of the Phillies. The Boston vacancy, created by the departure of Dave Bancroft to Brooklyn, was filled recently by the appointment of Jack Slattery, Boston College coach.

McKechnie was a Cardinal coach last season and takes over full managerial responsibilities with the hearty approval of the man he succeeds. O'Farrell never has entertained managerial ambitions and succeeds Rogers Hornsby, it is understood, only at the urgent request of president Sam Breadon. The latter now is convinced, however, that "To spoil a great catcher like O'Farrell is an expensive way of obtaining a manager."

Given a $5,000 salary increase, O'Farrell will be free to attend to his backstopping next year.

It is a comeback for McKechnie, who led Pittsburgh to a penanna and world's championship in 1925, but was released at the close of the 1926 season after dissension had cropped out in the Pirate ranks and spoiled their prospects of repeating.

Shotton steps into the major league managerial spotlight from the "AA" minor league ranks, just as Joe McCarthy, Donie Bush and Dan Howley have in recent seasons. He played the "big time" outfield for Washington, the Browns and Cardinals, but managed the Syracuse Internationals last season, converting them from a second division outfit to a pennant contender and finishing in second place.

McInnis, who has been with six major league clubs at one time or another, was released unconditionally by the Phillies.

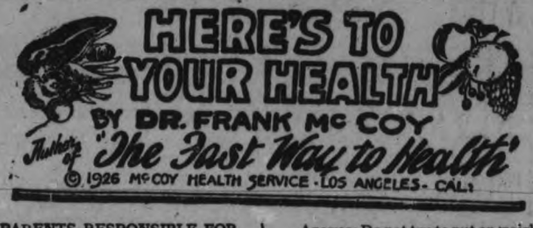
OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern



PARENTS RESPONSIBLE FOR CHILD'S DIET

Many thoughtless parents resign themselves to the belief that there are unavoidable children's diseases. This opinion is far from true. Such acute diseases as measles, chicken pox, scarlet fever, tonsilitis, and whooping cough are produced by unwholesome habits of life. Errors in diet, lack of bathing, and excessive mental strain are really responsible for the enervation and toxemia which make these ailments possible. As the child's habits are entirely under the control of the parents, the fault must be laid to a lack of knowledge on the part of the parents, and nature should not be unjustly blamed.

In the springtime of life all of the natural tendencies are toward perfect health, and sickness does not come on as a thief in the night. Usually, the parents are quite careless in allowing their youngsters to do things which are known to be injurious, such as gorging with candy etc., and one parent tries to outdo the other in bribing the child with sweets in order to gain the child's affection. Mother buys her loved one a lollypop and father tries to go one better with an ice cream cone, while auntie feels that she cannot hold her own unless she buys a sack of jelly beans, then grandma comes along and treats him to a bag of popcorn. And so the game of bribing goes on at the expense of the health of the youngster whom they all love so dearly and for whom they would gladly lay down their lives. When the little one develops a fever, with a coated tongue, an attempt is made to shift the blame on Mother Nature.

Frantic efforts are made to fight off the "demon" disease, and many weary hours are spent at the youngster's bedside while nature is trying to adjust metabolism and bring the child through a crisis.

In the chronic disorders of childhood the same sort of causes gradually lead to the development of enlarged tonsils and adenoids, bronchitis, chronic catarrh, and under-nourishment. The diseases that I have named are the principal ones which young children develop, but are easily cured as soon as faulty habits are corrected. Later on in life the same errors in living bring on the hundred and one diseases of middle age; but with the child, because of the tendency to grow and develop, only these few disorders present themselves. Nature wants the child to live, and good health quickly returns as soon as the child's habits are changed to habits for health.

If the budding youngster is allowed to eat haphazardly, only haphazard health can be expected. A young puppy has more instinctive desire toward right food than a baby, who depends almost entirely upon its elders to direct it in the right way of living. The responsibility lies entirely upon the parents or guardian, and nature must not be accused of being at fault. Food must be selected carefully, and proportioned and combined with chemical exactness, if the ultimate perfection in physical growth is to be hoped for. Even a child born in the worst surroundings from unhealthy parents can generally be made into a strong and beautiful expression of health if the correct training is instituted at an early age. A sincere and serious study on the part of the responsible parents or teachers is all that is necessary.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. W. W. writes: "I want to thank you for the help I have had through your column—your advice is wonderful. Will you please tell me how to get rid of catarrh? Have much phlegm in my throat and severe headaches. Have had my eyes tested and properly fitted with glasses which reduced the headaches a little. Am taking ——— to build up as I only weigh 102 pounds. Am 28 years old."

Answer: Do not try to put on weight while you are getting rid of catarrh. A mucusless diet will probably reduce your weight to some extent, but through following a well balanced diet afterwards and taking vigorous physical culture exercises you will be able to build up a strong body, and perhaps more weight if nature considers it good for you. Temporarily, eliminate all heavy starches, also sugars and fats with the exception of a small amount of butter. Send for a special article on the cure of catarrh.

Question: E. N. asks: "Is milk a good substitute for meat, eggs, and fish? If a person eats greens sometimes, starches, fruits, and milk in abundance, does he still need meat, eggs and fish?"

Answer: The protein of milk is not exactly the same as that found in flesh foods but it provides an excellent substitute for meat with those who are theoretically vegetarians. There is no good scientific reason against the use of a certain amount of flesh food in the diet, but milk or cheese may be substituted, if one is not inclined to catarrhal disorders.

Question: S. M. R. writes: "I seem to be in good health but every once in a while I have a seige of hives. Will you please tell me the cause?"

Answer: Hives are caused from chronic hyperacidity of the stomach which is brought to an acute stage by the use of some especially irritating food, or bad mixtures of even good foods.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, Nov. 5.—Miss May Stevens returned on Sunday after spending a fortnight with her aunt.

Mr. and Mrs Garfield Anderson spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anderson.

Lewis Freeburn spent Sunday at Castleton.

Mrs. T. H. Crowe is visiting friends in Norwood.

William Bell and family are moving to Warsaw.

Many hunters cannot get away until next week. Farm work is a little behind.

The famous German "goose step" has been adopted in the Japanese army as a means of breaking in new recruits, as well as new shoes.

SALT RHEUM All Over Her Hands and Between Fingers

Mrs. Walter Misner, Midville Branch, N.S., writes:—"I had salt rheum all over my hands, and especially between my fingers. It was impossible for me to put them in water, or do my house work.

"After trying medicines and salves, which did me no good, I heard of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS being so wonderful, and after taking two bottles I am entirely relieved of my trouble."

PILE SUFFERERS

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting often fails?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by McDermid & Jury & McDermid Drug Store, Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure quick and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

EMIL JANNINGS IN "THE WAY OF ALL FLESH"

This a picture of the type one seldom sees. It is one of the epic performances of the screen. It is a one-man picture and it has a very sad ending. Those who like their pictures of life served with a story-book finale should refrain from see "The Way of All Flesh," but for the thousands of movie fans who long for something that is real, it is one of those unforgettable performances that hold and thrill an audience.

Unless you are the sort of person who is hard-boiled and realizes at every moment that it is only a picture, anyway, and doesn't really mean anything except a demonstration of superb acting, you had better take a couple of handkerchiefs along. The sophisticated people who would pass a beggar on the street with little compunction will sob over the woes of August Schilling. They can't help it. At yesterday's matinee, noses were blown with astonishing frequency, and a tiny boy in one of the rear seats wept loudly through most of the picture. The tribute of silence that is said to be the most eloquent of all commendations followed the conclusion of the feature.

As has been said, it is a one-man picture. Emil Jannings, who made such a wonderful devil in "Faust," is the central figure at all moments. As August Schilling, cashier of the Germania Bank in Milwaukee, in the early years of the present century, he carries the honors. He is the good man of the opening scenes, the kindly husband father, careful of his little brood of half a dozen boys and girls, looking after their music lessons and watching that they wash behind their ears, and leading them in family prayers before the morning meal. He is the careful, methodical man of business, helping the clerks under him, shepherding the young lad who has pilfered from the stamp box in the bank, putting his cigar away when half-smoked, for a further enjoyment in the evening. He is the mighty bowler of the neighborhood, knocking down rows of tenpins amidst much acclaim from admiring watchers. In a word, he is a good man, with his portly frame, his kindly eyes, and his luxuriant growth of beard.

He goes to Chicago with many valuable bonds, sent as a trusted messenger by his bank to dispose of these securities. And he meets Delilah on the train, the unnamed lady of the picture, the cunning blonde who sees the securities and proceeds to fleece him. Like Samson, when shorn of his beard, he falls an easy prey to her wiles. A little dalliance on the primrose path and he wakes to find himself a disgraced man minus his bonds, his beard, and his self-respect. It is here that the real art of the man begins to exhibit itself. For dramatic acting, he can hardly be surpassed in the annals of the silver sheet.

He goes to the "speakeasy" of the gang who are applauding the lady for her clever work and attacks her there. Stunned by her companions, they place him on the railroad track, to let the coming train finish their work, after thakin his cards of identification away. It is the same card that is clutched in the hand of his assailant, the master blackjacker, when Schilling comes to his senses and throws his captor under the oncoming wheels. And it is this card that leads the authorities later to proclaim Schilling as having died in defence of the trust given him, and ends in a black wreath over his portrait, at home.

To follow out the balance of this absorbing picture, and discover just how far the silent drama can go in its delineation of human suffering and its poignant appeal to the emotions, one must see the picture. It will thrill you, and hold you, and absorb you. It is a wonderful portrayal of life, done by a wonderful actor. To miss it, is to miss seeing something quite out of the ordinary in the way of a moving picture.

And don't forget the handkerchief. —Jeanette.

AT THE REGENT.

"DOWN STRETCH" AT REGENT IS BIG AND RACEY

"Down the Stretch," King Baggot's Universal-Jewel production showing at the Regent, depicts life behind the scenes at one of America's largest race tracks and is one of the most entertaining pictures of the year.

"Down the Stretch" is a story of a jockey, excellently portrayed by Robert Agnew, who in the face of almost impossible odds, wins the hand of the girl he loves, Marian Nixon, and extricates himself from a maze of befuddled circumstances. There are no melodramatic situations, no mortgage to be paid off, but the entire picture is chuck full of real human interest and heart throbs.

King Baggot has gone to great length to get realism in this picture; instead of the usual studio horse race, the entire cast went on location at the Belmont race track and some of the fastest race horses in the country were borrowed from their owners and trainers for the shots. Lady In Black, the mare ridden by Agnew, is one of the best two-year-olds in the country.

In addition to Agnew and the charming Miss Nixon, the cast embraces a number of featured players, including Ward Crane, Otis Harlan, Virginia True Boardman and Ena Gregory.

"Down the Stretch" should continue to play to capacity houses throughout its run.

WRITES WILL IN VERSE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—When Edwin Bayha, Brooklyn undertaker, died recently, he left the following will, disposing of approximately $100,000:

"All my earthly goods I have in store,
To my dear wife, I leave for evermore.
I freely give, no limit do I fix.
This is my will, she the executrix."

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

By Douglas Malloch.

SIGNS OF GETTING OLD

Gittin' old ain't pain or sorrow, and it ain't exactly care,
For the youngster has his troubles, that is just as hard to bear.
Gittin' old ain't findin' wrinkles, for I know that I've had mine
Almost ever since I married, so it ain't a certain sign.
Other folks was always agein' all around me every day,
And yet I was just as handy, even younger in a way;
And a touch of rheumatism ain't the way it can be told;
But there's other signs and portents when a man is gittin' old.

For it's lookin' for your glasses with your glasses on your head,
And it's sayin' somethin' over that you just already said,
And it's longin' for the sunshine and it's wishing for the south,
And it's feelin' in your pocket when your pipe is in your mouth.
It's rememberin' a fellah that you knew at twenty-one,
But forgettin' on a Tuesday what on Monday you have done.
For the past is nearer to you and the present hard to hold,
And there's other indications when a man is gettin' old.

For it's callin' Johnny Jimmy, if his father's name was Jim,
And forgittin' it's his youngster, and the youngster isn't him,
And it's hidin' legal papers in some old familiar spot,
And rememberin' you hid 'em but forgettin' where or what,
And it's likin' babies better, and the women not so much,
And it's gittin' lots of pleasure from a fellah with a crutch,
It's complainin' of the young folks, and yet doin' what you're told—
Yes, there's certain signs and symptoms when a man is gettin' old.

Your Telephone Patrol a *PERSONAL Service

Your service depends on more than just the way your own instrument and line are working.

Any moment you may call for connection with a telephone two, ten, a hundred or a thousand miles away.

Your call may hop underground and emerge somewhereacross town.

It may follow one of the great long distance highways, or head off along some winding pole line into the next county.

But, whichever it may be, your service is constantly patrolled, in trucks and cars and afoot, along two million miles of wire in Ontario and Quebec—to see that storm and sleet, wind and flood are out-manoeuvred—to see that the track is quickly cleared for your call when the elements get the upper hand.

These men are serving you personally

With them it's not just an eight-hour day, but a job in Your interest.

Not just that the traffic shall flow along normally, but that your call shall go through.

"Isn't Daddy coming home, Mamma?"

SUPPOSE your children were calling for you like this. Suppose you had passed on and could not help them any more.

How would they get along without you?

Would your wife have to go out to work? Would she have to live with relations? Would the children be properly educated? Could the little home survive?

There is but one solution to this vital problem and that is life insurance. Not only that, but enough life insurance—and again, the most suitable kind of life insurance.

A policy that will guarantee your family a reasonable monthly income should you be taken away, or that will afford you an excellent investment should you survive, is the wisest provision you can make.

Don't put it off. Let us tell you now, how easily this great provision can be made. Use the coupon below.

TROUBLE SIGNS FOR THOSE PAST 40

Bladder Weakness, Nervousness, Headaches, Frequent, Painful, Scanty Urination, Getting-up-Nights

The embarrassing annoyance and genuine misery of Bladder Weakness, often brings "discomforts of old age" to those who really ought to be in the very prime of life.

Countless thousands, perhaps seven out of ten, of folks near middle life are pitiful victims of Headaches, Nervousness, Pains in back and down through groins, frequent but scanty and painful urination—Getting-up-nights.

While serious, if neglected—it is ordinarily a simple matter to relieve these troubles by the pleasant home use of Dr. Southworth's URATABS, which have been victorious in thousands of cases, after other treatments have failed.

No matter how serious or of how long standing your condition may be, you can quickly prove the value of URATABS without risk of cost—for any good druggist will supply you on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back. If URATABS bring you quick and certain comfort, you will be greatly pleased. If they do not fully satisfy, their use will cost you nothing. Try URATABS today, and see what a difference they make.

FRENCH PEOPLE SMOKING LESS

Consumption Away Down in 1926—Up a Little This Year.

STILL BELOW AVERAGE.

The French people, proverbially great smokers, are smoking less than they did two years ago. Although to the ordinary observer the fact is not noticeable, official statistics transmitted to the Bankers Trust Company of New York by its French Information Service, show that the consumption of tobacco decreased considerably in 1926 as compared with the year before and, even though this year shows an advance, the figures are still well below the 1925 level.

No anti-cigarette or anti-tobacco crusade is responsible for this comparative moderation. It is due simply to the fact that prices have risen and the individual tax on tobacco has been raised several times. The ordinary French smoking tobacco for pipe or rolling, known under the general term of "Scaferlatis," for example, is, under the law of April 4, 1926, five times dearer than it was before the war. In the first seven months of 1925 the French smoked twenty and one-half million kilogrammes (slightly over 45 million pounds) of this tobacco; in 1926 for the corresponding period about 36¾ million pounds and this year about 40½ million pounds. French cigarettes and cigars also show a diminution.

Imported cigarettes and cigars have increased in price correspondingly and in some grades the price is prohibitive to the general public. This applies more particularly to cigars but cigarette sales have suffered as well although it seems to be apparent that American cigarettes French taste.

The falling off in sales has naturally had its effect on the revenues derived from tobacco which is a government monopoly. These revenues for the past year have been devoted to the Autonomous Sinking Fund for the reduction of the floating debt. Because of the higher prices, the returns have increased yearly despite the falling off in public consumption. For the first seven months of 1925, 1926 and 1927 the returns in round figures have been 1,228,000,000 francs, 1,503,000,000 francs and 2,089,000,000 francs. No figures are available for a comparison of the net profits for these three years.

HAND GUIDES CLOCK.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—When the clock of the famous St. Paul's Cathedral broke down recently, the hands were moved around by a man's finger in order that thousands of city clerks would not arrive late to work. Repairs took most of the day, and all that time a clockmaker with a watch before his eyes gradually moved the minute hand, second by second, until the mechanism was fixed.

P.C.I. LOSES HOLIDAY GAME

Heavier Oshawa Boys Beat the Local Collegiate Team 12-0.

EXHIBITION MATCH.

Peterborough Collegiate outweighed many pounds and facing a team of much more experience that had the benefit of a goodly list of games this season, did remarkably well in holding the Oshawa Collegiate to a 12-0 score in the exhibition game here yesterday.

Despite their advantage in weight, Oshawa succeeded only once in carrying the ball over the Peterborough line, their second try being the result of a blocked kick. On the other hand the Peterborough Collegians twice got over for touchdowns. After long runs only to have the play called back, and in both cases the local team might easily have been given the benefit of a different ruling.

Oshawa scored a touchdown in the first period through a series of nice runs, with Hubbell the principal ball carrier. It was not converted.

Early in the second period, with Peterborough in possession on their fifteen yard line, Oshawa broke through and blocked Hyatt's kick, a try resulting. Soon after Hubbell in attempting a field goal, kicked to the dead line for a point. A brilliant run by Hyatt around Oshawa's right end enabled Collegiate to carry the play to centre and a fumble by Hubbell gave them possession at Oshawa quarter as the half-time whistle came.

Half-time score—Oshawa 11, P. C. I. 0.

The plucky Peterborough youngsters made a great stand in the second half and held Oshawa without a score until the final second of play when a rouge was registered by the visitors. Shortly before the P.C.I. showed their fighting qualities by holding Oshawa on the Peterborough goal line and taking the ball on downs.

Hyatt, Gemmel, Cuthbertson, and Hewitt were outstanding for Peterborough, while Hubbell's long runs and good kicking made him the Oshawa star.

P.C.I., who will meet University of Toronto School here on Saturday, lined up as follows:

Snap—Preston.
Insides—Gimblett and Dunkerley.
Middles—Cowan and Heideman.
Outsides—Morrison and Westbrook.
Quarter—Gemmel.
Flying wings—Hewitt and Merritt.
Halves—Cuthbertson and Hyatt.
Subs—McGee, Doxee, Thompson, Young, Johnston, and Lord.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

OBITUARY.

STANLEY EPHGRAVE.

Word was received this morning by his brothers in this city of the death of Stanley Ephgrave in England on Oct. 27. He is survived by his wife, one sister, Edith, and two brothers, Jack and Donald in London, England, and three brothers in this city, Thomas, Harold and Sidney.

W. G. BOTSFORD.

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—A well known resident of the Beach district has been removed by the death of W. G. Botsford, 24 Beech avenue, who passed away last Monday. The funeral took place on Wednesday, Dr. T. T. Shields having conducted the service. Mr. Botsford, who was 52 years of age, was at one time in business for himself, but latterly had been a manufacturer's agent. His widow is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley of Peterborough. Deceased was well known in Ottawa, Montreal and Kingston. Surviving are his widow, three sons, Wilmott, Harold and Robert; four brothers and one sister.

WELLINGTON ASLING.

Following the sudden attack of paralysis last Thursday, from which he never regained consciousness Wellington Asling, shoe repair merchant, at 579 George street, died at the Nicholls Hospital on Saturday. Mr. Asling was born in Greenbank, Ont. He was a Baptist in religion. Surviving him are his wife and two daughters, Gladys, at home Mrs. King of Waubaushene, two sons, Morgan and Lloyd of this city. One brother, Widiner, of Toronto also four sisters, are left to mourn his sudden demise.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Mills, at the family residence this afternoon, with interment in the Little Lake cemetery.

JOHN WILLIAM CHATTEN.

After an illness of several months duration John William Chatten passed away on Sunday. Born in London, England, he emigrated to Canada and has lived in Peterborough for the last eight years. Four daughters, Mrs. Thomas Parker, Penelon Falls, Mrs. Ethel York, 275 Lake street, Miss Eva Chatten Midland, and Mrs. H. Drury, 507 Chamberlain street, three sons John of Toronto, Sidney of Barrie and Russell of Peterboro, and one brother, Fred of Detroit, survive him.

Rev. J. H. Dudgeon conducted the funeral at the residence of Mrs. H. Drury 508 Chamberlain street, this afternoon. Interment was made in the Little Lake cemetery.

Particularly sad are the circumstances surrounding the death of Mr Chatten, as it will be remembered that his wife predeceased him on September 22nd of this year, the victim of a train accident on Lake street. The shock of this lamentable accident is believed to have materially hastened his end.

WILLIAM QUINN.

William Quinn a resident of this city for over thirty years, was called to his last resting place on Sunday, after a lengthy illness. For some years past he was a government employee on the canal department. He was born in Smith township and was a respected member of the Ancient Order of Foresters. Surviving him are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Sands Victoria B. C. and Mrs. E. V. Warne of this city, three sons, Ralph in Vancouver; T. W. Quinn of Havelock and Harold, of Port Maitland, Ont.; three brothers John of Peterborough George of Vancouver, and Archie of Lakefield; and two sisters, Mrs. Kirlen of Vancouver and Miss Laura of Peterborough.

The funeral will be on Wednesday, from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. E. V. Warne, 313 Elias avenue, at two o'clock. Rev. Mr. Mills will officiate. The interment will be made at the Little Lake cemetery.

MISS MARY A. WATT.

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon, from Comstock's Funeral Parlors to the Little Lake cemetery, of the late Miss Mary A. Watt, of Ottawa, formerly of Peterborough.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave officated at the last ceremonies for the deceased lady, who will be sadly missed, as she was greatly beloved by all who knew her. A great many of her friends from this city, where she lived for many years prior to her removal to the capital city, were present at the obsequies.

Accompanying the remains were her brother, Mr. John Watt, of Ottawa, and a nephew, Mr. R. P. Watt, of Renfrew. Pallbearers were Messrs. W. N. Hales, John Brownlee, Wm. Lytle, B. Eakins, W. H. Donnelly and T. H. Gillespie.

DON'T GROW OLD BEFORE YOUR TIME!

Why Let Lack of Confidence, Nerve Force and Vitality Make You a Weakling?

If you feel tired, despondent, mentaly or physically depressed, and lack the ambition, energy and vigor to do the things you would like to do—go now to your druggist and get a box of Double Strength Erbac Tablets and see what a difference a few days' use will make.

In absolute secrecy and without the slightest risk of loss, you can prove the amazing nerve and vitality building value of Erbac in less than a week—and you must be fully satisfied with results or the test will not cost you a penny. So, don't give up to sickness, "old age", weakness or nervousness, life is yours to use and enjoy—and with abundant Nerve Force and Vitality, you may laugh at Ill Health and approaching age! Ask Bond's Pharmacy or any good druggist.

BAND CONCERT WELL ATTENDED

Rangers Band and Assisting Musicians Give Good Programme.

The Peterborough Rangers' Band, conducted by Bandmaster Lieut. W. H. Peryer, gave an excellent concert in the Capitol Theatre last Sunday night.

All the numbers were well rendered some of them of a descriptive character catching on at once with the very large audience, which will encourage the members of the Band to continue their valuable work, for a city without a band is poor indeed. Equally pleasing to the audience were the vocal numbers, excellently rendered by Miss Isabella Black, soprano; Mr. Edward Barclay, baritone, and Mr. Harold Lee, tenor. Mr. R. J. Devey presided at the piano with his usual skill.

35 CATTLE KILLED IN TRAIN ACCIDENT

Broken Wheel On Freight Train Causes Wreck Near Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, November 8.—Canadian Press. — Thirty five head of cattle were destroyed, a number of other stock maimed, and fourteen cars went into the ditch on the Canadian National Railway about three miles west of Marysville on Sunday. The accident was caused by a broken wheel on a freight car. The track was tied up for a day, but both lines are clear now.

Train No. 473 was proceeding west west from Brockville. When near Marysville the wheel broke on a car about the middle of the train in which were cattle. The other cars, to the number of fourteen, piled in on top, causing a bad jam. No one was injured. The train was in charge of Conductor Reynolds.

IN MEMORIAM.

MILLAR.— In loving memory of a dear husband and father, James Millar, who departed this life November 8, 1926:

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind,
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left bhind.
He is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawns another year,
In our lonelly hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.

WAVE BAND FOR USE OF PLANES IS GIVEN CANADA

Canada's Need For Communication With Aerial Service is Recognized.

AT RADIO CONFERENCE.

Commercial Broadcasters Must Stay Off Exclusive Band Allotted.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—Canada's right to exclusive wave bands for the direction of aircraft in the Dominion has been recognized by the International Radio Conference, and a wide band sufficient to take care of the extensive development of commercial flying in Canada has been set aside for the sole use of Canada.

When the question of communication between aircraft and ground stations was under discussion in committee, Canadian delegates brought up the necessity for recognition of the needs of aircraft in the Dominion. It was pointed out that in the practical application of aircraft to forest protection, survey work, and similar useful purposes, Canada led the world. The necessity for a clear band through which aircraft could communicate regularly with ground stations was recognized, as it had been previously recognized in Europe.

Hereafter commercial broadcasters the world over will have to keep off the exclusive band allotted to Canadian aircraft.

MILLION MEN ARE FASCISTS

Many Women Also Enrolled — 32,000 Enrolled During Year.

NO NEW MEMBERS.

ROME, November 9 (United Press).—The total membership of the Fascist party is 1,262,000, including 234,000 women, General Secretary Turati reported to the Grand Council today.

Thirty-two thousand members, of whom nearly 2,000 were miner leaders, were expelled during the Fascist year, which ended November 5th, for moral unfitness.

New enrolments into the party will be strictly forbidden, according to a report approved by the Grand Council, while Fascists in commanding and responsible places must be entrusted members whose blind loyalty in the past and present is unquestionable.

YE OLDE TYME QUARTET HERE ON THURSDAY

Treat in Store For Music Lovers and All Who Love Clean Entertainment.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

Famous Canadian Combination of Artists.

It is not every week that Peterborough is offered so rare a treat as is being presented on Thursday night in St. Paul's church, when the famous Toronto artists, known as Ye Olde Tyme Village Quartette will give one of their inimitable recitals in costumes reminiscent of the mid-Victorian era.

The press notices, culled from a great many papers, eulogise them in terms of highest praise. The Buffalo News says: "The most entertaining program heard for many a day."

The London Free Press says: "They presented an olde tyme program that has never been equalled in Western Ontario."

They have appeared at the Canadian National Exhibition on six successive years. This past year they appeared 12 nights before the grand stand, and the exhibition authorities said in connection with what they did on Music Day: "This contribution to the musical work of the day was really beyond praise."

Their program has a mingled fragrance of Old English, Scotch and South American airs, with a whiff of Erin. And they give an air of restful informality to their entertainment by the quaint and delightful introduction of the members of the party.

BOY SUCCUMBS TO DIPHTHERIA

Five Other Cases in the City Are of Mild Type, Says M.O.H.

ONLY CONTAGIOUS DISEASE.

Diphtheria claimed one victim in the city this morning, when Jack Hollingsworth, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hollingsworth, 205 King street, died in the Isolation Hospital. The little boy took sick on Saturday and was admitted to the hospital on Monday.

At present there are five other acses in the city, but Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., reports them as not being serious. The medical authorities are making every effort to find the cause of this outbreak, but as yet they have not been able to find where it originated.

'Diphtheria is the only contagious disease in the city at present," Dr. Young told The Examiner, and special efforts are being made to find where the infection came from."

NEW MAYOR INAUGURATED

Sir Charles Batho Takes Office as Lord Mayor of London.

GLITTERING PARADE.

LONDON, England, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—Cinderella's gold coach came to London today as real as anything. And in the fairy prince's seat was the new Lord Mayor, Sir Charles Batho, all smiles and bows. It was his inauguration as London's chief executive.

Six spirited bays trundled the stately carriage through crowded streets where the happy cheers of multitudes of children drowned the mellow rumbled of its carved and glittering wheels.

The new Lord Mayor wore his scarlet robes with broad edgings of black and gold and the ancient jeweled chain of office which he is to wear for a year. In attendance were his chaplain and his bearers of the mace and sword in gorgeous velvet costumes.

The Lord Mayor's show in London is what Circus Day is in Canada. Nearly everyone is Peter Pan for the day at least. One of the amusement features this year was a float showing Dick Whittington, London's fifteenth century Mayor, and his famous cat.

DETROIT APPROVES TUNNEL PROPOSAL

Voters Also Endorse Issue of Bonds For Public Airport.

DETROIT, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—Among five amendments to the city charter that were adopted at yesterday's election was one approving the construction by a private concern of a proposed vehicular tunnel from Detroit to Windsor, Ont. A proposal that the county issue two million dollars in bonds for the site and construction of a publicy owned airport also was approved.

Due to the general rush to get out the Mayoralty returns, the tabulators neglected to figure the votes on a number of the amendments cast yesterday, and decisions probably will not be known until official figures are given out.

WOMEN HEAR DISCUSSION OF DISARMAMENT

Prof. Mackenzie, of Toronto University, Addresses Women's Canadian Club.

CANADIAN VIEWPOINT.

Heavy Subject Taken Up in Manner That Proves Interesting and Instructive.

The meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, held in the auditorium of the Public Library last evening, was featured by a very interesting address on "Disarmament From a Canadian Standpoint," delivered by N. Mackenzie, B.A., L.L.B., of Dalhousie University, L.L.M. of Harvard University, and Associate Professor of International and Constitutional Law at Toronto University. Although the subject, at first glance, appears to be a heavy one, it was treated by Mr Mackenzie in a manner that held the attention of his feminine audience from the first to the last words of a very enlightening and thoughtful discourse.

Mr. Mackenzie, who spoke to the Women's Canadian Club last season on Canada's position at the League of Nations, was for four years representative of the Dominion on the Labour Council at Geneva, and has a wide knowledge of matters connected with the League.

Miss S. A. Tompkins, president of the Women's Canadian Club, who occupied the chair last evening, opened the meeting with a brief resume of the conference of Canadian Clubs held recenty in Ottawa, later introducing the speaker on his arrival, and also tendering him a hearty vote of thanks at the conclusion of his address, which was seconded by a standing vote from the members. The brief reference to the Canadian Club Conference disclosed the fact that there are now seventy-nine affiliated clubs in Canada, with a membership of 30,000 men and women, almost equally divided.

"Some Canadian aspects of the question of Disarmament," was the way in which Mr Mackenzie treated his subject, introducing it by an allusion to the practical disarmament which now exists in the Dominion, where the regular force consists of about 5,600 soldiers and sailors. Something in the neighborhood of $12,700,000 is spent in the training for war.

"Unless we in Canada can help to maintain the peace of the world by preventing ,as far as lies in our power, either Great Britain or the United States from becoming involved in a war of any importance, we will have to pay as we paid before, when 60,000 of our young men gave their lives in the last great struggle, with an outlay of near two billions of dollars and the sum of one hundred and sixty millions of dollars still deducted annually from our budget in payment of the war and its debts. Your Canadian clubs are trying to create and maintain a real Canadianism, not narrow or anti-British, but the sort that is conscious of its own worth and the contribution it may make to the British Empire to which it belongs.

Several Groups.

"There are several groups in Canada. There are the loyalists who declare that when England is at war, we are at war. And there is another group that, following out the tradition of Britain from the days of Magna Charta, when the right of self-expression was demanded as common justice by the common citizens, demand that, before we become involved in war, we shall have our say as to whether we shall have a part in it or not. Here, too, comes the question of the French-Canadian who claims that he is, par excellence, a Canadian, who thinks of Canada first, last and all the time. These people constitute nearly three millions of our nine millions of population, and we have to consider them in matters dealing with overseas commitments. In case of another war, we would have to make the situation of more vital importance to them than the last one appeared to them to be.

"And then there is the last group of foreign immigrants who come here to escape from the wars in which their ancestors have been embroiled for generations past and who, in the event of further European conflicts, would necessarily be engaged in warfare against their own relatives. These are some of the practical difficulties that confront Canada.

"Armaments are, as you know, and as every intelligent, thinking person knows, one of the main contributions and causes of war. The fact that you possess an army and navy is almost inevitable in bringing about a war, just as it is inevitable that a man carrying a loaded revolver will shoot in a tight corner, or that dirt and filth will lead to disease in time."

Criticism of Berlin's Financial Policies Become Subject of Protracted Oral Debates

BERLIN, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—As a result of the exchange of notes between S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparations, and Dr. Koehler, Minister of Finance, Mr. Gilbert's criticism of the German government's financial policies will become the subject of protracted oral discussion between the two, it was learned yesterday. The discussions will be in accordance with a wish expressed by Dr. Koehler in the letter that acompacnied his voluminous reply to Mr. Gilbert's note. Mr. Gilbert also has announced his readiness to talk over some of the controversal points which were accentuated in his memorandum.

While the press agitation over Mr. Gilbert's plain spoken warning that the entire reparations programme was endangered by the expenses of the government has considerably subsided, official circles appear less ready to conceal their pique over the incident, chiefly because of the foreign reverberations.

"The Agent General fails to take into account the very complicated political economic and cultural structure of the German Reisch in his analysis of the relations between the central and federated governments," declared a spokesman for the Foreign Office. These relations, he added, are of such long tradition standing and they have become so intricate that the central government, no matter how much it desires to fortify and centralize its authority over the component States, is unable to ride rough-shod over their inherited prerogatives and financial functions, and its budgetary dispositions must therefore adjust themselves to this federal relationship.

TREATY AIMED AGAINST LEAGUE SAYS BELGRADE CORRESPONDENT

France and Jugo-Slavia Agree To Resist League Decision.

IF SECURITY IN DANGER.

Friendship Pact States That It Is Not Contrary To League Covenant.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(United Press.)—The Daily Express' Belgrade correspondent wired his paper to-night that the Franco-Jugo Slavia friendship treaty, scheduled to be signed in Paris Thursday, is aimed partigly, at least, against the League of Nations.

The correspondent said he has obtained the text of the proposed treaty and quoted the third article as follows:

France and Jugo-Slavia agree to take action against any decision of the League of Nations endangering the security of either of the two nations.

Articles six and seven, the dispatch continued, state the two governments declare the treaty is not contrary to any existing International Treaty conclude either by France or Jugo-Slavia or the League of Nations pact. As soon as the treaty registered by the League and ratified, it will become operative for a period of ten years, the correspondent says.

Other paragraphs of the covenant, according to the correspondent, read:

"We agree never to declare war upon each other, to settle our differences diplomatically or arbitrarily or according to the fifteenth article of the League of Nations pact. If either is attacked without provocation we agree to act together to guard our national interests.

We will join in common action in case any change or attempted change in the political situation of Europe is made."

Senor Bodrero, Italian minister to Belgrade, departed for Rome to-night to report to Premier Mussolini concerning the treaty, according to the correspondent.

Who was appointed chairman of the Board of Works until the end of the year, in place of ex-Ald. J. O. Fife.

REV. W. H. YOUNG IS CLUB LEADER

Chosen As Head of Life Problem Club at Toronto Central Y.

POPULAR PASTOR.

Recognition of the intellectual and social gifts of the Rev. W. Harold Young of St. Paul's United Church Avenue Road, Toronto, formerly minister of George Street Church here, is seen in his selection as leader of the Life Problem Club of the Central Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association of Toronto.

This club, which has grown in numbers and influence during recent months is composed of young men who meet weekly to discuss questions which are agitating the mind and heart of youth of the present day. "Self knowledge, self reverence and self control" are the ideals towards which the members are striving.

Mr. Young's affable manner and tact have made him very popular among the younger generation of Toronto, and he is now recognized as one of the city's most successful leaders in work with young men—a fact which fully justifies the statement of a local Anglican clergyman who, speaking at a service club meeting addressed by Mr. Young, declared that the former George Street minister was destined to make his mark in the wider field towards which he was journeying from Peterborough.

Mabel Russel Combines Politics and the Stage

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Problem of combining parliamentary and stage careers and at the same time of taking care of a family doesn't bother Mabel Russell in the least. Miss Russell closed the parliamentary recess stage engagement Monday night and was on hand bright and early at Westminster yesterday as Mrs. Hilton Philipson, her marriage name, to resume her duties as member for Berwick on Tweed. "I thought I'd stake a claim for my seat before taking my children to school", she said.

Building at Niagara Falls Practically Wrecked This Morning.

EXPLOSION IN FURNACES.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—Damage amounting to about forty thousand dollars was caused and a woman and her child rescued with difficulty when the second serious fire in Niagara Falls within a week today practically wrecked the post office building. Twenty postal clerks and mail carriers escaped from the building but returned and managed to remove the mail to a place of safety. Mrs. Gerrie, wife of the caretaker, and her infant child were taken from the smoke-filled building by firemen.

An explosion, believed to have occurred in the furnaces, blowing out all the windows and doing damage to nearby buildings, started the fire. The basement and main floor were immediately flame swept and a general alarm was sounded. The second and third floors were threatened by fire, which was still raging at 10.30 a.m.

COMMUNICATON IS RESTORED IN FLOOD DISTRICT

Stricken Communities Take Up Work of Rebuilding Devastated Area.

RESTORE ROADS.

Estimated Around 14,000 Given Relief in Four States.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 9 (A.P.).—New England's flood-stricken communities yesterday took up the work of rebuilding their ruined homes and industries as the swollen streams fell back into their normal channels and communication was gradually restored with the outside world.

Last night there were few places which relief agencies had not reached. As outsiders entered the last of the towns in northern Vermont, cut off since last Thursday by the flood, they found men armed with picks and shovels digging themselves out of the debris of wrecked houses and piles of mud were building temporary bridges and laying out roadways over which much-needed supplies may be brought.

Throughout Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut the streams continued to recede and there appeared no further danger from the waters. The Connecticut was dropping all along its length and residents of towns and cities along its lower stretches breathed freely once more. Similar reports came from along the Merrimac in New Hamshire and Massachusetts.

Vermont Harder Hit

Vermont, hardest hit by the flood, was on its way toward recovery. Governor John E. Weeks called together the heads of State departments at Montpelier and set machinery in motion to bring order out of the confusion. He appointed Fred A. Howland emergency finance commissioner, and named committees to carry on the work of restoring conditions to normal.

There were few reports of food shortage. Newport, Vt., where a famine was feared, reported that there were no fatalities and that outside communication had been established by which a food supply was assured.

There was talk of a special session of the Vermont Legislature to take relief measures, but no action was taken. The Vermont capital received supply of cash for its banks and Governor Weeks was offered a fund of $10,000 for relief work by James L. Colgate,, of Old Bennington, Vt.

Relief Measures

The Army Air Headquarters, established at Concord, N.H., were ordered transferred to Burlington, Vt., in order to be in closer touch with the region most seriously affected and preparations were immediately made to move all the aerial activities to that point. An army pontoon bridge was on its way from Fort Dupont, Del., to Burlington for use in restoring communications between Burlington and Wincoski so that relief may be carried along the Wincoski River valley where the flood claimed 86 lives.

As a measure of relief by which the railroads, their lines disrupted by washouts and wrecked bridges, might render aid more quickly, the interstate Commerce Commission in Washington issued an order relieving the carriers of the routing restrictions applying to their operations and permitting them to use any routes available.

Death Follows Family Last Child Is Killed

DETROIT, Nov. 9.—Ill-fortune, misery and death have so pursued the family of Robert Hendon for the past 15 months, that yesterday it became known that the body of James Hendon, aged 6 years, the last of three children, who was killed by an automobile near his home Monday, faces the possibility of burial in Potter's field. The family is penniless, and for some weeks has been depending upon friends and neighbors for food.

The Hendons have lost their three children in little more than a year, all by accidents. Edmund, aged 4, was killed by an automobile 13 months ago. Two months ago Marian, 3 years old, was accidentally killed with a revolver. It took the entire savings of the family to bury the little girl. The body of James now is at the County Morgue.

The father has had no work for several months. In spite of their plight, the husband and wife have borne their sufferings bravely. Uncomplaining, the Hendons would face the future without a word, were it not for friends who told of their poverty.

Ald. Fife Resigns On Appointment To City Position

Veteran Member of Council Is Appointed Chief Operator of the Sewage Disposal Plant—Council Decides To Delay Purchase of Snow Removal Apparatus.

GOVERNMENT ASKED TO RECOGNIZE LOCAL AIRPORT AND TO ALLOT TWO LIGHT PLANES TO NEW AERO CLUB

Ald. Walter Stocker To Act As Chairman of Board of Works Until End of Year—Deputations Take Up Much Time at Regular November Meeting.

Ald. J. O. Fife succeeds ex-Ald. Joseph Crowe as chief operator at the sewage disposal plant. This was the decision of the City Council at the regular November meeting, held last night, when a report from the Board of Works, of which Ald. Fife has been chairman for several years past, recommending that a complete change be made in the staff of the plant, was adopted.

Last night's meeting was a long one, most of the time being taken up in the hearing of deputations. Mr. Arnold for the Ontario Tractor Company, and Captain H. P. Ayres for the Peterborough Aero Club, addressed the Council at some length, and the statements of Mr. Arnold caused considerable discussion.

Ald. Cotton moved that Ald. J. O. Fife be appointed chief operator and Ald. Greene seconded the motion, which carried unanimously. The salary will be the same as that paid ex-Ald. Crowe, namely $1,500, and the appointment takes effect today.

The opinion was expressed by Aldermen Denne and Greene that the new appointee should take office as soon as possible to learn the working of the plant. A clause was added on suggestion of Ald. Denne and Phelan giving the new chief operator authority to hire and fire the other operators.

Ald. Phelan stated that the former chief operator had complained that he had no authority so that it should be made definite in this case.

Ald. Denne remarked that Mr. Parsons had hired the men before, and the Council had to fire them. Now it will be a responsibility on Mr. Fife and the Council can deal with him.

Ald. Greene moved a resolution of appreciation for the work of ex-Ald. Fife, whom, he said, had worked for many years trying to do his best for the city. Every alderman has had respect for his colleague, knowing him to be conscientous in his work.

Ald. Phelan, in seconding the motion, expressed the pleasure he had had in association with Ald. Fife. Mr. Fife had never gone behind anybody's back to say what he thought and had done his best for the city. While the city has lost the services of one of the best aldermen it ever had, it had gained a good employee. Applause signified the passing of the motion.

Mr. Fife stated that in all his years as alderman he had never left the council meetings with a feeling that he had been hurt or misused by any of his colleagues.

Mayor Holloway explained that the matter seemed cut and dried but that it had been agreed on following much discussion, and that Ald. Fife had not accepted the position as a soft job, but in an endeavor to straighten up the difficulties encountered there.

Purchase Postponed.

Introducing Mr. Arnold Mayor Holloway explained that early in the year he, with Mr. Fife and the City Engineer, had been instructed to make a report on snow removal equipment. The committee had had only one meeting but the engineer had gone into the matter thoroughly and had reported. The Mayor asked the council to hear Mr. Arnold, stating that he thought the council would then go slow in the matter of purchasing a plow.

Mr. Arnold stated that snow removal was a big problem and that his company had been studying it for a number of years. The City of Westmount has adopted the machines he sells, with straight blades, whereas Mr. Parsons has recommended a V-plow. He stated that the straight blade would be found preferable for city work, enabling the machine to go closer to the sidewalk. However the tractor was a more important matter than the blade, as any type of plow could be supplied.

The Mayor urged that the purchase be delayed, and Alderman Cotton and Alderman Stocker moved that Westmount be asked for information.

This aroused Ald. Fife's ire. It was an insult to the intelligence of the council, he said to propose that the aldermen ask information from Westmount, which is just one part of Canada. He wanted to know on what grounds the aldermen were changing their opinion. They had appointed a committee which had gone

MAN RUN OVER; ARM IS CRUSHED

James Shea ,Walking On Track, Stumbles and Falls Between Rails.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

James Shea, an aged resident of 174 Ferry Street, was run over by the shunting engine at the corner of Bethune and Perry Streets yesterday afternoon. Shea was injured on the left side of the face and his left arm was crushed. The shunter was working in the yard, and as it neared the crossing at Perry and Bethune Streets Fireman Anderson noticed Mr. Shea come to the crossing and start to walk up the track.

In a moment he appeared to stumble and fall between the rails, and before Engineer Clemett could be warned of a man on the track, the engine had passed over him Several witnesses claim the engine bell was ringing at the time.

The engine was brought to a stop in 26 feet, and Mr. Shea was found to be under the rear of the tender. Dr. Hewitt was summoned, and had the injured man taken to the hospital. Constable Puffer investigated the accident.

JUDGE HUYCKE GIVES ADDRESS

Speaks To Trinity Club On Memories of Year of War.

FITTING SONGS.

The members of Trinity Club last night enjoyed a splendid address by His Honor Judge Huycke in Trinity Hall, Reid Street. In his sincere and picturesque style the Judge spoke on a subject that is uppermost in the minds of all who remember so vividly the days of 1914 and 1918. An address that merited the deep appreciation of the entire club was delivered.

The whole programme was reminiscent of the long years of the war. Mrs. R. A. Williamson sang two numbers "Till the Boys Come Home" and "Somewhere in France," in her usual excellent manner. Mr. S. Willis gave the "Trumpeter Song" and "The Deathless Army" in splendid, characteristic style. Master Donald Greene, the youngest member on the programme, gave two violin solos which, from an artist so young, demand special mention as they were perfect in quality and tone.

The Club quartette sang most beautifully "Rose of No Man's Land," with violin accompaniments by Messrs Albert Wright and Cliff. Shea.

The accompanists for the different numbers were the Misses M. Willis, Frances McFadden and Mildred Greene.

WAVE BAND FOR USE OF PLANES IS GIVEN CANADA

Canada's Need For Communication With Aerial Service is Recognized.

AT RADIO CONFERENCE.

Commercial Broadcasters Must Stay Off Exclusive Band Allotted.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—Canada's right to exclusive wave bands for the direction of aircraft in the Dominion has been recognized by the International Radio Conference, and a wide band sufficient to take care of the extensive development of commercial flying in Canada has been set aside for the sole use of Canada.

When the question of communication between aircraft and ground stations was under discussion in committee, Canadian delegates brought up the necessity for recognition of the needs of aircraft in the Dominion. It was pointed out that in the practical application of aircraft to forest protection, survey work, and similar useful purposes, Canada led the world. The necessity for a clear band through which aircraft could communicate regularly with ground stations was recognized, as it had been previously recognized in Europe.

Hereafter commercial broadcasters the world over will have to keep off the exclusive band allotted to Canadian aircraft.

MILLION MEN ARE FASCISTS

Many Women Also Enrolled — 32,000 Enrolled During Year.

NO NEW MEMBERS.

ROME, November 9 (United Press).—The total membership of the Fascist party is 1,262,000, including 224,000 women, General Secretary Turati reported to the Grand Council today.

Thirty-two thousand members, of whom nearly 2,000 were miner leaders, were expelled during the Fascist year, which ended November 5th, for moral unfitness.

New enrolments into the party will be strictly forbidden, according to a report approved by the Grand Council, while Fascists in commanding and responsible places must be entrusted members whose blind loyalty in the past and present is unquestionable.

YE OLDE TYME QUARTET HERE ON THURSDAY

Treat in Store For Music Lovers and All Who Love Clean Entertainment.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

Famous Canadian Combination of Artists.

It is not every week that Peterborough is offered so rare a treat as is being presented on Thursday night in St. Paul's church, when the famous Toronto artists, known as Ye Olde Tyme Village Quartette will give one of their inimitable recitals in costumes reminiscent of the mid-Victorian era.

The press notices, culled from a great many papers, eulogise them in terms of highest praise. The Buffalo News says: "The most entertaining program heard for many a day."

The London Free Press says: "They presented an olde tyme program that has never been equalled in Western Ontario."

They have appeared at the Canadian National Exhibition on six successive years. This past year they appeared 12 nights before the grand stand, and the exhibition authorities said in connection with what they did on Music Day: "This contribution to the musical work of the day was really beyond praise."

Their program has a mingled fragrance of Old English, Scotch and South American airs, with a whiff of Erin. And they give an air of restful informality to their entertainment by the quaint and delightful introduction of the members of the party.

BOY SUCCUMBS TO DIPHTHERIA

Five Other Cases in the City Are of Mild Type, Says M.O.H.

ONLY CONTAGIOUS DISEASE.

Diphtheria claimed one victim in the city this morning, when Jack Hollingsworth, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hollingsworth, 205 King street, died in the Isolation Hospital. The little boy took sick on Saturday and was admitted to the hospital on Monday.

At present there are five other acses in the city, but Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., reports them as not being serious. The medical authorities are making every effort to find the cause of this outbreak, but as yet they have not been able to find where it originated.

"Diphtheria is the only contagious disease in the city at present," Dr. Young told The Examiner, and special efforts are being made to find where the infection came from."

NEW MAYOR INAUGURATED

Sir Charles Batho Takes Office as Lord Mayor of London.

GLITTERING PARADE.

LONDON, England, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—Cinderella's gold coach came to London today as real as anything. And in the fairy prince's seat was the new Lord Mayor, Sir Charles Batho, all smiles and bows. It was his inauguration as London's chief executive.

Six spirited bays trundled the stately carriage through crowded streets where the happy cheers of multitudes of children drowned the mellow rumbled of its carved and glittering wheels.

The new Lord Mayor wore his scarlet robes with broad edgings of black and gold and the ancient jewelled chain of office which he is to wear for a year. In attendance were his chaplain and his bearers of the mace and sword in gorgeous velvet costumes.

The Lord Mayor's show in London is what Circus Day is in Canada. Nearly everyone is Peter Pan for the day at least. One of the amusement features this year was a float showing Dick Whittington, London's fifteenth century Mayor, and his famous cat.

DETROIT APPROVES TUNNEL PROPOSAL

Voters Also Endorse Issue of Bonds For Public Airport.

DETROIT, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—Among five amendments to the city charter that were adopted at yesterday's election was one approving the construction by a private concern of a proposed vehicular tunnel from Detroit to Windsor, Ont. A proposal that the county issue two million dollars in bonds for the site and construction of a publicy owned airport also was approved.

Due to the general rush to get out the Mayoralty returns, the tabulators neglected to figure the votes on a number of the amendments cast yesterday, and decisions probaoly will not be known until official figures are given out.

WOMEN HEAR DISCUSSION OF DISARMAMENT

Prof. Mackenzie, of Toronto University, Addresses Women's Canadian Club.

CANADIAN VIEWPOINT.

Heavy Subject Taken Up in Manner That Proves Interesting and Instructive.

The meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, held in the auditorium of the Public Library last evening, was featured by a very interesting address on "Disarmament From a Canadian Standpoint," delivered by N. Mackenzie, B.A., L.L.B., of Dalhousie University, L.L.M. of Harvard University, and Associate Professor of International and Constitutional Law at Toronto University. Although the subject, at first glance, appears to be a heavy one, it was treated by Mr Mackenzie in a manner that held the attention of his feminine audience from the first to the last words of a very enlightening and thoughtful discourse.

Mr. Mackenzie, who spoke to the Women's Canadian Club last season on Canada's position at the League of Nations, was for four years representative of the Dominion on the Labour Council at Geneva, and has a wide knowledge of matters connected with the League.

Miss S. A. Tompkins, president of the Women's Canadian Club, who occupied the chair last evening, opened the meeting with a brief resume of the conference of Canadian Clubs held recenty in Ottawa, later introducing the speaker on his arrival, and also tendering him a hearty vote of thanks at the conclusion of his address, which was seconded by a standing vote from the members. The brief reference to the Canadian Club Conference disclosed the fact that there are now seventy-nine affiliated clubs in Canada, with a membership of 30,000 men and women, almost equally divided.

"Some Canadian aspects of the question of Disarmament," was the way in which Mr Mackenzie treated his subject, introducing it by an allusion to the practical disarmament which now exists in the Dominion, where the regular force consists of about 5,600 soldiers and sailors. Something in the neighborhood of $12,700,000 is spent in the training for war.

"Unless we in Canada can help to maintain the peace of the world by preventing ,as far as lies in our power, either Great Britain or the United States from becoming involved in a war of any importance, we will have to pay as we paid before, when 60,000 of our young men gave their lives in the last great struggle, with an outlay of near two billions of dollars and the sum of one hundred and sixty millions of dollars still deducted annually from our budget in payment of the war and its debts. Your Canadian clubs are trying to create and maintain a real Canadianism, not narrow or anti-British, but the sort that is conscious of its own worth and the contribution it may make to the British Empire to which it belongs.

Several Groups.

"There are several groups in Canada. There are the loyalists who declare that when England is at war, we are at war. And there is another group that, following out the tradition of Britain from the days of Magna Charta, when the right of self-expression was demanded as common justice by the common citizens, demand that, before we become involved in war, we shall have our say as to whether we shall have a part in it or not. Here, too, comes the question of the French-Canadian who claims that he is, par excellence, a Canadian, who thinks of Canada first, last and all the time. These people constitute nearly three millions of our nine millions of population, and we have to consider them in matters dealing with overseas commitments. In case of another war, we would have to make the situation of more vital importance to them than the last one appeared to them to be.

"And then there is the last group of foreign immigrants who come here to escape from the wars in which their ancestors have been embroiled for generations past and who, in the event of further European conflicts, would necessarily be engaged in warfare against their own relatives. These are some of the practical difficulties that confront Canada.

"Armaments are, as you know, and as every intelligent, thinking person knows, one of the main contributions and causes of war. The fact that you possess an army and navy is almost inevitable in bringing about a war, just as it is inevitable that a man carrying a loaded revolver will shoot in a tight corner, or that dirt and filth will lead to disease in time."

Criticism of Berlin's Financial Policies Become Subject of Protracted Oral Debates

BERLIN, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—As a result of the exchange of notes between S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparations, and Dr. Koehler, Minister of Finance, Mr. Gilbert's criticism of the German government's financial policies will become the subject of protracted oral discussion between the two, it was learned yesterday. The discussions will be in accordance with a wish expressed by Dr. Koehler in the letter that acompacnied his voluminous reply to Mr. Gilbert's note. Mr. Gilbert also has announced his readiness to talk over some of the controversal points which were accentuated in his memorandum.

While the press agitation over Mr. Gilbert's plain spoken warning that the entire reparations programme was endangered by the expenses of the government has considerably subsided, official circles appear less ready to conceal their pique over the incident, chiefly because of the foreign reverberations.

"The Agent General fails to take into account the very complicated political economic and cultural structure of the German Reisch in his analysis of the relations between the central and federated governments," declared a spokesman for the Foreign Office. These relations, he added, are of such long tradition standing and they have become so intricate that the central government, no matter how much it desires to fortify and centralize its authority over the component States, is unable to ride rough-shod over their inherited prerogatives and financial functions, and its budgetary dispositions must therefore adjust themselves to this federal relationship.

TREATY AIMED AGAINST LEAGUE SAYS BELGRADE CORRESPONDENT

France and Jugo-Slavia Agree To Resist League Decision.

IF SECURITY IN DANGER.

Friendship Pact States That It Is Not Contrary To League Covenant.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(United Press.)—The Daily Express' Belgrade correspondent wired his paper to-night that the Franco-Jugo Slavia friendship treaty, scheduled to be signed in Paris Thursday, is aimed partially, at least, against the League of Nations.

The correspondent said he has obtained the text of the proposed treaty and quoted the third article as follows:

France and Jugo-Slavia agree to take action against any decision of the League of Nations endangering the security of either of the two nations.

Articles six and seven, the dispatch continued, state the two governments declare the treaty is not contrary to any existing International Treaty conclude either by France or Jugo-Slavia or the League of Nations pact. As soon as the treaty registered by the League and ratified, it will become operative for a period of ten years, the correspondent says.

Other paragraphs of the covenant, according to the correspondent, read:

"We agree never to declare war upon each other, to settle our differences diplomatically or arbitrarily or according to the fifteenth article of the League of Nations pact. If either is attacked without provocation we agree to act together to guard our national interests.

We will join in common action in case any change or attempted change in the political situation of Europe is made."

Senor Bodrero, Italian minister to Belgrade, departed for Rome to-night to report to Premier Mussolini concerning the treaty, according to the correspondent.

REV. W. H. YOUNG IS CLUB LEADER

POPULAR PASTOR.

Recognition of the intellectual and social gifts of the Rev. W. Harold Young of St. Paul's United Church Avenue Road, Toronto, formerly minister of George Street Church here, is seen in his selection as leader of the Life Problem Club of the Central Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association of Toronto.

This club, which has grown in numbers and influence during recent months is composed of young men who meet weekly to discuss questions which are agitating the mind and heart of youth of the present day. "Self knowledge, self reverence and self control" are the ideals towards which the members are striving.

Mr. Young's affable manner and tact have made him very popular among the younger generation of Toronto, and he is now recognized as one of the city's most successful leaders in work with young men—a fact which fully justifies the statement of a local Anglican clergyman who, speaking at a service club meeting addressed by Mr. Young, declared that the former George Street minister was destined to make his mark in the wider field towards which he was journeying from Peterborough.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Problem of combining parliamentary and stage careers and at the same time of taking care of a family doesn't bother Mabel Russell in the least. "I thought I'd stake a claim for my seat before taking my children to school", she said.

However the tractor was a more important matter than the blade, as any type of plow could be supplied.

The Mayor urged that the purchase be delayed, and Alderman Cotton and Alderman Stocker moved that Westmount be asked for information.

This aroused Ald. Fife's ire. It was an insult to the intelligence of the council, he said to propose that the aldermen ask information from Westmount, which is just one part of Canada. He wanted to know on what grounds the aldermen were changing their opinion. They had appointed a committee which had gone

MAN RUN OVER; ARM IS CRUSHED

James Shea ,Walking On Track, Stumbles and Falls Between Rails.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

James Shea, an aged resident of 174 Ferry Street, was run over by the shunting engine at the corner of Bethune and Perry Streets yesterday afternoon. Shea was injured on the left side of the face and his left arm was crushed. The shunter was working in the yard, and as it neared the crossing at Perry and Bethune Streets Fireman Anderson noticed Mr. Shea come to the crossing and start to walk up the track.

In a moment he appeared to stumble and fall between the rails, and before Engineer Clemett could be warned of a man on the track, the engine had passed over him. Several witnesses claim the engine bell was ringing at the time.

The engine was brought to a stop in 26 feet, and Mr. Shea was found to be under the rear of the tender. Dr. Hewitt was summoned, and had the injured man taken to the hospital. Constable Puffer investigated the accident.

JUDGE HUYCKE GIVES ADDRESS

Speaks To Trinity Club On Memories of Year of War.

FITTING SONGS.

The members of Trinity Club last night enjoyed a splendid address by His Honor Judge Huycke in Trinity Hall, Reid Street. In his sincere and picturesque style the Judge spoke on a subject that is uppermost in the minds of all who remember so vividly the days of 1914 and 1918. An address that merited the deep appreciation of the entire club was delivered.

The whole programme was reminiscent of the long years of the war. Mrs. R. A. Williamson sang two numbers "Till the Boys Come Home" and "Somewhere in France," in her usual excellent manner. Mr. S. Willis gave the "Trumpeter Song" and "The Deathless Army" in splendid, characteristic style. Master Donald Greene, the youngest member on the programme, gave two violin solos which, from an artist so young, demand special mention as they were perfect in quality and tone.

The Club quartette sang most beautifully "Rose of No Man's Land," with violin accompaniments by Messrs Albert Wright and Cliff. Shea.

The accompanists for the different numbers were the Misses M. Willis, Frances McFadden and Mildred Greene.

ELEVATOR BUSY.

Government Building at Port Colborne Has Biggest Year In History.

ST. CATHARINES, November 9 (Canadian Press). — The Government grain elevator at Port Colborne this year had the biggest business in its history, handling 68,000,000 bushels up to the first of this month, compared with 58,000,000 bushels in the same period last year.

HOUSE OF LORDS BILL IS SHELVED BY PARLIAMENT

British House Sets Aside Awkward Problems From Present Session.

RE-ASSEMBLES QUIETLY.

Baldwin Announces Women's Bill Not To Be Introduced Until After Christmas.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(A.P.)— Those who had hoped for a hearing on the question of the "flapper vote" at the present session of parliament, suffered a disappointment yesterday when the government shelved such awkward problems as reform of the House of Lords and "votes for women at 21.' Premier Baldwin announced that the women's bill would not be introduced until after Christmas.

Parliament re-assembled quietly for a sitting which will last until Christmas and which will be occupied with measures almost entirely of local interest, such as unemployment, insurance, defence of the realm act and similar subjects. The only measure of interest abroad will be the remaining stages of the film bill.

The House adopted a government resolution giving government business precedence for the remainder of the session by a vote of 269 to 128, thus excluding any extraneous legislation, but the prime minister promised to find time, if possible, for debates requested by the opposition leaders on disarmament, the foreign policy, including Tangier, and Great Britain's failure to ratify the Washington eight hour convention. The Government was reminded by a demonstration outside the House that the women were disinclined to wait over long for the vote "on the same terms as men."

Women Present.

Many women assembled in the parliament precincts bearing placards enscribed "Votes for women on the same terms as men." "Votes for women at 21." The women carried umbrellas with yellow streamers. Countess Rhondda is chairman of the equal political rights committee which organized the demonstration.

The matter of the Abyssinian blue Nile dam came up for a few minutes. Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, while observing a certain reserve in replying to questions, was able to place the situation in a better perspective. He practically accepted the recent statement made by Dr. Wargneh Martin, Abyssinian representative in the negotiations with the United States company reported to have entered into an agreement for the construction of the dam. Dr. Martin had denied that any contract had been signed and gave assurances that the whole thing was in the hands of Great Britain. Sir Austen believed this to be an accurate version of the present position. While he had no official information, he said, he was satisfied that Abyssinia would observe her treaty obligations.

No Communications Passed.

No communictions had passed between the British and United States governments on the subject, and he declared that no question had arisen between these two governments, and he anticipated no difficulty on this score.

Further, the foreign secretary admitted that it was the British government's policy to build a dam across the Nile, and proposals had been made to the Abyssinian government with that object These were still under discussion.

The government announced in both Houses the appointment of an imperial commission of inquiry, to ascertain how the reforms provided for by act of parliament in 1919 have worked out with respect to the government of India.

Bears Plentiful North Of Marmora

MARMORA, November 9 — Local hunters are still encountering bears north of Marmora. Whilst hunting deer near Limit Lake last Wednesday, Sanford Lawrence unexpectedly came across traces of the near presence of Bruin. He reached the den as the animal was emerging. Making use of his .22 pistol, he disabled his victim thereby. A shot from his rifle completed the job. Lawrence obtained his deer two days later.

James Gordenier had hard luck in North Marmora on Saturday, a fine specimen of a bear eluding several shots from that hunter's gun.

One of the Deloro employees claims to have seen on Thursday last, a large bear drinking from the stream near the eastern bounds of the company's property.

CAROL COURIER UNDER ARREST

Said To Have Been in Communication With Former Crown Prince.

CENSOR PRESS.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 9.— (A.P.)— Rumania was just recovering from the shock of the alleged Mancilescu plot to restore former Crown Prince Carol to the throne when the country was again plunged into a state of agitation and uncertainty, culminating in the re-establishment of censorship yesterday, by the arrest at a border town of a lieutenant and his wife, who are said to have been in communiction with Prince Carol.

One opposition paper, "Adeverul," took advantage of its last edition before the censorship became effective to charge that Premier Bratiano was preparing to establish a dictatorship along the lines of that of Gen Primo de Rivera in Spain. The paper calls for a denial from the government if its information is not correct, declaring that if no denial is forthcoming the opposition and all democratic interests should prepare for a struggle against usurpation of the constitution.

Information received here yesterday is that Lieut. Teodoru and his wife who were arrested at a border city Monday, were searched and in their automobile "most interesting documents" were found. The pair, who were arrested at Ceanat, near Temesvar, on their way out of the country, were brought to Bucharest yesterday for further interrogation by the Rumanian secret police.

Independent Courier.

Teodoru was formerly attached to the aviation section of the army, of which Prince Carol once was chief. In official circles here it is said that Teodoru had an important mission to perform betwen Prince Carol and certain Rumanian political leaders. He is said to have had no direct dealings with M. Mancilescu, former under-secretary for finance, who was recently arrested, but to have acted as independent courier for the former Crown Prince.

MANY HUNTERS VISIT MARMORA

United States' Visitors To District Have Been Numerous This Year.

141 FISHING LICENSES.

MARMORA, November 9. — Marmora's tourist trade for 1927 has by no means died out. On Saturday evening (and that is considered a dull evening for hotel visitors) no less than eighteen of the sporting fraternity were registered at the Royal Hotel. This hotel under the management of T. E. Potts, has had this year one of the most successful seasons in its history.

Throughout the summer its sleeping accommodation has been taxed to the limit. On many an evening neighboring citizens have been called upon to accommodate the overplus with a bed.

Following the wake of the yearly large influx of American tourists, whose chief delight seems to be in handling the rod, hunting parties have of late appeared frequently on the visitors' list. News of bear and deer being plentiful in the outlying district to the north is thought to be the reason for the hotels' prolonged busy season. American visitors have been loud in their praises of the catering and extension of the hotels' sleeping quarters is a problem facing the directors at the present time.

The increased popularity of Crowe Lake and adjacent fishing waters is revealed in another manner. C. A. Bleecker, agent for fishing and hunting licenses, reports the sale of 141 fishing licenses to American visitors, during the past season yielding the revenue of $775.50. Up to Saturday night he had disposed of thirty-seven licenses to deer hunters.

Gordon Fraser, noted barrister, and Earl Drake, a prominent real estate agent, both of Windsor who own a hunting camp at Fair's bridge, to the north of Marmora, arrived in town on Saturday. They stayed at the hotel over night, moving into camp with W. Linn their guide, the following morning.

QUESTIONED WITHIN SHADOW OF COURT

Regarding Outcome of Conspiracy Trial, Witnesses Tell Grand Jury.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (A.P.)— Jurors in the Fall-Sinclair criminal conspiracy trial were approached with improper questions within the very shadow of the court house, two of them disclosed yesterday as they became grand jury witnesses in the latest of the oil scandals.

Their startling statements led federal agents on the trails of the questioners, thus far men of mystery in a case which has furnished far more than a normal share of mysteries and sensations.

John J. Costinett, an elderly tailor, and Gardner P. Grenfeld, a young cable splicer, are the jurors who declared they had been questioned before a mis-trial was ordered both to the probable outcome of the trial and as to whether the trial judge, Justice Frederick L. Siddons, was "on the square."

From the descriptions they gave to District Attorney Gordon, each was approached by a different man. Whether their interrogators were Burns' detectives, whose activities abruptly ended the oil trial, is the immediate point the district attorney's office is seeking to clear up.

Grenfeld said he was approached by a stranger in a cigar store directly across the street from the District of Columbia court house.

"There has been quite a busy morning in court?" was the question Grenfeld said the stranger used in opening up conversation.

"Yes," the juror said he replied.

"What sort of a fellow is Siddons; is he on the square?" was the next question put by the stranger, Grenfeld said.

"Yes, if he wasn't he could not hold the position he does," Grenfeld stated he answered, turning then and leaving the store.

Was Persistent

The stranger was persistent, approaching the juror again on the street a few minutes later.

"Say, you don't think they'll do anything with those two fellows over there, do you?" Grenfeld said he was asked.

"I told him that I was on the jury and could not discuss the case," Grenfeld told the district attorney, adding that he thus terminated the conversation.

Costinett said he was leaving the court house about a week before the mis-trial was ordered, when a man unknown to him fell into step with him.

"Say, the government hasn't got a thing on those fellows, have they?" Costinett said he was asked. He declared he instantly wheeled on the stranger, informing him that he was a member of the Fall-Sinclair jury and could not discuss the case. He then walked away.

THREE ORPHANS PERISH IN FIRE

Nun Rescues Sleeping Children From Burning Catholic Institute.

$100,000 DAMAGE.

BERNARDSVILLE, N.J., November 9 (Associated Press). — The picture of a nun carrying sixty-eight sleeping children from a building transformed into a roaring furnace, slipping with her burdens from beam to beam as floor boards were burned beneath her feet, rose yesterday above the confusion and hardship which came after fire destroyed a dormitory of an orphanage conducted at Peapack by the Baptistine Sisters of the Nazarene, taking the lives of three little inmates.

The nun was Sister Mary Gabriel. One of the children became confused and wandered back into the dormitory and died in the flames after the sister set him down at the door.

Sister Mary Mark, in charge of eleven other boys occupying the dormitory, rescued nine before the fire drove her back.

The dead children were Joseph Mulizia, Raymond deMauro, and Joseph Malino, aged 4, 4, and 5 respectively, all of New York. The ruins of the large dormitory last night were tumbled upon 75 tons of coal which had burned itself into a molten mass and was expected to prevent efforts to recover the bodies for at least a week.

Oil Burning Furnace.

Believed to have been caused by a defective oil-burning furnace, the fire was discovered by Sister Gabriel shortly before 2 a.m. She was unable to give any reason for arising, except that she felt "everything was not right." As she started out of bed carefully into the matter; tenders had been called for and the engineer's report had gone through the Board of Works.

ALD. FIFE RESIGNS

The representative of the Innes Company had wanted to come to the council and lay his case before it, continued Ald. Fife, but he had told him it would be in poor taste. The Innes Company would put on a straight blade if the council wanted it. He had based his own opinion on the engineer's report as he considered that he knew as much about it as a salesman. If the aldermen were not going to take the committee's report they should name a new committee and hear representatives from all the companies. If necessary, both plows could be bought at no very great expense.

Demonstrations Suggested.

Ald. Denne asked if the Innes people would be willing to demonstrate their machine. When assured that they would, he suggested having the two machines work after the first snow storm.

Ald. Fife retorted that it was a small thing for the council to ask for demonstrations when with the guarantees and specifications the machine would have to be good.

Ald. Stocker asked if Ald. Fife had seen the machine he recommended, and Ald. Phelan asked if any city had one. Ald. Fife replied that the tractor was what counted as both firms had said they would supply either straight blade or V-plow.

Ald. Greene explained that he had moved the resolution in committee because he had understood that the Mayor and Aldermen Fife and Denne had gone into the matter thoroughly and concurred in the Engineers' report. He stated that he understood that the City Engineer had not accepted an opportunity to inspect the machine Mr. Arnold was advocating and that Mr. Arnold had tried for some months to get an interview with the city but had failed for some reason.

No one in Peterborough has had experience with this type of machinery but there are cities that have used such machines and they should all be asked for information.

Ald. Cotton assured Ald. Fife that he had not questioned the ability of the committee by his motion but had thought that information should be obtained from people using each machine.

Ald Denne informed Ald. Greene that the only information he had received had been the engineer's report and that he had asked why he was not recommending the other tractor, and Mr. Parsons had said there was not a snap of the finger between the two. He thought the aldermen should see two in operation before they spent the people's money.

The Mayor pointed out that he had thought that the engineer ought to know what would be best, but that Mr. Parsons had told him that it was a new thing. He thought it would be right to get information from Westmount; if Warsaw had had experience in the matter he would go there, too. The Innes people could let the city know where their tractors are in use, too.

The upshot of all the argument was that the motion passed, delaying the purchase until more information is received, while both companies will be asked to demonstrate their machines after the first snowfall.

Four resolutions in a row from the Peterborough Automobile Club caused some laughter. The club asked for suitable signs showing where parking is forbidden for bus stops, which matter is already in hand; for endorsation of a resolution asking the Dept. of Railways and Canals for improvement of the canal road from Maria street to the Norwood Road, for which the council asked some months ago; for endorsation of a resolution asking the Douro Council to improve the East River Road, which has also engaged the attention of the council; and for endorsation of a resolution asking the Ontario Department of Highways to take over the Chemong Road from the Fourth Line of Smith to the park as a provincial highway, which the council has also asked for.

Ald. Ackerman remonstrated. This and other clubs, he said, are trying to do something for the benefit of the city; they ask endorsation of their resolutions and should be supported, not laughed at.

The Mayor explained that the laughter was because all the matters had been dealt with by the council some time ago and had been discussed so long that they had whiskers, and the club should have known of them long ago.

Air Club Endorsed.

Captain Ayres asked the council to request the authorities at Ottawa to take steps to recognize his field as an aviation field, and to endorse the formation of the Peterborough Aero Club, and back up its request for the two light planes promised by the government. He assured the aldermen that all the qualifications are complied with now except the possession of a suitable hangar, and spoke of the value of preparing for the great future that is evidently in store for aviation. His request was granted.

Ald. Ackerman stressed the value of endorsing the Aero Club and asking for recognition of the Canadian Air Services field, which he said, would put Peterborough on the map as a flying centre.

The Mayor stated his approval of the project but expressed doubt of the legality of financing the hangar needed.

Ald. Ackerman pointed out that this agreement would be with the Peterborough Aero Club, and that the Canadian Air Services is another company. The matter of a grant would be for next year's council.

Ald. Greene asked what benefit there would be to the city in this Aero Club.

Ald. Ackerman replied that the department is trying to keep influence down. Oshawa might take it up and Peterborough turn it down, and in a few years Oshawa would be building planes. Captain Ayres has the sole right to build Kolhaven planes on the American continent and production will be started.

Ald. Macdonald expressed his agreement with Ald. Ackerman, and urged the value of getting in on the ground floor.

Ald. Ackerman mentioned the experience of Buffalo, whose airport, laid out for fifteen years, had had to be doubled inside of two years. Aviation is here to stay, and Peterborough should get in early.

Ald. McIntyre feared that endorsation might make the city responsible for the building of the hangar, and wanted to know how much it was to cost.

Ald. Ackerman mentioned $3000 as the outside figure and agreed that the department would look to the city to see that suitable accommodation was available before allotting the planes.

The sewage disposal and streets and bridges accounts will be overdrawn by the end of the year, if expenditure continues at the same rate to the end of the year but the other branches of the city's business are within the appropriations, City Treasurer Frank Adams reported.

No exemption can be secured from amusement tax by charitable, church, or other bodies unless the request is made before the entertainment is held according to a letter received from the Ontario Treasury Department.

By-Laws Passed.

By-laws were passed as follows:

2739—To appoint a standing committee, known as a Claims Committee, to deal with all claims for damages from accidents.

2740—To authorize the execution of agreements for the removal of snow.

2742—To appoint a head operator at the sewage disposal plant.

Ald. Walter Stocker was appointed chairman of the Board of Works for the balance of the year. As soon as this was done, Ald. Denne called attention to the drain on Chamberlain Street which had been promised for this year, and to some repairs needed on the sidewalks.

Ald. Ackerman moved a vote of congratulation to Herbert Routley for the fine showing of his dogs at the field trials on Long Island.

The request of the city for a right-of-way on the C.P.R. property for the purpose of permitting the installation of a hydrant to serve the company's property with that of the Peterborough Canoe Company and J. J. Duffus Ltd. was answered with an agreement containing a great many clauses and finishing up with a rental fee. The agreement was not satisfactory and the Mayor will consult the C.P.R. officials.

A request from the village of Lakefield for use of the Peterborough fire apparatus will be threshed out at a meeting of the Fire, Water, and Light Committee to which Reeve Tanner will be invited.

Ald. Stocker urged practice of the golden rule in granting permission to the Monaghan School Board to connect with the sewer. Aldermen Macdonald and Ackerman moved that it be not done.

Ald. Denne pointed out that the township had made an agreement with the city and then never signed it, calling for the payment of $20 for each connection. He moved that the permission be granted if the agreement be signed. When the Mayor pointed out that the township had had legal advice not to sign it, he stated that if a connection were made the township would have no action against the city.

Ald. Cotton seconded the amendment, and the motion was withdrawn. The motion of Ald. Denne was carried.

Aldermen Phelan and Stocker favored giving the Peter Hamilton Company permission to remove a building from one part of its property to another, which is against the fire by-law.

Aldermen McIntyre and Macdonald urged that the by-law be upheld. The permission was granted.

The matter of the Ferguson warehouse was brought up.

Ald. Ackerman pointed out that the Council had voted that the building must be made suitable. This, he had been told, had not been done, and he asked why. He thought some action ought to be taken.

The Mayor and City Solicitor were appointed a committee to attend a conference being held by the Ontario Legislature to discuss the regulation of peddlers.

The Property Committee was given authority to advertise for tenders for the removal of garbage and to add to the area as it deems advisable.

An offer from a Toronto firm, Newbolt and Co., to pay $10,000 for exclusive rights of public advertising was laid over as no specific information as to what is wanted is included. The Mayor feared that the company might put bills on the City Hall.

Eating house licenses were granted Mrs. P. Scully and J. J. Duffus.

Expressions of sympathy with the families of G. H. Duncan and J. D. Collins, former members of the Council.

Ottawa's request for support of its amendment to the Assessment Act was referred to the Legal Committee.

The town of Walkerville's resolution, asking that the municipal vehicles be exempt from gasoline tax was referred to the Legal Committee.

One from the city of St. Catharines, asking for power to tax heavy vehicles such as 'busses, for the upkeep of roads, will be considered in the Board of works.

Mr. Valois appeared with a petition requesting that something be done to the natural drain in the north-eastern corner of the city, which has given trouble, he said, since it was altered some years ago. The City Engineer will look into the matter.

The city will take a full page advertisement in Heaton's Annual. A representative of the firm was present and explained the circulation and benefits of the publication.

OBITUARY.

J. H. CHRISTIE.

MADOC, Nov. 9.—The Evening News, of Little Falls, N.Y., contains the following item:

Joseph Herbert Christie of 46 Burwell street, who removed to this city five months ago with his wife, from Vermont, died in the local hospital last evening at 6.30. He had been ill only a week, and on Wednesday underwent an operation for stomach trouble. He was employed at the Barnet Leather plant.

Mr. Christie was a son of the late Joseph Christie and Mrs. Margaret Christie of Madoc, Ont. He was born in Madoc on May 1st, 1871. He was married in Kingston, Canada, on June 1st, 1891 to Miss Lillian Genge. He is survived by his wife, by one son, W H. Christie, of Little Falls, and by a daughter, Mrs. O. H. Farr, of Washington, D.C. He also leaves his mother who resides in Madoc, and four brothers and a sister, Miss Rachel, of Madoc.

A private funeral was held from the home of the son on Sunday afternoon. Rev. J. F. Riggs of the Presbyterian church officiated and interment took place in Church Street Cemetery.

Celebrated Clown Laid to Final Rest

NEW YORK, Nov 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Far from the laughing crowds which once cheered his antics, surrounded by a dozen sad faced clowns who had played with him before a fickle public had turned its thumbs down on their ancient art, Marcelline, one of the premier clowns of a decade ago, was buried yesterday.

Marcelline was found kneeling beside his bed in a New York hotel Saturday with a self-inflicted bullet wound through his temple.

Buckwheat Cakes

Are Autumn Favorites

And Mother knows they're lightest and most easily made with Aunt Jemima

They all feel hungry when they learn that Aunt Jemima Buckwheat Cakes are being made. They love the buckwheat aroma. They revel in the buckwheat taste. Garnish with bacon or fresh sausage, or serve with syrup, or brown sugar. What could be more inviting for breakfast these cool mornings.

Mother's happy, too, because Aunt Jemima prepared Buckwheat Flour is easiest to use. She mixes equal parts of the flour and milk (water will do if she hasn't milk). Stirs to a smooth batter and pours on a moderately hot griddle or frying pan.* In a moment—delicious buckwheat cakes, light and digestible, with the real buckwheat flavor that everybody likes.

No other buckwheat cakes can be so light and digestible. No others are so easy to make.

Aunt Jemima prepared Buckwheat Flour is made with the same famous recipe as the Pancake Flour with the right amount of Buckwheat Flour added. Get both from your grocer and have variety.

Waffles and Muffins, too

You can make delicious waffles in a jiffy with Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour.

Cook them either at the table or in the kitchen.

Muffins take no longer.

GREETING CARDS POPULAR IN 1927

Big Early Sale of Private Cards Shows Increasing Interest.

"Say it with Christmas cards," apparently, has become the slogan of the Yuletide of 1927, for it is doubtful if ever in the hostory of the city Christmas shoppers displayed so intensive an interest in cards and booklets of greeting. This concentrated interest has evinced itself very early in the season.

Artcraft, beauty of design, and Christmas cheer, with delightful sentiment, have entered in lovely combinations in the manufacture of this season's Christmas cards. Variety of subjects, scenes, characters and colors are interwoven in illustration and tinting. Old English scenes and jolly engravings of St. Nicholas, with carollers and troubadors are popular subjects with which cards have been embossed, while the folder and booklet form of card is also soliciting a ready sale. Personal greeting cards are more in vogue than ever, with many and appealing designs featuring individuality.

The Examiner stock, this year, surpasses in beauty and variety anything that has ever before been offered. Because of the variety of type and printing facilities in this plant, those who are not satisfied by any of the stock cards, can have individual greetings printed to order.

Origin of Christmas Cards

The first Christmas card was attributed to Joseph Cundall, a London artist, and it is said the original was small- the size of a lady's visiting card, printed in lithography and colored by hand. About the year 1862 it became the popular custom to say "Merrie Christmas and a Happy New Year" with cards of greeting.

The most costly Christmas card ever made was prepared at the order of an Indian Prince for presentation to a lady of high rank whom he greatly admired. Although the card measured only 12 inches by 10 it meant six months' incessant work for the artists who produced it, and its value was estimated at more than two and a half million dollars when it was finished. The card was to be of ivory, but ordinary ivory would not do. Forty elephants were killed before tusks of exactly the right quality were obtained to yield the thin ivory card. On this four of the most talented Indian artists were then set to work. Their task was to reproduce on this tiny surface no fewer than ten thousand scenes from the life of the Hindu prophet, Buddha. Round the edge of the masterpiece, to form the frame for the artists' pictures, forty-four of the finest diamonds were set.

MEN REMANDED TO GET COUNSEL

Two Charged With Hold-up Come Up Again on Friday.

LONDON, Nov. 9.— (Canadian Press.)—Without pleading or electing trial, George Peters, New York City, and John Sherman Elliott, St. Thomas, alleged hold-up men, were to-day manded in city police court until Friday. The enlargement was granted to allow the men to engage counsel. An additional charge of shooting with intention to kill was laid against Elliott to-day, arising out of his unsuccessful attempt to shoot his way to liberty after Detective Sergeant Down and Detective Thomas Bolton of the local force had cornered the two men at Thorndale yesterday.

Both men are charged with robbery with violence resulting from a hold-up at the local depot of the London and Port Stanley railway on Monday night. The St. Thomas depot was robbed the same night and it is expected that Elgin county officers will lay charges against the men before Friday.

Regular List Firm; Unlisted Shares Lose

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—While a firm tone was displayed in the regular list on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, the active unlisted leaders had a tendency to ease slightly. British American Oil at 36½, Imperial Oil at 61½, and International Petroleum at 34⅛ all were fractionally lower. Walkers firmed at 59¾, and McColl was nearly a point higher at 49⅝. A three-point advance in Canadian Oil at 38 was a feature of the regular list, which was marked by moderate gains in Canners Preferred at 109¾, Industrial Alcohol at 41½, British Columbia Fishing at 75, and Dominion Stores at 95½. Internation Nickel sold down a point and a half at 66. In the banks, the features were the five-point gains in Commerce at 265 and Royal at 303.

Crop Damage Causes Wheat Prices To Go Up

CHICAGO, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—Influenced by crop damage reports from Argentina, wheat soon rallied today from an early decline. Buenos Aires despatches said some zones south of Cordoba were injured 25 per cent. Opening unchanged to ⅛c up, wheat dropped 1 cent in some cases but subsequently recovered to about yesterday's finish. Corn and oats were firm, corn starting unchanged to ⅜c up and later holding near to the initial figures. Provisions showed weakness.

Opening prices were:

Wheat, December 125⅞, March 129⅝. Corn, December 85⅜, March 89¾. Oats, December 49¼, March 51¼.

Few Changes Made Despite Heavy Turnover

TORONTO, Nov. 9. — (Canadian Press.)— In a mixed trend on the standard mining exchange this morning no sensational changes were recorded despite another extremely heavy volume of sales. Weaker side was led by Aconda, down 2½ at 35½. Dome down twenty at 11.30, Bidgood down four at 117 and Argonaut down 1½ at 38. Columbus Kirkland firmed at 8½ and Howey Gold on heavy turnover advanced five at 140. Teck Hughes sold up about four at 10.84. Jackson Manion unlisted leader, eased fractionally at 81¾.

Sharp Recovery Featured In Many Popular Issues

NEW YORK, November 9. Canadian Press. — Sharp breaks in stocks and the cotton dividend was the speculative interest in to-day's markets. There action in the stock market came after an early period of strength and probably was influenced by a drop of as much as $7 a bale in cotton prices, which followed the publication of an unexpectedly large crop estimate. The recent recovery in the stock prices had cancelled a substantial portion of sharp losses last month and a spirited advance in some of the high priced specialties un doubtedly had weakened the markets technical position. At their top figure of the morning such popular isues as General Motors, United States steel common and General Electric averaged about eight points above the recent lows, while Houston oil was nearly 30 points higher.

ALL SUPPORT P.E.I. APPEAL

Unanimity Feature of This Morning's Session at Ottawa.

WEST WANTS RESOURCES.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 9 (Canadian Press). — Prince Edward Island's appeal for increased subsidies at the Interprovincial Conference has received the support of all the other provinces, This, it is intimated, was a unique feature of further discussion on provincial subsidies by the conference to-day. The discussion was resumed by Premier Brownlee of Alberta.

In discussion of the whole subject, the Maritimes pressed for increased subsidies, while the Prairie Provinces wanted natural resources. Representatives from Ontario and Quebec did not take any active stand on the claims of the Maritime and Western Provinces.

U. S. ELECTION RESULTS.

United States election results at a glance:

New York State—Governor Alfred Smith, Democrat, triumphed a fight against a constitutional amendment which would provide for four year elections for Governor in presidential election years.

Philadelphia—Harry Mackey, Republican, defeated J. Moore, Independent, for Mayor.

Ohio — Anti-Saloon League was defeated in backing the Referendum Bill approved by the Legislature which would have put Justices of the Peace on a fee basis with authority to try violators of the Prohibition laws.

Republicans claimed control of the Legislatures of New Jersey and New York States.

San Francisco—Mayor J. Rolph, Jr., defeated James E. Power by a wide margin in the city and county election. This gives Rolph a fifth term of four years.

Mancilescu Trial Set For Thursday

VIENNA, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Advices from Bucharest state that the trial of M. Mancilescu for his alleged share in a plot to place former Crown Prince Carol on the Rumanian throne has been set for next Thursday. The trial, it is said, will take place at Kishenev, a distant town in Bessarabia, where the government will be better able to guard the prisoner.

It is also reported here that M. Mancilescu's wife was arrested yesterday.

RAYNOR TRIAL JAN. 17.

Judge Fixes Date of Hearing On 30 Charges of Fraud.

PICTON, Ont., November 9 (Canadian Press). — The date of the trial of Harry Raynor, automobile salesman, on more than thirty charges of fraud involving a large sum, was definitely set for January 17 next by Judge McLean, in Chambers to-day. Application for bail will be made to-morrow and probably opposed by the Attorney-General's Department.

DELAY NECESSARY.

Owing to the great number of coupons received during the Canadian Department Stores harvest festival having to be examined, it is found that there will be several days' delay before it is possible to announce the winner.

NO PLANES VISIT FLOOD AREA TO-DAY

Bad Weather Causes Postponement of Flight—Engineers Sent Out.

BOSTON, November 9. Canadian Press. — Because of the threatening weather here and snow in Vermont, no airplanes will fly from here to the flooded area to-day. The air was hazy in Boston and a little sleet spattered down in the early hours.

A consignment of 250 pounds of mail from Vermont points will be held at East Boston airport until better weather comes.

Engineers Make Survey.

WASHINGTON, November 9. — Canadian Press. — A survey of the New England flood area from an engineering standpoint will be made by army engineers under orders was announced to-day at the War department.

A report to-day from Major General Preston Brown directing the war department relief work in the flood area, said the general situation was improved and that the problems of restoring communication and establishing supply lines for the flood victims were being met.

TWO TRUE BILLS ARE RETURNED

Hearing of Criminal Case Begins at Cobourg This Morning.

COBOURG, Ont., Nov. 9.—The grand jury at the Fall Assizes returned two true bills today. Peter Seymonds, Oshawa, is charged with manslaughter, and Edward Payne with a serious offence against a 15-year-old girl. Morgan Hall appeared charged with a serious offence against a feeble-minded girl. This is his second trial, it having been granted by the First Division Court, Osgoode Hall, when an appeal was made on the grounds of misdirection by the presiding judge, Mr. Justice Logie.

Hall was formerly sentenced to two years imprisonment but has been out on $3,000 bail since the appeal was granted. Counsel for the Crown was R. V. Sinclair, K.C., Ottawa, and for the accused, E. M. Field, K.C., Cobourg.

Eleven jurors were challenged, ten by the defence, and one by the Crown. Those selected are Robert Alexander, Ernest Blanchard, Fred Grills, Edward Large, Neil Mutton, Willis Whiteside, John Walton, H. B. Wilson, Frank Darland, George Rogers, James Walters, and Alan Rogers.

The plaintiff's evidence was given very falteringly and with much prompting by Crown Counsel. She told about being attacked by the accused in a wood lot on the night of June 8th, 1926. She said she is a domestic, and knew the prisoner for a year. He had come to take her home two miles to her mother. Cross examined by Mr. Field, she admitted she lied to her mother at first, re where Hall had taken her. Examined by Mr. Sinclair, the witness identified a hair barette found in a wood lot. The trial is proceeding.

Wolves Kill Dogs In Apsley District

A few days ago hunters from Warsaw, hunting about 2½ miles from Apsley, had the misfortune to lose three hounds, which were killed by wolves.

It is reported that wolves and bears are quite plentiful this year, and another hound that belonged to the Warsaw party is missing, and it is feared that it has been killed and eaten by the wolves that killed the other three hounds belonging to the party.

FREDERICTON, N.B., November 9 (Canadian Press). — Deceived by the reflection of a leaden sky on the smooth surface of the St. John River, a Canadian Government aircraft dove straight into the river here this afternoon. In the plane were Flight-Lieut. C. N. Harrup, the pilot of the machine, Corporal Winship, mechanic, and C. Donnelly, photographer. All are from the Air Station at Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

Relieves Pains in the Back and Headaches

Mr. M. Dudar Now Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are good for all kidney troubles," writes Mr. M. Dudar, who resides at Garland, Man. "I had a severe pain in my back and suffered with terrible headaches. I read in Dodd's Almanac that Dodd's Kidney Pills are helpful for pains in the back, headaches, sleeplessness, etc., so I got a few boxes. They have made me very healthy."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills are so popular all over Canada is that people have tried them and benefitted. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for more than a third of a century.

Universal Church Planned By Abbe

WARSAW, Nov. 9.—One of the members of the Cathedral staff here, Abbe Oraczewski, today sent an outline to the newspapers of a new universal church which he hopes to found. He demands at least $100,000,000 to go to America, where he will found a new pontifical state. A new St. Peter's basilica will be built, surrounded by palace, legations and libraries, far eclipsing in grandeur the majesty of ancient Rome. The abbe declares his readiness to assume direction of this universal church under the title of Pontiff Adam II.

NEW APARTMENT HOUSE PLANNED

Out of Town Syndicate Said To Plan Big Building.

That property has been acquired on Charlotte Street by an out-of-town syndicate, with the intention of erecting a large size modern apartment house in the near future, is rumored in the city.

The rumor cannot be confirmed and it is not known whether there is anything in the story or not.

It will be recalled that about three months ago options were being obtained on properties west of Rubidge Street and Park Street, and whether this has anything to do with the rumor of an apartment house or not is not known.

If the project is to go ahead there is no no doubt some authentic news will be available in a short while.

STIRLING NEWS

STIRLING, Nov. 5.—The Rev. Mr. Grier of Campbellford was the preacher on Sunday afternoon at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, taking for his text the last verse of chapter 15, I. Corinthians. His sermon was listened to with marked attention. He divided his subject into three headings, and showed how church members could maintain a steadfast life by being regular attendants at the services on Sunday. Parents should cultivate the habit of attending church in their children, also have some form of family worship, and by an exemplary life be a benefit to the community. Mr. Grier deplored the fact that attendance at church was not what it used to be, and if this condition continued to grow upon the people, this might become an atheistic age.

A large number from Stirling attended the anniversary services at West Huntingdon Presbyterian Church on Sunday last and listened to able sermons both morning and evening. They continued their anniversary by holding a chicken supper on Tuesday night, which was largely attended by people from Stirling, as well as the surrounding community.

St. Paul's Anniversary.

The anniversary services in St. Paul's United Church on Sunday was a huge success. The Rev. D. C. Ramsay, of John Street Church, Belleville, was the preacher. The Church was filled to capacity both morning and evening by attentive listeners. The collections amounted to over $1,000. This church will continue their anniversary services next Sunday when the Rev. C. E. Bishop of Albert College will be the preacher at both services. The musical program at this church last Sunday, under the able leadership of Mr. Gerald Clute, was of a high order and rendered in a pleasing manner by the choir.

A new barber shop has been opened in the Whitby block by a young man from Peterborough.

Good progress is being made on the walls of the new hall and the workmen, if favored by good weather, expect to have the cement work in that respect pretty well in hand at the end of the week.

A very enjoyable evening was spent in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Monday evening when the Guild entertained the High School pupils and members of the School Board. In a few well-chosen remarks, the President, Miss Eva Green, welcomed the guests of the evening. Miss Freda Thompson then took charge of the program, which was as follows:

Hymn; Scripture lesson and prayer by Rev. A. N. Reid; reading, Miss Thelma Green; community singing; recitation, Phyllis Mitchell; solo, Arthur Duncan; speeches by Mr. J. S. Morton, representing the school board, Mr. Halpenny, Principal of the High School, and Mr. Jackson of the Public School. These were replied to by the Rev. Mr. Reid. A balloon contest was put on, also a musical contest, music being furnished by Mrs. C. Cain; piano solo by Mrs. R. Williams. After the serving of refreshments, a very pleasant evening was brought to a close.

Several members of the Stirling Women's Institute attended the annual convention of the Counties of Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland, held in Belleville last week.

WOMEN HEAR DISCUSSION OF

uselessness, in its opinion, of the League of Nations, and spoke of it as "the happy hunting ground of cranks and demagogues, used at Geneva as a stalking horse behind which preconceived plans were brought to consummation," from an American newspaper in which an admiral was quoted as criticizing the "suicidal policy" of the naval restriction scheme, and from a Toronto daily reporting on a great Orange gathering at which "fifty thousand British voices cheered Mr. So-and-So from Bowmanville, when he declared that Britain must rule the waves."

"Well, if men want Britain to rule the waves," said Mr. Mackenzie, "someone must pay the piper in dollars and cents. And, despite all these statements, it is a fact that the United States is spending double on its navy to the amounts expended in 1913 and 1914 ,and Great Britain is spending at least a hundred millions more on her Navy than when she had Germany on her neck, and that despite the fact that Britain has a Navy double in power and strength of any other European nation.

U. S. Has Money.

"We know, whether we like it or not, that the United States, by reason of her immense resources in money, is bound to win in case of any conflict with a foreign Power. Great Britain is maintaining a Navy stronger than all the others. Against whom? We are more or less left in the dark."

Mr. Mackenzie alluded to the fact that France recently passed a Bill piloted through by a Socialist member, allowing a general mobilization of all the man-power and resources of that country.

"In Europe to-day there are more men under arms than there were in 1914, and yet Germany, Austria, Hungary and Bugaria are disarmed."

Speaking of the magnificence of the heritage of Canadians in this great Empire or Comomnwealth, with its boundless resources "which make us an object of envy or hatred among less favored peoples," Mr. Mackenzie asked if we are making the best use of these things for ourselves and for others. "There has been a great deal of stupidity in the world, and selfishness and covetousness, distrust and misunderstanding."

Speaking of the post-war days, "when optimism ruled," when the Washington Conference on Naval Disarmament was held, Mr. Mackenzie declared this was not as futile at it appeared to be later. Ships with a total tonnage of 1,645,000 were dismantled in various signatories to that agreement, but a mistake was made in leaving auxiliary craft out of the scope of that treaty, and the finishing off process called later by Coolidge in the Naval conference at Geneva last summer, proved to be a dismal failure. In Mr. Mackenzie's opinion this was due largely to the insistence of the Anglo-Saxons present on being considered top dog, the struggle for supremacy between Great Britain and the United States rendering the conference useless.

He went on to speak of the section in the treaty of Versailles which called for the disarmament of Germany, which has been done, and the further obligation laid on Great Britain and France to disarm as soon as possible, a promise which has not yet been carried out by either country. He spoke of various proposasl which brought forward at different times in the league, sponsored by various nations, calling for disarmament and outlawry of war, which were opposed by other nations, Great Britain among them.

"The British say, 'disarm first and then you will be secure,' while France says, 'I want to feel secure first and then I'll disarm.' The question is always one of security."

Canada Protested.

Mr. Mackenzie read an extract from the platform of the Liberal party in England, proclaiming its desire to do away with war by every possible means. He went on to speak of Canada's security in its geographical isolation from the present European danger zone, which lies somewhere between Poland and Russia, of the great amount of land in the Dominion which makes it possible to choose another section to live in, if life becomes intolerable in a certain region, and of the friendliness of our powerful neighbor, the United States, who declared in her Monroe doctrine, a century ago, that in the event of any European power interfering with the American hemisphere she would be a party to the conflict. The British navy also constituted another strong element in the protective scheme of Canada.

'If Canadians carried their share of armaments, our taxes in consequence would make it impossible for you and me to live in the Dominion, and we would have to move over to the United States," he remarked rather pungently, in conclusion.

Speaking of his willingness to answer any questions, Mr. Mackenzie was asked by Miss Archer if Canada was not disarmed simply through the protection of the British Empire and its navy. He replied that the British navy constituted a strong element in its protection, "but whether you like it or not, the proximity of our powerful neighbor, the United States, makes for our security to a very great extent. We are in the position of a man sheltered by a very high hill."

Following the expression of appreciation by the president and the standing vote of thanks from the audience Miss Tomkins asked for a moment of silence in memory of the soldier dead and asked also that the National Anthem be sung with the hope that "we may hold up the torch of righteousness and peace that they threw to us."

THRIFT AND INDUSTRY.

The introduction of penny banks into Peterborough's Public Schools will be welcomed by parents in proportion to the extent to which the school bank inculcates thrift in the minds of the children.

If the amounts saved by the little ones prove to be merely another drain on the family pocket-book in addition to what is now spent on candy, the movies and other things, the parental reaction will be somewhat different.

But the remedy lies in the hands of the parents themselves.

If they lay down the rule that the children must save through the school bank a proportion of the amount they have been accustomed to throw away on things of little real value, the bank will be of genuine service.

Better still, however, would be the results were the children to be encouraged to earn the money they put into the penny bank.

The money earned produces a much better type of citizenship than does the "hand out," and should receive the hearty support of all parents.

The encouraging of boys and girls to earn their deposits in the school bank will do much to develop industry and thrift, and make better citizens all round of the youngsters of today.

Parents would do well to consider these facts in connection with the local adoption of the penny bank.

THE PERIOD OF SILENCE.

How many Peterborough people will at 11 o'clock on Friday morning remember November 11th nine years ago and stand for two minutes of silence in memory of those who gave up their lives in the Great War?

Recalling that day of almost delirious joy that saw the whole population of Peterborough give itself over to a demonstration of rejoicing unprecedented in the city's history, it is difficult to imagine that out of thousands who so unrestrainedly celebrated the end of the war there will be, judging by the record of other Armistice Days, a very large proportion who will completely ignore the request for a two-minute tribute to the memory of the Empire's dead.

It might well be expected that none who participated in that day-long outburst of wild rejoicing would ever forget.

And yet nine years after we find our stores stocked with German goods, our children will make merry over German toys at Christmas, we see German actors on the movie screen, and on Friday there will be many to whom 11 o'clock will mean merely an hour away from dinner.

The resumption of our trade relations with the enemy of less than a decade ago may have been inevitable, but there is no excuse for forgetting the heroic dead.

They gave their lives; surely those who remain can give two minutes a year to pay tribute to their memory.

Peterborough's observance of the period of silence should be complete.

THE HEALTH ASSOCIATION.

The Peterborough Health Association, in relying upon the sale of Christmas stamps to secure the funds needed for next year's budget, is confident that its record of service will so appeal to those who are asked to contribute as to leave no doubt of the result.

The Examiner feels certain that such confidence is fully justified.

If ever a local organization has given proof of its willingness and ability to efficiently serve the community that organization is the Health Association.

And if there is any community work that can be undertaken by any organization that is of more vital importance than any other that work is the task of looking after the health of the people.

It is impossible to estimate the economic value of what the Health Association is doing in Peterborough.

What estimate could be made, for example, of the dollars-and-cent value of putting delicate children on the road that leads to better health?

How can you take a pencil and paper and set down the value of the services of the district nurse?

The Health Association asks for $1,500 through the sale of Christmas stamps.

Place that sum on the scales against the wonderful work carried on in Peterborough by the Association and the amount asked for seems ridiculously small.

It should be forthcoming readily when the stamps reach the citizens to whom they are being mailed.

WRITE FOR THE EXAMINER.

Most people have a longing to see something they have written appear in print; there is a certain fascination about knowing that the product of your pen is being brought before thousands of readers.

The Examiner is making it possible for a number of Peterborough girls and women to satisfy that longing and at the same time to earn some money for themselves.

The plan was set forth in an advertisement in last evening's issue, and The Examiner is satisfied that this method of securing more personal and social news will appeal to many of our lady readers as a fascinating means of adding to their pocket money.

Naturally only a limited number of contestants can be accepted, and those who are interested should lose no time in registering their names.

The support of Examiner readers generally in behalf of the contestants is urged as a very material contribution toward a more newsy paper.

Regular space rates are to be paid for the material published, and in addition, there will be weekly prizes and a grand prize of $10.00, these being awarded on the basis of the most usable news submitted.

Contestants are not limited to personal and social news, but may submit news articles of general interest covering any topic of news value.

The Examiner hopes that the contest will be of benefit and value not only to the participants but to our army of readers.

SHIPBUILDING SUPREMACY.

To occupy the dominating position in the world's shipbuilding trade that they held before the war, British shipyards need not accelerate greatly the rate at which they have been overhauling the rest of the great nations. Figures in Lloyd's Register for the recent quarter show that there were 1,536,416 tons of shipping under construction in Great Britain and Ireland, and only 1,537,641 tons in all the countries abroad. That is to say, the British shipbuilding industry lacked just 1,200 tons of being equal to the rest of the world. A year ago British shipping under construction was 300,000 tons less than all rivals combined. A continuance of this progress for another year would put the tonnage of British merchant ships being built somewhere near the former position of advantage.

During the quarter under review, the launchings from British shipyards increased to such an extent as to show that the long period of depression has been passed and that one of the nation's most vital industries is well on the road to better conditions. The tonnage launched by Britain showed an increase of 86,997 tons for the three months ending Sept. 30. The total tonnage launched by other countries showed a decrease of 129,445 tons. The speeding-up in Britain has been apparent during the whole of the last year. The tonnage under construction showed a gain of 146,028 over June of this year and a gain of 761,619 over Sept. 30, 1926. The rest of the world could show a gain of only 87,000 tons over the June total. A comparison with pre-war shipbuilding figures shows the British industry to be producing about 80 per cent. of its output in the twelve months previous to the war. Production is at the highest peak reached since September, 1922.

Of the other countries, which by their combined efforts give British dockyards a battle for supremacy, Germany is the leader, Italy is second, France third, and Holland fourth. In all countries there is a distinct trend toward motor ships. The vessels now under construction throughout the world in which internal combustion engines are to be installed aggregate 1,589,510 tons, while the steam tonnage building amounts to 1,468,842. The motor tonnage thus exceeds the steam tonnage by 120,668. As for sailing ships, they amount to only an infinitesimal proportion, about one-tenth of one per cent. of the tonnage under construction.

In the present figures of the British shipbuilding industry there seems to be nothing to justify the fear that British enterprise is decaying.—London Advertiser.

THE PEACE RIVER COUNTRY.

A delegation from British Columbia is on its way to Ottawa to urge the importance of further railway construction to open up the Peace River country.

May we advertise the Peace River country to the conference of Provincial Premiers—at least to some of them—and to everybody in this part of the world?

This is such a big country, this Canada of ours. An English statesman was once passing through Ottawa, and being entertained at luncheon was introduced to a neighbor. "Let me make you acquainted with Mr. Magrath, M.P. for Medicine Hat," said the introducer to the Englishman. "he represents one of our parliamentary constituencies. It is about two-thirds the size of Ireland." "Is that a joke?" asked the visitor. "Introduce me, too," said another neighbor, "I represent a constituency nearly as large as England and Scotland put together." It was the Hon. Martin Burrell, then M.P. for Yale-Cariboo.

The English visitor asked how many parliamentary constituencies there were in Canada. When told there were 239, he remarked that perhaps he'd better go home before he got lost.

When such dimensions are suggested, one need not wonder that the Peace River country has been overlooked for a while. There are only about fifty million acres in it, nearly half of which are fertile soil.

The Peace River country is a name given to a block of land through which the Peace River runs. Part of it is in Alberta, part of it is in British Columbia. The Vancouver Sun, which has been conducting a fine campaign in behalf of some railway construction there, tabulates some of the main facts as follows:

"1.—Area of basin 200 by 400 miles, approximately half of which, or 20,000,000 acres, is highly adaptable for cereal crops. Ten million additional acres are fair soil.

"2.—The soil is rich; there are few stones, little muskeg and just enough timber for settlement purposes.

"3.—The entire area is low in altitude—2,500 feet and less.

"4.—The land has abundant precipitation and great capacity for retaining moisture, making the whole country one green garden.

"5.—Warm Japan current of the Pacific tempers the climate.

"6.—Precipitation: 15 to 20 inches annually.

"7.—And most important of all, the Peace River summer is peerless—long sunny days with only three or four hours semi-darkness."

Wheat in the Peace River country—this year there are ten million bushels of it—averages over 40 bushels to the acre; oats average over 100 bushels. Not many people there yet—plenty of room for a couple of millions.

A branch of the National Railways runs a little way into the Peace River country from Edmonton, reaching Spirit River. The British Columbia Government has planned a spur into the other side of the country from Prince George. The two need to be connected, to give a through route between the prairies and the ocean. The Vancouver Sun estimates that a through route complete and the construction of desirable branch lines would come within a cost of fifteen million dollars, equivalent to a cost of about 50 cents per acre of arable land. The construction it thinks would add $500,000,000 to the value of the country, and show in the not very distant future a production of $100,000,000 annually. Those are big figures, but discount them a good deal if you like, and there will be a big value left. It is a country and a condition well worth the attention of the Government of the Dominion as well as of the Governments of Alberta and British Columbia.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough was overlooked in the week-end distribution of snow. But so far there have been no complaints from local citizens.

Mayor Thompson explains that they don't speak English but American in Chicago. So that's what it is, eh?

The Dominion Experimental Farms have developed several new varieties of apples. Personally, however, we would be satisfied if we could get hold of some good specimens of some of the old-fashioned Ontario varieties.

In the Windsor-London controversy it is announced that the former is now leading by 25 blind-pigs, ten gaming houses and a police investigation.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., November 9 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was quiet, there being little or no demand from foreign buyers. A moderate amount of business was done in coarse grains in the domestic and prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of spring and winter wheat flour were well maintained under a quiet demand from all sources.

The millfeed trade was decidedly more active than it has been of late and the undertone was firm. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats also showed some improvement and values were steady.

There was no actual change in prices for eggs, but the undertone for strictly fresh was very firm on account of the increasing scarcity and the good demand. The movement of storage eggs is steadily increasing and prices were fully maintained. The receipts were 553 cases.

Owing to the colder weather prevailing and the increased demand from both local and outside buyers, a firmer feeling prevailed in the market for potatoes, and prices for the local province varieties advanced five cents per bag. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Whites were made at $1.35 per bag of ninety pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.35 per bag, in bulk; and Cobblers at $1.30 per bag in bulk, ex-track. Quebec grades were unchanged at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

A fair amount of business continues to be done in imported beans, and prices were unchanged. Sales of car lots of choice while hand-picked on spot were made at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, and smaller quantities sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

The butter market was moderately active and the undertone was steady. The receipts were 192 packages.

There was little business transacted in cheese, but the undertone was slightly firmer. The receipts were 2,408 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 9 (Canadian Press). — Wheat prices turned weak at the last yesterday, showing stubborn resistance earlier. Improved weather conditions in Argentina gave some advantage to the bear side of the market, and so likewise did the slackness of export demand ofr wheat from North America, with talk of probable further shipments of wheat to Chicago out of Duluth.

Final quotations on wheat were heavy, quarter cent to one cent net lower, whereas corn closed 1c to 1⅛c up; oats showing ½c to 1½c advance, and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 7c.

Late downturns in wheat values at Duluth tended to emphasize likelihood that considerable of the stock of wheat there would be brought to this city. At the same time, extremely optimistic unofficial crop estimates from Canada were in circulation. These estimates put the 1927 Canadian yield at materially above 500,000,000 bushels, an amount much in excess of preliminary Government figures. Meanwhile Canadian country marketings for Monday were announced as totalling 5,011,000 bushels, against 4,007,000 bushels a year ago.

According to yesterday's Argentine advices, neither rust nor frost appears to have done any important damage to wheat and the Argentine crop prospect is good, although an auspicious result for the season is yet by no means assured. News of better weather yesterday in Argentina was somewhat offset at times, however, by wintry conditions north and south of the Canadian line, threatening to delay the movement of wheat in that section. Export purchases of North American wheat yesterday were estimated at not to exceed 400,000 bushels, whereas the Liverpool stocks were up to 1,832,000 bushels, compared with 1,028,000 bushels last week and 440,000 bushels a year ago.

Influenced by predictions of rain or snow over a wide area and by disappointing returns from husking as well as by smallness of country offerings, corn prices rose yesterday to more than 4c over last week's low level. Receipts here were scant, only 88 cars arriving.

Oats developed independent strength as a result of sharp decrease in stocks here and elsewhere. Sales of 1,000,000 bushels to be put into store in Chicago were announced, though, as the day drew to an end.

For the most part, provisions were easy owing to lower quotations on hogs.

FITTING SERMON AT KEENE CHURCH

Rev. T. A. Rodger is Speaker at Second Service in Edifice.

In the evening, the church was packed long before the hour for service arrived, and many remained standing throughout the entire service. When the choir had entered, and before the regular service began, they sang four verses of one of the old familiar hymns. The service proper began with the singing of the 19th Psalm, after which Rev. Mr Fowler, Warkworth, read the lesson. Dr. J. C. Smith, of Lakefield, sang, "There's a Beautiful Land." His pleasing tenor voice is well known to the people of Keene, with whom he is always welcome. Mr. Fowler led in prayer and announced hymn 545, "Faith of our fathers."

Very sincerely, Mr. McCleary expressed his gratitude to the people from St. Paul's, Peterborough, Warkworth, Toronto, and Campbellford who had assisted in the service. As an anthem the choir sang "The Radiant Morn Hath Passed Away" (Woodward). Before the sermon, the hymn, "Come let us sing of a wonderful love," was sung.

As in the morning, Mr. Rodgers selected his text from the words of St. Paul, in his letters to Timothy, chapter 1, verse 15. Concisely his remarks were to proclaim the glory and the blessedness of the incarnation of Jesus of Bethlehem. He expressed his pleasure at hearing on the streets of Winnipeg a priest proclaim his belief in the deity. That Jesus came to save sinners, is an old story and a simple one. Even an infant may understand it. He himself had learned it at his mother's knee and had never forgotten it.

He asked that the people look first at the great purpose of the Son of God which was the manifestation of His love. Also there was a greater purpose, to cleanse men of their sins. In many churches the Gospel which was not focussed on the cross was being preached. This was not the true Word of God, but a fictitious gospel, vastly different from that which Paul professed and taught. This he illustrated by the story of Christ and Nicodemus and a modern occurrence where a bishop called to discuss matters of religion with one of his ministers who had accepted one of the fanatical beliefs. That the minister's belief was not wholly satisfactory was proved when he was asked to visit a dying man and say to him the things which he professed to believe. The minister did not have the courage to send a man to eternity with such poor assurance.

The true gospel was that Jesus Christ came to the world to save that which was lost. He did not come to cater to any particular class or creed, but to save all races and classes of mankind. In Skagway, Alaska, said Mr. Rodger, he had not met with very much success in his mission. He and a brother clergyman had entered a saloon and asked permission to hold service there. The permission was not immediately forthcoming. They were allowed to sing some of the less familiar hymns but none that were familiar, nor were they allowed to address the crowd of men who were present. But one ragged derelict asked for more of the story of Christ, and was invited to attend the church services. Much to the surprise of both ministers, he accepted the invitation and attended. The result was that the crowd followed his example and the church building was hopelessly inadequate to accommodate them. Nor had the man fallen off in his religious fervor.

Only a short time ago, a letter from the Klondike assured Mr. Rodger that the man was still living up to his creed. This was the sort of Gospel which the Christian church was preaching. It was the story of the mighty Saviour Who had converted Paul in the Bible times and Who was still saving men to-day. If the church goes forth properly equipped, said Mr. Rodger, nothing can stand in its way and he would feel that he had accomplished something if at the open ing of the beautiful Keene church, he could know that someone had definitely dedicated their lives to the work of God's kingdom.

After a brief prayer, Mrs. Wood and Mr. McCleary sang a duet. Mrs. Wood is from Toronto, and her assistance at the service was very much appreciated. The hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," and the benediction brought the evening service to a close.

Those who assisted with the music for the special services were: Mrs. Wood, Toronto; Miss Cullen, Peterboro; Dr. Cameron Smith, Lakefield; C. E. Clarke, Peterboro; Mr. Maycock, Warkworth. To these and to the people of all denominations who manifested their good will and fellowship by their attendance at the services, the Keene Presbyterian Church is extremely grateful.

PREMIER HOPES TO BE DICTATOR

Rumanian Newspaper Says Bratiano Is Arranging To Rule Land.

NO PERSONAL LIBERTY.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The independent newspaper Adeveru says yesterday afternoon it understands Premier Bratiano is preparing to establish a dictatorship throughout Rumania similar to that of General Primo D'Rivera in Spain.

"By the Prime Minister's order a project has been elaborated which will place Rumania under an exceptional regime in which draconian punishment will be applied to offenders Adeveru says. "All essential public liberties which until the present existed at least on paper will be abolished by this project, which will restrain the liberty of action of all citizens in intolerable fashion. The project has been submitted to the national assembly."

NEW DISTRESS STORIES HEARD

Tale of Starvation at Newport Denied—Five Canoeists Missing.

FLOODS RECEDE.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The latest tale of suffering in New England's flood disaster came today from a party of four men who tramped miles over torn roads and swaying bridges to Burlington to tell of a town face to face to starvation—Newport, Northern Vermont. At least three men had perished there, they said, with the possibility many more might have been claimed.

New stories of distress also came today from other parts of the stricken region, where a death toll of more than 140 has already been claimed. Five youths who started on a short canoe trip in Northern Maine have not been heard from since the storm broke but their canoe has been found. New Hampshire, however, found the damage not so great as at first feared while Connecticut rejoiced today at the decline of the flood crest.

NO DEATHS AT NEWPORT.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—A message from the Canadian Pacific agent at Newport, Vermont, today said there was no loss of life there and no danger of starvation as reported.

UNEMPLOYED PLAN MARCH ON LONDON

A. J. Cook Organizes Parade From Cardiff To London.

CARDIFF, Wales, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The tramp of marching feet of unemployed sounded here yesterday as they mobilized for a march on London coincident with the opening of parliament. A. J. Cook has recruited this "coxey's army" which he calls "a petition in boots" to call attention to conditions in the coal fields. The distance is 260 miles and the marchers expect to reach London November 20.

The Companionable Smock

There was a time not long ago when the smock was identified as the working costume of an artist, but of late it has been adopted as office uniform, house frock, and for every type of practical wear. Women find them more convenient to slip on and off, and they are very becoming, besides lending themselves to a variety of designs in cotton washable fabrics. The smock presented here is voted one of the attractive models. It is fashioned of cotton broadcloth in plain color, with collar, revers and large pockets of printed crotonne in a becoming design. There are gathers over the bust, and it has long set-in sleeves. No. 1230 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust size. Size 36 bust requires 2 yards 36-inch plain material, and 1¼ yards figured. Price 20 cents the pattern.

Many styles of smart apparel may be found in our new Fashion Book. Our designers originate their patterns in the heart of the style centers, and their creations are those of tested popularity, brought within the means of the average woman. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"I don't want you to think for a minute," Kate Lundy Lane began defensively, sniffing against the tears which Faith's unexpected embrace had brought to her sharp gray eyes, "that I'm going to butt into the family and make a nuisance of myself. I married Jim, not his family. He wanted me and needed me, and I reckon that's excuse enough for any woman of my age to marry a man that she's been fond of since the first minute she clapped eyes on him—poor thing!"

"'Poor thing!'" Cherry cried, almost beside herself with anger. "He's had a good home with Faith and then with Junior ever since Muggy died—oh, Muggy, Muggy!" Her voice broke and she began to cry like a desolate child.

"Now, Cherry," Jim Lane withdrew his hand gently from his wife's clasp and walked with a new dignity, not the shuffle to which his children had become accustomed, to the girl who sobbed uncontrollably, her head bowed on her crossed arms, her bright copper-and-gold curls lending new beauty to the cluster of grapes against which they fell. "Listen to your dad, Cherry. God knows I haven't intended any disrespect to your mother's memory, marrying again a little less than a year after her—her—after she left me," he said huskily. "But it ain't natural for a man to live with his children. They make him feel too finished. Pretty soon he gets to thinking he is used up and worthless, and he don't try very hard to get work or keep it when he's got it. No incentive, you might say. You children was always good to me—too good, as a matter of fact, so that I didn't do much to hold up my end of the burden. Reckon Faith and Junior's had many a night of worry for fear the old man was going to lay down on the job completely and let them support him."

"No, Dad, no!" Faith protested. "You did your share, raising us all, slaving for us and Mother. We loved having you——"

"I never expected to hear you say nothing else," Jim Lane said with gentle dignity, as his hand still patted Cherry's bowed, bright head. "But I didn't feel much like a man, let me tell you! So when Kate came along and made me ashamed of myself, for not being man enough to support myself and take care of my baby—for my job of raising Joy ain't finished yet, mind you—I bucked a little at first, but I soon gave in, and now Kate and me have come to let you children know that we're going to make a home for ourselves and for Joy if she'll live with us.

"Goody, goody gout,
Your shirt-tail's out!
Goody, goody gin,
Better stick it in!"

Joy started them all by carrolling inelegantly but with no attempt to disguise her delight. "I'm going to have a mama and papa of my own again, like the other kids! Can I call you Mama, Mrs. Lundy?" And she ran to the new Mrs. Lane and flung her thin little arms about the stout waist.

"Of course you can, if you want to," Mrs. Lane assured her, her broad face grimacing with tears which she tried to control. "If you'll let her come, Mrs. Hathaway, I'll do my best to be a good mother to her. Your father's got a good job, starting Monday, with a cabinet-maker. He's been fiddlin' around with his tools and some lumber in the shed of the house where I've been housekeeping, and he's got a real gift for making pretty furniture. He's going on salary at first—thirty dollars a week—and maybe pretty soon he'll have a shop of his own. And I'm going to do my part. I've got my plans all laid to run a little home bakery and do private catering for dinners and dances. I'd like to have your order, if you'll try me, Mrs. Hathaway, next time you give a party," she added to Faith respectfully but with dignity.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CLEVER TRICK

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"What are you buying that toy tin alligator for at this time, when it will not be Christmas for two months yet?" asked the dog gentleman who kept the six and seven cent store.

"Oh, I am going to take him home and play a clever trick on my wife and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy," answered Uncle Wiggily. "Ha! Ha! I thought this toy tin alligator was chasing me, champing his jaws the way he did," went on the rabbit gentleman who had picked up the plaything and was winding the spring. "And if it fooled me it will fool my wife and make Nurse Jane jump and squeal."

"Yes, I guess it will!" softly barked the dog gentleman while the little mousie girl clerks kept on opening packages of Christmas toys from the workshop of Santa Claus at the North Pole. The toys were being piled on the counters in the store. "It will be a fine joke to wind up this toy tin alligator and set him waddling over the floor at your wife and Nurse Jane!"

"A clever trick!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "It looks almost real, does this toy alligator."

Indeed Uncle Wiggily himself had been fooled by the green tin toy when he was looking about the store to see what he wanted to order in the way of Christmas presents for the forty-twelve bunny children. One of the mousie girl clerks taking the wind-up toy from the box in which it had come from the North Pole workshops of Santa Claus had dropped the little alligator on the floor. Away it started to crawl after Uncle Wiggily, causing him to jump on a counter until the dog laughed and told the rabbit the alligator wasn't real.

With the tin alligator wound up in his pocket, ready to be set down so it would twiddle its legs and tail, Uncle Wiggily hopped out of the six and seven store telling the dog gentleman who owned it that he would be back in time to do his Christmas shopping early.

"Oh, what a clever trick I am going to play on my wife!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as he hopped along. "It will be the best ever! How she will jump on a chair when she sees the tin alligator scrambling across the room. And how Nurse Jane will squeal! It will be as good as if I had an adventure. Ha! Ha! Ha!"

Chuckling to himself and twinkling his pink nose until it looked like a red popcorn ball, Uncle Wiggily hopped on toward his hollow stump bungalow, thinking of the clever trick he was going to play on his wife. When nearly home the rabbit sat down to rest on a mossy log in the woods and, before he knew it, he had fallen asleep.

But suddenly he was awakened by hearing a rustling in the dried leaves near him and, sitting up and opening his eyes, Uncle Wiggily saw something that made him leap in fear.

For coming toward him was the great, big, Skillery Scallery Alligator with the double-jointed tail. Open and closing his jaws, the big 'Gator waddled straight for the rabbit on the log.

"Oh! Oh!" gasped Uncle Wiggily. "Are you real? Are you alive?"

"Of course I'm alive!" gargled the 'Gator. "Why shouldn't I be?"

"I—I thought maybe you might be a big toy from the store!" faltered Mr. Longears.

"I'm no toy! I'm real! I'm alive!" bellowed the Alligator. "But you aren't going to be alive long! I'm going to eat you!" With that he made a jump for Uncle Wiggily. But the rabbit gentleman jumped too. He jumped behind the log and, as he did so, out of his pocket fell the toy green tin alligator. And, being wound up, the toy alligator started to crawl along the log.

As soon as the real, live Alligator saw the tin toy one he cried:

"Oh, my little Snappie! How did you come here! I thought you were safe at home when I started out to catch a rabbit for supper! How did you get here, Snappie? Come to Mother, dearie!"

"My gracious!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I've played a clever trick without knowing it! 'Gator thinks this toy green tin one is her little baby. Oh, maybe I'm saved after all!" And he was. For the tin alligator ran along the log, jumped off and ran along the ground. And the big, live Alligator, not knowing it was a tin toy, chased it, calling:

"Come to Mother, Snappie! Don't run away like that! Come here!"

But the tin toy ran on, for it was wound up tight and the hungry 'Gator chased after it off through the woods and then Uncle Wiggily had a chance to run home without being eaten. Of course he couldn't play that joke on his wife, but perhaps it's just as well he didn't.

The live alligator was as angry as could be when at last she caught the little one and found it only made of tin. But it turned out for the best, I think.

Does Ill Health Detract from Your Good Looks?

Hamilton, Ont.—"I was in a rundown state of health, my nerves were bad and I suffered from backaches and pains in my side, which would be so severe that I would get weak and have to lie down. I could not eat without being distressed. Upon the advice of a relative I started to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it relieved me of all my distress, and I do not suffer in any way from any of the above conditions. I have a good appetite and my nerves are in splendid condition. I am strong and healthy in every way."—Mrs. George Turansky, 373 Ferguson Ave. North.

Wild Raspberries

from Muskoka give McLaren's INVINCIBLE Jelly that Matchless Flavor

"DIFFERENT", "Distinctive", "Subtle", "Zestful". Delighted women use these and kindred words to express their opinions of McLaren's "Invincible" Raspberry Jelly. Invariably, too, other members of the family detect the natural, "real fruit" tang and marvel at the fullness of the flavor.

The explanation lies in the addition of the actual juice of Muskoka wild raspberries to just enough highly-refined gelatine to assure that tender consistency that is another "proof of quality" in McLaren's "Invincible" Jelly. These luscious wild raspberries are crushed while dewy fresh and are sugar-sweetened, so that you get the full benefit of their well-known, enticing flavor.

By the same distinctive process, the actual juices of choice fresh strawberries, cherries, pineapples, grapes and currants are made the foundation flavors for other "Invincible" Jellies.

Good grocers everywhere have

2,000 IN SCOTCH CHOIR.

In connection with the Edinburgh Musical Festival held recently in the Scotch city, a choir of 2,000 voices sang familiar Scotch Psalm tunes. The leaders were Sir Richard Terry and Geoffrey Shaw. Many of the songs were accompanied by a pipe organ, and some were rendered unaccompanied. Singing to organ accompaniment, Sir Richard said, at the event, left him "cold," unless the singing was very good, but the old Psalms sung by a large choir, unaccompanied, thrilled him "to the marrow." His remark that he wished that the advocates of the "sickly nineteenth century part-songs, of which there were many in the hymn books, might be present to hear it," won applause from the audience.

Queen Mary is known to have a strong dislike for the knee-length skirt, when worn with head-dress and train. As a consequence, many debutantes at the recent Royal Court for the first time in their lives experienced the novelty of wearing frocks which almost touched their toes.

A woman on trial in Oklahoma City for alleged murder was attended in court by sixteen little girls of her Sunday school class.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

CAVAN UNITED CHURCH.

CAVAN, Nov. 9.—Very successful anniversary services were held in the Cavan United Church on Sunday. The Rev. R. B. Ferris, Toronto, preached inspiring sermons morning and evening to large and appreciative congregations. The choir furnished special music, which added to the enjoyment of the services.

The Rev. Mr. Ferris has for some time been connected with Sunday School work, being Secretary of the Ontario Religious Education Council. In December Mr. Ferris will again take up ministerial work, having accepted a call to Knox Church, London.

On Monday evening the usual fine fowl supper was served in the Community Hall. A very large crowd was served in the basement. There was plenty of fowl and all other good things to eat. The proceeds were upwards of $250.00.

The program was good. Mrs. McNeilly, Peterborough, gave a number of excellent readings, generously responding with a humorous encore to each number. Messrs. Hendry and Smith, also of Peterborough, delighted the audience with their songs. Mrs. Totten and Mrs. Winslow played duets, which were much enjoyed. An instrumental trio was played by Mesdames Winslow and Totten and Miss Helen Staples. The Rev. J. O. Totten ably filled the position of chairman.

The Ladies' Aid are to be congratulated upon the success of this, their annual fowl dinner.

ST. PETER'S CHURCH, MADOC.

MADOC, Nov. 9.—St. Peter's Presbyterian Church held their anniversary services on Sunday. The decorations of the church were bittersweet and flowering plants.

The choir provided special music, and Miss Marian Henderson, from Whitby Ladies' College, sang a much appreciated solo. The special speaker of the day was Rev. J. Cordner, of London, Ont. He also preached at Tweed in the afternoon.

In the evening the services were opened by a ten-minute song service. Rev. J. Cordner again gave a special message on "The Things Worth While." Miss Lenore Vandervoort sang "The Holy City" and Mrs. Yule, of Tweed, sang "Almost Persuaded," both being very beautifully rendered and with good effect. The choir also supplied a very beautiful anthem, in which the solo parts were given by Mr. Gillespie and Miss Vanderwoort.

The Thanksgiving supper was served to a splendid crowd on Monday evening. The tables were beautiful and the viands abundant and appetizing.

The program afterwards was supplied by the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton, and the visiting ministers. Rev. T. G. Marshall was present at all the services and added much to each by his timely remarks.

ZION CHURCH.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 9.—Anniversary services were held at Zion Church here on Sunday last with Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, B.A., B.D., as preacher for the day. He delivered two splendid inspirational addresses which were much appreciated by the crowds which almost filled the church both morning and evening, in spite of the almost winter-like weather conditions. Mr. Wilson's text at the morning service was from Genesis 26:18, "And Isaac dogged again the wells of water which they had dogged in the days of Abraham, his father, for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham." He compared the wells of old with some of the wells of modern Christian religion which were filled up and needed to be dug out again. Some of these were: The Scriptures, prayer, Christian experience and the passion for the saving of mankind.

At the evening service the text was II. Peter 1:5-8, "And beside this giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity."

The speaker showed clearly how essential each of these attributes of the true Christian is to the others.

The choir rendered special music at both services. At the morning service a male quartette was given by Messrs. Fred. Barnum, George Anderson, Thomas Fry and Harold Barnum. The feature of the evening service was a beautiful solo by Miss Helen McDonald, of Campbellford, which was much appreciated by everyone present. Miss Edna Connor, also of Campbellford, acted as accompanist for Miss McDonald.

The minister and officials of the church are deeply gratified at the success of the anniversary occasion under such adverse weather conditions.

In a financial way the services were also successful, over $130.00 being placed on the plates, this being more than the amount asked for.

POLICE THINK THEFT MOTIVE

Believe Men Thought Steel Casket Guarded Valuables.

MARMORA ATTEMPT.

TORONTO, Ont., November 9. — Although the three men held in Belleville on charges of tampering with the grave of Mrs. B. C. Hubbell, at Marmora, have refused to talk, Provincial Police Headquarters here is convinced that the attempted robbery was inspired by a search for jewellery.

It has become known that there is no jewellery in the casket of Mrs. Hubbell, who died eight years ago, but the theory of police here, who arrested two of the men, is that widespread gossip in the Marmora district since the woman's death led to the crime.

Mrs. Hubbell's casket is encased in a steel vault, believed to be the only one in the Marmora Cemetery. Mr. Hubbell is an undertaker, and inquiries have elicited the information that he purchased this vault some time before his wife's death, with the intention of selling it. Such vaults were an innovation then, and the undertaker failed to sell the one he had in stock. When his wife died, therefore, he encased her casket in the steel receptacle, and this novelty in funeral equipment caused much talk. Gossip spread, and the conclusion arrived at by the townsfolk was that the vault was used as a precaution against robbery, and that valuables had been enclosed in the casket.

For eight years this story has been current, and the police believe it finally reached the ears of two of the men who are now held, Frank Sullivan and Philip Revoy. The other man, Ewart Warren, formerly of Marmora, has told the police that these two men paid him $10.00 to show them the location of the grave.

PARIS RECEIVES TARIFF REPLY

Expected Negotiations Will Now Proceed Under Favorable Conditions.

NO COMMENT MADE.

PARIS, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Washington's latest note on the Franco-American tariff negotiations was delivered at the Quai d'Orsay yesterday evening.

It is considered here on the strength of Washington dispatches as merely registering observations of the last French note on the matter and as not requiring an answer. Comment on the document was refused at the Foreign Office, where it was said, however, that there is every reason to expect now that the negotiations will proceed under favorable conditions.

The Franco-American experts, having finished the list of American articles on which the minimum tariff will be afforded pending the negotiations, a decree putting the same into effect is expected immediately.

Active negotiations, however, may be somewhat delayed by the fact that French tariff experts are already at work on a Franco-Belgian commercial agreement, and may not be available immediately for negotiations with the United States. These experts will make every effort meanwhile to get through with their work on the commercial agreement as soon as possible.

BULGAR KING FEARS SLAVS

Changes Plans To Return Home Through Rumania Instead of Jugo-Slavia.

FEELING IS BAD.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Rumanian newspapers assert that the action of King Boris of Bulgaria in returning home through Roumania instead of Jugo-Slavia was prompted by fears of possible attempts against his life. It is said the king felt it would be dangerous to travel through Jugo-Slavia, which has become embittered toward Bulgaria because of depredations by Bulgarian bandits along border.

"If I have anything to say about it, from now on the doors will be locked" the good woman declared.

WRONG FIGURES GIVEN.

Campbellford, Ont., Nov. 7, 1927.

The Examiner, Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—I would beg a little space in your valuable paper asking you if you would kindly make a correction concerning the appeal against one of my assessments. The reporter's account said that I appealed my assessment of $500, and it should have read $1,250.

Now it is all right that this should appear in print. I also think the nature of the matter discussed with the Council a few minutes later should also have been put in print, but no mention was made of it. It would seem that they do not care to talk of it, and yet it is nearly a year since they sprung this on me without any intimation and gave me no chance to defend myself.—Yours truly,

BUSY DAYS FOR FARM JUNIORS

Crowded Program Faces the Youths Who Won Trips to Winter Fair.

TO INSPECT PLANTS.

Three days that are brimful and flowing over with interest and entertainment are in prospect for the five hundred Ontario farm boys, ten of them from this County, who are to visit the Royal Winter Fair and the City of Toronto as the guests of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Entertainment, but not merely that; everything on the crowded program that has just been announced by R. S. Duncan, Director of Agricultural Representatives, who is supervising the arrangements for the trip, is there for a purpose. At the Royal Fair the boys will see, for one thing, the "Jubilee of Agriculture" exhibit which the Dominion Government and the different Provinces are staging to show in a striking way the progress that has been made in the Dominion's greatest industry since 1867, and to demonstrate the amazing variety of high quality live stock and farm produce raised in Canada today. In the show ring they will watch judges of international reputation place pure-bred animals from nine Provinces and many States. It will give them lasting ideals of the types that the foremost breeders are striving for, ideals that will influence their own plans for the home farm.

Live stock, grain and seeds, fruit and vegetables, poultry, rabbits and foxes, dairy produce and honey—they will see them all. On the first night they will pass in review before Lord Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada, who will open the Fair, and for the rest of the evening they will watch horses from the finest stables on the continent take the jumps under skilled riders.

More than all this, they will have the magic password that will gain them entry to the huge farm implement manufacturing plant of the Massey-Harris Company; they will see Union Stock Yards and packing plants and gain a first hand knowledge of cattle, sheep and swine market requirements; will go through several large commercial institutions to see how big city business concerns are run. These lads are to live high during their visit; a luncheon at the guests of the Government of Ontario other big spreads as the guests of the packers, the implement people and different commercial concerns, winding up with a theatre party on the final night. The boys will sleep in Spadina House, in the centre of the city, and will breakfast each morning at Hart House, in the great dining hall used by the students of the University of Toronto.

In order that they may bring back a clear story to the folks at home and observe more closely for their own benefit an essay competition has been arranged. Three prizes will be awarded for essays in this county and the best will be entered in a Provincial championship class.

Five hundred boys, possibly ready for a rest, but carrying away a store of knowledge of agricultural and industrial progress that will make them proud of their country and their calling, will leave Toronto on November 13.

COMMUNICATION IS RESTORED

credited with being of the opinion that no measures for future flood control could be taken, but, undeterred by any fears of the future, work was started in the wrecked towns to rebuild homes on the sites which were swept by the high water.

An Associated Press Massachusetts Institute of Technology radio station, forging ahead along the White River, found men working everywhere to dig away mud and refuse. The only need expressed was of more men to do the same work. The situation was the same in Randolph, Vt., from which few reports had been received since last Thursday.

Fear Cold Weather.

Fear of cold weather and the possibilities of disease spurred on the workers in the towns and the relief agencies. Generally little actual suffering was reported, however, as those who lost their possessions were being cared for by others less unfortunate.

Altogether it was estimated yesterday that upwards of 7,500 persons were being given aid in the flood regions of Massachusetts and Connecticut. The Red Cross alone reported 4,620 being cared for in Vermont and 1,920 in Massachusetts. Hundreds of others are receiving aid from other organizations, municipalities und private sources.

In Western Massachusetts the work of clearing up the debris was pushed ahead. State officials estimated that it would take a quarter of a million dollars to repair highways alone.

Boston itself faced the prospect of feeling the effects of the flood for a long time with a prediction that the local milk supply, largely obtained from Vermont, would not be normal for six months.

THREE ORPHANS

she smelled smoke and heard the hiss of flames, and at that moment the lights went out, the fire having severed the wiring, and telephone connections as well.

The alarm communicated to him. Rev. Thomas Rainone, chaplain of the institution, was forced to travel half a mile to the nearest telephone to get in touch with the Peapack Fire Department. In the meantime he notified three male employees whose quarters were in the building, but by that time the rescue work had been completed. Again and again the nuns groped their way to the cribs of the children, ranging in age from 3 to 10 years, Sister Gabriel collapsing three times. The last few boys were handed to the male attendants, who rushed to the main entrance of the building.

Slept Through Experience.

Many of the boys slept through the experience and continued to sleep after they were transferred to the main building of the institution.

The building destroyed was a long, low, two-storey structure reconstructed from a carriage house. It was valued at $100,000.

ELOCUTION RECITAL.

Under Auspices of Sentinel L. O.L. 2322 at Petherick's Corners.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 9. —On Friday evening last the Sentinel Hall was packed to the doors when Miss Jessie Tuite, of Belleville, elocutionist of much renown, gave an excellent recital under the auspices of Sentinel L.O.L., 2322. Miss Tuite's selections, whether of the humorous or serious variety, were always well rendered, and the storms of applause which invariably followed her efforts showed in a marked degree her popularity with local audiences. The Jones Bros. Orchestra gave three musical numbers to add variety to the programme.

At the close of the entertainment the members of the lodge and their faithful lady assistants served the feast of pie for which local ladies are justly famous. While no pie-eating records were established, it is safe to say that everyone left feeling quite satisfied as regards both pie and the entertainment provided. The proceeds of the evening were in excess of $113.00.

To Hold Concert.

The members of the L.O.B.A. 129 propose holding a concert in the hall on the evening of December 2, when Miss Floyd, elocutionist, also of Belleville, will be leading entertainer.

Attend Conference.

A representative of the local Young People's League attended the annual conference of the Bay of Quinte Young People at Smith's Falls on Wednesday and Thursday of last week and reports a most interesting and inspiring series of sessions, with splendid reports of the work done and a bright outlook for the future.

The convention opened on Wednesday afternoon in the Smith's Falls United Church, of which Rev. J. Semple is pastor. The opening session was devoted to hearing of reports and the forming of committees, etc., for the work of the convention. At 5.30 supper was served by the Ladies' Aid of the congregation, and the evening session met at 7.30, with G. H. Holton, Belleville, the President, presiding. Addresses of welcome were given by the Mayor of Smith's Falls, the President of Renfrew Presbytery, and the pastor of the church, to which Mr. Holton replied. After the presentation of the inter-Presbytery debating series diplomas, the final debate took place. This was the chief item of interest for the evening. The topic was, "Resolved, that war, except in cases of invasion or internal rebellion, should be declared by a direct vote of the people." The affirmative was upheld by Messrs. Franklin Bannister and Harold Blaikie, of Garden Hill, Cobourg Presbytery, while Mr. Donald Affleck and Miss Lillian Wilson, of Pakenham, Renfrew Presbytery, supported the negative. Judges were: Mr. C. H. McKinnon, Crown Attorney; Mr. Rudlin, Principal of the Collegiate, and Rev. E. R. Harston, of Campbellford. They gave the negative debaters the decision after a close battle, in which the fluent oratorial efforts of Miss Wilson overshadowed the cool, methodical and precise work of the affirmative team. Many hearers were of the opinion that while the negative of the debate won on the n.t's work, that the points brought forward by the affirmative would serve to stir the public mind to a greater sense of its duty in this important matter.

A short address from Rev. Manson Doyle, Secretary of Young People's Work, closed this session.

The Thursday morning session was chiefly devoted to business, and various reports and suggestions were brought in which gave place to a good deal of discussion.

Dinner was served again by the Ladies' Aid, and immediately after groups were formed to discuss various phases of the work.

Rev. Manson Doyle led a group on leadership training where many ways of training those desirous of leading young people and boys' and girls' groups were given. The Cobourg Winter School received a prominent place; also the Summer Schools at Lake Park for the east and Oak Lake for the west.

The report of the Nominating Committee on the election of officers was as follows:

Hon. President—Rev. C. W. DeMille, Oshawa.

Past President—E. H. Brown, Port Hope.

President—G. H. Holton, Belleville.

Vice-President—W. T. McKenzie, Napanee.

Secretary—Miss Ridley, Belleville.

Treasurer—J. R. Baird, Port Perry.

The following are Conveners of the departments:

Christian Fellowship—Rev. C. D. Daniel, Campbellford.

Citizenship—Mr. Lindsay Anderson, Campbellford.

Missionary—Miss Marion Farmer, Port Perry.

Literary and Recreation—Miss Jessie McIvor, Kingston.

C.G.I.T.—Miss Susie Brace, Smith's Falls.

C.S.E.T.—Mr. Trevor Miller, Peterborough.

The inspirational address of the afternoon was given by Rev. George A. Williams, of Formosa, who is on furlough to his home in Ontario. Mr. Williams gave a wonderful account of his experiences among his native friends, and mingled with his remarks was the urgent plea for volunteers who would consecrate themselves to the great and noble work of sending the gospel of Christ to those who sincerely wanted it but could not get the saving message because there was no one to carry it to them. Mr. Williams' address left a profound impression on his audience, many of whom left with a new vision of the great missionary enterprise.

The delegates were then for an hour the guests of the business men of the town and the Smith's Falls league, who provided cars to take them over the town and point out the interesting things about the pretty and bustling town on the Rideau Canal. Incidentally, the canal provides one of the most beautiful scenes in the town with a splendid park along its banks.

At 6 p.m. the Ladies' Aid served a banquet in the church basement with about 150 present. After everyone had feasted to the full, addresses were given by Revs. Daniel and Hie on Winter and Summer School work, while Miss Susie Brace and Mr. Ronald Hughes, of Perth, spoke on C. G. I. T. and C. S. E. T. work. Various stunts were then put on by the various Presbyteries, which were mirth-provoking as well as interesting and educational in some cases. Renfrew won the prize.

The final mass meeting of the convention was held on Thursday evening at 7.45, with President Holton presiding. The newly-elected officers were installed by Rev. C. W. DeMille, who also performed an interesting ceremony, the christening of the infant daughter of his friends, Rev. J. and Mrs. Semple. In this he was assisted by Rev. E. R. Harston and Rev. T. S. Troop, Moderator of Renfrew Presbytery. After music by the Smith's Falls United Church choir, the final closing address was given by Rt. Rev. Bishop Willard Brewing, of Toronto, Bishop of the Evangelical Anglican Churches of America. His address was deep, inspiring and filled with the plea for consecrated service to Jesus Christ. His address was indeed a fitting end to the finest conference ever held by Quinte Young People.

WEALTH BRINGS TROUBLES

Since the days of his childhood George Remus has been consumed with an overpowering ambition to win wealth and power. He chose the bootleg liquor route and learned that eighty per cent. of the bonded liquor in the United States was stored in the vicinity of Cincinnati, Ohio. Accordingly he chose that city as the headquarters of his campaign. In two and a half years his liquor sales grossed $75,000,000. But finally the law laid him by the heels and sent him to Atlanta penitentiary. Just before his recent release, his second wife launched a divorce action against him. Remus in turn filed a counter suit against her and, it is said, decided to kill his wife. After trailing her through several states, into Ontario and back to Ohio, he is alleged to have shot her down in Cincinnati the other day. He now is charged with first degree murder. Mrs. L. Krauss, his first wife, and Romola Remus, a daughter by the first marriage, hastened from Chicago to Cincinnati to be beside him. Mrs. Lillian Remus Krauss and Romola Krauss are shown at the LEFT. In the CENTRE is the deposed bootlegger czar himself while at the UPPER RIGHT is the late Mrs. Imogene Holmes Remus, for whose slaying Remus is now facing a first degree murder charge. At the LOWER RIGHT is her daughter by a previous marriage, twenty-year-old Ruth Holmes Remus.

W.M.S. MEETING.

November Meeting of Trinity United Church Society Held at Madoc.

MADOC, Nov. 9.—The November meeting of the W.M.S. of Trinity United Church, Madoc, was held in the church parlors. The attendance was not as large as usual, but a good program was provided. After the opening prayer and hymn, the subject of a bazaar or a home-cooking sale was discussed, and Rev. Mr. Rivers was called on and explained the scheme of a church supper and discussion that was under consideration. The members of the W. M. S. agreed to put on the supper for the purpose proposed.

The Watch Tower and a solo by Mrs. A. Kincaid followed, and then the study book was introduced and explained by Miss A. Wood and Mrs. Ashley.

The meeting was closed by the Mizpah benediction.

Mrs. Harrison presented her resignation of the office of President, owing to her plans for an extended trip during the next few months.

Thanksgiving Services.

The Sunday morning services at all the churches were those of Thanksgiving and praise.

At Trinity United Church Rev. G. W. Rivers led the thoughts of both children and their elders in the Thanksgiving service, and both hymns and anthems assisted in the Thanksgiving theme.

The evening services were withdrawn as St. Peter's Presbyterian Church were holding their anniversary services, and both pastor and people desired to attend.

Sunday School was held as usual with a growing attendance.

Earle Sande Refused Jockey License by Commission

ACCUSED OF FOUL RIDING IN FUTURITY

Indicated Suspension Continue Indefnitely But Would Not Be Permanent.

WITNESSES HEARD.

Spoiled One of the Principal Stakes. Says the Chairman.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Earl Sande yesterday pleaded in vain with the Maryland Racing Commission for restoration of his jockey license, revoked for alleged foul riding in the Pimlico Futurity Friday.

Chairman James A. Latane indicated Sande's suspension would continue indefinitely but would not be permanent. The noted jockey cried when he left the hearing. He was accused of fouling Chick Lang riding Reigh Count, the favorite, in the Fall classic. Sustaining charges of Pimlico officials, the commission disregarded Sande's statement and the testimony of three jockeys competing in the race.

"You have come here and spoiled one of our principal stakes by your foul riding", Latane told Sande. "There is no question in my mind but that you are guilty just as you have been charged and I see no reason to change the decision at this time. We will give you careful consideration at the proper time."

Deeply affected, Sande waved his hands toward his brother jockeys who had appeared in his behalf. Almost shouting, he said: "Aren't you going to give them credit for telling the truth? gentlemen, I have not been given a square deal."

In his statement Sande reiterated his statement that Chick Lang, coming up on the inside, had seized his blouse and had pulled him against Reigh Count. Jockeys J. McCoy and George Ellis supported Sande's statement. L. Morris, up on Glade, winner of the race, corroborated statements of the other jockeys. Sande reached for Lang only after he had been nearly pulled from his horse and then merely to save himself from falling, Morris asserted.

BRUINS HAVE GOOD PROSPECTS

Last Year's Members Will Be Seen in Their Old Positions.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—With the opening of the National Hockey League only six days distant, the Boston Bruins look forward to their winter campaign with even brighter prospects than a year ago when they were contenders for the world's championship.

When the Bruins go on the ice against the Chicago Black Hawks in the first game of the season, they will have the veteran combination that carried them into the 1927 championship series in which they were vanquished by the Ottawa Senators. All of the players who had an outstanding part in the success of the Bruins last season will again be wearing the Boston colors.

Sprague Cleghorn, veteran defense man, is again captain and he is also acting as assistant to manager Art Ross as coach. Eddie Shore, Percy Galbraith, Frank Frederickson, Jim Herberts, Lionel Hitchman, Harry Oliver and Hal Winkler are other members of last year's aggregation who will be seen in their old positions. Two players who were among Boston last year will be missing. Will Coutou, who was banished from the League for an attack on a referee during the Stanley Cup series in Ottawa and Red Stuart, who has been sold to Minneapolis.

For replacements the Bruins have an abundance of promising material, however, in Fred Gordon and Harry Connor, wing men; Nobby Clark, Dit Clapper and Norman Gaynor, defence men, and Lolo Couture and Martin Lauder, centers. Clapper is already a favorite with Boston fans, having played a brilliant game for the Boston Tigers in the Canadian-American League last season.

SAYS TY COBB ACTED WISELY

In Writing Finis To Brilliant Career on Baseball Diamond.

ONE OF THE STARS.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

Ty Cobb has probably played his last game in the major leagues. I see that he has made an unofficial announcement to that effect.

It is in keeping with what he said to me late in September.

Working back of the plate at Philadelphia in a game between the Cleveland Indians and the Athletics, a recurrence of an old knee injury caused me to retire early from the game. I was taken to the quarters of the Philadelphia trainer in the clubhouse for treatment.

A few innings later Ty quit the game to catch an early train for the west in order to make connections at Chicago for a hunting trip he had planned in Wyoming.

"I think today's game was the finish of my big league career. I have had a good season and, if I'm smart, now is the time for me to quit."

Both of us then enjoyed a laugh over a retort that I would always hand Ty when the two of us had some slight difference of opinion. It's the same old chatter that umpires always spill to stars during the heat of a dispute.

Often, when Ty would question my judgment or eyesight, I would laconically reply that possibly all he said was true but that I expected to be doing business at the same old stand when he was all washed up.

"Looks as if you would outlast me and make good on that sarcasm that you used to slip me as well as the other boys about being up in the big show after the rest of us had taken our final shower", said Ty.

That conversation strengthens my belief in Cobb's statement that he has played his last game as a big leaguer.

It is a rather interesting coincidence that Cobb and I broke into the American League at practically the same time. He played a few months in the fall of 1905; I made my debut in the spring of 1906.

It so happens that Ty Cobb, at the close of the 1927 season, was the only player still in the majors who was a member of the American League when I started.

Cobb has seen hundreds of players come and go in his 23 years. Yet his last season was one of his best. He finished in the first five batters.

It is to be hoped that Cobb is sincere in his decision to retire and I feel that he is. It would be a shame for him to keep on going when not physically fit to do his best, thereby dimming the many remarkable accomplishments credited to him.

Unquestionably Cobb is the greatest ball player I have seen in action covering my career of 25 years. It is reasonably safe to say, without fear of contradiction, that he is the greatest ball player of all time.

Dr. Logan And Trainer Fined For Swim Hoax

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Dr. Dorothy Logan and her trainer, Horace Carey, the Hythe bus driver, the central figures of the recent Channel swim hoax, pleaded guilty to perjury before the Lord Mayor of London. Dr. Logan was fined £110 (about $550) and Carey £55 (about $275).

Now it is a question whether Dr. Logan also is liable to action by the General Medical Council, as all convictions against medical practitioners are reported to the council.

After passing sentence the Lord Mayor scored Dr. Logan, not only for perpetrating the hoax on the public, but also for treating with contempt and ridicule the British legal system. Dr. Logan's defence was that she already had been punished enough, that she had been called a swindler up hill and down dale, although she did not profit a penny by the hoax. Carey pleaded that he could not read well and did not appreciate what he was doing.

Home-Run Kings Back In New York After Three Week's Barnstorming Tour

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig were back in New York yesterday with their pockets full of new records and cash after a three week's tour of the country as baseball's "greatest show on earth."

The famous Yankee home run twins and their act, made up of good-natured kidding and horse play interspersed with high-powered samples of heavy hitting, travelled 8,000 miles, played before 220,000 persons—mostly kids—and autographed 5,000 baseballs.

Of the 21 games in 20 cities in nine States from Rhode Island to California, 13 were broken up before the ninth inning by youthful admirers. Schools were closed for the occasion in San Jose, Marysville, and Sacramento, California. This travelling two-ring circus played in Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado and California. Offers for 39 additional games were received from 19 States by Christy Walsh, who handled the tour.

Pitching to each other much of the time, Babe and Lou came out about even in hitting success. Ruth led in home runs, but Gehrig had the better batting average, the same situation as prevailed in the regular playing season.

Gehrig's batting average for the tour was .618 with 89 times at bat, 55 hits, and 13 home runs.

Ruth's mark was .616 with 99 times up, 61 hits and 20 circuit slams.

GRANGE EXPECTS TO PROFIT $50,000

Reap From His Third Season of Professional Football.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Approximately $50,000 is the sum Red Grange expects to reap from his third season of pro football.

The Gallopin' Ghost of Illinois played before 75,000 fans in his first five games, and has 13 more to go. He expects to play before 400,000 fans this season.

Next to Grange, Benny Friedman, former Michigan star, will get the highest sum out of pro football. He is looking for close to $25,000 for his toil as a pro this year.

STARS RETIRE.

Three Members of the Ottawa Rugby Team Announce Their Retirement.

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The Journal says, "Joe Tubman has retired from rugby and in a way it was fitting that he should retire after playing in Hamilton, the scene of his greatest efforts. Two others who have announced that they will pass from active rugby scene are Eddie Emerson and Dave McCann." Emerson feels he has done his duty and McCann retires with an enviable reputation as a player and coach.

WANTS DECISION.

Dempsey Must Decide As To His Future Career, Says Commission.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—New York State Boxing Commission will ask Dempsey whether he intends to fight or to have others fight for him, as a result of reports that former heavyweight champion had ordered Madison Square Garden stock through Tex Rickard. Under the laws of the state a boxer cannot have financial interest in a boxing corporation.

Boy's Chief Pleasure Breaking Tombstones

MILLBURN, N.J., Nov. 9—(United Press).—Seventeen-year-old Joseph Coughlan was arrested last night while indulging in a queer penchant in St. Stephen's cemetery. Joseph was in the act of breaking his 100th tombstone when the fire department came along and stopped him.

Questioned, Joseph admitted he had a wild desire to crash the markers and got a particular kick out of ruining the ancient ones.

Charged with malicious mischief, he was locked up awaiting trial tomorrow. The chief of police said Joseph was subject to fits.

M'GILL SENIORS HAVE HOLIDAY

After Strenuous Week End the Team Takes It Easy—Resume Practice To-day.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—McGill senior footballers yesterday had their first holiday in a long time. After the strenuous week end of two games against Varsity and Montreal, Coach Shaughnessy decided that his team had enough football for the time being. Practices will be resumed today, but it is unlikely that for the rest of the week, much heavy scrimmage will be attempted. Signal drill and a scrimmage is the programme for the week and the team will entrain for Kingston on Friday noon, making the trip to Kingston the day before the game is a departure from the practice of recent years for in the past the squad has always taken the train Saturday morning and stepped right on the field to play the game. This year, however, it is felt that, considering the importance of the struggle, every effort should be made to enhance the team's chances for a victory.

Charlie Littlefield and Jack Moar, the two injured players in the lineup, were both back on their feet today but the possibility that either will be able to get in the game on Saturday still remains a small one. Littlefield was able to leave the hospital, but the injury to his leg is of such a nature that the rugby season will be practically over before the member will be completely well again. If fortune favors Moar, however, the aggressive middle wing will be able to take his place on the line against Queen's.

Offers $400 Prize For Fastest Skater

MONTREAL, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—The Montreal Star has offered a prize of $400 to discover the fastest skater in the National Hockey League. Last season The Star offered a $200 prize for the same thing, with the result that Howie Morenz, Canadien flash, and Babe Siebert, Maroon left winger, tied for the honors with a mark of 17 seconds flat for the course at the Forum here.

This season each competitor will be entitled to three trials, the first of which must be made before January 15. The distance will be approximately 190 yards and players on clubs other than the two local teams will get their chance at the prize when their clubs are playing scheduled games here, the races being run off between periods.

COMMUNISTS ARRESTED.

Were Celebrating Tenth Anniversary of Russian Revolution.

TOKIO, Nov. 9.—(United Press).—Ninety communists were arrested throughout the city in connection with celebrations of the tenth anniversary of the Russian revolution, it was announced yesterday. Several hundred communists who participated in one meeting dispersed quickly when approached by a force of 500 police.

Gardiner Admitted To United States

WASHINGTON, D.C., November 9 (Canadian Press). — Permission to admit Chuck Gardiner, Winnipeg hockey star, to the United States, was wired the United States immigration officials on the border by the Department of Immigration yesterday. Gardiner will be permitted to join the Chicago team of the National Hockey League this season.

Gardiner, recently purchased by Chicago, was stopped at the border because his name was already on the waiting list for quota entry into this country subject to the Immigration Board of Review. Commissioner of Immigration Harry Hull yesterday took the case up with the Board of Review, which was satisfied that Gardiner intended no fraud when he attempted to enter the United States on a temporary basis. Five hundred dollars bond will be asked by the Immigration officials, and Gardiner will have to renew his present status under the immigration law at the end of the present hockey season.

It is understood that his application for permanent entry under the quota will not be reached for some time owing to the congested waiting list of British-born desiring places on the quota.

BICYCLE SAFE IN CITY TRAFFIC

Danger Is Created By Careless Boys Who Disregard Traffic Rules.

FEW CYCLE DEATHS.

That the bicycle has been slandered as an unsafe vehicle is the contention of manufacturers of wheels, backed up by the expert opinion of J. H F. Wyse, general manager of the Ontario Safety League.

Headings in newspapers confusing motorcycles with bicycles in reporting accidents have caused some misapprehension in the public mind in regard to the safety of the bicycle. On this point J. W. Gibson, general manager of the Canada Cycle and Motor Co., says:

"The records show that during the year 1926 in Ontario there were only eleven bicycle fatalities, while horse-drawn vehicles were responsible for 28, asphyxia 23, hit by falling of flying object 30, injured by animals 24, falls 182, drownings 297. This bears out the statement made by Mr. Wyse over the radio."

An extract from Mr. Wyse's remarks over the radio on October 25, in regard to the use of bicycles is as follows:

"Now a word regarding the bicycle. The bicycle is one of the safest means of locomotion. All means of locomotion are comparatively safe if operated with care always and courtesy toward others. I have watched with pleasure many boys who observe traffic rules carefully. They ride on the right hand of the road or street; they put out a hand when it is their intention to stop or turn, and in general, they follow traffic regulations. Then again there are some boys and bicycle riders who are inclined to wander all over the road or streetway—even to cross streets at an angle."

"Yesterday morning I saw one of those careless youngster zig-zagging from side to side going north on Munroe Park avenue and this morning I actually saw a boy deliberately riding on the wrong side of Neville Park boulevard for at least half a block. He would have had no recourse if he had been killed or crippled by an automobile coming around the corner of Queen street and Neville Park boulevard. A careful bicycle rider is very much safer on our streets congested with traffic than the child playing on the sidewalk who thoughtlessly or to retrieve a ball runs into the road without looking."

"The Fast Way to Health"

©1926 McCOY HEALTH SERVICE - LOS ANGELES - CAL.

A SHORT ORANGE FAST.

I have been teaching the value of the orange fast for so many years that it seems like an old story to me. Many doctors who write health articles have, for years, criticized my teachings along this line, but it is gratifying to see most of them changing their minds and coming to believe in these same theories which I have been advocating for more than twenty years.

Only the other day one of our leading medical column writers came out with an entire article on the benefit of short fasts. Another physician who is the head of a large sanitarium is now fasting his patients on fruit for as long as five to ten days.

There is no sensible reason why physicians have been afraid to try the fruit fast with their patients. The orange fast is, of course, not a complete fast, as orange juice furnishes 120 calories to the glass. The fruit sugar of oranges is in a form easily digested and assimilated by the body. In addition, the orange contains a small amount of protein and muscle building food element, and a high proportion of valuable mineral salts and acids which are blood, bone, and brain tissue building elements.

When one lives entirely on orange juice, the body is well supplied with the mineral elements. When the "heavier" foods are not used the bodily forces can eliminate toxic substances more readily. This is due to the fact that the energy ordinarily used in digesting such foods can be used to increase the functions of elimination. Bodily poisons of all kinds are thrown out at a rate which is many times faster than is possible when regular meals are eaten. The absence of waste cellulose material in the intestines makes it advisable to use one or two enemas daily to wash out the intestinal toxins which are mostly in a semi-liquid form.

It is really a very simple thing to take an orange fast. All that is necessary for one to do is to take whatever orange juice is desired several times during the day. Best results are obtained if only a quart to a quart and a half of orange juice is used during any one day. This amount is usually sufficient to satisfy the appetite and prevent any feeling of hunger.

In order to be more explicit with directions, in to-morrow's article I will outline a definite plan for you to use in taking an orange fast, and show you how to follow it with a curative diet.

Questions and Answers.

Question—C. M. D. asks: "Do you think it harmful to the digestive organs to deep-breathe as much as ten or twelve times immediately after each meal?"

Answer—There can be nothing particularly harmful about taking a few breathing exercises after eating, but the best time is probably when you are doing systematic physical culture exercises.

Question—John A. writes: "I consider you are doing a great and good work and I hope you may be long spared to continue it. Am 85 years old and suffer from indigestion. My food consists of powdered milk (diluted) and a little brown bread, fruit, and a small quantity of bran as a laxative. I take plenty of exercise, but still suffer from pain and lassitude after eating."

Answer: You should use more greens in your diet, and be careful not to overeat on the starches, or to use bread and acid fruit together.

Question—D. J. K. writes: "There are times when I get real weak, mostly in arms and legs after I start work, and in the middle of the day my eyes want to close. I even get those weak tired feelings while sitting down. Is it anemia, or is it due to malaria?"

Answer: I would certainly like to diagnose your trouble but can not do so from the meager description of your case which you have given me. Go to a good diagnostician and find out if you have anemia, or malaria, then write me again and I will be glad to send you some literature which I have already prepared on the subject of either.

Mary Astor and Gilbert Roland Head Contingent of Celebrities in Fitzmaurice's 'Rose of the Golden West.'

One of the largest casts in recent years used in a motion picture not dealing with the war was drafted for the filming of "Rose of the Golden West," George Fitzmaurice's epic of California in the romantic days before the gold-rush when it was under Spanish rule.

More than 3,500 persons appear in the scenes of this story, coming to the Capital Theatre to-morrow, which tells of the love affair that turned the tide in the battle of intrigue between several world powers for possession of California. Five location trips were led by Director Fitzmaurice from the First National studio in Burbank, California, to various historical spots throughout the State.

The featured players in "Rose of the Golden West" include Mary Astor as the heroine, Gilbert Roland as the hot-blonded youthful hero, Montague Love, Gustav von Seyffertitz and Flora Finch.

In addition to the feature picture, and the ever popular "Collegians," Manager Fletcher has arranged for a final showing in this city of the complete motion picture of Peterboro's Diamond Jubilee celebration, photographed by Mr. Fred Roy. This picture is complete in every detail, showing the water sports in their entirety, and also the complete historical parade. Every float is included in the record. Many citizens were unable to see this picture on its first showing at the Capitol. See it between to-morrow and Saturday. It's positively the final showing.

AT THE REGENT.

FOUR MONTHS SPENT IN PREPARING FOR RUNAWAY EXPRESS

Motion picture audiences have but the faintest idea of the ramifications entering into the preparations of a motion picture. A production that takes an hour or so to unreel upon the screen probably took anywhere from six to ten weeks to film and sometimes double that period to prepare.

Thousands of workers diligently ply their various tasks before one foot of film is photographed. And in the special features, "The Runaway Express," the Universal-Jewel, coming to the Regent Theatre, starting Thursday, four months were spent prior to production activities.

The story required a special locale. Adapted from Frank Spearman's celebrated story, "The Nerve of Foley," Universal officials described absolute accuracy regarding settings and action. Advance scouts toured the Western part of the country for five weeks before one lucky individual wired jubilantly that he had discovered a spot wherein the story centered.

And he had. It was at Caliente, Nevada, a small railway town, part of the Union Pacific System. That was but the beginning. Special crews of technicians were sent to construct buildings and apparatus necessary for the production. And finally, at the end of four months, all was in readiness, a special train was chartered for the principals, director, assistants, camera-men, property men and other officials with several freight cars loaded with cameras, film cases, "props" and various necessities.

"The Runaway Express" was directed by Edward Sedgwick, a master at making out-door productions.

NILE DAM PLAN WORRIES PRESS

British Government, However, Sees No Danger to Sudan Rights.

TREATY BREACH

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(United Press.)—The British Government is not at all alarmed at the American proposal to building, in conjunction with the Abyssinia Government, a dam across the waters of the Blue Nile, so the British United Press is authoratively informed to-day. The press, however, continues to give the proposal great prominence and sees in it an attempt on the part of the United States to drive through old established treaty arrangements in Europe, Africa and the old world generally.

The British Government is confident that Abyssinia will honor the treaty made with Great Britain in 1902 when the independence of that kingdom was guaranteed and in return Abyssinia agreed that no dam or obstructions were to be erected on the Blue Nile except under British auspices.

France and Italy and other European governments have officially recognized the treaty and will undoubtedly continue to do so. The British therefore do not believe that anything will emerge from the American proposal as Abyssinia is a member of the League of Nations and cannot violate established treaty rights, even if certain sections of the country desire it.

Meanwhile Sir Murdock Macdonald, member of Parliament for Inverness, who is probably the greatest authority on the Nile and its tributaries, says very emphatically in an interview to-day: "Personally, I don't mind if the Americans do build a dam at Lake Tsano on the Blue Nile, but if they do I am certain they will not get a shilling out of it for the next 30 years. Egypt, for instance, need hardly care what is done at Lake Tsana, as she can get her wants supplied to the utmost from the waters of the White Nile."

He added that the dam would not constitute anything like a stranglehold on the Sudan by means of which large rentals could be extorted because another British dam, similar to that at Sennar, might be built at Rosiers in the Sudan, near the boundary of Abyssinia, which would ensure all the water necessary for the British controlled territory.

Outside of official circles, there is much excited comment on the situation and a good deal of speculation whether or not the United States government will support any attempt by private parties to violate British trade rights, thus causing an interchange of notes between London and Washington.

The government is not visualizing any such prospect and is endeavoring to minimize the whole affair, which is a customary attitude of British officialdom where Anglo-American relations are involved.

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — by Nicholas Afonsky

Men have always longed to fly like birds. With boats, they followed the path of the sun, but until the last few years they could not conquer the air. So persistent is the flying myth among many early races that some historians think some prehistoric civilization knew how to fly. The winged bulls of Assyrian art, Pegasus, the flying horse, and the story of Phaeton in Grecian mythology all lend plausibility to this theory.

One of the most picturesque flying myths is that of Daedalus, legendary sculptor, who built the labyrinth to house the Minotaur for Minos, king of Crete. To escape from the wrath of Minos, Daedalus fastened wings to himself and his son and flew across the sea. Icarus, in spite of his father's warning, flew too near the sun. The wax which fastened his wings melted, and he fell and was drowned.

There is a curious story of an "aerial chariot with sides of iron and clad with wings" in an ancient Indian manuscript. This chariot "was driven through the skies till it stood over Dwaraka, and from there it hurled down upon the city missiles that destroyed everything on which they fell."

Archytas, the Pythagorean, is said to have made a dove of wood, a perfect automaton, which was endowed by some sort of mechanism that made it fly. It was balanced by various weights and "was put in motion by hidden and enclosed air." This dove automaton was spoken of by many Greek historians.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Speaking at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien based his address on the fifth commandment: "Thou shalt not kill" referring particularly to the Old Testament story of Abel and Cain as an instance of the first recorded sin of this type.

St. Paul said: "We are not our own." We belong primarily to God, and we should live so as to reflect at all times His goodness to us and our endeavor to exist mainly for His honor and glory. God has set the time limit on our lives, and it is not allowed to man to shorten that life, either in himself or in a fellow creature. Holy Church sometimes looks with a lenient eye on the suicide as a person of unsound mind, but the normal being who interferes with God's law in this regard reaps the vengeance that Nature unerringly exacts for any tampering with her laws.

"Whether the life be old or young, useful or useless, born or unborn," said the Bishop, "to tamper with it is to commit the sin of murder, just as Cain sinned when he slew his brother Abel and went out with the brand upon his brow and upon the brows of generations to follow after him. Life is sacred and for the murderer who hurls another's soul into eternity, the depths of hell are reserved as punishment."

Going on to allude to a recent instance in England, where a father took the life of his offspring to save that child physical suffering, and to the doctrines which set out to prove that regulation and control of the number of human beings to be brought into the world are right and proper, His Lordship referred to these as "damnable doctrines." He said that homicide in only two cases was justifiable, in the one, where, after a fair trial, a murderer was condemned to be executed, by legal means, and in the other, where one killed an aggressor, in self-defense.

Quarrelling, fighting and contentions in the home and among neighbors were also included in the list of offenses against this commandment, and His Lordship deplored the spirit manifested sometimes by the head of the house whose bad temper demanded that his children "crawl" to him. "Let the man control his bad temper," concluded the reverend speaker.

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN

The thanksgiving season in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday was celebrated by large congregations, albeit several "Kent faces" were absent, either on holiday or at Keene, to the opening services of the new church.

The morning sermon was based on Psalm 95, in the course of which the Rev. Mr. Allan, with a short sketch of Jewish history, showed how God should be given thanksgiving for our every blessing. As in Bible times, the people worshipped at Jerusalem, and as they felt themselves "walking in the light," when they came to the tabernacle, they came forward to the mercy seat, knowing this privilege was theirs only when their sins had been purged. We, too, can come to the mercy seat and receive pardon and return our thanks to Him for His goodness.

The Evening Music.

The evening service was of special interest, as music suitable to Thanksgiving was rendered by the choir, Martin Chenhall, Jr., with cello numbers, was a welcome addition to the evening's programme, giving two splendidly rendered selections. Four choruses from Dr. Garrett's "Harvest Cantata," were given by the choir, as was the solo, "In Flanders Fields," (with chorus by choir), by George East. A short organ recital by Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., was the preliminary to the service.

The Prelude.

Dealing with the questions of the prelude, Rev. Mr. Allan said: The first question is easily answered. Women lose their identity and self-respect, and right-thinking men lose respect for the opposite sex, when they ape men with the weed. They are no longer ladies, and have no call for emulating men, and making themselves a smoke-stack by using cigarettes. The second question is up to ourselves. We should take the opportunity, when friends make a call on Sunday evening, to invite them to come along to the church service, if one is in the habit of attending the church. Regarding methods of raising money for church purposes, Mr. Allan expressed himself as against the means adopted, suggesting that the free-will offering should be the only way of supplying funds for the carrying on of the Lord's work. Mr. Allan mentioned an instance of a church, which went almost down to the lowest depths, selling goods in the church, to raise funds to prevent a fore-closure. A new minister was called, his conditions being that there would be no methods other than free-will offerings to provide the means for carrying on the work. The people agreed, and progress was the result; in a short time there was no debt, and the minister had two assistants. A congregation needs the right spirit, to have the co-operation of every member to make this successful.

A Parade That Stirred the Town.

"The events recorded in this chapter (Mark 2, 1-11), took place on a Sabbath morning in the early spring of the year 29 A.D. The scene is laid on the Jericho turnpike. Could we have been there to hear the conversation of the people we would have discovered that there was a general, impatient desire to see Jesus. You could not have helped feeling that the emotions of the multitudes were intense! There was a common feeling that something unusual was about to happen. It was like a fairy tale—something that appealed to the intelligence.

"It is impossible to face the fact of Christ and remain unmoved. You will either be better or worse. If I knew how much honest thought you have given to the person of Jesus of Nazareth," said Mr. Allan, "I could tell your spiritual condition exactly!"

A Prophetic Entrance.

In Zechariah 9, 9, the prophecy is noted, "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion . . lowly and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt, the foal of an ass." The ass in those days took the place of the horse of today. It is known as an animal of little sense and much stubbornness. And the fact of the colt tends to make one think it would be unruly and difficult to manage. Here is shown Christ's taming of everything coming into contact with His Divine grace and presence. Even the colt was made docile and quiet. "We can be made obedient and like Christ if we but put ourselves under His tender care. Education changes our polish, but not our nature. To our way of thinking there is little that is kingly about this parade. There is a King in it, however; hence the importance. It was a prophetic entrance.

"But there are other prophecies that seem equally ridiculous to many today. The Jewish people, and the promise of the return of their land to them, and the power they will have given them; the city of Jerusalem, past blood and tears, present eventful, and a glorious future, larger and more up-to-date nation, with prayer and praise, and the bodily return of Jesus, told us in the Scriptures, and which will most surely come to pass.

Christ's Royalty.

"It has been said," continued Mr. Allan, "that when Christ's royalty is fully recognized that: 'all possessions will be dedicated to His service.' 'The Lord hath need of them,' God is sometimes referred to as 'The Happy God.' He is happy and rejoices when sinners return to Him. Christ needs all we can give of our substance and attributes. Money is mentioned from our pulpits—we do not like to hear the mention of it, but who gave it to us to use, for our use, honestly and with wisdom? God of course. Our churches need money to carry on His work. When the church fails in its duty to God, then will we feel what a cold church can accomplish.

"All creation will yet praise Him for His goodness. At the day of judgment works will count. The true worker will then be recognized when Christ's royalty is fully recognized.

"Religious enthusiasm will overwhelm or absorb all Pharasaic formality. When the soul is inspired, the lips must speak. Enthusiasm is essential," remarked Mr. Allan to success in all pursuits. It reaches its highest intensity in the development of the religious life. Its suppression excites the reproaches of Nature. We should never deter anyone from proclaiming the good news of God's redemptive love. Jesus said about the stones, even they would speak.

Knew About His Death.

"Jesus knew what awaited Him at Jerusalem. He had already predicted it to His disciples. His every thought was stamped with the image of death. Three times already had they sought to kill Him. He had always known He must die—would die an early death—would die a shameful death. How different He was from the rest of us. In all probability we shall die—but there is always the possibility that we may not die. In 1 Corinthians, 51, is the promise. 'Behold, I shew you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed" . . . . Again in 1 Thessalonians, 4, 17, 'Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord.' We shall not all sleep—we shall be permitted to see the Chakina Glory, and see the King in His beauty coming at the second time."

Mr. Allan concluded his powerful discourse with the lines of "I have a Rendezvous with Death." Following the sermon, a prayer, solemn and touching, was made, with words of comfort and solace to those remaining, giving thanks for the boys who returned not, and to those who returned from the great conflict of 1914-1918—boys whose names are found on the tablets on the church walls.

ST. ANDREW'S

Sunday morning at St. Andrew's United Church was devoted to a consideration of the topic of Thanksgiving, the choir providing appropriate music.

In the evening Rev. J. W. Gordon preached the first sermon in a series of studies on this general topic—"What The Great Denominations Have Done For God."

"The Baptist Denomination," was the topic on Sunday evening. Mr. Gordon is not one who believes that the denominationalism of the past has been a mistake. All of the great denominations have done a work for God which needed to be done. Each has had its own task and each, by performing their own task has contributed thereby to the progress of knowledge and religion.

The history of the gradual rise of the Baptist church from influences that were at work long before the Reformation were carefully traced by the speaker and the relation of the English Baptist body to those pre-Reformation days was outlined. Persecution was poured upon these devoted servants of God by Roman Catholic and Protestant churches alike and all for the simple reason that they insisted upon the baptism of the regenerate only.

It was pointed out that the intense individualism of these Christians, coupled with their almost fanatical love of freedom led them to be somewhat liable to lay great emphasis upon small and debatable matters in their religious experience. This tendency prevented that strength and usefulness which comes from united action and co-operative movement upon a large scale. Lack of organization in any comprehensive way hindered them from being as useful as they desired to be.

On the other hand the Baptist church has, as a result of their possession of these very qualities contributed some great things to the development of the Kingdom of God.

The Baptist church has at no time possessed a creed in the sense that the English church and the Presbyterian have possessed a creed, in the "Thirty-nine Articles" and "The Confession of Faith," respectively; but this does not seem to have hindered it in any way. We see the strange spectacle of a creedless church growing in our own day to be one of the most powerful of modern denominations, yet without a written creed regulative of its faith. What can this mean to us as to the need of a written creed? Do we need it at all?

The Baptist contribution to history is, however, peculiarly this. It has always passionately claimed for the human soul its absolute competence before God—no one must come between God and man in his religious experience. Men must be absolute and complete freedom in all religious experiences.

This passion for religious freedom—this absolute separation of church and state which is today becoming an almost universal belief is peculiarly the contribution of the Baptist church and constitutes its greatest single work for God in history. Many other and great things has it done, but this has been its passion, and its task for the four hundred years of its history.

The music given by the choir under the direction of Mr. John Crane was appropriate and inspiring.

Mr. Gordon announced that next Sunday evening he would study the history of "The Church of England."

Charleston Dance Contest Judged By England's Leader

Miss Leslie—Sutton, chief judge of the Charleston contest for England, writes: "My unique position in the dancing world today would never have happened if I had not taken care of my health.

I constantly had that tired out, depressed feeling, with sick headache, indigestion, biliousness caused by the poisons of constipation.

Your mild laxative has been of valuable assistance in keeping my system in a daily healthy condition."

HUNTER SHOT BY COMPANION

James Miller Killed While Seeking Deer North of Bancroft.

IN THICK SWAMP.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—James Walter Miller, aged 44, was accidentaly shot and instantly killed yesterday afternoon while deer shooting back of Bancroft in Monteagle Township. Thomas Van Allan, at whose home he was staying, fired the fatal shot and is in a distracted condition at his home. Dr. Alexander of Bancroft was called and after thoroughly investigating the accident decided an inquest was unnecessary and the body was taken to Colborne for interment.

James Miller and his brother Charles were born in Bangor Township and left the community twenty years ago. This year they decided to visit their former home for a deer shoot. Yesterday the three men started out to the swamp and James Miller was sent to the other side, and Van Allan went through the centre to scare the deer out. It is understood that Charles Miller and Van Allan joined each other half way through the swamp and as they were proceeding they heard a rustling in the undergrowth and saw a movement which to them was likely a deer. Van Allan drew his rifle and quickly fired. A sharp shriek was heard and Van Allan said, "My God I have shot a man." The two men hurried to the spot and there found James Miller lying on the snow and ice. Miller came through the bush about one half mile toward them. He expired shortly after without speaking. The bullet entered the front of the chest and came out of the left side, touching the heart in its course.

Miller leaves a wife and eight children; they all being at the home of Van Allan on a visit.

MINERS BEGIN LONDON MARCH

Will Present "Petition in Boots" To Parliament on Arrival.

400 IN WALK.

NEWPORT, Monmouthshire, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—A little army of unemployed started its march to London today to present a "Petition in boots" to Parliament on the situation in the Welsh coal fields. A. J. Cook, secretary of the British Federation of Miners, was not here, however, to give the marching order. He was detained in London. There was a nip in the air and the men, about four hundred strong, started off with sprightly steps, singing marching songs and cheered by thousands of men, women and children.

After marching a few miles from Newport, the little army of unemployed delegates entrained and passed under Bristol Channel through the Severn Tunnel. The marchers expect to reach Bristol to-night. Red flags headed the procession. Some banners read, "On to London, seat of our trouble," and "We demand bread for our people," "Justice for miners."

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION MEETS

Queen Alexandra Branch Has Musical Program at Meeting.

Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held their regular meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 8th, with Mrs. Parnell, the president, in the chair.

There was a good attendance, and after the regular routine business, a short programme was given by Mrs. Telford, Eleanor Reid, Margaret Wise, and Maxwell Parnell.

The attendance picture was won by Mr. Park's room.

JAMES SPELLMAN WANTED IN KENORA

Officials Have Important News For Him About His Brother.

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall has been asked to locate James Spellman, who is supposed to be living in this city or district. The police have some important information for Mr. Speellman about his brother, who is living in Kenora.

The officers are desirous of locating Mr. Speellman as soon as possible and ask that anyone knowing where he is to 'phone the police station, Peterborough.

Wolves Frighten School Children

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 9.—Wolves are reported as exceptionally numerous in Carlow Township, North Hastings. Children who have to travel a considerable distance to school are frightened to make the journey.

In the vicinity of Boulter and Havergal there appears to be two packs operating. They are becoming very bold, and are making their presence known near many farm homes, with the result that farmer have to round up their stock at night. One night recently, Ben Prentice lost six valuable sheep.

HELP NEEDED IN ADDRESSING

Business Ladies Can Be of Assistance To Health Association.

TYPISTS WANTED.

There's one good turn the business ladies in Peterborough could do, and that is to help the ladies of the Health Association address the envelopes to be sent out containing the Health Stamps. The envelopes should be addressed on a typewriter. Any lady having access to such a machine would be doing her bit, and conferring a favor on the ladies of the hard working committee, if she would assist in this work. If those willing to help would communicate with Mrs. G. S. Cameron, of 318 Stewart street, full information would gladly be given. The Health Association ladies would certainly be very grateful to any who would be so kind as to assist them.

In a few days the Health Stamps will be mailed. When you receive yours just remember that you are being offered an investment in the citizenship of Peterborough, an investment of infinitely more importance than city bonds, and bearing a dividend of good will and the knowledge of a good deed done, and a good work helped on.

IN POLICE COURT.

Three men pleaded guilty this morning to being intoxicated in a public place, and were fined $10 and costs.

Two residents of Smith Township pleaded guilty to drinking liquor in a public place, and were fined $15.00 and costs.

William Edwards of Asphodel pleaded guilty to stealing one pair of drivers' gauntlets, the property of Gordon Douglas, on November 7.

The gauntlets were valued at $4.50. His Worship let Edwards go on suspended sentence, as it was his first offence, and he promised to pay $24.25 costs.

PRINCE'S BODY IS RE-INTERRED

Relative of Ex-Kaiser Given Military Funeral in Germany.

BERLIN, November 9 (United Press). — Ten years after he was killed in action, Prince Frederich Karl, relative of the former Kaiser, and the most notable casualty in the war, was given a German military funeral to-day. President Paul Von Hindenburg and Field-Marshal Von Mackensen, both in the full regalia of Field-Marshals, attended the funeral service, with the former Crown Prince and the former Crown Princess. Thousands crowded outside the chapel.

While the coffin was lowered into its grave, a flying squadron of the Prince's comrades cruised overhead.

In 1917 the Prince's plane was forced down in No Man's Land by a British machine. He attempted to reach the German lines, but was shot in the leg and chest. The British brought him behind their lines and recognized him. The Prince died a few weeks later, and was given a military funeral. He was buried in the little cemetery at St. Ein, near Rouen, France.

Numerous efforts had been made to have the remains transferred to Germany. Recently Foreign Minister Aristide Briand issued the necessary order, and the body was moved last week.

BOY BADLY FROZEN.

Three Companions In All Night Sojourn on Island Recovering.

ALPENA Mich. Nov. 9.—Henry Dekett 14 years old is in a serious condition and three men are recovering from the results of exposure suffered Sunday when they were marooned in a 24-foot gasoline launch on Lake Huron five miles from the mainland. They spent 18 hours in the small boat and were rescued Sunday by a fisherman.

The men had gone out on the lake with nets to fish. Battery trouble put the engine of their boat out of commission. Dekett's legs and hands were frozen badly, and the others suffered from cold and exposure.

Princess Driven Out By Fire During Night

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Princess Mary and her husband, Viscount Lascelles, were among the number of well-known persons who rushed from their bedrooms, many in night clothes, when fire broke out early to-day at Bretton Park, the residence of Lord Allendale, where they were guests, says a Wakefield despatch to the Evening News. The fire was discovered in the nursery wing and when the alarm was given the guests rushed from their bedrooms and watched the firemen, who made a record trip from headquarters to extinguish the flames. Princess Mary showed great interest in the work of the firemen. None of the party returned to bed, but dressed and went out on a scheduled shooting trip. The house was much damaged, but nobody was injured as far as known.

WEDDING BELLS

THORNTON—NEILL.

A quiet autumn wedding was solemnized in Sherbourne United Church, Toronto, on Saturday evening, October 29, by Rev. Richard Roberts, D.D., when Viola Adele, eldest daughter of Mrs. and the late Mr. C. A. Neill, became the bride of Mr. Wilfred Rush Thornton, son of Mrs. and the late Dr. W. W. Thornton, of Danforth Avenue, Toronto.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Walter C. Neill, was gowned in shell pink georgette with brilliant trimmings, large French picture hat, black satin shoes with brilliant buckles, and carried a large bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Ethel Line was bridesmaid, wearing a becoming gown of rose canton crepe, large black picture hat, and carrying a large bouquet of Empire roses. Mr. Harry Bell supported the groom, and the ushers were Messrs. Harold Barker and Howard Allis. Mr. G. D. Atkinson presided at the organ, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. C. H. Byers of Oakville, cousin of the bride, sang "The Crown." A reception was held later at 391 Berkeley Street, the home of the bride's mother, where a buffet luncheon was served to about sixty guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornton left amid showers of rice and confetti and all good wishes on a two weeks' trip. They will reside in Toronto.

OBITUARY.

JACK HOLLINGSWORTH.

The death occurred this morning at 9.30 in the Isolation Hospital, Peterborough, of Jack Hollingsworth, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard S. Hollingsworth, 205 King street.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing parents, five sisters, Helen, Margaret, Thelma, Irene and Shirley and three brothers, Leonard, Harold and James.

A private funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 10.00 o'clock from the residence of his parents, King street, with interment in Little Lake cemetery, the Rev. William MacDonald officiating.

RELIEF WORKERS IN RACE AGAINST WHITE SPECTRE OF NEW ENGLAND WINTER

Spurred By Knowledge Cold Weather Strangle Makeshift Communication Lines.

RAILROADS CONNECTED.

Efforts Made To Check Spread of Diphtheria in Vermont State.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—In the calming presence of outside help and communication, Vermont's flood relief programme stood forth last night as a race against the white spectre of New England winter.

Help had reached nearly all sections, wire communication was rapidly reaching every corner of the State, railroads and highways were opening up, but the relief at best was temporary, spurred by the knowledge that bitter winter weather will strangle makeshift communication lines and lock battered, wrecked communities in the grip of ice and frozen mud that will not be broken until the spring thaws.

That Governor John E. Weeks has sensed the situation was seen in his statement from the Capital, denying reports that Vermont considered outside help unnecessary in coping with the situation. He declared:

"Federal troops have been of the greatest assistance in relief work in the flooded areas of the northern part of the State. This help is greatly appreciated. Rumors have gone out that Federal aid was unnecessary, which is entirely wrong."

The Governor added that as soon as a State survey had established the exact status of the stricken towns, "We can determine just whether further help will be needed from outside sources."

To-day Governor Weeks will confer with the State Emergency Board on the situation. This board, created in 1923 to serve with the Governor in case of emergency, has never before been called into action. The Highway Commissioners of Vermont also will confer at Montpelier today in an effort to determine how much money is needed for temporary repair of main highways and restoration of bridges. The State Department of Agriculture has begun a survey of dairy and general farm losses.

Provide Rural Service

With wire communication restored to most points in the flooded area in Vermont, steps are being taken to provide a mail service. Postmaster General New in Washington yesterday ordered service to begin today on emergency air mail routes into Vermont from Concord, N.H., and also a mail truck service from the same point by way of White River Junction, Vt., on the New Hampshire border.

Army, Red Cross and civil authorities have succeeded in getting food and clothing into towns where they were most needed, both in Vermont and Western Massachusetts. Railroads are rushing eastward the great accumulation of freight at the Hudson River gateways in New York and have established connection with Montreal by a roundabout route.

Only a few miles of railroad are under operation in Vermont, and it will be weeks before service can be restored on many lines where bridges are cut.

Dairy Losses Heavy

Thomas Bradlee, Director of the Extension Bureau of the Vermont Agricultural College estimated yesterday that the great Vermont dairy interests had lost 15,000 cows in the flood. The farmers whose acres were inundated, he said, "are just crushed under the burden and have not the strength to carry on."

The Springfield, Mass., City Council yesterday appropriated $50,000 for flood relief in that city. The work of cleaning up debris and reopening homes was speeded there, but 150 persons were still being cared for in the State Armory yesterday.

Snow fell briskly in northern Vermont yesterday but ended without any large accumulation.

Lieutenant Governor Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts and General Alfred F. Foote, State Commissioner of Public Safety, went to Beckett yesterday to survey the reconstruction work.

Word came by mail yesterday from Northfield, Vt., that the rainfall in last week's storm as officially measured at the United States weather bureau there was 8.6 inches.

Governor Spaulding of New Hampshire, after conferring with highway engineers, estimated the damage to roads and bridges in New Hampshire at $2,709,650. Rivers have changed their courses in some cases, so that they run where highways formerly were located and it will be necessary to re-locate the roads.

Diphtheria was reported to have made its appearance in the little village of South Franklin, near St. Albans, Vt. The number of cases was not known, but measures were promptly taken to check the spread of the disease.

James L. Fierser, vice chairman of the Red Cross, arrived in Boston yesterday to take charge of Red Cross relief activities in New England. He arranged to leave later for Montpelier to confer with Governor Weeks.

33 Articles Drafted For Consideration

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 10. — Thirty-three articles of the radio convention and of the accompanying international wireless regulations were prepared yesterday by the drafting committee for consideration by the International Radio Conference in plenary session to-day.

In addition, the convention committee, by a vote of 22 to 6, approved the creation of an international technical consulting committee to meet once in two years to give opinions regarding technical problems arising from the convention.

Canada, the United States, Brazil, Argentina, Cuba and France voted against the measure, basing their action chiefly upon the large expense which would be involved.

COMMONS SITS AFTER SERVICE

Opening Delayed For Members To Attend Ceremonies at Cenotaph.

KING WILL ATTEND.

LONDON, Nov. 10. — Canadian Press Cable.—In connection with the commemoration of Armistice Day, the House of Commons, which usually sits at 11 o'clock on Fridays, when only private business is taken up, will not sit to-morrow until twelve o'clock. Many of the members think it would be fitting if the two minute silence were actually observed by the House of Commons itself, but as the members of the Cabinet deem it proper that they should stand with the King at the Cenotaph during the great silence, the speaker has ruled that the House shall not meet until noon.

Arrangements for the Armistice day celebration here to-morrow are on the lines of those in previous years. In front of the Cenotaph a hollow square will be formed by detachments of the royal navy, army, air force, mercantile marine and associations of ex-service men. Shortly before eleven o'clock, the King attended by the Prince of Wales and his brothers, will appear from the front door of the Home office, which directly faces the cenotaph. The King will place a wreath at the base and wreaths will also be placed on behalf of other members of the Royal Family.

As Big Ben strikes the hour two minutes silence will be observed.

All road traffic will cease everywhere in London, but it is not now enjoined that railway trains or water transportation will stop. At the cenotaph a short service will follow. For the rest of the day and several days following special arrangements will be made for the orderly marshalling of those wishing to place wreaths at the cenotaph. Special arrangements will be made to enable those who wish to pass from the cenotaph to the grave of the unknown soldier in Westminster Abbey to do so without inconvenience.

C. W. LEAGUE WILL HOLD BRIDGE PARTY

Members Hear Report of Diocesan Convention at Ennismore.

Last evening a meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in the auditorium at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum ,with the president, Mrs. John Lynch, in the chair. Reports were given by Mrs. F. A. Hodgson and Miss Norah Shevlin, the latter giving a review of the proceedings at the recent Diocesan convention held in Ennismore. It was decided to hold a bridge party at the Lyceum during the coming week.

An enjoyable musical programme given during the evening included well-played pianoforte solos by Miss Helen Lynch, Miss Clothilde Collins, and little eight-year-old Helen Burke, also several fine vocal solos by Miss Stella Brady, with accompaniments played by Miss M. McCabe.

SPIRIT FROM ANOTHER WORLD STIRS BALKANS

KING ALEXANDER of JUGO-SLAVIA — TODOR ALEXANDROFF

A restless, troubled spirit from another world is beating the war drums in the bloody Balkans again. It is the spectre of Todor Alexandroff, the famous Macedonian comitadji chief, who was assassinated at the instigation of Moscow three years ago. The murdered chief is sleeping forever on top of the highest mountain in southwestern Bulgaria, with a guard of honor standing watch over his grave day and night, but the clandestine war machine that he reorganized in order to free Macedonia by force of arms is ominously tugging at its leash all the time, as witness the present outbreaks.

Alexander bequeathed his successors a force of 100,000 grim, hardy, desperate, sharpshooting comitadjis, who are ready to fight at a moment's call. The strangest side of this mysterious guerilla, which may drag all Europe into a new Armageddon some day, is that if these Macedonian mountaineers go into battle against Jugo-Slavia and Greece, the present possessors of this former Turkish province, they will march to the tune of "John Brown's Body Lies A-Mouldering in the Grave, But His Soul Goes Marching on." For the "Internal Macedonian Revolutionary Organization" has taken "John Brown's Body" as its war song in memory of Alexandroff, and the Bulgarian version of this song is doing more than anything else to stir up the warlike spirit of the people.

BIG BREWERY IS FOUND, BUT NO OPERATOR

Detroit Police Discover Subterranean Plant in Heart of City.

WORTH HALF MILLION.

Thousands of Gallons of Beer Found in Vats—Owners Unknown.

DETROIT, Nov. 10. — (Canadian Press.)— Subterranean brewery, its intricate system of basements and passage ways, yielding beer and liquor making paraphernalia worth half a million dollars, has been found by Federal prohibition agents a few steps from Detroit's main artery, Woodward avenue.

So extensive was the plant that it occupied an entire city block of basements and most of the office building above. A raid on a night club which was found deserted revealed a compete bar and distillery. Included in the contraband which the agents seized were a beer vat containing 25,000 gallons of beer, several hundred barrels of beer, a large quantity of bottled beer, eleven cases of whiskey, eighteen 5,000 gallon vats of beer, three 25,000 gallon vats of beer, a ton and a half of filter paper pulp, used in purifying beer, three 30,000 gallon wooden whiskey tanks, empty, a large ammonia refrigeration plant, a "racker" machine used in filling kegs and five large automobile trucks.

No one was arrested and there was no indication as to who owned or operated the plant.

GOVERNOR ASKS AID FOR STATE

Weeks, of Vermont, Declares Immediate Assistance is Necessary.

SITUATION CRITICAL.

BOSTON, November 10 (Canadian Press). — President Coolidge and the Red Cross to-day had before them an urgent appeal on behalf of flood-stricken Vermont from John E. Weeks, Governor of the State.

Plainly impressed by the magnitude of the catastrophe which overwhelmed many parts of his commonwealth, the Governor declared that the situation was so critical that immediate aid was absolutely imperative. Cold weather, which seems to have set in in earnest, gave added force to his appeal as relief workers struggled over the snow-covered roads to bring food and medicine to the isolated communities of the north.

The Governor's declaration definitely set at rest rumors that Vermont considered outside aid unnecessary, and brought to the rest of the country the realization of the seriousness of conditions there.

Carol's Love Letters Ordered Published

LONDON, November 10 (United Press). — The Rumanian Government has decided to publish facsimiles of some of former Crown Prince Carol's love letters to his first morganatic wife, Mme. Zizi Lambrino, and to his latest love, Mme. Lupesco, in connection with the publicity campaign against the Carolist movement, the Daily News' Vienna correspondent reports. The love letters will be published, it is said, in leaflets which the Government already has authorized distributed throughout the kingdom.

On November 17, 1926, the reading of certain love letters of Prince Carol to Madame Zizi created a mild sensation during an action brought against the Prince by Zizi for a settlement upon her and the right of their son Mircea to the name of Von Hohenzollern, the family name of the Rumanian royal house.

BOARDS DISCUSS MANY MATTERS

J. J. Duffus in Chair at Meeting in Kitchener This Week.

PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS.

KITCHENER, Nov. 10 (Canadian Press).—The sixteenth annual meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce opened here to-day, with President J. J. Duffus, Peterborough, in the chair. Sixty delegates representing fifty-nine members of the association attended. The more important matters to come before delegates in the two-day convention were postage on drop letters, tourist traffic in relation to business, immigration, Federal taxation and particularly highway traffic, with especial attention being paid to safety, traffic signals, protection at railway crossings, protection of pedestrians, gasoline tax, headlights and brakes. Northern Ontario settlement and development and the St. Lawrence waterways scheme are also down for discussion.

Five resolutions were dealt with at the initial session here to-day, the most complete being a resolution asking the Federal Government to consider the advisability of establishing a one cent drop letter rate on letters in cities and towns. A resolution was also passed approving the action of the Dominion Government in extending the licenses of tourists to ninety days, while the Ontario Government was commended for encouraging the tourist trade. The problem regarding the retention of educated Canadian youth in this country was discussed, and in this connection the convention endorsed the work of the Technical Service Council.

The president's address follows:

It is with profound satisfac ion and gratitude that I greet such a large representation of enthusiastic delegates present from all over Ontario to participate in the deliberations effecting the three score or more Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce which constitutes this Provincial Association.

It is not my intention to address you at too great length and in order to accomplish this end I have asked the

PLANS TO SAVE MINE INDUSTRY ARE UNDER WAY

Owners Plan Campaign To Increase Exports and Home Sales.

MINERS ASK HELP.

Government Blames General Strike For Great Deal of Men's Plight.

LONDON, Nov. 10 (United Press). —Important developments are pending in the efforts to save the British coal industry, which is in a perilous condition. The Miners' Federation is sending a deputation to the Government urging assistance for the 237,000 miners who are still out of work but the government is naturally emphasizing the fact that the plight of the miners is largely due to the action of the Federation itself when, under a "joke" leadership, it refused to listen to reason when the government tried to help the miners before the great general strike.

The South Wales coal owners will meet on Monday to discuss the question of a concerted export sales policy for their whole coal field, which plan if carried out, would undoubtedly effect Canadian imports of Welsh anthracite.

In February a national coal congress will be held to deal with the home market in the effort to stimulate the use of household coal. It is likely that the domestic price of coal for household purposes will fall below the pre-war level and the idea of the owners now is to grade the coal according to quality and to levy fines against retailers who cheat the public by selling inferior grades at the price of a better grade.

An attempt will be made to discourage, by means of publicity, the use of gas and electricity for domestic heating, but it seems too late in the day to secure any real effect in this direction.

It is estimated that the South Wales colliery owners lost five million dollars during the working year ending September. This fact, as well as the condition of the miners, lends force to Lord Beaverbrook's campaign for the merger of the whole coal industry into one great trust. He is pressing his arguments with great vigor although he is strongly opposed by the owners themselves, whom Beaverbrook, in his own signed articles and in cartoons printed in his newspapers, depicts as men out of touch with realities and stubbornly refusing to see how they can save their own industry.

HELD AS ROBBER.

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., Nov. 10. — (Canadian Press.)—Alleged to be one of two robbers interupted as they were attempting to enter a store at midnight, Norman Wicke, of Bradford, in police court to-day was remanded on a charge of attempted theft. Wicke was captured by Constable Hall after a sharp tussle, the other man escaping.

NEW HIGHWAY IS PROPOSED FOR DISTRICT

Would Pass Through Cavan, Bethany and Yelverton to Port Perry.

LINK IN LONG ROAD.

Will Fit Into Plan of Sarnia-Ottawa Route—Benefit to Peterborough.

A highway to connect the Peterborough-Port Hope highway with the Whitby-Lindsay highway via the 9th Line of Cavan township, through Cavanville, Bethany, Yelverton and Port Perry to Manchester, was discussed at a meeting in the Bethany Town Hall last night.

Representative members were there from the townships and municipalities that would be affected by the building of such a highway. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. for Peteborough, was elected chairman of the committee, with members in George A. Gillespie, president of the City Chamber of Commerce, James Juby, and all government members whose ridings would be affected by this project, also the Reeves and Deputy-Reeves from the interested townships.

This committee will conduct a thorough investigation of the possibilities of the proposed highway and eventually seek an appointment with the Minister of Public Highways, Hon. Geo. S. Henry, probably during the time of the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

On the suggestion of one of the delegates present, a subscription was taken up to defray the working expenses of this committee and to cover the cost of a partial survey of the route of the proposed highway by a competent engineer. Frank G. Stinson consented, at the request of the meeting, to have the survey made and volunteered the use of his car in this connection as a means of accurately determining the mileage of the route in view.

It is anticipated that the committee will meet once more before proceeding as a deputation to Toronto. The meeting will be at the call of the chairman.

The secretary of the committee, F. C. Dawe, of Bethany, who is quite enthusiastic about this matter, pointed out that this highway would provide a shorter route from Peterborough to Toronto than as at present by way of Port Hope. Also it would relieve congestion on the front highway in addition to improving Peterborough through providing the means of ready access to Peterborough from a rich farming district, the produce of which has previously been diverted to other communities, thus depriving this city of considerable trade and the consequent revenue following in the wake of increased trading conditions.

This whole district is badly in need of good roads and a highway through it would prove to be of advantage to a greater number of people than if it were to be built along any other route. Furthermore it is the most logical routing for this section of the country when it is taken into consideration that the government is planning a trans-provincial highway north of and parallel to the existing highway from Montreal to Detroit, connecting Sarnia with Ottawa.

J. Wells Fraser, manager Bank of Nova Scotia, and immediate past president Chamber of Commerce, James Juby, president of the Peterborough Automobile Club, J. A. Dewart, and Frank G. Stinson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, comprised the Peterborough delegation to the meeting.

NEW OFFICE CONVENIENT

Employment Bureau Has Moved To South Side of Charlotte Street.

MANY TRANSIENTS.

The site of the Government Employment office has been changed to 179½ Charlotte Street. Although the office space is smaller, it is more compactly and efficiently equipped and arranged. The situation is more central and convenient to the public. This office has been giving such worth-while service to those interested that the increased demands made upon it made the change in address advisable, so that even better service could be accorded the interested parties, according to Superintendent Hugh Robertson.

Registration has been steadily going up, but is caused for the most part by transients. A great many of these come from Oshawa, which despite its reputed boom and increased activity seems to have quite a number of unemployed. As far as local conditions are concerned, there has been very little unemployment this Fall, apart from some men physically unfit for manual labor, and some unskilled help for which there is little demand. All skilled laborers can find sufficient work.

A number of foreigners have registered for bush work and will likely be placed in Northern Ontario. During the harvest season some of the farmers were unable to secure sufficient help, but owing to the fine Fall were able to garner their crops with what help they had. A summary of conditions on the whole indicates that Peterborough need have small fears of her ability to cope with the question of unemployment as present conditions are a good augury of future prosperity, says Mr. Robertson.

Dividend Increased For Packard Car Co.

DETROIT, November 10.—The directors of the Packard Motor Car Company yesterday increased their regular monthly dividend of common stock from 20 to 25 cents per months, placing the stock on a regular 30 per cent. basis. In order that the new dividend basis may start with the beginning of the fiscal year, an extra 1½ per cent. dividend was declared to cover the months of Septembe., October and November.

The extra dividend will be payable with the regular monthly dividend for December on December 31 ,to stockholders of record December 13.

Regular dividends at the new rate were declared at yesterday's meeting in addition to that for for December, for the months of January and February, that of January payable January 31, to stockholders of record January 14, and that of February to stockholders of record Feb. 15.

Alvan Maccauley, president of the company, in announcing the advance in the regular dividend rate, expressed complete satisfaction with the business now being done and the prospects for the future.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO STATESMEN

Baldwin Honors Briand and Stresemann at Lord Mayor's Banquet.

SPEAKS ON EUROPE.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(A.P.)— Fulfilling the traditional role of Principal speaker at the Lord Mayor's banquet at Guild Hall, where once a year the big business men of the ancient city of London get a review of governmental affairs straight from Downing street, Premier Stanley Baldwin last night declared himself an optimist about Europe, because he is a realist.

"Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy, protagonists in the struggles of the day," he said, "now meet as equals and partners to advance the cause of peace, and they look forward to the convalescence of our common civilization"

Mr. Baldwin paid a graceful tribute to Aristide Briand, the French foreign minister, and Gustav Stresemann, the German foreign minister, as far-seeing leaders who rendered a rapproachement possible.

"All Europe honors them and renders them tribute," he added. "All Europe asks where next will a statesman be found with the courage of Stresemann, the broad humanity of Briand. What country in the Balkans, in central or eastern Europe, will first follow their example and earn like fame."

The prime minister wished he could speak equally hopefully about Russia. There were circumstances which led Great Britain to cease diplomatic relations with Russia, he said; there were similar circumstances which prevented the United States from ever admitting such relations.

"Whenever the Russians are prepared to observe the ordinary decencies of international intercourse and abstain from interference in our domestic affairs and form a policy of intrigue and hostility," he continued, 'they shall find us ready to meet them in the spirit of liberality and good will which inspires our whole foreign policy."

ADMITS CRIME OF LAST FALL

William Linn Gives Himself Up To Local Police To-day.

REMANDED FOR WEEK.

William Linn, who has been wanted by the police since October 8, 1926, on a charge of stealing a car owned by S. W. Blewett ,returned to the city and gave himself up this morning. He spent the year in Western Ontario. Why he returned and gave himself up is not known, but the police are investigating his case to find out if he is wanted by the authorities in any other municipality. He pleaded guilty this morning to the charge of stealing the car and was remanded until Tuesday for sentence.

GOVERNMENT IS READY TO HELP THE PROVINCES

Insofar As It Can Justify Its Position Before Parliament, Decares Robb.

SUBSIDIES PROBLEM.

Hon. C. A. Dunning and Hon. Ernest Lapointe Take Up Debate.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 10 (Canadian Press). — "The Dominion Government is prepared to help the provinces in so far as it can justify its position before Parliament." This was the declaration of Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, in the consideration of Federal subsidies before the Provincial Premiers' Conference yesterday afternoon. The discussion was continued last evening.

Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways ,and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, also put forward the views of the Dominion Government. Mr. Dunning dealt with the question of provincial railways which their owners desired to have taken over by the Canadian National Railways ;while Mr. Lapointe discussed the respective domains of the Dominion and the Provinces.

A note of warning was struck by the Minister of Finance.

Must Practice Economy.

Economy must be practised, declared Mr. Robb, if Canada's reputation were to be maintained. It was the duty of the Federal Government to give a lead to others in the matter of economy; and since 1923 the Dominion's debt had been reduced by $105,000,000. On the other hand, the debts of the Provinces had been materially increased. Mr. Robb emphasized the large obligations growing out of the war, and the maturities which the Dominion was compelled to meet from time to time.

"This year," continued Mr. Robb, "the Dominion is in the happy position that out of one hundred millions of maturities, she was able to meet more than half, to reduce the war debt and the interest to that extent." He believed that Canada must continue to pursue that policy.

Mr. Dunning referred to a speech by Hon. J. A. Brownlee, Premier of Alberta, who had spoken of the burden imposed upon the Province through the three railways which it had constructed. Alberta was not the only province which asked for the taking over of certain of its railways by the Canadian National Railways. There were no less than twelve other railways which desired to become part of the C.N.R.

Railway Questions.

An obligation of approximately two hundred million dollars would be assumed by taking over these twelve railways. Mr. Dunning was ready to meet the provinces interested in an endeavour to secure an arrangement which would be of mutual advantage to all parts of Canada. It was impossible, though, he continued, to deal with the question as a whole at the present time ,"having consideration for the existing load which the Government has to bear."

Mr. Lapointe assured the Conference that it was not the desire of the Dominion Government to have any "conflict" with respect to Federal and Provincial jurisdiction. The Dominion, though, had duties to perform and must assert its powers. There was nothing, declared the Minister of Justice, in Section 92 of the British North America Act, which deprived the Federal Government of the right to tax in any direction.

In dealing with financial phases of the Conference agenda, Mr. Robb said that the Conference had been called in the spirit of the days of Confederation, and of the Jubilee year which Canada was now celebrating. The delegates had presented their troubles and difficulties very frankly, but they were not the only ones who had troubles and difficulties. The Minister admitted that the provinces were closer to the life of the people than was the Dominion, but the latter had great responsibilities toward the country which, if not properly fulfilled, would react upon the provinces, cities and towns. These latter might be extravagant and run up expenditures and debts, but this would not be advertised in other countries. If the Dominion were extravagant and negligent in meeting its obligations, this, however, would react on the whole country. It was desirable that Canada should have a good reputation so that capital should come in for development.

In the Conference, said Mr. Robb, the Maritimes had not been unshful in presenting their claims, and he just wondered if the great spirit which had prevailed at Confederation now prevailed.

Mr. Robb recalled that it was a Maritime Province man who had introduced into the fiscal policy of the Dominion the British preference which had given the Dominion a reputation everywhere. He observed two classes in the Conference, those who asked for a revision and increase of subsidies, and those who asked for nothing. He was prepared to say that the Government would carefully consider the demands of the former and accede to those of the latter.

NO NEGLIGENCE BY DEFENDANT JURY DECIDES

Jury Finds That Boys Set Fire But Father Was Not To Blame.

WEST VS. LOCKLIN.

Fall Sitting of Supreme Court of Ontario Opens at Cobourg.

COBOURG, Nov. 10. — The Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario began on Tuesday afternoon with five actions on the list for trial during the session. Of these, three were for trial by jury, and two, non-jury. Only one case was heard, however, most of the time being required to select a jury and to address the grand jury. The Honorable Mr. Justice Wright is presiding over the court.

Before proceeding with the first case, Locklin vs. West, Judge Wright addressed the grand jury on their duties and their importance in the administration of justice. Their duties, he said, were of a two-fold nature. They must first investigate the criminal cases and say whether there was sufficient evidence to place the persons charged on trial. The grand jury did not hear the defence, it was merely their duty to determine whether or not the person should be put on trial and the matter then became one for the petit jury. Very clearly His Lordship detailed the methods of procedure and the assistance which they were permitted to employ in the execution of their duties. Very strongly did he urge the presence of the Crown counsel in their rooms with them. It was his duty to assist them. There were wo criminal charges for them to consider.

The second duty of the grand jury was to inspect all buildings which were wholly or partially maintained by public funds. It was for them to show the people that their money was being properly spent in the best interest to themselves. As a suggestion to them, he mentioned the court house, county gaol and the House of Refuge. He also explained that it was their duty to see what treatment was being afforded the prisoners. While these men and women were criminals of various degrees, there was no reason why they

WORKMEN PUTTING ROOF ON NEW HALL

Few Days More of Suitable Weather Will See Outside Work Done.

STIRLING, November 10. — The workmen at the new hall have placed the trusses and girders upon the walls of the new hall and are busily engaged in putting on the roof. A few more days of favorable weather will ensure the possibility of having the work in hand so that weather conditions will not interfere with the progress.

The concert in the United Church last Wednesday by the Radio Quartette of Belleville was greatly enjoyed by all present, and was worthy of a larger audience.

The attendance at the monthly meeting of the Women's Institute held on Thursday evening was not as large as usual owing to other attractions. It was decided to have a card party this month, and committees were named to arrange for it. The programme consisted of a reading on Hallowe'en by Mrs. R. Meiklejohn, instrumental solo by Mrs. C. Cain, paper on Thanksgiving by Mrs. Nora Westcott, solo, "The Barefoot Trail," by Miss Earl Luery. Mrs. M. W. Sine gave a report of the convention held in Belleville recently.

OMEMEE NEWS.

OMEMEE, Nov. 10.—An armistice service will be held in the Presbyterian church on Friday morning at 10.45. Rev. Mr. Kennedy will be the speaker assisted by Rev. E. W. Rowland and Rev. A. T. Weir.

On Sunday next, owing to anniversary services being held at Bethel, the morning and evening services will be dispensed and afternoon service will be held at 2.30 o'clock, following the Sunday school which commences next Sunday in the afternoon for the winter months. Rev. Washington of Fenelon Falls will be the special speaker.

MINERS ARRIVE AT BRISTOL CITY

Old Miners Footsore After the First Day's Hike of Journey.

GIVEN WELCOME.

BRISTOL, England, Nov. 10 (A.P.) —A little army of 400 unemployed en route to London to storm the halls of Parliament with oratory, arrived here late yesterday afternoon and found tea awaiting them in true English fashion.

The marchers were also greeted by pretty bob-haired Bristol girls who expressed their readiness to dance with the youngsters of the expedition. Some of the older members to whom the trip to London is a serious, even a tragic pilgrimage, were already weary and footsore from the first day's hike of the 200-mile journey, which included a ten-minute train ride through the Severn Tunnel to cut off a sixty mile walk around the Bristol Channel.

As the marchers straggled into Bristol they were met by a local committee of welcome carrying red flags. The procession passed through crowded streets to the Labor Party headquarters, where they went to sleep last night, expecting to continue toward London today.

One of the marchers arrived barefooted with his heavy boots slung over his shoulders.

"It is more comfortable this way," he shouted to a man who asked why he was carrying his boots.

Given Hot Lunch

The marchers, in addition to tea upon arrival here, had a hot lunch from a rolling kitchen at Pilning. The kitchen was in charge of a one-legged war veteran who served in France and who took great delight in shouting "roll up."

The marchers were taken to a theatre as the guests of Col. Harry Day, a member of the Labor party.

Sleeping accommodations were arranged here by the Miners' District Conncil of the County of Rhondda, which is supporting J. A. Cook, Secretary of the British Miners' Federation, who organized the march, despite disapproval of the Federation on the grounds that it is of Communistic origin.

In addition to the rolling kitchen, the marchers have a motor truck loaded with general supplies and an ambulance with well trained male nurses to care for casualties and to attend to sore feet.

ABDUCTION CHARGE LAID BY PARENTS

Man Arrested in Peterborough For Bringing Girl From Warkworth.

COBOURG, November 10. — Frank Dayton was brought from Peterborough yesterday and lodged in the Cobourg County goal by Constable H. Storey. He is charged with the abduction of a Warkworth girl, and the warrant for his arrest was sworn out by the girls' parents. It is alleged that he persuaded the girl to go to Peterborough with him on or about November 2. She was found there November 5, having obtained employment, and was brought back to Warkworth.

Switzerland now has a population of 4,000,000.

Canada's unemployment is steadily decreasing.

Establish Regular Air Mail Service Between France and South America

PARIS, November 10 (Associated Press). — Regular air mail service between France and South America will be undertaken next year.

Financial support for the project, long contemplated by the French Government, was assured yesterday afternoon when the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies voted 120,000,000 francs as a subvention to the Lateocere Company, which for some time past has exploited the air mail line between France and her African colonies.

After the recent successful flight of Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix from Paris to Buenos Aires in six hops, one of them across the South Atlantic without stopping, this company secured a contract with the Argentine Government for handling trans-Atlantic air mail. The Chilian Government also contracted for combination air mail service with the posts delivered to Chili from Argentina by rail The company has been seeking other contracts with other South American countries.

The subvention voted yesterday is effective for the year 1928. It is expected that if the experiment meets with any sort of success sufficient funds to keep it going in the future will be forthcoming. The French will thus be the first to establish a regular air mail service between the old and new worlds.

Although the planes will follow the same route as the pathfinders, Costes and Lebrix, there will be no attempt at first to span the Atlantic regularly in one hop. The service will be conducted partly by aeroplane and partly by steamship, full advantage being taken of the islands along the route.

PROGRAM GIVEN TWICE AT KEENE

Large Crowd at Fowl Supper Makes Repetition Necessary.

SUCCESSFUL EFFORT.

KEENE, Nov. 10.—As a fitting conclusion to the formal opening of the new Presbyterian Church in Keene, nine hundred people attended the fowl supper served in the basement of the church from five o'clock till after eight o'clock Monday evening. The brand new rooms of the church required no other decorations than candelabras on the tables, which lent a very pleasing effect.

The program was one of the most interesting which has been presented at affairs of this kind during the season. Most of the artists were from the city of Peterborough, and the six-piece orchestra, under the leadership of Dr. Munroe, came from Warsaw to assist. Their music was sincerely applauded by those who had packed the church to hear.

The Rev. David Thomson, Hastings, was the first speaker and presided as chairman for the evening. He was unable to do more than tender his congratulations and most sincere wishes for future success to the Keene church, as there was considerable disturbance in the building due to people entering and leaving, who had either just eaten supper or were about to eat. Remarking humorously that he was well supported by cannon to right and to left of him, Mr. Thomson announced the next number, The Trumpeter, which was by C. E. Clark of Peterboro. This wsa followed by a quartette, "One Fleeting Hour," and a solo, "Sunshine and Rain," by Miss Cullen of Peterboro. The members of the quartette were Mr. Anderson, Mr. Sedgewick, Miss Patterson and Mrs. Byers. All three numbers were well received, but as the program was long, encores were not in the order of the evening. Mr. Thomson did, however, remark upon the very appropriate solo, "Sunshine and Rain." It was particularly fitting to the harvest season and the time of Thanksgiving. Then followed a very beautiful duet,

Costes and Lebrix Laid Up With "Flu"

BUENOS AIRES November 10. —Canadian Press. — The French fliers Dieudonne Costes, and Jos. Lebrix, who made the South Atlantic flight recently, are laid up here with influenza. They reached Buenos Aires on October 20, having left Paris, October 10.

They have been resting in Buenos Aires and enjoying numerous entertainments prepared in their honor, but their future plans have not been definitely arranged.

FORM COMMITTEE.

Resolution Passed For Formation of Board on German Reparations.

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—(A.P.)—Formation of a government committee on reparations was provided for in a resolution passed at yesterday's cabinet meeting.

The committee, of which Dr. Koehler, Minister of Finance, will be chairman, will include representatives of the foreign office, and the ministries of finance, economics, food and agriculture, and will be entrusted with preparing all measures dealing with reparations.

The action explodes a widely circulated rumor that the government planned to appoint a special reparations commissioner.

Refuses To Testify Jury Tampering Probe

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 10. —(A.P.) — Another Sinclair oil official charged with having had contact with the Burns detectives involved in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy mistrial refused to testify yesterday in the government's investigation into the allegations of jury tampering.

He is Sheldon Clark, vice-president and general manager of the Sinclair Refining Company, prominent socially and politically in Chicago, and one of the judges who made the decision in the Dempsey-Tunney fight in that city last September.

Coming here under a subpoena, Clark was sent before the grand jury, but remained less than five minutes. He declined to make any statement, but it was announced that he had only been excused and would be recalled again to-day.

At that time, Neil Burkinshaw, assistant district attorney conducting the inquiry, will put to him certain questions designed to elicit information as to whether he had contact between the detectives and Harry F. Sinclair while the Teapot Dome conspiracy trial was in progress.

Conference Marked By Complete Unanimity, Says Baldwin In Addr ess At London Banquet

LONDON, November 10 (Canadian Press Cable). — Premier Stanley Baldwin, speaking at the Lord Mayor's banquet here last night, said, in alluding to his visit to Canada and to the last Imperial Conference, that "last year's conference more than any previous one had made history and was marked by complete unanimity. I only wish that industrial troubles were faced here in the same spirit and wholehearted desire for co-operation."

The long absences which their colleagues overseas undertook to attend these conferences, said Mr. Baldwin, were now in part being reciprocated by Old Country ministers. The Secretary of State for Air had flown to India, the Secretary of War was going there also, while Right Hon. L. C. Amery, Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, was engaged in an Imperial tour.

Premier Baldwin voiced again his pride in Canada, recalling his admission with the Prince of Wales to His Majesty's Privy Council of Canada. "I hope to have another opportunity of speaking of Canada," he said. "I will only say to-night that I found in Canada an intense spirit of hope, confidence, and pride in her achievements during the sixty years of Canadian Confederation and the same spirit concerning her destiny."

BODY OF FINCH IS RECOVERED

Believed To Have Been Drowned in New England State Flood.

ONE OF FIVE.

PATEN, Maine, Nov. 10.— (Canadian Press.)— The body of Robert Finch, one of the five Paten young men believed to have been drowned from a canoe in Upper Shin Pond in Friday's gale, and storm, was recovered yesterday.

The body was brought to the surface by his father, Ivan Finch, assisted by others of the large crew of men who have been dragging the lake with grappling irons under the direction of Sheriff John K. Farrar of Bangor.

This with other evidence seemed convincing to the searchers that the other four had met with a similar fate, and the search for their bodies was pushed with renewed vigor. A hunting knife, dishes and other camp equipment were found on the bottom of the lake Tuesday.

The ages of the five boys ranged from 19 to 22. The others were Roy and Arthur Shean, sons of Cyrus Shean, the rural mail carrier; Keith Ingerson, son of Harry Ingerson, and Kenneth McKenny, son of Frank McKenney, all graduates of Paten High School.

They started out Friday morning to cross the lake ten miles from here, in a canoe for a hunting trip. When they failed to return Sunday it was found they had not reached the camp they had intended to occupy, search was made and the next day their badly battered canoe and two knapsacks were found.

OLD MASTERS

Pibroch of Donuil Dhu,
Pibroch of Donuil,
Wake thy wild voice anew,
Summon Clan Conuil!
Come away, come away,
Hark to the summons!
Come in your war array,
Gentles and commons.

Come as the winds come, when
Forests are rended:
Come as the waves come, when
Navies are stranded!
Faster come, faster come,
Faster and faster—
Chief, vassal, page, and groom,
Tenant and master!

Fast they come, fast they come—
See how they gather!
Side waves the eagle plume,
Blended with heather.
Cast your plaids, draw your blades,
Forward each man set!
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu,
Kneel for the onset!

Give the family a New Orthophonic Victrola for Christmas

Credenza $385 or with electric drive $425

Rd. 1927

Only Victor can Make It

The mark Orthophonic is registered by Victor—the Orthophonic patents are Victor-controlled—and only Victor can manufacture the Orthophonic

So popular has the new Orthophonic Victrola become through its superior performance that two things are happening which may lead to a most disappointing experience on your part:

(1)—People are beginning to be under the impression that any talking machine is a new Orthophonic Victrola.

(2)—Certain retailers are taking subtle advantage of these erroneous impressions, and may find occasion to take advantage of you, unless you proceed in any purchase of a new Orthophonic Victrola,—as follows:

Go only to the dealer displaying the trademark "His Master's Voice". Look under the lid of the instrument for the trademark "His Master's Voice" (shown below) and for the word "Orthophonic" (also shown below)

At the time of this publication, the new Orthophonic Victrola is made only in seven models,—as follows: The Automatic,—which changes its own records,—at $775; the Credenza at $385; the Barona at $225; the Alvara at $190; the Paloma at $160 and Model 4-3 at $115. All these Orthophonic instruments with electric drive, (eliminates winding) at $40 additional. The Electrola No. 12-25 at $790. Check up when buying.

All obtainable on convenient terms from His Master's Voice dealers only.

REPUBLICANS WILL CONTROL LOWER HOUSE

150 Assemblymen Are Elected To New York State Legislature.

MEASURES PASSED.

Proposal To Increase Gubernatorial Term Defeated By Huge Majority.

NEW YORK, November 10 (Associated Press). — The political landslide, which received its powerful impetus from Governor Smith, last night had buried the proposal to increase the gubernatorial term in New York from two to four years. With more than a thousand of the State's 7,709 districts still unreported, a majority of nearly 515,000 votes had been recorded against the proposition.

As the returns trickled in from Tuesday's off-year State election, the majority against the plan mounted steadily. If the present ratio is maintained, political experts estimated the final majority would be more than 600,000.

The actual vote, with 1,292 districts missing was: Yes, 508,255; No, 1,080,648.

The work of tabulating the vote on eight other constitutional amendments likewise progressed slowly, but the incomplete returns indicated that all had been passed by wide margins. Governor Smith had favored all of the amendments adopted. He had fought as vigorously for them as he had opposed the four-year term measure.

The Democratic Governor's admirers hailed the results as a distinct personal triumph, but George K Morris, chairman of the Republican State Committee, issued a statement asserting that the results of the election generally indicated an "overwhelming victory for the Republican Party in 1928."

The Republicans made gains in the State Legislature, where 150 Assemblymen were elected, and will control the Lower House as they have for some years.

HALL FOUND GUILTY ON SECOND HEARING

New Trial on Grounds of Misdirection Results in Repetition of Verdict.

COBOURG, November 10. — The case before the Honorable Mr. Justice Wright and the jury yesterday was that of the King vs. Morgan Hall. The accused was previously sentenced to two years before Judge Logie in the Supreme Court, and was granted a new trial by the Court at Osgoode Hall on the grounds that there had been a misdirection of justice. The charge is that Morgan Hall did commit a serious offence against a girl on the night of June 11, 1926. R. V. Sinclair, K.C., of Ottawa, appeared for the Crown, assisted by W. F. Kerr, K.C., of Cobourg. For the defence F. M. Field, K.C., appeared. The accused was found guilty.

The twenty-six-year-old complainant was the first witness called for the Crown. With much prompting, she told the Judge and jury the details of the attack made upon her on the above-mentioned date. On that night, she said, the accused came to her place of employment and told her that her mother was ill and she was wanted at home. At the time, she was a domestic in the employ of a Castleton family. There was some doubt as to the truth of the statement, and she demurred from leaving immediately. She did, however, get in the car with Hall, who immediately picked up a man named Perry, and the three set out. Driving to a lonely spot in the woods some five miles distant, he stopped the car and she got out with the intention of walking home. But he seized her and committed a grievous offence.

Cross-examined by counsel for the defence, she denied having been friendly with the accused after the affair.

The mother of the girl told of noticing her daughter crying the following day. When she asked what was the matter, she was told of the affair of the previous evening. Closely questioned, she admitted that she had knowledge of her daughter having gone out on different occasions with the man, whom they were both incline to believe was a married man.

The county constable, Charles Ghent of Castleton, was the next witness called. He said he did not arrest Hall, but gave the warrant to the Provincial Police.

"The girl gave you a good name on the witness stand this morning, Mr. Ghent. Do ....." began the defence.

"I guess I deserve it," the witness interrupted, much to the amusement of the Court.

"I have no doubt you do," said Mr. Field, "but I was going to ask you if there was any reason why she should not appeal to you and tell you what had befallen her? We have been told that she had the opportunity, and did not avail herself of it."

"No," came the reply. "There was no reason."

Later developments showed that Constable Ghent experienced little difficulty in locating the man. He had not been arrested, but had been summoned to the Court by Magistrate Floyd.

Mrs. Morgan Hall, wife of the accused since October 17 this year and previous to that his housekeeper, stated that the plaintiff had come voluntarily to the Hall residence after the alleged assault and talked to Hall. She then fully contradicted two of the answers given to Mr. Field, defense counsel, by the girl. These questions were read from the records of the court reporter. 'Did you tell Mrs. Ellis, now Mrs. Hall, that you did not intend to tell your mother" and "did you tell Mrs. Ellis that you would not tell your mother but she scared it out of you?" were the two questions. To both of them the girl replied in the negative, but Mrs. Ellis gave an affirmative reply.

Under stress of questioning by prosecuting attorney Sinclair, Mrs. Hall showed signs of great emotion. She was testifying on behalf of her husband to whom she had been married but a few days. She gave in detail the accounts of the three meetings which took place between the prisoner and the plaintiff after the offence had been committed.

Clarence Dawson and Robert Somerville when called as witnesses, claimed to have seen the plaintiff meeting the prisoner on occasions when she denied having done so.

In spite of the fact that the complainant had spent almost two hours in the witness stand during the morning, she was again called to testify by the Crown counsel. Most emphatically did she deny having met the prisoner more than once since the offence had been committed and that meeting had been quite accidental. Also there had been two other women with her at the time.

This completed the case for both sides and as it was four o'clock, His Lordship granted a five-minute recess. When the court re-assembled, F. M. Field, K.C., counsel for the defense, rose to address the jury. Clearly he explained that if any honest doubt was in one of their minds, there was no reason for them to suppress it. But it must be a real doubt and not a mere fancy. They must also discharge their duties according to the oath which they as jurymen had taken. Very cleverly, Mr. Field proceeded to relate the incidents which occurred on the night in question. He claimed for the prisoner, that he was a man of this country, and not likely to commit such an offense. He recalled the opportunities which had not been availed by the girl when she might have escaped. All the facts which occurred directly before and after the alleged crime had been committed were related and did not seem to indicate that the prisoner had conducted himself after the manner of a fugitive from justice. That others and not the girl herself, were responsible for the machinery of the law being set in motion was not overlooked by the learned counsel. Constable Ghent had even so far signified his desire to be free of all connection with the case as to pass the warrant to the provincial officers for them to take action. In closing he asked that the jury consider the stress placed upon the prisoner by having but recently been placed on trial for this same offense.

R. V. Sinclair, K.C., of Ottawa, for the prosecution rose to make his appeal. Standing close in front of them and looking them squarely in the eye, he reminded them of their oaths —that their doubts must not be mere whims of fancy but reasonable misgivings. Reminding them that the girl had been advised that her mother was ill, he stressed the fact that she was not supposed to be seriously ill, just unable to do her usual work, and therefore requested that her daughter return. He reminded them of the frailty of the girl in comparison to the physique of the man, who was a hale and hearty farmer. To him, counsel there was no doubt but that force had been employed and the reason the girl had not cried out was quite obvious. She was not sure what action the second man, Perry, who was said to be asleep in the back seat of the car, would take. She believed him to be under the influence of liquor. Thus she might double the menace to herself if she cried out for assistance.

She could not scratch as her arms were securely held, but the ground showed unmistakable signs of a struggle. After the crime had been committed, there was no reason why she should not return in the car. The man would surely not repeat the offence. He also reminded the jury that she was in an absolutely strange place and five miles from home. She had not complained to the first person of authority with whom she came in contact, but at the first opportunity she had confided in a blood relation. This was easily understood when the mentality of the girl was considered. In conclusion he reminded the jury that it was the duty of the men of the nation to protect the chastity of the women.

Charge to the Jury.

His Lordship then charged the jury. For their guidance His Lordship read the definition of rape set down in the criminal code. That their duty was very clear, was mentioned by His Lordship. They had to decide whether or not Morgan Hall had in this way assaulted the complainant, no more and no less. Since the counsel for both sides of the case had set forth the evidence fully, fairly and capably, His Lordship's duties, he said, were considerably lightened. Yet he felt it his duty to stress some of the salient points of the evidence. He then proceeded to do so and to remind the jury that the girl had guided the investigators to the spot where the offence had been committed. He also remarked on the fact that the second man, Perry, had not been called upon to testify for either side. The mentality of the girl was also to be considered.

Thus did His Lordship charge the men in whose hands lay the verdict. It was then five minutes after six and the court was adjourned till 8 o'clock. Five minutes later the jury was recalled in order that two points of the evidence be made clear to them. This was at the request of the defense counsel Mr. Field. At 8 o'clock the court re-assembled and the jury appeared. Two minutes later the verdict of "Guilty" was brought in. This was formally submitted to the Bench, and before the counsel for the defence was reminded to ask that the jury be polled and had submitted his request to the judge, the verdict had been entered, and it was too late for this last act in the interest of the prisoner.

When the verdict was brought in, the two sisters of the prisoner who had attended the entire proceedings wept bitterly, but there was no outward display of emotion by the prisoner. To some who had gained admittance to the court in order to hear the verdict, it came as a surprise.

Immediately after the verdict had been entered in the proper manner, the judge ordered the court adjourned. It is expected that sentence will be passed to-day.

On June 21, a bill is down for second reading in the British House of Lords which aims at giving access to that House to peeresses in their own right. There are 18 such peeresses in England and four in Scotland.

Those who preferred cards to dancing were accommodated at tables in the long corridor on the second story of the building. The prizes were won by Miss Whaley, who playing as a gentleman won the men's prize for games. Frank Lee was second, William Armstrong of Havelock, won the prize for lone hands. Mrs. W. J. Abernethy and Mrs. V. Brennan won the prizes for the ladies and Mrs. Cook won the ladies' lone hand prize.

Music for dancing was furnished by the Troubadors, a local six-piece orchestra which is meeting with the approval of the most critical. The old fashioned quadrille also proved a popular variation from the usual fox trots and waltzes. Lunch was served in the domestic science room, which had been very beautifully decorated for the occasion. Very pretty red, white and blue shades concealed the lighting fixtures, while similarly colored streamers ran along the middle of the tables. Along the halls and in the windows were evergreens and autumn flowers. In the windows were bowls of fruit and bouquets of Chrysanthemums. Sketches in color were made by Mrs. Charles Black and Miss Ann Callahan.

Throughout the entire evening the guests thoroughly enjoyed themselves. It was necessary for Father Phelan to make an opportunity rather than avail himself of a natural moment of silence, in order that he might present the prizes for cards and express his appreciation for the generous patronage which the At Home was enjoying and a hope that every person present was having a real good time.

PROGRAM GIVEN TWICE AT KEENE

"Night of Stars," by Mrs. Byers and Mr. Sedgewick.

The Rev. William Allan, St. Paul's, Peterboro, was inclined to speak on the more humorous things of life. He thought of the situation of the bridegroom who, having risen to respond to the toast to the bride, unconsciously laid his hand on her shoulder and said, "This has been thrust upon me." He said he had not intended to speak, nor had he expected to be given the opportunity. However he proved to be an interesting speaker for several minutes, entertaining his listeners with accounts of incidents, which was very much to their liking. But before concluding his address, Mr. Allan became much more serious. He congratulated the people of Keene on the successful consummation of the formal opening of their splendid new building.

Their church, he said, had been built in answer to the prayers of the Presbyterian people, with Presbyterian dollars and for the glory of God and the children of men. He hoped that whatever the future might hold, the church would remain true to its belief and the preaching of the simple Gospel truths. Then, just before closing, Mr. Allan reminded the audience that St. Paul's, Peterboro, was offering an exceptionally attractive evening's entertainment on Thursday evening, when there would be a well-known quartette as entertainers.

"The Egg,' 'a humorous number by Mr. Clarke, took exceptionally well. Though it is not a classic, it is rather difficult to sing since it requires such a great number of changes of tunes of all kinds. "Philosophy," a solo by Mrs. Byers was also well received. "The Crookit Bawbee," sung as a duet by Miss Pattison and Mr. Anderson, and Mr. Sedgwick's Rule Britannia were the next numbers on the program and were followed by My Ain Folk and the Pie Song. All four numbers were well sung and well received. Mr. Anderson's interpretation of "Fiona" was the last number on the program but it was certainly one of the most delightful.

This concluded the program and those who heard it made room for the people who had been forced to wait outside. For their benefit the entire program was repeated. The ministers on the platform were the Rev. Mr. Fowler of Warkworth, the Rev. Mr. Rodger, Toronto, who was the minister for the opening of the church ,and the Rev. Mr. Allan, of Peterborough.

Taking into consideration the offerings from the Sunday services and the proceeds from the fowl supper, the Keene church will realize more than a thousand dollars. This will complete the amount required to complete the deficit. The cost of the building is approximately thirteen thousand dolars and this amount has now been realized. It is also of interest to note that in the year 1846, the first Presbyterian church in Keene was opened and the minister on that occasion was also Rev. Mr. Rodger. For almost eighty years till the event of church union, Keene has continued a prosperous congregation. But when the vote was taken on union, the Presbyterians were left a minority group. Through great effort and perseverance they are gradually arriving at their former prosperous state and have now completed one of the most important steps, the building of their splendid new church.

In this respect, the building committee is to be specially commended. Largely through their efforts, the church was rushed to completion in record time and it was not necessary for the building to be suspended during the winter months and thus delay the opening till the spring

PETERBOROUGH'S ADVANTAGE.

The City Council does well to encourage and support the movement that is designed to give Peterborough a prominent place on Canada's air map.

No one can foretell the developments that may come in the realm of aeronautics, and the municipality that is ready to take advantage of the greater use of aircraft that is sure to eventuate is going to have a big lead over the cities that are content to sit still and wait.

Peterborough's Aero Club, in seeking to secure for this city two of the planes promised by the Federal Government, and the Canadian Air Services Company, in its location here of its school of aviation, are giving Peterborough an unique advantage in the aerial race, and the organizations deserve the support of the City Council and of the citizens generally.

The prospects of a wonderful development in the use of aircraft justify getting behind any movement that promises to keep the city abreast with the growth of air transportation.

DOUBLY DANGEROUS NOW.

The newspapers these days are full of stories of accidents caused by cars skidding on slippery roads.

The conditions at this time of the year make motoring a hazardous occupation, and no season calls for greater care.

This is true, not only on the highway, but on the city pavements, where fast driving when the surface of the road is glazed with ice or even wet with soft snow is inviting disaster.

There are, in fact, days when the prudent man will not venture to drive at all, and when such conditions prevail the wisdom of being more than usually careful should appeal even to those motorists who are not given to slow driving.

Unfortunately, however, there are those who will take a chance no matter how great the danger to themselves or to anybody else, and any such reckless drivers who are caught speeding at a time when speed is doubly dangerous will have to be taught in the Police Court the lesson that common sense should teach them without the machinery of the law being called in to assist.

ONE RESULT OF THE CONFERENCE.

Even if very little that is tangible emerges from the Dominion-Provincial Conference, this get-together meeting of representatives of all the nine Provinces of Canada and of the Federal Government is a splendid thing to have staged during the year of Canada's Diamond Jubilee.

It is not possible for any statesman to have participated in such a conference without obtaining a broader viewpoint of Canadian questions and a better appreciation of the problems that concern the various sections of this vast country.

It would be difficult, too, to come away from a gathering of this kind without a kindlier feeling toward the people of other parts of Canada.

Premier Taschereau of Quebec exemplified this statement in the following words:

"Canada cannot allow one of her Provinces to suffer, and if we have any poor relations in the Canadian family we have got to see that they are made happy. Quebec will support the West in her request for the control of her own natural resources, and if the Maritime Provinces deserve better terms, on behalf of Quebec I say we must assist them."

Noble words these of Quebec's Premier, and if they represent, as The Examiner believes they do, the spirit of all the delegates the conference will serve to leave Canada an even more firmly united country than ever before.

THE SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT.

While there seems to be some tendency to criticize the appointment of a member of the City Council to the position of chief operator of the sewage disposal plant, The Examiner is of the opinion that the majority of citizens will be satisfied or displeased with the selection of Ald. Fife, according to the manner in which he carries out his duties.

If the Aldermen are certain that they have secured the best man available for the position—and apparently they are, for the vote was unanimous—the people generally are content to give the new chief operator a chance to make good.

The thing they insist on, however, is that the sewage disposal plant, which has already cost a large amount of money, shall be made to operate satisfactorily.

They don't care much whether it be Ald. Fife or anybody else who is in charge so long as it is demonstrated that this expensive plant has been made a civic asset instead of a civic white eleph ant.

If the plant is not complete or capable of efficient work it must be completed or made capable.

On the other hand, if the fault lies in the staff the Council will have to keep on firing its operators, chief and all, until results are obtained.

The proper disposal of the city's sewage is too important a matter to be neglected, and so The Examiner is sure that the citizens are hoping that the new operator will justify the confidence placed in him by his colleagues at the Council Board.

ABOUT THAT NATIONAL SPIRIT.

Senator George P. Graham is quoted in the newspapers as having made this statement in a speech at Montreal: "I think we have everything in Canada but national spirit, and something must be done to develop it." It is an old complaint and, we think, one not well-founded.

Probably most people would describe national spirit as love for one's country, devotion to her institutions, pride in her accomplishments and confidence in her future, the willingness to fight in her defence, and the habit of national rather than sectional thinking. Where, in this, does Canada fall short? Mr. Graham no doubt would admit that the United States possess a highly-developed national spirit, and there is more antagonism between New York and the Middle West than there is between French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians; there is a divergence of opinion between the agricultural west and the industrial east equally as pronounced in the United States as in Canada.

What built the transcontinental railways but national spirit, a national vision of a great future? What dotted the Prairies with wheat fields and cities but confidence in the future of the Dominion? What sent hundreds of thousands of Canadians to the battlefields of Europe but a profound devotion to Canada and the Empire? Certainly it was not expectation of material reward. Every Canadian in the older provinces has a keen pride in the remarkable progress of the west; every Western Canadian has an equal pride in the great commercial cities of Ontario and Quebec and he pays tribute to the older units of the Dominion as the mothers of provinces.

Even if Mr. Graham were right in his conclusion, and justified in his declaration that "something" must be done about it, what would he advise? Should we pass a law? There are those who consider Canada must have a "distinctive" flag before she becomes a nation in fact with a national spirit. There are others who shudder with horror at our presumption in calling ourselves a nation when we have no great literature, no world-famous writers. Shall we be making real progress if we adopt a flag bespangled with beaver and maple leaves and worship it with prize essays and odes?

Surely a national spirit is something deeper than the worship of symbols, and surely we can possess it with the utmost sincerity and at the same time with a decent degree of dignity and reticence. Like the perpetual reiteration of our loyalty to the Throne this constant demand for the inculcation of a national spirit savors somewhat of a form of that "inferiority complex" attributed to "Big Bill" Thompson.

And then, too, we must not forget that Senator Graham is a humorist of parts.—Ottawa Journal.

THOMPSON HAS PLENTY OF WORK AHEAD.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago is ridiculed as severely in his own country as he is in Canada. One would almost suspect that the irony which is being poured out by the column in some of the leading American newspapers was subsidized by the tricky English. But the character of the papers making fun of Thompson and his antics is above reproach.

One of the most interesting editorials on the work which is now cut out for Mayor Thompson after he gets through expurgating the history books of British propaganda, is in The New York Sun. That paper sees a vast field of work ahead. In food, clothing, sport and the stage, Perfidious Albion has to be driven out. Says the New York paper:

There can be little doubt that insidious propaganda is at work in this country to humiliate it for the Boston Tea Party by turning it into a nation of tea drinkers. Once that is accomplished only one more little step will be necessary to make it thoroughly British.

The field of athletic pastimes is also being exploited by pro-British propaganda. Already a large part of our substantial citizenry has been converted to golf and with characteristic perfidy Albion has even allowed us to send over champions to win British cups, thus preparing to lull us into a false security that Britain may wound us in an unguarded spot when the critical moment comes to strike. What golf is doing for the bourgeoise, soccer football is doing for the proletariat, while lawn tennis is making serious inroads uopn the loyalty of our school children.

Unless rumor is utterly wrong a secret and diabolical scheme is being perfected in Downing Street with a view to ruining American digestions at Christmas time by English plum puddings. It is well known that Waterloos are won on the playing fields of Eton and Harrow and there is good reason for not believing that they may be lost because of the insidious effects of plum puddings.

Bad as these things are they do not mark the utmost depths of British depravity. Villainous concoctions, mislabeled whiskey, are reliably said to be pouring into this country from British sources. In an effort to sap the true vitality bred by honest American tobacco, Britain is sending over to us various pipe mixtures the only effect of which can be to drug our smokers into a lethargy which will make them helpless in a time calling for action. To lull us further into a false sense of well being an agent of British propaganda named Tiller has hit upon the infernal device of training chorus girls for the American stage, thus deceiving us into a belief that a country which trains its girls to dance so well for our amusement cannot be thinking of training its men to fight against us.

There are reports that Britain is trying to seduce American men into wearing monocles, thereby destroying that accuracy of sight which has made of us the finest rifle marksmen in the world. Also a report that by sending us cheviots and tweeds for our clothing Britain is trying to break down that physical sturdiness which enabled our forefathers to endure the horrors of Valley Forge.

Even after all the above, it is fair to assume that it would only be a beginning, if Old Glory is still to fly and not be repaced by the Union Jack.—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A prize of $10,000 for the best all-American history that will "tell the truth" is offered in Chicago. If it really does that some old ideas are going to be badly shattered.

The sewage disposal plant seems to be developing into an aldermanic disposal plant.

The fact that two people were shot during the elections in Kentucky shows that you cannot always vote as you like.

A contemporary hopes that the new Ford car will not "choose not to run."

The decision of George Spence, Federal member for Maple Creek, to re-enter the Saskatchewan Government will necessitate a by-election, and give Mr. Bennett as new Conservative leader a chance to "do his stuff."

With winter weather conditions careful driving is more than ever a necessity on Ontario's highways, as well as on city streets.

No reports are being given out from the rival training camps, but it is understood that both Miss Agnes MacPhail and ex-Premier E. C. Drury are rapidly getting into shape for their battle at the U.F.O. convention next month.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Nov 10 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here yesterday was of a very limited character and the volume of business was small. Local exporters stated that the pool was underselling them by several cents a bushel.

There was a little business worked in No. 3 Northern wheat for export in the domestic market, but apart from this sales were confined to car lots for local and country account. Prices were steady.

The inquiry from the United Kingdom and the Continent for spring wheat grades of flour was confined to small lots, but the local trade was fair and prices were firm. The demand for winter wheat flour was moderate and prices were unchanged.

The millfeed trade was again active and firm. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was steady at unchanged prices.

A fairly good trade was again done in baled hay for export account, but the domestic inquiry was limited and prices were steady.

A feature of the egg trade yesterday was the stronger feeling that developed for strictly fresh eggs and prices scored an advance of 1 to 2 cents per dozen. This was attributed to the increasing scarcity of supplies and the good demand. The storage trade was fair and prices were firm. The receipts were 765 cases.

The firmer feeling that developed in the market for potatoes on Tuesday was fully maintained yesterday. This was due to the colder weather, the breaking up of the country roads and the smaller deliveries from that source for the time being combined with an improved demand. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Whites were made at $1.35 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.35 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.30 per bag in bulk, and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

The market for imported beans continued active and prices remained firm. Sales of car lots of choice white hand-picked on spot were made at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, with broken lots at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

The demand for all grades of butter was confined to small lots, but the undertone was firm. The receipts were 408 packages.

The local and foreign demand for cheese was inactive but the tone was about steady. The receipts were 8,632 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 10 (Canadian Press).—With an increase of 27,358,000 bushels reported yesterday in the world's available stocks of wheat, the market price averaged lower. Forthcoming official estimates of the wheat yield in Canada and Argentina tended to make buyers cautious. Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as Tuesday's finish to ½c down, with corn showing ⅝ to ¾c decline; oats ⅛ to ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 27c.

The fact that Argentine weather conditions were more favorable counted a good deal as an advantage to the selling side of the wheat market, although unconfirmed reports of crop damage in some zones south of Cordoba were current. On the other hand, adverse weather prevailed in spring wheat territory, indicating possible delay to the crop movement both north and south of the Canadian line, as a result of rain or snow. Meanwhile, export demand for North American wheat was only fair; total new business with Europe being estimated at 500,000 bushels.

Corn owed its weakness largely to assumption that the government crop report to be issued today would show a good sized increase of yield as compared with a month ago. At times, however, the market displayed considerable firmness owing to unfavorable weather and to husking returns that in numerous cases were hardly half what have been looked for. Oats trade was slow and there were signs of a slightly larger movement from the country.

Provisions were responsive to price breaks in the cotton market and to a downward trend in hog values.

The women have taken over the aviation business, it seems. No wonder, with all the men in the cellars.

Perhaps the women aviators are so successful because they can take on more different airs than the plain males.

Women flyers should have one advantage, anyhow. They shouldn't run out of gas as soon as most men.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES.

REGENT STREET MISSION BAND.

LAKEFIELD, November 9. — Mrs. Kingdon entertained the members of the Regent Street Mission Band at her home on Thursday evening at a real Scottish Hallowe'en party.. About thirty children and eight ladies were present, and young and old spent a memorable evening. Scotland is the land where the Hallowe'en customs originate, and a Scottish Hallowe'en party was really a super-party.

A tub of apples was brought in and the youngsters werearmed withforks for spearing them. They played wing, musical chairs, and all joined in a merry game of forfeits. An educational game, "Use Your Talent," was a novel feature, which was interesting and amusing for all. Each child was asked to make some contribution to the evening's programme and a prize was given for the best. The children entered into the contest with great zest, and songs, recitations, readings, stunts, and piano selections were given. The prize was awarded to Vivian Hendren for her readings, which were judged to be the best contribution to the programme.

Mrs. Kingdon had spared no trouble to make the party a success, and the children were unanimous in the verdict that it was the best yet. The spacious living rooms of Mrs. Kingdon's home were decorated with the daintiest of Hallowe'en motifs, the color scheme being orange and black.

Refreshments were served to the children, who were seated in a big circle, and who were hearty in their appreciation of the good things offered them.

SUNSET SOAP DYES

Why Soap is used in SUNSET

THERE is a real reason for "soap" in SUNSET—it cleans the cotton, silk, wool or mixed goods; prepares it to receive the dye.

The soap softens the fabric, opens it up so the dye penetrates and gives brilliant, even, lasting colour unobtainable with other dyes.

SUNSET is different from any other dye. It is manufactured exclusively by this company by a special process protected by Dominion of Canada Patent No. 218264. This process cannot be used by any other manufacturer.

SUNSET cleans as it dyes. Takes one third the time of other dyes. It is safe to use on the finest material; requires no acid to set the colour, just ordinary salt alone. Is really clean to use—does not stain hands or spoil utensils.

Ask your dealer for the free SUNSET folder—"Season's Colours"—it tells how to get the newest fashionable shades with SUNSET Dyes.

Don't let your dealer substitute; ask him to get SUNSET for you. Or send to us for colours wanted, 15c a cake postage prepaid.

KNOX W.M.S. HAS THANK-OFFERING

Address Given By Mrs. Waddell of New Zealand.

The Thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Knox Church was held on Thursday, November 3, with a good attendance.

The President, Mrs. Watt, presided.

The meeting opened with the usual devotional exercises. A Responsive Bible Reading from Luke 10 was led by Mrs. McDonald, and prayer by Mrs. Watt.

A pageant, with Mrs. Gerard representing China, Mrs. Morrison (Japan), and Mrs. Benson (India), was very instructive.

Mrs. Waddell, of New Zealand, gave a delightful address, telling of the Missionary Work being carried on by these people at home and in foreign countries. This address was very much enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Johnston gave a very pleasing solo, and the dedicatory prayer was offered by Mrs. Morrison. The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer in unison.

GIRL GUIDES' DANCE

COBOURG, Nov. 10.—The Cobourg Girl Guides were at home in the gymnasium of St. Peter's Anglican church yesterday evening. The occasion was a very delightful dancing party. Cobourg Collegiate Orchestra furnishing the music. The Gymnasium was suitably decorated with yellow, orange and black streamers, interspersed with witches, owls and pussy cats of the black, very much Hallowe'en variety.

Miss Myrtelle Gunzul, serving her fourth term as auditor of Long Beach, California, is said to be the only woman city auditor in the United States elected to the office.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES.

MADOC, Nov. 8.—A Hallowe'en party was held on Tuesday evening in the Sunday school rooms of the Presbyterian church under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

An excellent program opened with the singing of well-known songs which were sung with real zest. Solos, readings, dialogues, and games were also enjoyed. Mr. Will Hawthorne delighted everyone with his original drawings and character sketches.

The hit of the evening was a novelty auction sale put on by Geo. Wright.

The whole program was entertaining throughout. Lunch was last, but not the least appreciated number on the program.

Mrs. B. H. Sills, of Toronto, has been spending a few days with Miss I. Breakell.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Bristol, Mrs. M. Bristol and Mrs. Geo. Huffman motored to Belleville on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank motored to Bancroft last week to attend the funeral of the late I. A. Eby.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Jos. Belcher was held on Oct. 20th. She leaves a sorrowing husband, an infant a few days old and two small girls.

Mrs. E. Richardson, of Malone, is spending a few days in Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Huffman spent Sunday in Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Nobes of Marmora were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Carman of Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bird and children spent Sunday in Rawdon.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Stockloser spent a few days in Toronto last week.

Mr. Hugh Kellar is away for a holiday and Mr. Wilfred Smith is in charge of the electric hydro.

Mrs. William Mackintosh and Mrs. F. E. Jenkins attended the hundredth Anniversary services in Belleville, and were the guests of Mrs. Alex Moore while in Belleville.

Oakdale Rebekah Lodge held a social evening on Oct. 27th. Games were indulged in and refreshments were served.

NORHAM Y. P. L.

NORHAM, Nov. 10.—A very successful Hallowe'en party was held under the auspices of the Norham Young People's League. The social was held in the Recreational Hall, which was gaily decorated for the occasion, with orange and black trimmings, black owls and cats, orange lights and jack-o-lanterns. Rev. D. R. Clare acted as chairman for the evening. The first part of the program consisted of a recitation by Miss Mildred Curtis a vocal solo by Mr. F. Huyck, a recitation by Mrs. O. Laver and a violin and ukelele duet rendered by Messrs. Cole. The parade of those in costume was the next item of interest. The prize winners were as follows:

Best Dressed Lady—Miss Laura Pomeroy, of Myersburg.

Best Dressed Gentleman—Mr. Philips, of Morganston.

Best Dressed Couple—Mrs. Jones and Mr. Jacques, of Myersburg.

Best Comic Costume—Mr. Everett Newman.

Best Boy's Costume—Mr. W. J. Newman.

Best Girl's Costume—Lenore Isaac.

A contest, under the supervision of Miss Della Diamond proved very entertaining. After community singing, a delicious lunch was served.

NORHAM, Nov. 10.—The students from the vicinity, all enjoyed a very successful Hallowe'en party on Wednesday night when the pupils of the Warkworth Continuation school assembled in the Council Chambers, for a night of fun.

The rooms were very prettily decorated in the prevailing colours of Hallowe'en—black and orange by means of streamers, jacko-lanterns and black cats.

The guests were greeted at the door by disguised members of the Program Committee, were blindfolded and led through the mysterious initiation service. After this terrifying experience they were conducted to the general assembly hall, where a great variety of Hallowe'en games took place, among them singing contests, guessing contests and stunts. A bounteous lunch, brought the evening of enjoyment to a close.

ORANGE CORNERS SCHOOL.

The school at Orange Corners, S. S. No. 10, Emily, was the scene of a very attractive Hallowe'en frolic, when a delightful program was put on by the teacher and pupils of the school, assisted by the members of St. John's choir. The room was attractively decorated with yellow and black streamers, black cats, bats, and witches. A large drawing at the front of the room represented a brick fire-place, with ghosts and Jack o' Lanterns about it. In each corner a grinning Jack o' Lantern made the only light until later in the evening, when the lamps were lit. A ghostly, creepy feeling was created when the ghost, Mr. Fred Fowler, and the witch, Miss Marion Storey, shook hands and welcomed the guests.

From seven o'clock until eight, witches, ghosts, fairies, Puritan maids, clowns, brownies, old maids, tramps, gypsies, and black boys came wending their way in, to partake in the spirit of Hallowe'en.

After a grand march around the school, by those in costume, the chairman, Rev. A. T. Weir, of Omemee, opened the program by a short address, in which he congratulated the masqueraders on their many varied costumes and admitted that they had disguised themselves very well, as he did not know one from the other. Everyone was then asked to sing "O Canada," which was followed by the National Anthem.

An opening chorus by the pupils of the school, "Hello, Everybody, Glad to See You Here," was followed by a recitation, "A Welcome," by little Norma Jackson, whose first attempt at reciting was a real success.

Two recitations, "How Paw Spent Hallowe'en," by Willie Harris, and "A Hallowe'en Letter" by Jane McConnell, were followed by a chorus, "School Days." The next were recitations by Hiram Finley, "A Little Boy's Troubles," and by Lawrence McConnell, "John's Jack o' Lantern." Then a chorus, "Get Away, Old Man." The Mother Goose dialogue, with Gladys Smith as Mother Goose, and many little boys and girls to represent the nursery rhymes, led the audience to believe that these little people were a remodelled group of nursery rhymes.

The masqueraders were a number of masked young people who sang a chorus, "Shell Out," after one of the group, Nellie Casey, recited "Masqueraders."

The audience was then delighted with several musical selections by Jane and Lawrence McConnell, who responded to encores. A Junior Red Cross Drill was put on by fourteen pupils, who carried a letter, and after the drill gave their yell and sang "We're All Jolly Good Fellows."

A quartette, "On the Sidewalks of New York," was rendered by four members of St. John's choir, Mrs. Frank Fowler, Mr. Fred Fowler, Miss Mildred Wager and Mr. Walter Magee. Mrs. Walter Magee was the organist.

After a number of short recitations by several pupils, a final chorus, "Goodnight Folkses," was sung, after which several contests were enjoyed. The winners of these contests were Miss Muriel Smith and Mr. Donald Kennedy, who received appropriate prizes.

Those winning prizes for the masquerade were Miss Lottie Bray, for best dressed lady; Master Hiram Finley and Mr. Alfred Lough, for best dressed man and best comic costume. The judges were Mr. Samuel Carew and Mrs. A. T. Weir.

During the evening several intermissions were given, when the audience enjoyed fishing at the fish-pond, held in one corner of the room. Useful articles, home-made candy, flowers, vases, etc., were sold at a Junior Red Cross booth conducted by several of the pupils. At the far corner of the room a bit of the future of each person was told by a witch, who drew a goodly number anxious to learn their fate.

Music was supplied all the time by the school's victrola. A delightful lunch was served by the older pupils and members of the choir.

There was something doing all the time, and after a very enjoyable evening the young people departed for their homes.

The proceeds from the door, J. R. C. booth, and fish-pond amounted to thirty-six dollars.

The Orange Corners' Sporting Club opened on Wednesday evening with a goodly attendance.

A number from around here attended The Examiner's Hallowe'en party on Monday evening and report a good time.

YOUNG WORSHIPPERS.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 10.—The Young Worshippers of the Regent Street United Church held their annual Hallowe'en party and parade in the basement of the church, the place being tastefully decorated for the occasion. There were sixty children present, all masked and wearing fancy costumes. The prizes were awarded to Denise Hill, Gerald Northey, Kathleen Wannamaker, and Viola Murphy.

The program consisted of musical numbers and recitations, the former including piano solos and duets and a cornet duet, chorus singing and vocal duets. Twelve little girls gave a clever representation in pantomime of an old fashioned afternoon tea and a modern one.

The children played several popular games such as: Spin the plate, drop the handkerchief, bean bag and a candy hunt got all the children going. Prizes were presented to the successful contestants.

During the evening Mrs. Kemp presented prizes to the five members of the League who had attended Divine service once during each Sunday of the year as follows: Phyllis Charlton, Eva Hendren, Jack Hendren, Valeta Carveth and Ralph Darling. Refreshments were served by several of the ladies of the church and as the clock was striking ten the national anthem was sung and a delightful evening for children brought to a close.

PARADISE FOR HUNTERS

SMALLPOX CASES HAVE INCREASED

Ottawa Figures Show Disease Slightly Worse This Week.

OTTAWA, November 10. — Canadian Press. — Figures given out today by the city hall department show there are forty five cases of small pox in the Hopewell hospital and twenty three cases quarantined in homes. Twenty five houses throughout the city are under quarantine. These figures show slight increases since the beginning of the week.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Recipes from St. Charles Recipe Book

(Sent Free on request to The Borden Co. Limited, Montreal)

TOMATO CHOWDER

2 cupfuls Borden's St. Charles Milk
1 pint hot water
2½ cupfuls canned tomatoes
1 medium sized onion, sliced thin
1 tablespoonful butter
4 tablespoonfuls flour
2 teaspoonfuls sugar
3 teaspoonfuls salt
¼ teaspoonful pepper
¼ teaspoonful soda
6 water crackers, split

Melt the butter in the top part of the double boiler, add the onion, and cook it gently till yellowed, about five to eight minutes. Pour in the milk and water, set over the lower part of the double boiler and scald. Mix the flour, salt and pepper with enough cold water to make a smooth cream; stir it into the milk and cook about fifteen minutes, stirring occasionally. Heat the tomato with the sugar; when boiling, add the soda and combine it with the thickened milk. For serving, put a split cracker which has been dipped in warm water, in each plate.

BRAN MUFFINS

¾ cupful Borden's St. Charles Milk diluted with ¾ cupful water
1 teaspoonful salt
2½ tablespoonfuls molasses
2 tablespoonfuls melted butter
1 egg
2 cupfuls flour
1 cupful bran
4 teaspoonfuls baking powder

Beat the egg and add the other ingredients in the order given. Beat well and transfer to well oiled muffin pans and bake thirty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

ONE EGG CAKE

¾ cupful Borden's St. Charles Milk diluted with ¾ cupful cold water
¼ cupful vegetable cooking oil, scant
½ cupful sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoonful salt
1½ teaspoonfuls baking powder
1½ cupfuls sifted flour
½ teaspoonful vanilla
½ teaspoonful lemon extract

Beat the egg light and cream it with the sugar, salt, and flavoring. Combine the milk, diluted, with the cooking oil. Sift together the dry ingredients and add them alternately to the first mixture with the milk. Beat thoroughly, turn into a lined, medium-sized pan and sprinkle nut meats, chopped raisins or cocoanut over the top. Bake in a moderate oven, for thirty minutes.

ROSENEATH COUPLE GIVEN FLOOR LAMP

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dawe Leaving the Village For Warkworth.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dawe and a number of friends and neighbors held a social gathering before their removal to Warkworth to reside.

Mr. Dawe will be greatly missed in both social and business activities, having lived in the village all his life. At one time he was noted as the right-hand man of the Roseneath baseball team. In the days when Dr. Hayden, John Murphy, Bob Macklin and many others were in the team, it was almost certain that the Roseneath team would win, and did win when George Dawe was pitcher.

He also taught school in the senior room of Alnwick S.S. No. 2 and now many men and women are reaping the benefit of his thorough teachings.

His aim was to raise the standard of individual development, depending on character, love and personal religion for its success.

Both as individual and as organizer did Mr. Dawe prove to the people that he was in truth the very backbone of the Agricultural Society. When he was first made president of the society it was said he would give it a decent burial as it was going behind every year, but instead of letting it sink, he took hold of the reins and drove it right ahead so that it was soon recovered and is now spoken of as one of the best in the province.

People or organizations promoting "causes" turned to him always because it was known that his help was indispensable and was never refused when it was needed to further a movement, for the good of the community. His many friends feel grateful for the hospitality on many occasions, his liberal support toward the church and other worthy causes. He was treasurer for the township for the past 22 years, and the number of years is enough evidence to know that his work was entirely satisfactory and appreciated.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Dawe was presented with a walnut floor electric lamp as a little token of remembrance from the people of Alnwick township.

Rev. R. M. Browne read the address and Mr. Charles Brown made the presentation. Addresses were given by Gordon Parker, Reeve of township, Harry R. Mouncey, ex-Reeve, Charles Grigg, ex-Reeve and M. Davey.

Mr. Dawe replied in well chosen words, thanking his friends for their thoughtfulness, expressing his appreciation for their kindness and wishing the whole community further success in all social and business activities. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawe are retiring from business here and will reside in Warkworth. Mr. and Mrs. Meredith D. Brown have purchased the general store and dwelling vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Dawe and will conduct business as usual. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adams and family are occupying the residence recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

CHOIR MEMBERS RECEIVE GIFTS

Mr. and Mrs. Paul McGuire Recently Married at Downeyville.

DOWNEYVILLE, Nov. 10.—A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul McGuire when the members of St. Luke's choir gathered together for the purpose of a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. McGuire, two members of the choir who were recently married. Mr. Albert Carroll read an address and Miss Loretto Harrington presented Mr. and Mrs. McGuire with a beautiful cabinet of 1847 Rogers silverware. Mr. McGuire was taken by surprise and spoke for himself and Mrs. McGuire, their appreciation of the gift. He also said it was a pleasure for him to have all the members at his home as his guests and hoped they would come often.

Rev. Father Galvin, who acted as chairman, spoke briefly of the pleasure of being present at a gathering of choir singers.

Speeches were also made by Messrs. Frank Milloy, Clare Harrington, William C. Herlihey and others. Then all joined and sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess, and a very enjoyable evening was spent in instrumental music and community singing, and all joined in wishing Mr. and Mrs. McGuire many years to serve as members of St. Luke's choir.

BETHANY NEWS

BETHANY, Nov. 10.—Rev. Mr. Broomhour, of Pontypool preached in the United Church on Sunday, while Rev. A. Poulter had charge of an anniversary service at the Lotus appointment for Mr. Boomhour.

Mr. Cecil Ward, of Toronto, spent several days in the village and community, the first part of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Darroch sold their residence and lot, situated on Maine street to Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Price.

Mr. and Mrs. Darroch, two daughters, Beatrice and Pauline, and son, St. Clair, left by motor for Toronto on Tuesday evening, where they intend in the future to reside. The Darroch family will be greatly missed in the village, especially in the church circle in which the family took an active part.

Friends and acquaintances of Mr. Robert Kerr of Yelverton were surprised and shocked to hear on Wednesday evening of his sudden and unexpected death following an operation at the General Hospital, Toronto, on Tuesday.

Messrs. F. W. Bowen, of Bowmanville and Mr. William Davy, of Orono attended the play "Mail Order Brides" in the town hall on Friday last.

Mr. William Lee has purchased Mr. Louis Staples' house and lot, formerly the old Methodist parsonage, and intends moving in the near future. Mr. Charles Porteous of Dranoel Junction has purchased the Lee property.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Price motored to Toronto on Sunday and spent Monday with friends.

Mrs. Jeff Davis spent Tuesday in Peterborough with friends.

Messrs. Bruce Ryley, Fred Fallis and Wellington Card were among the hunters who went North this week.

Queen Maud of Norway has been criticized by some of her subjects for regularly spending the Autumn months in England. But these yearly visits are really in redemption of a pledge that the then Prince and Princess Charles of Denmark gave to King Edward when he gave his consent to Prince Charles accepting the crown of the newly-created independent kingdom of Norway. It was then agreed that Queen Maud should visit her native land at least once a year.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound", you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. It can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by
Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 8

The other evening the writer had the pleasure of playing at one of the New York Card Clubs where the informatory double is not recognized nor played. After the game was over, there was a spirited discussion as to the merits and demerits of the informatory double. Most of the objections were based on specific instances where the use of the informatory double was disastrous; but, upon analysis, every one of these cases proved only that the player in fault had used the informatory double without a proper understanding of what he was doing. First understand what you are doing, and then if you don't get good results give up the theory. But it is hardly fair to condemn anything without a fair trial.

For years the English refused to try out the informatory double, but during the last year they have finally capitulated and now think it is the greatest addition to the game since its inception. The following hands, given as problems in the preceding article, are examples of the problems the English are meeting in their study of the informatory double and should prove interesting and instructive:

Answer to Problem No. 7

Hearts — 9
Clubs — K, J, 8, 2
Diamonds — K, Q, 3
Spades — J, 9, 8, 5, 4

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one spade. If A doubled one spade (informatory), and Y passed, what should B bid? He has a choice of two clubs or one no-trump. B should undoubtedly bid one no-trump in preference to two clubs. The no-trump bid offers a better chance for game and is sound because A-B between them should have at least a double stopper in the spade suit. Some players may think the one spade double should be passed by B in the hope that the bid can be defeated. However, such practice is unsound. Even when the opponents have most of the high cards, it is surprising how often a suit bid of one is made, due to a singleton or void suit in the dummy. Therefore be careful about trying to defeat a suit bid of one. Wait until two or three are bid before making a business double with the type of hand held by B in this problem.

Answer to Problem No. 8

Hearts — K, 7, 6, 2
Clubs — A, Q, 10
Diamonds — K, Q, 4, 3
Spades — K, 6

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump. A doubled, Y passed and B bid two spades. If Z passed, what should A bid? Should he pass or bid two no-trump? A should pass and not even consider a two no-trump bid. Such a bid may get him into serious trouble. In the first place, A's informatory double is unsound because he isn't prepared for the spade bid, either to properly assist the bid, if made, or to [illegible] that reason, A should have passed one no-trump.

Don't ever make an informatory double unless prepared for any bid partner may make in answer to the double. Such a double only gets you and your partner into hot water. By "prepared for any bid," is meant either help for any bid or a hand of such a type that another bid may be made if partner bids the weak suit. In this example hand A overbid two spades with two no-trump, was doubled and lost 500 points. It is such bidding that gets the informatory double in disrepute, but the fault is not with the informatory double but with the misuse of it.

Answer to Problem No. 9

Hearts — 10, 9, 8
Clubs — A, K, Q, 4
Diamonds — 7, 3
Spades — K, 10, 4, 2

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one club, A bid one spade, Y doubled and B passed. What should Z bid? Should he regard the double of one spade as informatory or as a business double? In either case, what should he do?

Such a double is a business double and shows that B thinks he can defeat the one spade bid. Any double made by a player after his partner has bid is a business double and intended to defeat the contract. In this instance it looks as if A is in bad so Z is in the happy position of choosing between a big penalty or a sure game and rubber at no-trump. The state of the score would have some bearing but the writer would be inclined to let the double stand and try for the penalty. There is a difference of opinion on this point. Some players, the English in particular, argue that any double of a bid of one is informatory, whether or not partner has bid, but such a view seems unsound. The best results will undoubtedly be obtained by following the writer's viewpoint.

Answer to Problem No. 10

Hearts — K, 7, 3
Clubs — Q, J, 10, 9, 7
Diamonds — 9, 7
Spades — 8, 5, 2

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump. A and Y passed and B bid two spades. If Z bid two no-trump and all passed, what should A open? Should he lead his partner's spade suit or take a chance on his own club suit? A should open the eight of spades. The club opening is tempting and should be made if A held less than three spades, but not otherwise. B bid spades for one of two reasons, either to play the hand at spades if he won the bid or to have that suit led if Z bid two no-trump. For that reason A should play a partnership game and follow B's more or less explicit directions; that is, to lead spades.

Answer to Problem No. 11

Hearts — A, J
Clubs — 8, 7, 6, 3
Diamonds — A, K, 10, 9, 8, 7, 2
Spades — none

Hearts — K, Q, 10, 9, 8, 4
Clubs — 10
Diamonds — Q
Spades — 10, 8, 4, 3, 2

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one heart (a questionable bid). A bid one spade, Y two diamonds and B two spades. Z and A passed and Y bid three hearts. B and Z passed and A bid three spades, Y bid four diamonds, B passed and Z bid four hearts. All passed and A opened the king of clubs and all followed suit. A then led the seven of hearts. How should Z plan the play of the hand?

Z should first take six rounds of hearts, trying to coax a diamond discard, if possible. In any event, he should then lead the queen of diamonds and overtake in the dummy with the king. He should then lead the ace and if the jack of diamonds is only guarded once, Z will make the balance of the tricks. It is bad play for Z to try to cross-ruff the hand. By so doing he cannot make more than three odd unless the diamonds break and he has given up valuable information. By leading out six rounds of trumps, he makes his opponents guess as to what cards to hold and in this way may force one or more diamond discards. In any event, he must boldly try for game for there is no other way unless the diamonds fall as indicated.

KING'S WHARF

KING'S WHARF, Nov. 10.—Messrs. Frank Scollard and William Cavanagh of Ennismore passed through here with 37 cattle which they sold to Mr. Beck, of Bobcaygeon. They received a handsome price, as cattle are in great demand at present, and are selling high.

Miss Ruby Perdue attended the wedding of Miss Clara Murphy and Michael Crough in Ennismore on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Maloney and family, of Ennismore, spent Sunday the guests of friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Guiry attended the Crough-Murphy wedding in Ennismore Wednesday.

Mr. John Winn attended the plough-ing match at Mr. Harold McConnell's on Tuesday.

Mr. Edward Thurston, of Bobcaygeon is rejoicing these days on a recent investment. At the Downeyville Social in August Mr. Thurston purchased a ticket for a pony, buggy and harness for twenty-five cents, which was drawn for later. Mr. Thurston being the lucky winner. At the Bobcaygeon Fair the pony outfit won several first prizes. The other day Mr. Thurston sold the pony, buggy and harness for one hundred dollars ($100.00) to Mr. Rollie Thurston of the same place.

A very enjoyable home-coming was held at the home of Mr. Joseph Herlihey, when he came home from his wedding trip, when about 150 of his friends and neighbors gathered at his home and presented Mr. and Mrs. Herlihey (nee Mary Devine) with a miscellaneous shower. The evening was spent in dancing for the younger folks, while the older ones were entertained at cards. At mid-night a dainty lunch was served by the ladies. A large crowd was present from Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, Downeyville and Ennismore.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, Nov. 10.—Miss Sadie Young, assistant in Warsaw School, spent the holiday at her home in Lakefield.

Mr. Robert Payne is improving slowly.

The Presbyterians held a very successful social get-together in the hall on Friday evening last. The program consisted of solos, recitations, contests, and selections from Dr. Munroe's orchestra. Dr. Munroe and Mr. McCleary added spice to the program with their humorous stories and clever witticisms. Finally, all partook of a dainty lunch at the hands of the ladies.

Mr. Vivian Jackson has entered his new barber shop apartments in the rear of Payne & Darling's store.

Many from the village went to the hunt last Saturday and Monday.

There was no service in the Presbyterian Church last Sunday.

Last Thursday evening, Archdeacon Davidson gave a very interesting address in the Anglican Church on "History of the Christian Church."

On Thursday afternoon, Archdeacon Davidson and Rev. O'Conor Fenton visited Warsaw School. In an address to the pupils, the Archdeacon spoke of the three c's—country, courtesy, and church. That the address was appreciated was amply evidenced by the pupils' hearty applause.

Warsaw School are putting on a special Armistice memorial program in the hall on Friday morning, April 11, at 10:45. The public is cordially invited.

After seven attempts, Miss Mercedes Gleitz 25-year-old typist in the London office of the T. Eaton Company, swam the English channel, being the first English woman to accomplish the feat. However, with the confession by Dr. Dorothy Logan, another English swimmer, that her assumed swimming of the channel was a hoax, Miss Gleitz attempted to repeat her swim, this time accompanied by official observers. Photo shows Miss Gleitz passing under an improvised triumphal arch of oars by Folkstone enthusiasts. With Miss Gleitze is her youngest admirer, Miss Sybil Hill of Edinburgh.

Vincent C. Macdonald, called to the Ontario bar recently, was formerly private secretary to the prime minister and is a prominent member of the bar of Nova Scotia, where he practised in partnership with Hon. W. J. O'Hearn, K.C., former attorney-general of that province. He is a gold medalist of Dalhousie University law school and for seven years was a member of its teaching staff and has been a frequent contributor to the standard legal periodicals. For three years he was columsel and legislative draftsman to the Nova Scotia legislature, and in 1926 was research assistant to the dominion royal commission on maritime claims. He was private secretary to the prime minister during the parliamentary session of 1926-27.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO US?

Seventy-nine years ago the wholesale firm of John Macdonald & Co. commenced business in Toronto. After continuing to operate successfully for this long time, they have ceased operations. Their stock—amounting to some $800,000 worth of merchandise—was purchased by Gordon Mackay & Co.
We have secured as our share of this stock, several thousands of dollars worth of splendid new dry goods at exceptional prices.

Our regular stock is already heavy. We are clearing out these extra purchases before the commencement of the Christmas business.

Our buying from the John Macdonald stock was done at unbelievably low prices. We are turning these lines over to our customers at small profit to ourselves. You will derive the greatest benefit from our exceptional opportunity.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN FOR YOU?

An opportunity for you to obtain Dry Goods, Cotton Piece Goods, House Furnishings, Draperies, Rugs, Floor Oils, Linoleums, Underwear, Socks, Shirts, Sweaters, Smallwares, Women's Gloves and Hosiery, Children's Stockings and Socks, Dress Goods, Silks, etc., etc., at under market prices.

This is the biggest sale we have ever conducted. Our store is filled with saleable merchandise from basement to roof. We purchased the stock we are offering at extremely interesting prices, and now, in turn, we offer to share our "fortunate buy" with you at prices considerably lower than we could replace this merchandise on to-day's market. We offer also a number of clearing lines from our own stock, so that it will be well worth your while to visit us next Friday and Saturday and as many times during the following days as possible.

ARMISTICE DAY

ARMISTICE DAY is a glorious day in the hearts of Men and Women the world over. To Canadians of this age it is a day even more full of meaning than any other day we know of, for a vivid memory is living with us of young men and women too — friends and relatives — who offered their lives in the cause of democracy.

We have dedicated this day to the memory of world war heroes. This day, as last year, we pause in our work at the stroke of eleven, face the east, and reflect with reverence on great deeds bravely done. But who of us can think of this as THE day, and the only day, to express gratefulness and thanksgiving for what courageous youth accomplished for us?

J. J. MORRISON GIVES ADDRESS

Tells Downeyville U. F. O. Club of Workings of Organization.

OTHER SPEAKERS

DOWNEYVILLE, Nov. 10.—On Friday evening a very large crowd gathered at the hall here to attend the U.F.O. meeting and also for the purpose of hearing J. J. Morrison, the grand old man of the U.F.O.

Mr. Morrison gave a very interesting account of the working of the organization and of what great social and educational value it was to the rural communities. He urged the farmers to take a deeper interest in their own organization and complimented Downeyville on increasing the numbers of their club this year. He also emphasized the financial part of the organization, the co-operative company, explaining handling of grain, seeds and eggs under the pooling system, also of the creamery branch, showing in this year the output of 3,611, 915 lbs. of butter. Besides paying the patrons the highest price for their butter fat they will pay a six month's patronage dividend, amounting to about $71,000.

Addresses were also given by Rev. Father Galvin, Bruce McNevin and F. G. Sandy, M.P.P.

There was also a very enjoyable programme. The Downeyville orchestra rendered several selections. Miss Della O'Neill delighted the people with her club swinging. Miss Evelyn Duffy gave a comic recitation which was loudly applauded. The meeting then closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

CARDINAL DEAD.

Cardinal Patrick O'Donnell, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Armagh, who died recently. He was born in 1856 and was created a Cardinal in 1925.

NO NEGLIGENCE

should not be given the necessities of life. They could not, of course, expect or demand any frills.

Having thus detailed their duties, His Lordship excused the grand jury that they might retire to their rooms and the roll of the petit jury began. Those who were selected for immediate duty were Percy Morgan, Frank Fisher, Fred Grills, Henry Beckett, Neil Mutton, Heber Luxon, Ernest Blanchard, Richard Logan, Harry Alan, Robert McKnight, Frederick Earle and James Dixon.

There were no challenges from either the defence or plaintiff, so the case of Locklin vs. West began. It was alleged by Mr. Locklin that on the 22nd day of October, 1924, the three sons of William West had set fire to some stacks of corn near his (Locklin's) barn, and the barn and contents had been destroyed by fire. He asked damages of $1,700. Counsel for the plaintiff, Mr. McColl, K.C., placed the matter before the court, recalling the afternoon in question, when Mr. Locklin had been engaged in drawing corn from the field to the barn. The boys were seen to act in a rather suspicious manner and later a fire started in the corn which entirely destroyed the barn and contents. Only a week previous, Mr. Locklin had finished his threshing and his entire crop was destroyed.

The Plaintiff

Testifying in his own behalf, Locklin told the story of the fire and of his later conversations with West. He also detailed his amount of damage claimed. He also mentioned other incidents when the West boys had set fires and been known to have been playing with matches. These were, however, positively denied by the defence. Charles Payne, Belleville, for the defence, asked him if the West boys were any better or worse than other children in the district. Locklin was inclined to consider them a little more trouble than others.

Robert Bruyere.

Robert Bruyere was the next witness called, and stated that West's three sons, aged at the time of the fire, six, four and three years respectively, were in the habit of playing with matches and had set a fire at West's own house some little time before the Locklin barn had been burned. He could not swear to the age of the barn but said it was a good barn and fairly new at the time it was burned.

Warren Free.

Warren Free, another neighboring farmer, was the next witness for the plaintiff. He stated that he had had an experience with the West children setting fires on his property but they had not been of any serious nature. He was not able to judge the value of the barn which had been burned. Questioned by Mr. Payne, Mr. Free stated that he had not seen the fire but had been told of it by his sisters.

George Pollard.

George Pollard, cheesemaker and assistant to Mr. West before the fire that season, testified that the clock-shelf in the kitchen where the matches had been kept was five feet seven inches from the floor. He thought a six-year-old boy could manage to reach it. He and Mr. West had measured the pantry shelf where the matches had been kept immediately before the fire and found it to be six feet four inches from the floor.

Mr. Locklin, recalled to the witness box by Mr. McColl, gave information regarding the cost of reconstructing the barn which had been erected to replace the one destroyed by fire. The cheapest tender, he claimed, had been for fourteen hundred dollars, and this had not included the complete building. He was then permitted to leave the stand and his attorney read some of the evidence taken at a former trial, then stated to His Lordship that he had completed his case.

William West.

William West, the defendant, was the first witness called by Payne, attorney for the defence. He stated that he had been employed as cheesemaker in Murray Township when the fire occurred. He had three sons, Harold, Clarence and Russel, aged six, four and three years respectively. The eldest son attended day school, but none of the three attended Sunday school. He claimed that he had no knowledge of his children's actions with matches until spoken to by Mr. Free concerning the fire on his property. He had investigated, searched his son's person, and found no matches.

Regarding the affair in the factory in which Mr. Locklin made certain statements concerning his son playing with matches, witness positively denied any such event ever having taken place. In order to prevent the boys from getting matches, he had moved the match box from the clock shelf in the kitchen to a higher one in the pantry. At the time of the fire, the mother of the boys was not at home. She was ill in the hospital in Belleville. He himself had to stand on his tip toes in order to get matches from the box. He was certain that none of the boys were able to reach the box even with the aid of a chair.

Examined by Mr. McColl, witness admitted that the eldest boy had been nearer the age of seven than six. Mr. McColl pointed out that the boys must have got the matches from their own home as the neighbors had no small children and therefore the boys would not have the opportunity of visiting these houses.

William McCulloch.

The next witness called was William McCulloch, C.P.R. fireman. He stated that he had been employed by Mr. West during the summer in which the fire occurred, but had not seen the boys playing with matches. Questioned by Mr. McColl, he said he was a smoker and had carried matches in his pocket. These he always took from the shelf and he had never given matches to the boys.

Hugh Powell.

Hugh Powell, the next witness for the defendant, said he had been employed by Mr. West after Mr. McCulloch had left. He had been there at the time of the fire and had been the one to accompany Mr. West when they went to try to put it out. He knew nothing of a third man named Blakely being employed there.

This concluded the case for the defence, and the court was granted a five-minute recess, after which counsel for both sides addressed the jury. During Mr. McColl's address to the jury, Mr. Payne rose twice to voice objections to remarks made and his objections were sustained.

Five Questions.

The Honorable Mr. Justice Wright, in summing up the case to the jury, said there were five questions. First, did the boys set the fire?. Second, did the defendant allow the children access to matches? Third, If so, was he negligent in so doing? Fourth, Was the defendant aware before the burning of the plaintiff's barn that his sons were in the habit of setting fires or playing with matches. To these four questions, the answer was to be yes or no. The fifth question was a matter of damages. The gross damages were estimated at $2,900. The insurance was $1,200, and the plaintiff now asked the court to grant him the balance, $1,700. Before allowing the jury to retire, His Lordship reminded them that this was a civil case, and the answer of ten of them would be considered as the answer of the jury.

After an absence of exactly one hour, 5.15 to 6.15, the jury brought in answers of "yes" to the first two and "no" to the second two questions. Damages amounting to $600 were assessed merely in case of appeal and the action dismissed with costs.

Justice Wright: "Upon the answers of the jury, I direct judgment to be entered, dismissing the action with costs if demanded."

WARSAW CHURCH SOCIETIES ACTIVE

Many Services and Meetings Held During the Past Week.

WARSAW, Nov. 10.—Professor Cameron from Toronto occupied the Baptist pulpit on Sunday morning and preached a splendid Thanksgiving sermon.

Rev. H. B. Herrington held a Thanksgiving and Armistice Day service in the United church on Sunday evening. There was special music. The pulpit and choir fronts were draped with large flags, and two smaller ones draped the tablet.

Rev. J. T. O'Conor-Fenton held a Thanksgiving service in St. Mark's church on Sunday evening.

An Armistice Day service will be held for the school children and their friends in the town hall on Friday forenoon at a quarter to eleven o'clock. There will be addresses by some of the leaders of the district.

On Thursday afternoon the Anglican Ladies' Guild met and elected their officers for the ensuing year. They are: President, Mrs. Theodore Douglas; vice-president, Mrs. Vivian Jackson; secretary-treasurer, Miss Evelyn Hawthorne, assisted by Mrs. John Payne. They plan holding a church social about Christmas time, for the purpose of promoting friendliness among the members of the congregation, also they hope to have some members from St. Luke's church Peterborough, put on a "Made in Canada" play soon.

On Wednesday afternoon the United church missionary society met.

On Thursday afternoon a number of Warsaw United Church ladies attended the thankoffering United Church missionary meeting in Lakefield. Miss Mitchell, field secretary of missionary work for the Dominion addressed a large number, giving a most inspiring address on missionary work.

On Thursday afternoon Archdeacon Davidson of Toronto, and formerly of St. John's Church, Peterboro, visited the Warsaw school and interested the pupils very much by a talk on "Courtesy." He showed them how well it was to be polite at all times. He stressed the paying of proper attention during the singing of the National Anthem. Instead of preparing to leave, getting wraps, and talking while it is being sung or played, they should stand straight and at attention. It is really a prayer for our country.

On Thursday evening Archdeacon Davidson gave a lecture in St. Mark's church. He had a diagram and described the growth of the different denominations. Unfortunately his coming could not be very well advertised, and many who would gladly have attended knew nothing of it until afterwards.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid held a social evening in the Town Hall on Friday evening. There was a good attendance and a pleasant evening. Dr. Munro's orchestra played and there were interesting games and contests. Mr. McClarry was present and gave a piano solo and sang. Dr. Munro was chairman.

Christmas Cactus Will Bloom Soon

WOOLER, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Ezil Terrill has nurtured and cared for a Christmas cactus for forty years, putting it out of doors during the summer months to rest and bringing it into the living room for the winter. It now fills an urn, twenty inches in diameter, which stands two feet high. There is practically no earth in the container, just a mass of roots.

The cactus measures five feet in diameter, looking very fresh and green and in bud. At Christmas time there are annually three hundred blossoms at one time. The delicate red blossom, so perfect, and wax-like, brings Christmas cheer to the

LAKEFIELD CHURCH.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 10.—The service on Sunday evening, October 30, in the Regent Street United Church, Lakefield, was conducted in the interests of the W.M.S. Mrs. (Rev.) A. C. Hoffman, a missionary in China for twenty-four years was present at the service and was accompanied by Mrs. Zen, a Chinese lady, who is the principal of a Christian school in the Province of Chentu, and who is making a tour of Canada at the present time. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Kemp, introduced the speaker, Mrs. Zen, who addressed the congregation in the Chinese language, while Mrs. Hoffman acted as interpreter.

The speaker expressed the gratitude of her people for the splendid work which is being done in China today, by the missionaries of the United Church of Canada.

She emphasized the ignorance and illiteracy of the women of her country and the mean and insignificant place they have occupied in the past, but she declared that the women of China today are coming into their own and are learning the power and influence that mothers of China may exert upon the life of the home and the nation, and that, largely through the influence of the Christian church.

The congregation, consisting of 400 people, listened with deep interest to her address and many waited at the close of the service to examine goods which the visitors had on exhibition on a table at the side of the church.

The annual thankoffering was taken at the service and the choir rendered special music for the occasion.

WEDDING BELLS.

BERRY—HANRAHAN.

St. Clement's church, Jones Avenue, Toronto, lovely with autumn leaves, pink 'mums and palms was the scene of a pretty wedding when Mary Elizabeth, only daughter of Mrs. E. Hanrahan, became the bride of Mr. Ernest Berry. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Bushell. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Joseh Bowell, wore a gown of white georgette, trimmed with satin and chantilly lace. Her tulle veil was hand embroidered and adorned with a coronet of orange blossoms and seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley, and wore the groom's gift, a diamond and platinum ring.

Miss Marie Faragher attended the bride and little Kathlyn Faragher was flower girl. The groom was attended by Mr. Norman Jepson. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. Later Mr. and Mrs. Berry left for Chicago, the latter traveling in a pencil blue dress of georgette trimmed blonde. Her coat of the same shade had a large shawl collarand cuffs of gray fox, with a French hat of panne velvet and forget-me-nots. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

HOW TO BANISH PILES

Dr. Leonhardt Has Discovered a Harmless Internal Remedy That's Guaranteed—No Cutting—No Messy Salves

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

The Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting, he discovered the cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Every pile sufferer should benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, McDermid & Jury, McDermid Drug Stores, Bond's Drug Store and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every pile sufferer should try Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID without delay.

Antiseptically clean

FALSE TEETH

mean a sweet, comfortable, mouth

FRESH, sweet false teeth every day, accomplished without any laborious brushing—is the promise HYGEOL offers.

Its cleansing action (harmless to the teeth, themselves) removes all food particles, discolorations, odors, and that tenacious greasy film. It also completely sterilizes the false teeth.

This work is accomplished by leaving the teeth immersed for twenty minutes in a solution of one part HYGEOL to three parts water. This can be done most conveniently while dressing. At the end of that time, the teeth need only to be rinsed to complete the thorough cleansing.

If preferred, teeth can be left overnight in a weaker solution—one teaspoonful of HYGEOL to a glass of water. Results are equally good.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 10th, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as a day unfavorable for many of the important activities on the planet Earth.

In the morning the mind may be stimulated so that wise plans may be formulated.

The early hours are held to be lucky for the desires of women, especially for housekeeping improvements.

Labor is subject to conditions making for serious unrest and there may be much suffering through unemployment later in the winter.

Strikes certainly are foreshadowed, and one of them may be of serious import to the fuel market.

Again crime will appear to have an impetus and murders in dark or inaccessible places may multiply.

Robberies will continue to become common through the winter and possessors of jewels may suffer heavy losses.

Religious controversies now will multiply in a manner that recalls old-time contests in which church and state were involved.

Again novel fashions in dress are foretold and decided; changes will cause losses to manufacturers and importers.

Italy and her colonies now will focus attention in a way that affects international relations.

Press campaigns of extraordinary virulence may be looked for in the coming national campaign, owing to the aspects of Mercury.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have a yaer of routine work. New friends are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be good-natured and affectionate. These boys and girls may be high-strung and nervous.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1927

According to astrology this is a menacing day in planetary government in which the aspects are unfavorable.

There is a forbidding sign for merchants and manufacturers who may meet with puzzling trade conditions.

Banks and bankers come under a planetary sway, making for public criticism and they may be much misrepresented by the press.

Governors, mayors and all who hold positions that give power to rule the people may expect political abuse and all who are in the least vulnerable have reason to dread exposure.

Political conditions now are supposed to be subject to puzzling and perplexing influences from the stars, which frown on many human plans and ambitions.

For the President of the United States praise and gratitude are indicated, but they will cause embarrassment and even misjudgment.

The eclipse of the Moon, December 8, is held to presage hardship and illness. Care of the health should engage attention.

High winds may be experienced in the eastern and middle states, which will have reason to rejoice, nevertheless, for in the west greater inconvenience will accrue from seismic shocks.

Religious revivals in Protestant churches are forecast, but there may be much sectarian prejudice manifested.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be extraordinarily careful in regard to money during the coming year.

Children born on this day may be exceedingly artistic and ambitious. The subjects of this sign usually are extravagant, for they love display.

CHAMPION TYPIST.

Miss Grace Paine, of Seattle, State champion speed typewriter operator of the State of Kashington, who is visiting relatives in Ontario. In winning the championship, she wrote 50 words in a minute without making an error. She is just sixteen and was 15 when she won the crown as the fastest typist in the States.

High school girls of New Bedford, Mass., the great cotton textile centre, believe in encouraging home industries, but when it came to graduation gowns they just had to put their foot down on a proposal to wear cotton dresses. When the matter was put to a vote, silk dresses and silk stockings won the day by an almost unanimous decision of the fair graduates.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Before Jim Lane and his wife left, the whole family, with the exception of Cherry, shook hands cordially, wishing the newly-married pair happiness and luck. There were tears of pride and gratitude in Faith's eyes as she saw Bob walk to the front door with them, his arm about Jim Lane's shoulder in comradely, man-to-man fashion.

"Thank you, darling, for being so sweet to them," she said.

"I wasn't being 'sweet' to them," Bob repudiated the idea gruffly. "I'm darned glad they got married and I showed it—that's all. A fine thing for both of them. Kate Lundy—Mrs. Lane, I should say—will make a new man of your father, has done it already. She's strong as a mule, likes to work, and she'll make him do his share. Oh, shut, up, Cherry!" he broke off to command impatiently, as Cherry's sobs grew louder. "You're not thinking half as much about your mother's memory as you are about the disgrace of your father's marrying a servant.

"That's right! Insult me!" Cherry shrilled, raising her head and glaring at him with blazing golden eyes. "The Lanes may not be so much, but there's never been a servant in the family before! Faith should worry! She's already married, and Dad's disgrace can't spoil her chances—"

"Nor yours, with a man that's worth a second thought," Bob retorted angrily. "A prancing Apollo like your Bruce Patton may shy off if the papers get hold of the story, but no real man would let it make any difference. I've got to get to work. Are you coming?"

His voice was so brutal in its contempt for Cherry's behavior that Faith winced for her sister, but at the same time a thrill of joy ran along her nerves. If she could speak to Cherry like that marrying a servant. "What if she did work for her living at the only kind of job for which she was fitted? She's good stock, was every bit as good as the Lanes socially when her husband was alive. It makes me rather sick to see you taking on as if you were a Lady Clare Vere de Vere—"

"We're going to miss you terribly, Joy," she could not refrain from saying in a gently reproachful voice.

"Looks like you'd be glad to get rid of me," Joy wounded her further, with childish cruelty. "Don't you suppose I know I'm in the way? Young married folks like to be all by themselves. I heard Mrs. Harrison say so—said she was sorry for that nice Mrs. Hathaway because she had to have her sisters with her—"

"You mustn't repeat things you accidentally overhear, honey," Faith reproved her, an anxious eye on Cherry. "No matter what Mrs. Harrison says, Bob and I love having our sisters with us, and it's going to be awfully lonesome without you. Think of it! Only four of us left—Cherry and Hope and Bob and I! The house is going to be too big for us."

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Jewelry that can be seen without a magnifying glass is fashion's latest edict. Following this decree one jeweler is showing the carved jade brooch above with a jade buddha mendant. Old pearls and diamonds may be reset in larger, bolder settings like that of the marcasite diamond-shaped brooch edged with pearls with initials defined with small diamonds. The oblong brooch of carved pink crystal with a border of rhinestones and onyx may be developed with precious stones and so may the strikingly modern rhinestone bird pin shown below.

It was a custom of the old princes of India—and may be still for aught I know—to have a resident jeweler as a part of the regular princely retinue. It was the jeweler's business to advise in the purchase of new jewels, but chiefly to provide new settings for the jewels already on hand. It was recognized that the setting of a jewel was something that ought from time to time to be changed, just like the costume of a lovely woman. Some of the jewelers who ascribed supernatural powers to jewels felt in fact that a jewel got tired of a single setting and acquired new luster and fire when allowed to gleam in new surroundings.

Yet some American women I know feel that it is positive sacrilege to change the setting of any of their jewelry, and they go on wearing diamonds in impossible late Victorian sunburst settings—or more often don't wear them at all, but keep them in safe deposit because they look so hopelessly out of date and content themselves with cheap costume jewelry of smarter type.

Really there is nothing wrong with inexpensive costume jewelry, only it is rather silly not to show your diamonds and emeralds and rubies and sapphires if you own them. Anyway it is the fashion in Paris now to wear really precious stones if you have them—but not in their old settings unless they are of a vintage and a sort to look right with present-day clothes. The old settings may come back into favor again, though it is hard to think that the late Victorian sunburst arrangement will ever be considered smart. But anyway the old settings may be saved unharmed by the temporary resetting.

The point now is that there must be something rather striking if not actually bold about the setting. There must be nothing mincing and timid about it. The problem the jewelers have to solve is to provide a setting that does not detract at all from the brilliance or beauty of the stones but that at the same time gives the necessary size and boldness.

Only sixteen years old, Miss Jacynth Parsons, the daughter of a London artists, has been commissioned to draw a series of illustrations for a book of poems which is shortly to be produced. Her work is admired by many skilful artists, although she has never had a real lesson in her art.

VITAGLASS BEING TESTED

Vitaglass, which admits the violet rays of the sun, is to be tested as to its benefits to plant life, at University College, Southampton, England, and at Kew. At Kew, one-half of an experimental greenhouse will be fitted with vitaglass, and the other half with ordinary glass. A typical selection of flowers will be duplicated in each section, while a similar course will be followed with a wide variety of plants, including radishes, sunflowers, and beans, in a large glass corridor with a southern exposure. It is hoped to discover whether any advantages, such as earlier cropping, better quality, heat saving, better color, hardier constitution, and greater resistance to disease, are obtained by the use of vitaglass.

PICTURES HELP SAVE TWINS.

Events held in this country and Europe at which large numbers of twins are honored guests, are proving a great help in stamping out in Nigeria the belief that twins are the greatest curse to a household, and that only one of the pair should live. At the Slessor Memorial Home at Calabar, newspaper pictures of the "twin parties" are displayed, with good effect, to convince the natives that both babies should survive. In Arochuku the church women are making themselves responsible for twins born in the district, and at present there are 40 twin children there. At Christmas time a party was given exclusively for the pairs. A house of refuge for twins, built by native women, was dedicated on April 24.

Secretary, Mr. Marshall, to embody in his report the activities and accomplishments of this Association through its Executive since our last Annual Meeting.

This year being Canada's Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, it is most appropriate that I should with pardonable pride refer to some of the incidents that have occurred during the sixtieth birthday of our great Dominion with some reference also of the remarkable material progress during the past sixty years.

Before speaking with you as I intend to do later, on the growth of Canada, may I dwell for a moment on the many evidences of good feeling that have been shown between the peoples of the United States, Great Britain and Canada during recent months strongly emphasized by an event perhaps unparalleled in history. I refer to the dedication of the Peace Bridge, connecting United States and Canada at Buffalo and Fort Erie. It was most inspiring to see assembled on the platform and to hear their speeches broadcast, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, his royal brother, Prince George; the Vice-President of the United States; the Prime Minister of Great Britain; the Prime Minister of Canada; the Governor of the State of New York and the Prime Minister of Ontario, together with many members of the respective governments.

Surely this event indicates more clearly than could any words of mine, the depth of friendly feeling that exists between the various branches of the Anglo-Saxon race.

The appointment of Canada's first Minister at Washington in the person of Hon. Vincent Massey and also that of Mr. Phillips by the United States Government to Ottawa are important milestones in our history, and should go far towards facilitating the handling of the ever-increasing number of matters which must be the subject of communication between the two governments.

While I mention material progress, it is not by such a criterion that I would have our nation judged. Harmony among the peoples of a country is of far greater importance. Under the constitution created by the British North America Act, two peoples diverse in race, language and religion, have been woven together by their appreciation of liberties granted to all and the justice which obtains through the adoption of British Parliamentary practice. This harmony is Confederation's greatest accomplishment and on it rests all Canada's material progress.

Too many are inclined to judge the progress of a country by growth in population alone, which is not always a sound basis. In Canada, our material advancement has been much more rapid than our increase of population would indicate and is in no direct ratio thereto. The standard of citizenship in a country is of vastly more importance than density of population.

This is a particularly appropriate year in which to examine in retrospect, the development of Canada, as we are at last emerging from the economic setback of the Great War. Not that we have put the War and its burdens behind us; those burdens will endure during this and subsequent generations, but I feel that we have reached the point, where our expansion and development are beginning to absorb the load.

At Confederation, the population of Canada was but three and a third millions, but to-day the population is approximately nine and a half millions, or roughly, a three-fold increase.

At Confederation, though the people of the Dominion lived on the whole, well and comfortably, ready money was scarce and taxes difficult to collect. The total national wealth was perhaps 1500 million as compared with 22,000 million in 1921. While the revenue of the new Dominion was only 15 million as compared with approximately 400 million at the present time, which you will note is 27 times the revenue at Confederation. Even up to the outbreak of the War, Canada relied almost wholly upon the London money market for the where-withal to develop her great natural resources. Even as late as 1914, less than one million of the national debt was held in Canada as against $303 millions held in London. As late as 1915 our financiers doubted whether a domestic war loan of fifty million dollars could be floated in Canada; yet by 1927 out of a total funded debt of $2,480 millions, $1,943 millions were held at home.

Gold payments which were suspended during the War, were resumed two years ago and we have had the pleasure of seeing the Canadian dollar from time to time at a slight premium in New York.

Our latest statistics show that the net national debt of Canada has been reduced by no less an amount than $176 millions in four and a half years. And this has been done while taxation has been annually reduced by many millions of dollars. As a result of this large surplus of revenue, over expenditure, our Minister of Finance, announced that he would be able to pay off in cash, a large part of the approximately $100 millions of loans, which mature within the next few weeks. As an evidence of the stability of Canada's growth in wealth may I cite the strength and expansion of our chartered banks, whose combined assets in 1868 were but 80 million dollars and which to-day are $3,004 millions, half of which, 1500 millions represent the savings of the people which savings have a first claim on the assets of our chartered banks. This is indeed an evidence of the liquid wealth of the people themselves.

The growth of the life insurance companies is also an evidence of the material prosperity of the Dominion. In 1869 premiums were paid in Canada on but 35 million dollars worth of life insurance and it is estimated that to-day the life insurance in force in Canada is crossing the five billion mark. In the single year 1926, the Canadian people invested some 170 millions or about $85 per family in this form of saving alone.

Since Confederation, the value of the total field crops of Canada has been increased tenfold, from approximately 110 million dollars to $1100 millions.

In another basic industry, there has also been great expansion. At Confederation, forests were being burned to clear land, the only profits reaped being the value of the potash. In 1925, the forests of Canada produced lumber valued at $134 millions and pulp and paper to the value of $193 millions. At Confederation there was no export of newsprint; in the calendar year 1926, there was exported $114 million dollars worth of newsprint, making Canada the world's greatest exporter as well as producer of this commodity, the greatest consumer of this product being the American press.

The story of the development of the mining industry on the Northern half of this continent reads like a tale from the Arabian Nights. As late as 1886, which is but 40 years ago, the total mineral production of Canada only amounted to 10 million. Last year the figure stood at $241 million. In that year Canada's position as a producer of minerals is most striking; her mines produced 90% of the world's nickel; 85% of the world's asbestos; 55% of the world's cobalt; 9% of the world's gold and 8% of the world's silver and made substantial contributions to the world's supply of copper, aluminum, lead and zinc.

Mining now ranks third among Canada's primary industries and her mineral products are becoming more and more a governing factor in commerce and industry.

Though the basic producing industries of Canada have shown this remarkable development, even more marvelous has been the growth of the manufacturing industries which consume not only the raw materials provided at home, but also raw materials from other countries, as is the case in the rubber and cotton industries. From a few small plants have grown 22,000 manufacturing establishments with a capital of $3,808 million, using raw material to the value of $1,587 million and producing manufactured goods to the value of three billions of dollars. Canada's export of manufactured and semi-manufactured goods, amounting to $695 million in the last fiscal year, exceeded her imports of manufactured goods in the same year. Thus Canada has now become an exporter of manufactured commodities to a greater extent than she is an importer. Consequently, it was with good right that the Council of the League of Nations, a few years ago, designated Canada as one of the 8 countries of chief industrial importance in the world, and gave it representation on the governing body of the International Labour Office. The condition of the manufacturing industries of Canada is best told by the employment records and the enhanced value of their common stocks.

Probably no single factor has been more important in the development to which I have just referred than that of the cheap electric energy.

There has been developed in Canada, practically all since the turn of the century, four and a half million horsepower in electric energy. The age of electricity may still be comparatively young; it was undreamed of at Confederation. Yet to-day there is scarcely a village in Ontario not enjoying the advantages of electric power and the latest figures show that over 59% of the homes in Canada—rural and urban—are using electricity for lighting and domestic purposes. Towns and villages throughout Canada, within reach of cheap electric power, are prospering as they never did before and in spite of the amazing development that has taken place, less than 10% of the available power, based on minimum flow, has been harnessed in the services of the people.

The development of Canada's trade in the past sixty years reflects as perhaps no other single criterion, her increasing importance in the economic system of the world, a growth which has not been surpassed in any other country.

For Canada to have moved from a comparatively undeveloped country sixty years ago, to the position of fifth among the nations of the world, both in exports and aggregate external trade, is an accomplishment indeed worthy of note. Her trade is surpassed only by the four great commercial countries—the United States, the United Kingdom, France and Germany, each of them with from four to twelve times her population. From year to year, with the increasing development of her industries, an ever-increasing percentage of her export is in a manufactured form.

The growth of Canada in material wealth is indeed much greater than her growth in population would indicate, which reflects the high average of wealth per capita. But wealth alone is not of first importance. I believe that in Canada we have as high—if not the highest, standard of citizenship that democracy has yet produced. Some one has said that the loyalty of a people to democracy can best be judged by their willingness to divorce the operation of public utilities from politics. If this be the standard, then surely the great success of the nationally owned railway systems of Canada, the enormous publicly owned hydro-electric developments and our numerous publicly owned city utilities, would indicate that the people of Canada appreciate the right of self-government.

It has been said that as a Nation we are slow in making our virtues known. The charge is in the main a true one, but there are sound reasons why we should be slow. The boasting spirit after all is a characteristic of the newly rich. Our inheritance is so vast, our potential wealth so great that we, as a people, may be pardoned for having about us that air which comes from long association with wealth. We are more or less blessed; surfeited with good things and thoroughly sick of boosting. Nevertheless, I desire to point out some facts—not in a spirit of boastfulness—rather in a mode of gratefulness that despite difficulties we have been able to accomplish so much and that these past accomplishments may be taken as a happy augury for the future.

Comparison in matters of trade are often difficult. Trade figures must be viewed in the light of reason. One must take into consideration changing circumstances. Trade figures of different countries are of value only as we have intelligence to interpret them and capacity to read the lessons they teach. They are useless if they are used merely as evidence that we are greater or bigger than any other country in the world. It is not in the latter sense that I give these comparisons to-day. I thought first of giving comparisons between 1867 and 1927, but if we take our comparisons back so far their value, to my mind, becomes much less. We all recognize the fact that we have grown since 1867—the child is greater than the man. I want to bring it down a little closer—What have we done since 1914?

Our exports in 1914 (I am speaking now of the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1914, so that War does not appear in this figure) totalled $455,000,000. In the year ending March 31st last, the total was $1,252,000,000. These figures, of course, are declared values, if we re-adjust them to the values of 1914, it would give us a figure representing approximately double the exports of that day. Now I think that figure in itself is very encouraging. I doubt if there is one country in the world that can show an equal record in the development of its export trade during this period. In fact upon any basis of measurement which you like to take, you cannot find one country which has made as rapid progress as we have between 1914 and 1927.

Not only is this true of the total volume of our trade, but we have broadened the base—we are now doing business with more countries than we ever did before. In 1914 practically 88% of our total exports were to the United States and Great Britain. To these countries we now sell 73%, while our exports to foreign countries are almost three times greater than they were at that time. This simply shows the broadening trade field of the Dominion. We have reached the stage where we no longer put our eggs all in the one basket—we are doing business in a broader way than ever before.

The development which has taken place has not been entirely an agricultural development. Naturally, while we are still opening up the great lands of the West, agricultural products will be a big factor in our export trade, but the Dominion of Canada is making rapid progress in manufacturing. There are different means by which we measure that progress. I singled out the other day a few items with the idea of finding out for my own satisfaction, exactly what we are doing. If you take manufacturing industries in which we import almost all the raw material used in the industry, then the volume of imports gives us a pretty fair idea as to the progress the industry is making. The industries on which this comparison is made and the comparative imports of raw materials of 1914 and 1927 are as follows:

Imports	1914	1927
Raw—	lbs.	lbs.
Cotton	76,993,026	135,754,059
Rubber	4,450,430	50,224,614
Sugar	659,204,600	1,129,558,000
Silk	101,669	679,923
Hemp	5,557,200	12,342,600
Aluminum	29,991,800	156,890,800

If you total these figures you will find that these six industries used in 1927 practically double the volume of raw material which they imported in 1914. That means that these industries are employing practically twice the labour which they employed at that time. I do not know whether that applies to all industries in which the development has been even greater. No doubt there are some in which the development has not been so great, but I want to point out to you that these are industries which in the main import their raw materials from foreign countries, manufacture their product in the Dominion of Canada and in at least three of these industries, rubber, sugar and aluminum, we have very substantial export trade.

Now, I have named these industries for a particular purpose. We are constantly being told that we are exporting large quantities of raw material. That is true, practically every country in the world is exporting raw material. Great Britain exports coal. One of the biggest items in the American Trade Balance is the export of cotton. We export raw materials it is true, but we are also heavy importers of raw materials. If we total up the value of the items I have named above, we have a sum in excess of $86,500,000. May I point out that that is more, in fact it is almost $35,000,000 more than our entire exports of pulp-wood, copper, nickel and asbestos.

I mention these facts not as controversial but rather as facts which call for our consideration and with the hope that they may lead us to a saner consideration of our trade position. Remember these figures include only a few of the raw materials imported for the industries of the Dominion of Canada. If we were to take the entire raw material imports of Canadian industries we would find that they approach nearly $250,000,000 more than the figures which I have given for the six industries named above.

Now, I am not in these statements, suggesting for a second that the development of our industries to the position where they will use a larger quantity of Canadian raw material is not an important matter. It is important—it is very important, but I only ask that in the consideration of this problem we shall face facts—that we shall consider realities and that we shall not be swept away by those who tell us that Canadian Manufacturers are not making progress and that they are incapable of holding their own in the markets of the world.

Naturally, I have faith in the Canadian manufacturer. He has demonstrated his capacity at home—shows it now in the broader field of world trade. I have in myself that natural faith that leads me to affirm his capacity to survive in the face of the competition of any other manufacturer in the world. I say that is the faith that is in me, but I have ample documentary justification for that contention.

Look up the trade reports of the Dominion of Canada. Turn for instance to such a product as rubber—automobiles, flour, and scores of other items which I could mention and you will find there that the Canadian manufacturer is selling his product in nearly every country in the world. I think sometimes as I run through these lists, what a marvelous testimony it is to the energy, capacity and ability of this young Nation. I would like you to name for me one country in all the world which at a similar stage of its development, could produce so remarkable a record in manufacturing development.

Now there is one other item on which I wish to touch and that is our balance of trade and particularly our balance of trade with the United States. I feel that here I am on somewhat dangerous ground—there having been a lot of what might be called misinformation given upon this question. In regard to our balance of trade with one particular country or another, I am free to say that I can not figure out what difference it makes.

I have an adverse balance of trade with my grocer. He buys nothing from me. I buy a lot from him. It does not concern me—I am only interested in knowing whether or not my total exports are sufficient to pay for my total imports. It does not reveal my financial standing, if I pay to my landlord $100.00 per month for rent and have an adverse balance with him of $1200 a year, providing I have a favorable balance with other people sufficient to meet these obligations.

Now the Dominion of Canada has, roughly, an adverse balance with the United States of $200,000,000. That is to say, we import from the United States $200,000,000 worth more than we export. A great deal of this is made up of raw material which we import for the use of our own factories. For instance a great deal of our rubber and cotton comes from that country. In fact many of the products which we import from the United States are not grown in the United States and are simply purchased there because the United States is a big importer of these commodities herself, and for that reason we find it profitable to buy there. That is an advantage which we have. It is an advantage which is of great assistance to our manufacturing industries, and in fact the proximity to the United States is one of the reasons why manufacturing industries have developed in this country more rapidly than in Australia.

But it may be asked—"How did we pay this heavy adverse balance?" Perhaps it would be more accurate to say we did not pay it. It is purely a "visible" adverse balance, when examined closely it disappears. During the last few years there has been a tremendous development of the tourist business in the Dominion of Canada. I think we are fairly safe in saying that it amounts to approximately $200,000,000 a year. Not all of this comes from the United States of course, but the greater portion of it does. These tourists come here and they spend money. They spend it in our hotels, on our railways and in our stores and garages.

I shall not mention particularly another way in which some of them may spend it—I may leave that to the imagination, but it must be apparent to anyone that if American tourists come over here and spend $200,000,000 a year, while that little item is not recorded in our trade figures as exports to the United States, it has precisely that effect so far as the actual trade balance of the country is concerned.

Now, this is a feature of our National development which is tremendously important. It is growing with great rapidity. It has doubled in the last four years—it should double again in the next four or five years. We have all the advantages of scenery and climate. We are rapidly developing equipment in the way of hotels, railways, etc., for this purpose. It will in the future constitute a far greater source of wealth to the Dominion of Canada than it ever has in the past and will be one of the very important factors in the development of our National life.

But these items which I have pointed out are only signposts which indicate and indicate slightly the greatness of the future. The world's trade today is small compared to what it will be a decade from now if we can evade the paralysing effect of war and the equally fatal influence of extreme trade restrictions. Think what it would mean for the commerce of Canada if the development upon the Pacific were as great as upon the Atlantic. Our exports to these Oriental countries are growing and growing rapidly, but that trade has only begun.

The time will come when all these Nations will be anxious to secure for themselves those great benefits of civilization which we enjoy. They will want the products of Canada and Canada will want their products and the demand created in the developing enterprises of the Orient will be greater than anything we can now conceive.

Forward is the word for Canada. Nothing can hold us back. Nothing, save perhaps our own fear of our own greatness. I can see no limit to our possibilities if we only have the faith in ourselves. Nothing is beyond the reach of the man who dares, and nothing so far as National accomplishment is concerned is beyond the possibility of Canada. For us the hour of destiny has struck. It remains only for us to go forward into the grander achievements of the future.

Aviation.

The Prime Minister and his colleagues who attended the Imperial Conference last year returned seized with the increasing importance of the development of aviation, and it is a great satisfaction to note the material progress made during the year.

The practical way in which air craft is being employed in Canada demonstrates the development of aviation along proper lines. Planes are engaged in numerous useful activities; in commercial operation; employed on long distance mail routes; patrolling the forests; surveying and laying out new districts.

While we all regret the number of gallant lives that have been lost in endeavouring to conquer the Atlantic, the importance of developing aviation on a par with other nations cannot be overestimated for both defense and commercial purposes. Consequently the Government is entitled to our sympathetic support in this regard.

The Automobile Casualty List.

This Association has always consistently and earnestly given this grave question every consideration, studied it from all angles and has, year after year, sought after and given advice and assistance in every conceivable way.

We have co-operated with other organizations in promoting the Highway Safety Campaign and I am glad to note that there are several splendid resolutions dealing with this all important and serious question affecting the safety of the lives and property of our people.

There are volumes of statistical information, but time will not permit of reference and regarding which you no doubt are very conversant. I trust that the discussion during the Convention on this question will be productive of numerous new and effective ideas.

Canadian Coal.

Keeping ever lastingly at it brings success. Our efforts to assist in bringing Alberta Coal to Ontario and Nova Scotia coal to Quebec and farther West should not be relinquished. It is only reasonable that Canadians should, as far as possible, use their own products and thus reduce the amount of our importations in this regard.

It is sound economics. It assists in developing our own Provinces. Gives employment to our own workmen.

While this "burning" question has received the attention of our Conventions in the past there is no reason why it should not be given every consideration with a view to assisting in solving the difficulties involved.

Scientific and Industrial Research.

Of such vital importance is this subject that to attempt to treat with it in the time at my disposal would be doing it a great injustice.

Science seeks to extend the boundaries of human knowledge. Industrial research has to do with the most effective application of scientific knowledge to the practical problems of industry. Adequate provisions for the carrying on of both is one of the greatest needs of Canada at the present time.

Dr. H. M. Tory, President of the University of Alberta, said, "If we would throw off the mantle of pessimism and the inferiority complex which has possessed us and risk the use of the trained and trainable intelligence of our own people, in a generation we would add to the national assets of our common country the equivalent of our national debt." It can be done if we have faith in ourselves, in each other and the vision to step out with a forward look.

Canada is a young country. Still at the threshhold of her national existence. So great are our latent possibilities that scientific research plays an all important part in enabling our industries to compete with the other great nations of the world. Equally important and far-reaching is scientific research in the development of our vast natural resources, including agriculture, in the most economical and advantageous manner.

With generous Governmental assistance and proper facilities the results would reach far beyond our most ardent expectations.

I am hopeful that this Convention will appoint a Committee to study this question with a view to lending our assistance in this regard.

The Tourist Industry.

There is no doubt that up until recent years very little attention has been paid by the Government to this all important source of business to the Dominion, created by the utilization of our natural assets.

The tourist business not only has its direct monetary effect but influences the business of the country in many other directions, as an evidence of which I quote the following statement attributed to Mr. E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway; "There are now $2,500,000,000 of United States capital invested in Canada. These investments have been largely the result of visits to Canada by monied American tourists."

Since the above statement was published in "Nation's Business," the official publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce, I learn that the American investments in Canada are now three billions one hundred millions ($3,100,000,000).

Assuming that the statement made by Mr. Beatty is without question, is there any obvious reason why everything possible should not be done to stimulate the tourist business in every way?

Increased capital investment creates more opportunities for labor, stimulating immigration—the consumption of food products increases the demand for production of the farms affecting to a certain extent the effect of the Fordney-McCumber Tariff—utilizes territories only suitable for resort purposes—construction of summer homes resulting in increased number of taxpayers, adding a certain amount of relief to all, and finally creates personal contact between nations.

Canada has definitely become one of the world's most "Travelled" countries. Her magnificent railways, undoubtedly among the world's largest and best, her splendid new motor highways, of which there are ten miles to every one before the war, the spectacular natural attractions extending from the dyke lands of the Maritimes to the fiords of the Pacific Islands, constitute an appeal that from the point of view of diversity and practicability is hard to duplicate. Nature has been proficient in her gift of mountains, rivers, lakes and forests. A splendid groundwork has already been laid in providing improved highways, modern hotels and remarkably efficient railway systems. It is up to Canadians themselves to see that these public services are properly supplemented by local accommodation, friendly co-operation and unfailing courtesy.

Personally, I believe that one of the outstanding points in the activities of the Associated Boards was the sponsoring of the formation of the Tourist Association of Ontario in 1924, which since that time has contributed largely to the development of the tourist business to the Province of Ontario, receiving in its actions the fullest co-operation possible from the Ontario Government.

A consciousness of the importance of this business to the Province has been awakened in the minds of the public and it is hoped that public and Governmental action in the development of the tourist industry will be increased to make Ontario known the world over.

On the general subject of Chamber of Commerce work I have always felt that there is not sufficient emphasis placed on the educational work that might be done by the Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in their respective communities. The failure of which I attribute to one thing, that of the lack of interest of the regular members in the work of the Young Men's organizations. It is no doubt obvious to all that the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce work of the future is dependent upon the young men of today and the sooner activity is taken to bring the young men along in the knowledge of the necessity of these civic organizations, the more assured is the future interest of the communities in general to all matters pertaining to civics. In addition, the majority of young men finish their education at school or college and unless their business actually places them in contact with municipal matters their entire attention is devoted to their particular business and that only. I believe it is up to the Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade to start with the young men where education in the school room ceases, so as to inoculate them with the essentials of citizenship.

In closing, may I make reference to an event which is taking place in Washington to-morrow, an event indicative of our appreciation. I refer to the unveiling of a monument being erected in the Arlington Cemetery by the Government of Canada, to the memory of those gallant American soldiers, who gave their lives in the Great War, while serving with the Canadian Expeditionary Force. To realize that but a few years ago, many of the best of the sons of two countries paid the supreme sacrifice, in a common cause, is indeed significant, but that sons of Canada died while fighting in the American forces, and that citizens of the United States died while fighting in the Canadian forces for this common cause, should forever be a sufficient reminder to future generations that harmony should always obtain between nations with ideals in common.

Finally, I desire to express my warm appreciation of the very thorough, pleasant and capable work of our Secretary, Mr. Marshall, and also the Members of the Executive and the various Committees appointed last year for their support and assistance.

Steel Business Better; Stock Prices Go Higher

NEW YORK, November 10 (Canadian Press). — The unexpectedly large increase of nearly 200,000 tons in October unfilled orders of the United States Corporation turned the course of stock prices upward today after an early period of irregularity. Early selling by professional traders was based on the belief that the market was again in a vulnerable position after the recent brisk advance in many issues, but active short covering developed when strong buying orders appealed for high grade rail and industrial shares. The gain in steel tonnage, which was nearly double what Wall Street expected, and reports from steel centres that small increases in input production over a week ago were being showed by practically all the leading companies, brought heavy buying into the steel shares. United States Steel Common advanced more than two points with slightly smaller gains by a number of independents.

Oil Stocks Feature Activity At Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—McColl Brothers, advancing two points at 53, was the feature of the active unlised section of the Toronto stock exchange to-day. Trading in the regular list was light and scattered, with price changes for the most part negligible. British American followed McColl with a 5-8 gain at 36¾. Northern Bakeries, up nearly a point at 42¾ and Western Canada flour, up two at 33, were other firm spots. Burt, Industrial Alcohol and International Nickel sold slightly higher, the latter at 66½, being up a point. Unlisted liquor stocks lost slightly, led by Walkers, which declined ¾ at 59¼.

Argentine Harvest Begun; Wheat Prices Go Lower

CHICAGO, November 10. — Canadian Press. — Announcement that the actual harvesting of wheat has begun in Argentina tended early today to ease the wheat market here. The Argentine weather was reported to be gradually warming and the first samples of the newly cut wheat are of good quality. Starting unchanged to 3-8c off. Chicago wheat later showed a sag all around. Corn and oats were likewise easy. Corn opened unchanged to ½c down and later declined a little more. Provisions underwent a material set-back.

The opening prices were: Wheat, December, 125; March 128¾; corn, December 84 7-8; March 88¾; oats December 49, March 51.

Mine Trading Is Heavy; Many Gains Recorded

TORONTO, Ont., November 10 (Canadian Press).—Substantial gains were recorded in many leaders in heavy trading on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. Howey Gold, leading in strength and activity, sold up nineteen points at 159. Dupras, Columbus Kirkland, Kirkland Hunton, and Kirkland Lake all advanced and Laval Quebec sold up 2½ at 37½. Potter Doal sold a point higher at 17½. Amulet and Argonaut lost ground, Amulet selling down six at 482 and Argonaut losing three at 39.

DE VALERA MOVES FOR REPEAL OF ACT

Declares Public Safety Act Is Violation of Parts of Constitution.

DUBLIN, Ireland, Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press.) — Eamon De Valera, Irish Republican leader, moved the repeal of the Government's Public Safety Act in the Dail to-day, denouncing the Act as a violation of several articles of the constitution.

Radical Changes Made in Davis Cup Regulations

WOULD ADVANCE PROGRAMME TO EARLIER DATES

New Rules Will Be Effective Next Year Under French Control.

WINS APPROVAL.

Close Entries of Participating Nations on January Third.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Radical changes were disclosed today in the regulations for the Davis Cup competition, effective next year under French control and involving advancement of the whole playing programme to much earlier dates than previously.

Although the United States lawn tennis association has received no official notice of the changes, it is assumed that the French have received consent of the majority of participating nations to close the entries on January 3, make the draw on February 3 or 9, and start the elimination play around May 1 reaching a climax with the challenge round at Paris at the end of July. Such consent is necessary under the Davis Cup rules.

During the past seven years in which the United States has handled the challenge round, it has been customary to close entries on March 15, and hold the challenge round the second week in September.

The changes, as indicated in dispatches from France, have the approval of the U.S.L.T.A., however, although this country's plans for starting out on the challenging trail are still incomplete. One advantage of the earlier competition will be to permit a substantial foreign invasion for the United States championships late in August or early in September.

ACTION LACKING IN FIGHT FIASCO

California Boxing Commission Under Investigation in Dundee-Hudkins Hoax.

TRIAL SET DEC. 2ND.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10.—Promised drastic action by the city prosecutor in connection with the Hudkins-Dundee fight fiasco was postponed while members of the State Athletic Commission were haled to the investigator's carpet to explain certain phases of the "no-contest" title bout.

Dr. E. J. Lickley, the prosecutor, after questioning Seth W. P. Strelinger of the Commission, announced he would delay action to closely question the two other commissioners, Charles Traung of San Francisco, and Louis Almgren of San Diego.

The prosecutor announced last week that if the commissioners could not answer questions concerning the $60,000 guarantee by Promoter Donald and other things he would make the state officials parties to a "gigantic fight fraud." Dr. Lickley said he would make a full report to Gov. C. C. Young.

Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion, declined to enter the ring last Thursday with Ace Hudkins, of Nebraska, because Promoter Donald was not prepared to lay the alleged guarantee on the line prior to the opening bell. Fifteen thousand fans thereupon staged a near riot.

Before Sterlinger went to Dr. Lickley's office, Dundee, his manager, Max Waxman, and Donald all pleaded not guilty to a charge of false advertising and had their trials by jury set for Dec. 2.

Walter A. Yarwood, secretary of the athletic commission, assured Gov. Young at Sacramento that the commission will try to bring order out of the fight fiasco. The Governor pointed out the future welfare of the fistic game in the state hinged upon the supervision the commission gave boxing.

A proposal to stage the fight here Nov. 21 met with the statement from Dr. Lickley that his office would take immediate steps to prevent it.

"I am unalterably opposed to any attempt to hold a prize fight between Dundee and Hudkins," he said.

The decision to attempt re-staging of the title bout on the deferred date was arrived at in a conference in which Sterlinger, Dundee, Waxman and Donald participated.

London Checker Star Breaks Bank's Record

LONDON, Nov. 10.— (A.P.)—Samuel Cohen, a 20-year-old shirt cutter, is hailed as the new world's champion checker player because he played 104 games simultaneously, winning 71, losing 2 and drawing 31 games.

This is said to have beaten the previous record held by Newell Banks, of Detroit, by four games

Cohen accomplished his feat in four hours, often moving 25 times a minute.

QUEENS HOLD HEAVY PRACTICE

Hold Last Strenuous Workout Today Before Game On Saturday.

SHIFT IN LINE-UP.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press).—At almost freezing weather, Queen's practiced at the Richardson Stadium yesterday afternoon, two hours of strenuous work taking their time from 3.30 to 5.30 today will see the last heavy workout before the game on Saturday.

Coach Carson had the wings tearing down the field under Carter's kicks, with Batstone and Warren on the receiving end, and he was greatly pleased with the work of the wings, who were tearing up the sod in better style than ever.

Lined up against the intermediates, the Tri-color looked better than at any time in the past couple of weeks. A shift in the team was made in that "Ga" Mungovian, former Argos player, was worked with Nagel at snap, and it is likely that if he gets a chance against McGill, it will be in that position and not at quarter. This will leave Mundell to relieve for Sutton in the pivot position.

Despite a continual fall of snow all Tuesday night and the greater part of the morning, the field was in good shape, and unless there is rain today or Friday or Saturday, the game will be played on a hard fast field.

From the way the players are being drilled in practice, it is not likely that the expected aerial attack will materialize against McGill. It is felt that the Red and White line is not as strong as the Varsity line, and Queen's will probably stick to straight rugby on the field, instead of via the aerial route. Batstone, however, was perfecting his drop kicking today, and when the opportunity offers, he is likely to shoot over a few points.

It is interesting to note that Saturday's game will be the twenty-sixth time since the C.I.R.F.U. was established in 1898 that McGill has played Queen's here, and of the twenty-five games to date, Queen's have won fifteen, and lost eight, while two games ended in a tie. But in those twenty-five games, Queen's only scored 266 points as against 250 scored by McGill. Since 1921, McGill has not won a game in Kingston.

FLYNN KEEPS INSIDE RECORD

Looks As If Veteran Will Remain Manager of Jack Dempsey.

DENY RUMORS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10. — Tongues along Cauliflower Row are wagging vigorously. Not so long ago it was bruited about that Jack Dempsey would take on a new manager when he returned to the ring for a second assault on the heavyweight title held by ene Tunney. Last Friday evening Dempsey showed his hand by appearing in the company of Leo P. Flynn at the Madison Square Garden. This was his answer to the rumors.

Flynn was all smiles and made sure that the boys would see him on intimate terms with the popular former champion. It did Leo's heart good to see his erstwhile friends hang their heads in shame.

Last winter every Tom Dick and Harry in the fight racket was boasting of his assurance that he would handle the Manassa Mauler when he returned to the ring. Leo had everything fixed and kept a silent tongue. Then when the stage was set he he sprang the startling news and followed it up by appearing in Jack's camp at Saratoga Springs in complete charge.

It may be that Dempsey ignored the talk going the rounds for the express purpose of backing up his statement that he had nothing to do with the last minute letter published under his name attacking the part Gene Tunney played in contracting with Boo Boo Hoff in Philadelphia last year. Like a good manager Leo Flynn kept his mouth shut and took the blame.

Dempsey is ready to go on with the suit instituted by Kearns. It is safe to say that Flynn knows a thing or two about Dempsey's business relations with Kearns and may take the stand for Dempsey. There are too many angles to the entire affair. Before it is all threshed out and settled there may be a few disclosures the fans know nothing about.

It al ldepends on the muzzle. Just what Kearns will spring is just what the boys are trying to dope out.

DEMPSEY ASKS FOR RING CZAR

Says Boxing Game Needs Man With Supreme Authority.

SETTLE DISPUTES.

ATLANTIC CITY Nov. 10.—Dempsey, in an interview at Atlantic City, advocated a national boxing commission much on the order of Kenesaw M. Landis in baseball and Will H. Hays in the movies. He would have him be the last word in the boxing game, decide on the referees, judges, timekeepers and doctors for championship and all important contests.

"I don't mean to say that there shouldn't be any state commission," he said. "I believe they are good for the game. But I do want to go on record as saying that there should be one big one like Landis or Hays to have the final word where title and outstanding bouts are concerned.

"There is no use crying over spilled milk, but things could have been much better in my bout with Tunney out in Chicago if there had been the proper officials. I venture to say that Gene was on the floor 18 or more seconds.

Dempsey declared that he doesn't plan to make any settlement with Kearns over the $333,333.33 suit instituted against him by his former manager. Instead, he is going to fight to the finish, and if the courts believe Kearns should get any money he'll gladly pay the sum.

Jack chuckled when asked if he planned to retire from the ring soon.

"I don't intend to quit the ring as long as the public wants to see me," he said. "I feel in perfect health and believe I can go on fighting for many more years. No matter what happens to me in the ring I plan to be identified with the boxing game as long as I live. It is my business and my hobby.

"I want another shot at Tunney. But I haven't talked with Rickard about such a fight and won't, until I settle up this affair with Kearns."

GENERAL REVIEW OF N.H.L. CLUBS FOR COMING SEASON

Evenly Balanced Teams Will Go To Front on Opening Date.

MANY CHANGES.

TORONTO, Ont., November 10. — Any expert, or non-expert, who can lay his finger on the winner of this year's race in the National Hockey League, which starts the middle of November and finishes next April, should get 20 to 1 if he wishes to back his opinion in cash.

Never before in the history of the ten-club circuit has such even balance in strength been apparent among a majority of the clubs. The time-worn expression, "Anybody's race," and all the other bromides that signify exactly the same thing, should be worked overtime by prognosticators as the opening of the season draws near, new players and new managers making the doping more than usually intricate.

With practically every team on the circuit presenting changes in personnel—some of them of the most sweeping nature — forecasting the outcome of the season's race will not rank among fashionable sports. Experting is a thankless job at all times, and no one will care to risk a reputation on the outcome of this season's struggle.

Changes at Toronto.

Many changes will be noted in the roster of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Halderson, the big Icelander, has been given his unconditional release, while Bert Corbeau, veteran National League hockeyist, has been sent to the Toronto minor league sextette. Bill Brydge, who paired with Corbeau on the Leaf defence last season, has been traded to Detroit for Art Duncan, who managed the Cougars part of last season. Leafs will present Beattie Ramsay, ex-Varsity star back on the defence, paired up with "Hap" Day, this year's captain, and with Gorman of Ottawa and Duncan for relief work. With the exception of Danny Cox, who has been recalled from Hamilton of the Canadian Pro. League, the forward line will be the same as last year, and from the fashion in which the forward division of the club was travelling at the finish of last season, it will be one of the smoothest-working and fleetest outfits in the league.

Leafs have a dashing centre in Dr. Bill Carson, and two fast-skating, hard-shooting wings in Patterson and Bailey. Bert McCaffery is showing more than ever and looks to be in for a big year. In a year's time, this team has been practically re-made from stem to stern. The club went under new ownership late last season. Connie Smythe will manage the team.

Champions Still Strong.

The world's champion Ottawa Senators, despite the loss of the peppery, hard-checking Hooley Smith, sold to Montreal Maroons for $27,500, are still a powerful hockey club of championship possibilities. Minus this year the sweeping stick and fierce checking of the former world's amateur champion star, Senators will again build their offensive and forward line defensive about the figure of Frank Nighbor, the suave, daft, and polished Pembroke Peach, hockey's greatest exponent of the poke-check,star of many champion teams and a veteran whose lustre and usefulness are undimmed by age. On the line Ottawa will offer the ideal combination—the steadiness and experience of veterans, the dash and fire of youth. The same forward line which swept Ottawa to a world's championship in 1921 is, by coincidence, again available this year, through the return to the capital of Harry "Punch" Broadbent, who went back to the scenes of his greatest hockey triumphs in the deal which brought Smith to the Maroons. Nighbor, Cyrus Dennenny, and Broadbent were that trio, and this year they are re-united. But they will not carry the brunt of the attack alone. Along the wings they have the two sturdy young finds of last season, Hec Kilrea and Krankie Finnegan, to reinforce them, with another potential star in Len Grosvenor, a former amateur around Ottawa, who may develop into the talk of the league. He is the only addition to the Senators' ranks, but according to experts he will be worth a dozen ordinary recruits.

Behind the line Ottawa has the same defence which proved a stone wall to opposing forwards last year, the imperturbable, slim Aleck Connell, in the nets, fronted by the meteoric Frank Clancy, and the cool, calculating and skilful Boucher, both of them great stickhandlers and skaters and adepts at breaking up opposing rushes.

Bruins Unchanged.

Boston Bruins, who, under the direction of the veteran ex-playing star, Art Ross, fought it out with Senators for the title last year, offer few changes, but will have this advantage, that their new-found stars of last year, Shore, Oliver and Galbraith, will have improved vastly with a year's seasoning under the Big Tent. Bruins will try out some new talent, but for the most part will rely on the team which played such sterling hockey last season—Winkler in goal, Shore, Hitch man and Sprague Cleghorn in front of him, and the dashing forward array of "Sailor" Herberts, a great skater, stick-handler and shot; the fast-skating, rangy Frederickson; Harry Oliver, and Galbraith, western boys who developed fast at the end of the season and played brilliantly in the cup series, and a few others. "Red" Stuart and Billy Coutu will be among the missing. Norman Gaynor and Nobby Clark, big defence players, have come to Boston in exchange for Stuart and Coutu from the Minneapolis club of the Central League.

Canadiens Have Speed.

Canadiens, who were the finalists with Ottawa in the eastern section of the big circuit, will have some new talent but for the most part will depend on last year's stars. The dashing lightweight forward line of last year—the tearing Morenz, the crafty, sphinx-like Joliat, the smooth and unobtrusive Gagne, will again be the regular forward line, bolstered by Lean Goudreault, a dashing left-winger who was a star in Montreal amateur hockey last year, and Leo Lafrance, another left-winger who was the property of the team last year, but played in the west. Canadiens will be strong on the defence again. In the nets they will have the diminutive Hainsworth, "shut-out king" of last season. In front of him they will have big Herbie Gardiner, voted the most useful player in the league last season, and a fine type of hockey player. Gardiner proved the "iron man" of the season, going fifteen consecutive games, some of them in extra time, without a rest, Sylvio Mantha, and "Battleship" Leduc, stalwart French-Canadians, and Martin Burke, a rugged player from Minneapolis, complete a powerful defence.

Maroons Have Weight.

Many Montreal eyes will be fastened on Maroons, the big, strong, powerful club which shouldered aside all opposition the year before last, to win the world's title, and came again with a dogged rush at the end last year, to battle Canadiens tooth and nail before being ousted from the play-offs by a lone goal.

The acquisition of Hooley Smith should add the scoring punch to the Maroon forward line, lacked last year, although his services will not be available at the opening of the schedule owing to suspension incurred at the end of last season's Stanley Cup series. The Maroons have also signed up Jimmie Ward, sensational right winger with Fort William, Allan Cup finalists, against Varsity Grads last season. Reg. Noble has been sold outright to Detroit, thus leaving a gap on the defence which may be filled by switching the forward line, bringing Nels Stewart back with Dunc Munro, and placing Phillips as regular centre. Dutton, however, is also available for defence work.

The Maroons stress physical power and weight. They have a stalwart forward line, second to none in pound age, in Stewart, Smith and big Babe Siebert, with such sturdy reserves as Frank Carson, the wiry Bill Phillips and Ward, who is a chunkily-built youngster, scaling over 160 pounds. Maroons have a horde of material to get players from, including Fournier, Tuohey and Emms, stars last season with the Stratford club, all of whom have improved vastly by a season in the big Can. Pro. League.

Gotham's New Manager.

Several changes have been announced in the 1927-28 editions of the New York clubs, the Rangers and the Americans. The Americans have purchased the veteran hard-shooting, right winger, Billy Boucher, from Canadiens, and have sold Laurie Scott to the Rangers. The Rangers have sent Stan. Brown, dashing defenceman, to Detroit in a trade for Meeking and Briden, and have acquired Alex Gray and Art Chapman of Port Arthur, and Art Vail, of the Springfield Indians. The Americans will have a new goaler in the person of Joe Miller, star Ottawa amateur, and another new star in Martin Barry, a Montreal amateur who goes to the team with a reputation as a goal-getter. Clarence Boucher, a stalwart Galt amateur of the most rugged type has been added to the club, Leo Reisie, Joe Simpson, Billy Burch, one of the great players in hockey; "Red" Green, Eddie Bouchard, Norman Himes and Lionel Conacher, will be with the club again. The team will be under the management of 'Snorty' Green, former star player and war hero. He replaces Newsy Lalonde.

General Size-up.

Another new manager will be on display at Detroit, where chunky Jack Adams, rated one of the brainiest players in hockey when he performed for Toronto, Vancouver and Ottawa, will pilot the Tigers. Adams' best move has been to capture the brilliant and colorful George Hay from Chicago Black Hawks. Hay is a great skater and a fine puck handler who will get goals. Detroit, with Hay, Percy Traub, Reg Noble, Stan Brown, Carson Cooper, Bill Brydge and Lawrence Aurie among the new faces, will present a front that should be fifty per cent stronger than a year ago.

Pittsburg Speedy.

Pittsburg alone seems to be resting on its oars. As a result of the death of John Townsend owner of the Pittsburg club, the Pirates have figured in few if any deals.

Pirates rely largely on speed, in which respect they follow the policy of Canadiens. The Pirates have one of the fastest skaters in hockey in Herb Drury, the veteran with the "million dollar legs," and other speed sters like Tex White, Darragh, 'Duke' McCurry, 'Hibby' Milks, Arbour and McQuire. It was the plentitude of speedy forwards on the Pittsburg club which led to the original development of the double forward line. Odie Cleghorn, taking command of the Pittsburg Yellow Jackets when they turned professional evolved this system which set hockey by the ears the first year it was tried and resulted in every other club adopting the same principle. Pirates have a sturdy defense—a steady little goaler in the midget Worters a solid pair of heavy body checkers in Langlois and McKinn and a useful reserve in rangy Roger Smith.

The Black Hawks.

The veteran player Barney Stanley will be manager of the Chicago Black Hawks for the coming campaign.

The Chicago roster includes many new men. Among them are Charlie Gardiner, Cece Browne and Nick Wasne, who were boughtfrom the Winnipeg Maroons last spring for $17,500. Then, there are Taylor, Went worth, Graham and Burns, who played with the Chicago Cardinals in the American league last season.

The only men remaining from last season are Dick Irvin, Trapp, Fraser, McVeigh, Dye, MacKay, Ernie Fodden, Townsend and Hugh Lehman, a veteran goaler.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

By Douglas Malloch.

THE CHURCH'S FRIEND

Yes, we have churches in this town;
I'm always glad to see 'em come.
I wouldn't care to settle down
In any town that hadn't some.
A town without a church or two,
Ain't fit to live in—that's my view.
Of course I don't myself belong,
But I'm for churches, good and strong.

In fact they really make a place
A town at all, it seems to me
They give a town a decent face,
The way a town had ought to be.
Of course I don't belong to none,
But I'm as strong as anyone
For churches in the neighborhood,
For churches do a lot of good.

Why, even property is worth
A whole lot more with churches here.
Just wipe the churches off the earth
And half your wealth would disappear.
The town is growing every day,
For people come and people stay,
Because they always know at sight
A town with churches is all right.

Of course our churches ain't so grand,
Some even find it hard to live;
The churchfolks, so I understand,
Don't give the way they ought to give.
Now, I'm not knocking churchfolks, no;
You see I only heard it's so,
That churches need more cash to run—
Of course I don't belong to none.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S STRANGE RIDE

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

"This is such a fine day I shall hop a long way from my bungalow and look for an adventure," said Uncle Wiggily, when he awakened one morning after his wife had given a party the night before. The rabbit gentleman had played his funny fiddle, made out of two stalks of corn at the party.

"Well, don't go so far away that you can't hop home again," begged Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy as Mr. Longears thrust his pink nose out of the doorway to see how cold the weather was.

"Oh, I shall be back in time to have supper with you," spoke Mr. Longears. "I see there is still some chocolate cake left from the party."

"Oh, yes," his wife said, "and I shall save you a large slice, Wiggy. But don't have any dangerous adventures," begged the rabbit lady. "Don't let the Fox, Bob Cat or Wolf catch you."

"Not if I can help it," answered Uncle Wiggily, with a laugh, and away he hopped down the path.

"Aren't you going to take your red, white and blue rheumatism crutch with you?" called the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Oh, it is such a fine day, thank you, I shall not need it," answered Mr. Longears. "I will have no rheumatism today."

"Let us hope nothing happens to him," murmured Mrs. Longears, as she put on her hat to go to the store, while Nurse Jane tied a bunch of feathers on her tail so she could dust the piano.

Uncle Wiggily hopped on and on until he came to a large lake in the middle of the forest, where he had built his hollow stump bungalow.

"I shall hop along on one side of the lake," said the rabbit to himself, "and I shall turn around the end of the lake and hop home again."

It was beautiful in the woods, even though all the leaves had fallen from the trees, for winter was coming and soon there would be snow. But some of the trees, such as the spruce, pine and hemlock, were still green.

"Those are Christmas trees," thought Uncle Wiggily as he looked at them. "It will be Christmas next month."

He was thinking so much about this and about whether or not he would have an adventure that he did not notice the clouds gathering in the sky. Soon it grew dark. Then it began to rain and though Uncle Wiggily hopped fast, to take shelter beneath a pine tree with thick branches, he received quite a wetting from the rain.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman to himself as he looked out from beneath his sheltering tree. "Here I am away down at the end of the lake, far from home, and in a storm. I fear it isn't going to stop raining soon, either. And—Ouch—Oh, my! Is that a rheumatism pain in my left leg?"

For he felt as if some one had suddenly stuck a pin in him. He waited a moment, thinking perhaps he had stepped on a pine needle. But no! It was his rheumatism coming on him suddenly in the rain.

"Oh, what bad luck!" sighed the bunny uncle. "I am far from my bungalow and I can't hop home in all this rain and with the rheumatism pain in my leg. Oh, dear, what shall I do?"

There was a fluttering out in the lake, the end of which was close to the tree under which Uncle Wiggily had taken shelter. Then came a loud: "Honk! Honk! Honk!"

"Can some one be riding an automobile in the lake?" the bunny asked himself. But in a moment he saw what it was. A large, white Swan came paddling down the lake. And when the Swan saw Uncle Wiggily huddled under the pine tree, the big bird honked again and asked:

"What's the matter, Mr. Longears? Why don't you go home out of the rain?"

"Alas! I wish I could!" sighed the bunny. "But I have the rheumatism, and I can't hop. I forgot to bring my crutch and if I get any wetter my rheumatism will be worse. What shall I do?"

"I'll give you a ride home," honked the Swan, who was a big, strong bird, larger than the rabbit gentleman. "Snuggle down on my back, beneath my feathers. My feathers are oily and no rain can get through them. Snuggle under my feathers as you lie down on my broad back and I will fly to your bungalow," promised the Swan.

"Can you fly with me on your back?" asked the bunny.

"Surely," honked the Swan. "Wait, I'll come there and get you." The big bird waddled out on shore and under the tree. Uncle Wiggily climbed up on the swan's back and snuggled down in the warm feathers which completely covered him. And no rain could get through them to wet him. Then, lying on the Swan's back, Uncle Wiggily had a fine ride home through the air. And the Swan kept him so warm that his rheumatism was almost cured when he reached his bungalow.

"Thank you!" called the rabbit as the Swan settled down to let the bunny hop off his back.

"You are welcome!" honked the Swan as he flew back to paddle on the lake.

So everything happened for the best, you see. And if the milk bottle doesn't stand on its head and spill all the cream down the front steps, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Jimmy's trick.

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

CHOOSE YOUR OWN DIET

Much effort has been spent in researches in order to determine just who are the healthiest people in the world. One phase of this investigation has been to ascertain what race or tribe lives the longest, and why. Every so often some scientist thinks he has settled the subject only to be disproved by some other investigator with a new set of facts and conclusions. One of the beliefs held a few years ago was that the Bulgarians were the longest-lived people, either because they drank buttermilk or, as some believed, because they ate so much garlic. However, you will find statistics to show that some of the oldest people now living have been all their lives in England and have never eaten garlic or drank buttermilk, but havelived mostly on roast beef and cabbage. The Hindu, religiously opposed to the use of flesh foods, often reaches a great age living on rice and fruit. Likewise, the Scandinavian with his coarse bread, the French and Italian with their mixture of dishes, the Germans, living on heavy dishes, and even the South Sea cannibals, all enjoy about the same degree of health and all have plenty of old folks among them.

The great secret is that man's body is organic and can therefore adapt itself to its nutritional opportunities. The oldest people in a country are those who have lived in one place a long time and practiced the same habits day after day until their bodies adapted themselves to their habits of eating, exercising, working, and recreation.

In the countries of the Old World you will find that the people living to the ages of 120 and 130 years have descended from a long line of ancestors who have always lived with the same habits: therefore, a perfect adaptation to the food of that tribe has taken place, where the same kind of food used by one unaccustomed to it would constitute almost a starvation diet.

We, in America, are such a racial mixture and at the same time have such a selection of foods to choose from that it is most necessary to study our food problems carefully if we are to expect the most satisfactory results. While the rest of the world's people are forced to use a limited variety of foodstuffs, we have but to phone the butcher or grocer, and in a few minutes we can have delivered foods which have come from every country on the face of the earth. Is it any wonder that we have such food battles going on in the stomach when we consider how many different types and kinds of food are used at the same time? I do not see any hope of our bodily organisms ever being able to adapt themselves to these "international" mixtures. We must learn to select the different kinds of food of the best quality, and study how to combine them in simple ways. In this manner it will be possible to create a new American plan of dieting and thus take advantage of our opportunities for selection of the most efficient and healthful diet.

Do not concern yourself too much about the food, religion, or social customs of the Hindu or the Eskimo. You should be kept very busy studying your own problems, and then after you have reached perfection you can take the time left in reforming and changing the habits of the rest of mankind.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mother writes: "I have a little girl 3½ years old who has spoken fine up to about a week ago, when she started to stutter. I have told her to speak slowly and plainly, but when I remonstrate with her she won't speak at all. Will you please advise me?"

Answer: Start at once to use the proper methods to overcome your child's nervousness. This is best accomplished through regulating her diet, keeping her bowels open, and seeing that she does not play games that are too exciting. Do not scold her because of her difficulty, but engage some kindergarten teacher to teach her her a b c's and interest her in playing games with blocks. Do not try to teach her, yourself, unless you can learn to be very patient with her.

Question: Worried Writes: "I am one of your constant readers and wish to ask a question: What is the best treatment for what the doctor calls scurvy, which has a tendency to come and go on my body at all times. Am also troubled a great deal with boils."

Answer: The cause of scurvy and boils is practically the same and that is a blood stream depleted of its good elements and filled with morbid material. Clean out your blood stream and balance your diet properly afterwards.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

A clear track. A beautiful day All nature sings. The train is running on schedule time. Pleasant thoughts of the sweetheart waiting at the end of the day's run. Suddenly and with breath-taking horror, a light carriage drawn by a slowly grazing horse appears ahead. In the carriage is a little child. The engine bell tolls frantically. The whiste shrieks. The grinding of suddenly applied brakes, which have no effect on the terrific momentum of the train, cut the air with air-splitting, rusty screams.

Supposing you were the engineer of that train with an inordinate love for children. Seconds are priceless. What would you do?

That is but one of the stirring incidents in the greatest railroad story ever filmed, "The Runaway Express," a Universal-Jewel now showing at the Regent Theatre. The photoplay was adapted by Curtis Benton from Frank Spearman's tale, "The Nerve of Foley."

MEN ON MARCH IN GOOD SPIRITS

Unemployed From Wales Leave Bristol To-day For Bath.

WALKING BRISKLY.

BRISTOL, Eng., Nov. 10 (Canadian Press).—With their faces set toward London, where they intend to descend on Parliament to present the case of the unemployed, the army of jobless recruited in Wales started for Bath to-day.

With a brisk swing of their arms, which most of them learned in the army, the marchers swung along. The men were in excellent spirits, as they had slept late, had a good breakfast, and the prospect of a splendid luncheon was ahead of them.

Walter Hannington, who is in command of the march for its entire distance, said the men would reach Bath for the night after four or five hours of marching. Other days, however, they intended to march from ten to twelve hours, there being no eight-hour regulations for them.

THE KING OF COFFEES

DISTRICT CHURCHES

MILLBROOK CHURCHES.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 9. — Special Thanksgiving services were held in all three of the local churches on Sunday, fall flowers being used in each case for decorative purposes, the thought of a nation's gratitude being made up of the spirit of true gratitude toward God in the hearts and lives of the individual citizens being emphasized.

At Saint Thomas' church holy communion was celebrated at morning worship, Rev. P. B. Delon, of Cobourg, having charge of the service in the absence of the rector, who was confined to the house through illness.

The special thanksgiving prayers were read, and the hymns were all appropriate to the occasion. Rev. Mr. Delon chose his text from Genesis, 9:13: "I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth."

The text, the speaker said, was a little unusual for Thanksgiving Sunday, but the thought developed showed clearly that God's covenant with the earth gives assurance that seed time and harvest shall not fail; this assurance has been abundantly realized this season in the bountiful harvest, and as the fear of want is removed in things temporal so should true gratitude to the Father well up in every heart, and find expression in daily living.

The evening service was withdrawn on account of the harvest festival service at Trinity Church (The Marsh) Rev Mr. Weir, of Omemee, preaching for this special occasion. Rev. P. C. Howard, who had charge of the afternoon service at Saint John's church, Ida, went on to Omemee and supplied for Mr. Weir at night.

Trinity Church.

The combined choirs of the parish led in the singing at Trinity church, the soloists being Mrs. F. Waterman, and Mrs. W. Lunney. The church was filled to capacity, and the decorations of fruits, grains, flowers and vegetables were in keeping with the occasion.

Rev. Mr. Weir spoke from the words: "Bless the Lord O My Soul, and Forget Not All His Benefits," and his entire discourse had a direct bearing on the subject of national thanksgiving. "Our thanks should be as fervent for mercies received as our petitions for mercies asked."

Mr. Weir took charge of the service at Christ church, Bailieboro, in the afternoon. The candidates who received the rite of Confirmation at the hands of Bishop Sweeny one week ago at evening worship in Saint Thomas' church observed their first communion, when this sacrament of the church was solemnized at the morning service.

Grace Church.

The prayers, Scripture lessons, hymns and sermon at Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday at 11 a. m. were all of a special thanksgiving character and the choir rendered an anthem that carried out the theme uppermost for the day.

The pastor, Rev. John Riddell, based his discourse upon a number of passages from the Bible all bearing on the subject of praise and gratitude, speaking in detail of the many reasons for which Canadians especially, should give thanks. "We should give thanks indeed, for all that befalleth us, whether it be sweet or bitter, good or seeming evil, since we see only the beginning and not the winding up of the events of this life."

"Who does not enjoy what he has, with contentment and devout gratitude, would be equally ignorant of true happiness that had he all he could wish for."

United Church.

Rev. S. A. Kemp, of Lakefield, preached in the United church on Sunday, exchanging pulpits with the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, who took the anniversary services at the former's appointment.

The choir rendered the anthem, "Unto Thee O Lord," a the morning worship, and Mr. Kemp chose his text from II Chronicles, 7:1, "Now when Solomon had made an end of praying, the fire came down from heaven," and in verse 3, "And when all the children of Israel saw how the fire came down, and the glory of the Lord upon the house, they bowed themselves with their faces to the ground and worshipped, and praised the Lord saying, 'For He is good; for His mercy endureth forever."

"The element of thanksgiving is sadly lacking in our age, and it may be that our national sin is that of ingratitude." We make thanksgiving day merely a holiday, a time of pleasure, and of banquetting our friends, forgetting its real meaning—this is an outgrowth actually, of the sin of selfishness."

"Daily papers will give big headlines to the announcement of Thanksgiving Day, and then turn the matter into a joke by printing a row of turkeys on an inside page — thus turning the thoughts only to feasting, speaking to stomachs not to souls, and as an actual fact there is no inborn, inbred, gratitude to God in our hearts at all."

"If the charge is true that the church has lost her power, it happened when she lost her note of praise and thanksgiving deep down in the hearts of her members. She lost it when she lost her power to build churches—some of our fathers mortgaged their farms to pay toward the building of this and other churches. Fancy a man mortgaging his farm for that reason to-day. We are more apt to say we cannot afford to redecorate or clean up our churches because it 's too costly an undertaking. Whel the willingness to sacrifice has been recaptured we shall sing again the songs of Zion."

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — II — by Nicholas Afonsky

One of the strange myths of flying concerns Simon the Magician, founder of an anti-Christian sect in the first century in the time of Nero. To prove that there was nothing supernatural about the Ascension, the story goes, he made a fiery chariot, in which he flew several times over Rome.

Witches and sorcerers, according to popular tales, could always travel through the air. It is said that about 790 A. D., wishing to see if this really could happen, some prominent men living near Mount Pilatus, Switzerland, forced some of their poor neighbors to go up in a sort of balloon.

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The frightened wretches are said to have descended in the town of Lyons, where they were surrounded by a frenzied mob. The judges condemned them to be burned, but Bishop Agobard, after questioning them, decided that they had no evil intentions and allowed them to escape. He did not believe their admission that they had come through the air, and later wrote a book on the superstitions of the day, in which he showed that it was impossible to rise into the air.

In the year 1060, it is said that the monk, William of Malmesbury, made wings for himself, and then jumped from a high tower. He fell, but he lived to tell how it feels to soar through the air like a bird, for his only injury was a broken leg.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

'THE FALLACY OF VACCINATION.'

Dr. J. J. G. Wilkinson, once a pro vaccinist, was urged to investigate the whole subject, which with reluctance he did, and stated:

"Not denying other forms of social wickedness, I, now, after carfeul study, regard vaccination as one of the greatest and deepest of all forms, abolishing the last hope of races, the new-born soundness of the human family."

Dr. Milton Rose makes this startling declaration: "My convictions (which are based on irrefutable facts) are, the vaccination is an unmitigated curse and the most destructive medical delusion which has ever afflicted the human race."

"Resist the law," wrote John Stuart Mill. "The state has no more right to enforce a surgical operation than a religious ceremony."

Blackstone's opinion: "No laws are binding on the human subject which assault the body or violate the conscience. The compulsory vaccination law is guilty of both these."

ANOTHER JUNIOR O.H.A. TEAM FOR CITY THIS YEAR

St. John's, Last Season's Church League Winners, To Enter Ontario Race.

START TRAINING.

New Entry To Begin at Once To Get Into Shape For Season.

Peterborough is to have two teams in the junior O.H.A. race this season and the new local entry swung into action last night when the St. John's Hockey Club was organized, and plans made for the campaign.

The St. John's team, which will be sponsored by the Young Men's Club of St. John's Church, won the Church League championship last season, and reinforced by other local players expects to make a good showing in the Ontario race. The feeling of those behind the team is that the hockey situation, as a result of the inroads of professional clubs is developing in such a way that more and more encouragement will have to be given to the junior players, and that a second team from Peterborough in the junior ranks will provide opportunities for youngsters who would otherwise have no chance to show their wares.

Although sponsored by the Young Men's Club a chance will be given all local players who want to try out for Junior O.H.A. competition.

The following officers were elected:
Honorary President: Rev. Dr. Blagrave.
Honorary Vice-Presidents: Col. A. Stevenson and W. J. Kent.
President: Fred D. Craig.
Vice-President Harold Lang.
Secretary: B. E. Park.
Treasurer: Bert Austin.
Managing Committee: Fred D. Craig, chairman, B. F. Park, Douglas Hammond.
Finance Committee Bert Austin, chairman, M. Hartley Terry Hall, H. Lang and H. Hutchinson.

Either F. D. Craig or Douglas Hammond will represent St. John's at the annual meeting of the O.H.A. next week.

The club's colors will be red and white.

It was decided to begin training at once, and it is hoped to make arrangements with the Y.M.C.A. for gymnasium work, which with running will help to put the squad in shape before the ice arrives.

Considerable enthusiasm was in evidence among the players attending, and if interest and club spirit count for anything, the new Junior club should give an excellent account of itself this season.

DAY OF PRAYER HERE FOR CHINA

Prayer Meetings Will Be Held To-morrow in Bethany Tabernacle.

ARMISTICE REMEMBERED.

Armistice Day, November 11th, will be marked by proper exercises the world over fittingly commemorating the end of hostilities in the great World War.

It has this year been set aside by great Christian bodies and religious bodies as a day of Fasting and Prayer for China. The following is an editorial taken from the Sunday school Times:

Armistice Day, November 11, will be observed as an International Day of Fasting and Prayer for China. The call to prayer was translated into various languages and sent throughout the world. In China it has gone to more than five thousand Christian workers throughout the land. It is suggested that prayer should be offered for those in authority in civil, military and political affairs in China; for the missionaries still in China and in the homelands; for the Chinese pastors and Christians; for divine wisdom in the conduct of churches and mission schools; for the spread of the Word of God; and for a great revival throughout China. Already the dark clouds that have been hanging over China are beginning to scatter. The missionaries—especially the men—are beginning to go back to their stations. Twenty men of one mission recently returned to an interior province. Their new policy is to put the already established work entirely in the hands of the Chinese Christians, while the missionaries will go out to villages and towns where there are no Christians and do pioneer itinerating work assisted by over a hundred Chinese evangelists. Another auspicious augury of future blessings is the remarkable manner in which the Lord is blessing the nation-wide distribution of New Testaments in connection with the Million Testaments for China Campaign. After most of the missionaries were compelled to leave their stations, letters were sent to Chinese pastors, evangelists and other workers, explaining the plan and asking them to apply for the Testaments. Their response was hearty and enthusiastic. For weeks past the headquarters in Shanghai have been flooded with requests for the life-giving Books. Thus far more than three hundred and seventy thousand Testaments have been sent out by the three Bible Societies co-operating in the movement. That such a large distribution could have been made in these troublous times in China is nothing short of miraculous. It is the Lord's doing in answer to a great volume of believing prayer, and it is expected that the distribution will go forward still more rapidly during the autumn and winter as the missionaries return to their stations in increasing numbers.

Rev. R. K. Mills, pastor of Bethany Tabernacle has arranged to have the Tabernacle open and heated during the hours from 10 a.m., to 4 p.m., for those who wish to unite in prayer for the many who will be praying on that day for China.

There will be two prayer meetings, at 10 a.m., and 2 p.m.

All Christians who believe in the power of prayer are urged to join in this day of fasting and prayer for China.

ECZEMA BROKE OUT OVER BODY
Could Not Do Any Work. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema broke out over my hands, arms, feet and limbs and on my body. It appeared in pimples that itched something awful, and when I scratched, it caused the trouble to spread. My arms and limbs were covered with sore eruptions. Whenever my clothing rubbed it, it would burn like fire. I could not do any work.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment and within a month I was healed." (Signed) F. W. Simmons, Tawatinaw, Alta., Oct. 4, 1926.

Rely on Cuticura Soap and Ointment to keep your skin clear.

WEDDING BELLS

MEADE—LEWIS.

At St. Peter's rectory, Rev. Father Corkery united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Enid Alexandria youngest daughter of Mrs. Crummie, and the late David Arthur Lewis of Smith, to Maurice Augustine, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Meade of Douro. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. David Crowley of Otonabee.

The happy couple left by the 5.30 C.N.R. for Toronto, and points west. On their return they will reside in Lakefield.

RUTHERFORD—GREER.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Centreville Presbyterian church on Wednesday November 2 at 12.30 o'clock, when Margaret Eileen the only daughter of Mr. John Greer was united in marriage to William Dawson Rutherford, eldest son of Mrs M. J. Rutherford, the Rev. Mr. Riddell officiating.

The bride, attired in a rose georgette dress with gold trimmings and a black picture hat, and carrying a bouquet of ophelia roses, entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Margaret Rutherford of St. Catharines, who also played during the signing of the register.

After the wedding ceremony, the guests, about forty in number, repaired to the home of the bride, at Bailieboro, where a sumptuous luncheon was served. After the luncheon the bride and groom left on an extended motor trip to the United States, the bride travelling in a rose jersey cloth dress and cinnamon cloth coat, with lynx trimmings.

COLD WEATHER IS MOVING EAST

Mercury Drops Below Zero in Parts of Alberta During Night.

SNOWFALLS GENERAL.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 10.— (Canadian Press,)—Indications that winter has begun its seasonal siege of Western Canada was contained in reports today that a frigid cold wave is descending upon the Prairie Provinces along the Mackenzie River Valley. Heavy snowfalls have been general over a wide area extending from the Rockies to Ontario during the past week and sharply lower temperatures were recorded in Alberta last night. In some parts of Alberta the mercury slumped a few degrees below zero, while Calgary and Edmonton had 30 and 28 degrees of frost respectively. The cold wave was moving eastward rapidly. In Central Saskatchewan and in Manitoba generally the snowfall has been particularly heavy during the past twenty-four hours.

TRAVEL TALK GIVEN AT SCHOOL MEETING

Mrs. Ada Craig Describes Her Recent Trip To Europe.

On Tuesday evening an excellent programme was given at the open meeting of the King George Home and School Association, when the feature of the evening was a very enjoyable descriptive talk of her recent trip to the Old Country, given by the president, Mrs. Ada Craig. Musical numbers were given in Scottish songs by Messrs R. Hendry and J. A. Smith, comic songs by Mr. C. Coleman, and vocal solos by Miss Isabel Black. Readings were also given by Miss Barns, and an orchestra provided by Mr. T. Darrah gave some well-received numbers.

Mrs. Craig, in graphic style, outlined her tour of England, France, and Belgium, commencing with the fine send-off given the ship by the C.P.R. Company on its departure on the first of July from Quebec, and going on to describe various points of interest viewed in the three countries, and her visit to the various battlefields of the Great War. The talk was much enjoyed.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the programme. During a brief business session, it was decided to hold a school bazaar on the 25th of November.

TWO PEOPLE DIE IN WINDSOR FIRE

Former Officer of Canadian Forces Victim When 12 Houses Burn.

LONDON, England, November 10 (Canadian Press Cable). — Fire which gutted a row of twelve houses at Windsor early to-day claimed as a victim George Leonard Bull, 42, a former Life Guardsman, who served during the war as a captain in the Canadian Army. A woman also lost her life in the fire.

IN POLICE COURT.

A resident of Smith Township pleaded guilty this morning to being intoxicated, and was fined $15.00 and costs.

Two young men, George Clapper, 19, and Earl Laporte, 20, pleaded guilty to indecently assaulting a girl in the Township of Dummer and were both sentenced to the common jail.

The men were engaged by a lumberman to cut wood on the Fourth Line of Dummer. The three men and the complainant, who was acting as cook, lived in a small shanty. About two weeks ago the lumberman went away and left the boys alone with the cook, who is a married woman. She claims that the boys kept her there for two weeks against her will.

Clapper was given two months, as at present he is out on parole, having been sentenced over a year ago for stealing bicycles. Laporte was sentenced to one month.

An aged man from Lakefield was charged with vagrancy and being insane, and he was remanded for a few days until his case can be investigated.

PLAY REPEATED.

Lighthouse Nan Given at Bensfort By Mark Street People.

The play, "Lighthouse Nan," was presented in Bensfort Community Hall last evening by the Mission Band of Mark Street United Church, under direction of Mrs. E. Wand. The hall was well filled with an appreciative audience. During the evening, piano solos were given by Mrs. Lang, and Mrs. W. Smith, with vocal solos by Mrs. Hugh Hunter. Mr. Gordon Agnew took the part of "Injun Jim" in a very capable manner. Mr. R. A. Castle kindly accompanied the cast, taking down the properties required for the presentation of the play. "Lighthouse Nan" will be presented again in the city this month. It was given in Victoria Hall some time ago by the young people, when a full account appeared in The Examiner.

Bank clearings for the week amounted to $1,031,936.
